the limits of the District of Columbia the death of a person shall be caused by the wrongful act, neglect, or default, of any person or corporation, and the act, neglect, or default is such as would, if death had not ensued, have entitled the party injured, or if the person injured be a married woman, have entitled her husband, either separately or by joining with the wife, to maintain an action and recover damages, the person who or corporation which would have been liable if death had not ensued shall be liable to an action for damages for such death, notwithstanding the death of the person injured, even though the death shall have been caused under circumstances which constitute a felony; and such damages shall be assessed with reference to the injury resulting from such act, neglect, or default causing such death, to the spouse and next of kin of such deceased person; and shall also include the reasonable expenses of last illness and burial: Provided, That if there be a surviving spouse the jury shall allocate the portion of its verdict payable to the spouse and next of kin, respectively, according to the finding of damage to said spouse and next of kin: Provided further, That if in a particular case the verdict is deemed excessive the trial justice or the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, on appeal of the cause, may order a reduction of the verdict: And provided further, That no action shall be maintained under this chapter in any case when the party injured by such wrongful act, neglect, or default has recovered damages therefor during the life of such party. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1394, ch. 854, § 1301; June 19, 1948, 62 Stat. 487, ch. 507, § 1.)

Amendments

Act, June 19, 1948, substituted the word "spouse" (first appearance) for the word "widow"; deleted all following "deceased person" and supplied the remainder of the section commencing with the words "and shall also include".

The catchline has been amended.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Decisions Under Prior Law

Under act of February 17, 1885 (23 Stat. 307), see McGraw v. District of Columbia (3 App. D. C. 405, 25 L. R. A. 691).

In action for wrongful death under act of Congress of February 17, 1885 (23 Stat. 307), it was not necessary for the plaintiff to allege special pecuniary loss due to death of the deceased. District of Columbia v. Wilcox (4 App. D. C. 90).

Under act of Congress of February 17, 1885 (23 Stat. 307), an administrator may sue for killing of his intestate whether the intestate left goods and chattels or not. Washington Asphalt Block & Tile Co. v. Mackey (15 App. D. C. 410).

In General

Statute is remedial and as such must be liberally construed. Calvert v. Terminal Taxicab Co. (48 App. D. C. 119), citing United States ex rel. Stevens v. Richards (33 App. D. C. 410).

There is only one cause of action for wrongful death and it arises under sections 1201–1203 of this title. Webster v. Clodfelter, 1942 (130 F. 2d 434, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 171, 143 A. L. R. 280, affirming 39 F. Supp. 62, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 261, 317 U. S. 689, 87 L. Ed. 552).

Beneficiaries

Action for wrongful death caused by negligence in Maryland can be maintained in District of Columbia court for the benefit of the persons designated in the statute of Maryland. Stewart v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. (168 U. S. 445, 42 L. Ed. 537, 18 Sup. Ct. 105, revg. 6 App. D. C. 56).

Fact that the deceased had his domicil in Virginia, and that he had no estate here, at the time of his death are not conclusive against the right to obtain letters of administration in District of Columbia. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Lipscomb (22 App. D. C. 104).

If the action cannot be maintained by the personal representative of the intestate for the ultimate benefit of the father, who is next of kin, and alone has been shown to have sustained any injury by the death of the son, the judgment ought to be arrested, for the remedy of the statute goes no further. United States Elec. Lighting Co. v. Sullivan (22 App. D. C. 115).

Action is maintainable for benefit of illegitimate brother of the half blood of the decedent, a woman. Southern R. Co. v. Hawkins (35 App. D. C. 313, 21 Ann. Cas. 926).

Necessity for declaration to allege existence of beneficiaries within the statute, and right to amend a declaration failing so to allege, see Neubeck v. Lynch (37 App. D. C. 576, 37 L. R. A. (N. S.) 813).

A husband, as administrator, has a proper action for death of wife, within meaning of the words "next of kin." Calvert v. Terminal Taxicab Co. (48 App. D. C. 119).

Construction With Other Laws

Action brought in District under wrongful death act of Nebraska is subject to the two-year limitation of that act and not the one-year limitation of the District statute. The law of the state where the death occurred should govern unless the public policy of the forum is clearly opposed. The District Act is confined to deaths within its jurisdiction. Lewis v. Reconstruction Finance Corp. (C. A., D. C. 1949, 177 F. 2d 654, 85 U. S. App. D. C. 339).

Employers' Liability Act

This section is not repealed by the Employers' Liability Act (34 Stat. 232); but each act applies to cases arising under it and to none other. Hyde v. Southern R. Co. (31 App. D. C. 466).

Section 501 et seq. of Title 36 creates a right of action against employer on account of death of employee arising out of and in course of employment, but it does not create a cause of action for wrongful death against any other person. Webster v. Clodfelter, 1942 (130 F. 2d 434, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 171, 143 A. L. R. 280, affirming 39 F. Supp. 62, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 261, 317 U. S. 689, 87 L. Ed. 552).

Measure of Damages

In damage suit for wrongful death, where deceased leaves a widow and four sons, one of whom is a minor, an instruction to the jury is erroneous which includes damages for reasonable expectations of prospective inheritance, prospective support, gifts, guidance, paternal advice and maintenance. Baltimore & P. R. Co. v. Golway (6 App. D. C. 143).

At common law, the right of a parent to recover for loss of the services of his minor child, like that of the husband for the services of the wife, is limited to the time that may have elapsed, if any, between the time of the injury giving rise to the action, and the resulting death. United States Elec. Lighting Co. v. Sullivan (22 App. D. C. 115).

Father as administrator is entitled to recover more than nominal damages for death of child between eight and nine years of age. United States Elec. Lighting Co. v. Sullivan (22 App. D. C. 115); Smith v. Cissel (22 App. D. C. 318).

"Section 1301, D. C. 1901 (this section), in effect, provides that the measure of damages shall be the injury resulting to the widow and next of kin. While section 1302 (§ 16–1202) requires the action to be brought in the name of the personal representative, section 1303 (§ 16–1203) in terms sets aside the damages recovered for the benefit of the family of the decedent. It will thus be seen that the duty of the administrator is simply to bring the suit allowed by the statute, and, in the event of a recovery, distribute the damages according to the provisions of the statute of distributions in force in this District." Southern R. Co. v. Hawkins (35 App. D. C. 313, 21 Ann. Cas. 926).

In action for death of sister, the amount of pecuniary loss is for the jury. Ramsey v. Ross (66 App. D. C. 186, 85 Fed. (2d) 685).

The only damages recoverable in an action for wrongful death are those which constitute pecuniary loss to widow and next of kin for whose benefit action by administrator is brought. Tate v. Nelson (App. D. C. 1947, 71 F. Supp. 465).

The pecuniary loss to widow and next of kin for whose benefit action for wrongful death is brought by administrator is not dependent upon any legal liability of deceased to beneficiaries, but there must appear some reasonable expectation of pecuniary assistance or support of which they have been deprived. Tate v. Nelson (App. D. C. 1947, 71 F. Supp. 465).

Parties Defendant

Action may be maintained in this District against a druggist whose negligent filling of a prescription in the District results in death beyond the District. Moore v. Pywell (29 App. D. C. 312, 9 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1078).

No right of recovery exists where an officer kills one engaged in the commission of a felony and who draws a gun on the officer. Harris v. Embrey (70 App. D. C. 232, 105 Fed. (2d) 111).

These sections apply to action for death of seaman on board a vessel owned by the Fleet Corporation occurring on the coast of Africa; and they also apply to the operator of the vessel joined as a defendant with the owner. United States Shipping Bd. v. Greenwald ((C. C. A. 2), 16 Fed. (2d) 948).

Workmen's Compensation Act

Where widow has elected to receive compensation under Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, 33 U. S. C. § 901 et seq., but widow is not the only person for whose benefit an action for wrongful death may be maintained, any moneys paid or to be paid as compensation to the widow may not be shown in the action for wrongful death in extinguishment or reduction of her pecuniary loss. Tate v. Nelson (App. D. C. 1947, 71 F. Supp. 465).

§ 16–1202 [21: 2]. Party plaintiff—Statute of limitations.

Every such action shall be brought by and in the name of the personal representative of such deceased person, and within one year after the death of the party injured. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1394, ch. 854, § 1302; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 543, ch. 1329.)

Amendment

The 1902 amendment inserted the word "such" after the word "every."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

In General

Action for wrongful death must fail if not brought by personal representative. Harris v. Embrey (70 App. D. C. 232, 105 Fed. (2d) 111).

Actions Against United States

An action against the United States for death by wrongful act or negligence in the District was not barred by the one-year statute of limitations under the District Code, but was governed by the Federal Court of Claims Act. The attention and precision devoted by Congress to the question of limitations require that effect be given to the period which it prescribes notwithstanding the fact that the cause of action against the United States may not, in a local jurisdiction, be the same in duration as therein authorized against a private individual. Young v. United States (C. A. D. C. 1950, 184 F. 2d 587).

Aliens, Action by

That decedent's daughter was a national of Greece and an alleged alien enemy did not toll this section for bringing wrongful death action where such daughter was a resident of Michigan at time of accident, and it was upon her petition that administrator of the estate of decedent was appointed, and there was no reason why daughter could not have instituted such suit within the year following death of decedent. Summar v. Besser Mfg. Co. (1945, 17 N. W. 2d 209, 310 Mich. 347).

This section was not tolled because decedent's widow, daughter, and son were nationals and residents of Greece, and allegedly alien enemies because of German occupation of Greece, since suit might have been prosecuted in their behalf notwithstanding the Trading With the Enemy Act, 50 U. S. C. § 1 et seq. Summar v. Besser Mfg. Co. (1945, 17 N. W. 2d 209, 310 Mich. 347).

Section 501 et seq. of Title 36 does not alter the period of limitations in this section. Webster v. Clodfelter, 1942 (130 F. 2d 434, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 171, 143 A. L. R. 280, affirming 39 F. Supp. 62, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 261, 317 U. S. 689, 87 L. Ed. 552).

Where defendant caused death of employee of another under such circumstances that, if death had not ensued, the employee would have been entitled to maintain action against defendant or to recover compensation under section 501 et seq. of Title 36, death action instituted under this section within one year after appointment of guardian for employee's infant son but more than one year after death was barred by limitation of this section, notwithstanding employees' compensation act provision that one year limitation on right to compensation for death should not be applicable to infants until appointment of guardian. Webster v. Clodfelter, 1942 (130 F. 2d 434, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 171, 143 A. L. R. 280, affirming 39 F. Supp. 62, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 261, 317 U. S. 689, 87 L. Ed. 552).

This section was not inapplicable to action for death caused by automobile in the District on ground that application of such limitation would contravene the Michigan statute, Comp. Laws 1929, providing for suspending of running of limitations when any person is disabled to prosecute an action, where it was not shown that decedent's administrator might not have brought the action in Michigan within one year following death. Summar v. Besser Mfg. Co. (1945, 17 N. W. 2d 209, 310 Mich. 347).

Action brought in District under wrongful death act of Nebraska is subject to the two-year limitation of that act, and not the one-year limitation of the District statute. The law of the state where the death occurred should govern unless the public policy of the forum is clearly opposed. The District Act is confined to deaths within its jurisdiction. Lewis v. Reconstruction Finance Corp. (C. A. D. C. 1949, 177 F. 2d 654; 85 US App. D. C. 339).

An action brought by the State of Maryland where the death occurred in accordance with a Maryland statute is entitled to be maintained within the District as one for wrongful death. State of Maryland v. Eastern Airlines (D. C. D. C. 1948, 81 F. Supp. 345).

Diligence of Plaintiff

Where action was brought within statutory period against nonresident of District of Columbia for death caused by automobile, and over three years after the death and two years and one month after action had been filed service was made on the nonresident in compliance with the Financial Responsibility Act, § 401 et seq., but during the intervening period five summonses had been issued at less than six-month intervals for personal service on the nonresident, there was a sufficient showing of "diligence," so that ruling that there had been a "discontinuance" of the action because of undue delay was improper. Seymour v. Hawkins, 1942 (133 F. 2d 15, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 376).

EXECUTOR OR ADMINISTRATOR

This section requiring that suit shall be brought by and in the name of the personal representative of such deceased person, has been held to mean either the executor or administrator of the deceased. Ferguson v. Washington & R. G. Co. (6 App. D. C. 525); Southern R. Co. v. Hawkins (35 App. D. C. 313, 21 Ann. Cas. 926).

Words "personal representative" have been held to refer either to the executor or administrator, and hence, as the right of the action is statutory, no person other than those upon whom authority is expressly conferred may maintain action. Fleming v. Capital Trac. Co. (40 App. D. C. 489).

RESIDENCY

The District of Columbia one-year limitation statute was not inapplicable to action for death caused by automobile in the District because some of decedent's heirs did not reside in the District during the year following the death, where two of the heirs resided in the District, and under District of Columbia statute, by operating a motor vehicle in the District, nonresident owner and his agent subject themselves to jurisdiction of the courts of the District of Columbia. Summar v. Besser Mfg. Co. (1945, 17 N. W. 2d 209, 310 Mich. 347).

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT—SUBROGATION

An employer or an insurance carrier who has paid compensation to the only beneficiary or beneficiaries entitled to receive the same and who has a right of subrogation, may bring the subrogation action against the third person who caused the death of the employee, and the action need not be brought by the personal representative of the decedent. Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Moses (287 U. S. 530, 77 L. Ed. 477, 53 Sup. Ct. 231, 88 A. L. R. 647, revg. 61 App. D. C. 74, 57 Fed. (2d) 440).

In case there is more than one dependent and one only elects to accept workmen's compensation and the other dependent or dependents elect to bring an action under the wrongful death statute, then the employer is not entitled to sue as a subrogee but the action must be brought by the personal representative of the decedent, the employee having the right to demand that such action be brought and that he share in the recovery. Doleman v. Levine (295 U. S. 221, 79 L. Ed. 1402, 55 Sup. Ct. 741, revg. 64 App. D. C. 25, 73 Fed. (2d) 842).

The damages recovered in such action, except the amount specified by the verdict or judgment covering the reasonable expenses of last illness and burial, shall not be appropriated to the payment of the debts or liabilities of such deceased person, but shall inure to the benefit of his or her family and be distributed to the spouse and next of kin according to the allocation made by the verdict or judgment, or in the absence of such allocation, according to the provisions of the statute of distribution in force in said District of Columbia. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1395, ch. 854, § 1303; June 19, 1948, 62 Stat. 487, ch. 507, § 2.)

AMENDMENTS

Act, June 19, 1948, cited to text, inserted between the words "action" and "shall" the phrase: "except the amount specified by the verdict or judgment covering the reasonable expenses of last illness and burial", and between the words "distributed" and "according" the phrase: "to the spouse and next of kin according to the allocation made by the verdict or judgment, or in the absence of such allocation,".

NOTES TO DECISIONS

DUTY OF ADMINISTRATOR

Recovery not liable for debts of deceased, but, nevertheless, it is the duty of administrator to institute suit, if facts warrant it. Fleming v. Capital Trac. Co. (40 App. D. C. 489).

Chapter 13.—PARTITION AND ASSIGNMENT OF DOWER

Sec.
16–1301. Partition—When granted—Parties—Accounting by tenant in common.
16–1302. Assignment of dower—Appointment of commissioners—Cases of partition.
16–1303. Assignment of dower of widow of tenant in common.
16–1304. Parties to proceeding.
16–1305. Sale of land encumbered by dower—Lack of consent—Consent in writing—Her portion.
16–1306. Sale of indivisible property—Discharge from dower.

§ 16–1301 [25: 381]. Partition — When granted — Parties—Accounting by tenant in common.

The equity court may decree a partition of any lands, tenements, or hereditaments on the bill or petition of any tenant in common, claiming by descent or purchase, or of any joint tenant or coparcener; or if it appear that said lands, tenements, or hereditaments can not be divided without loss or injury to the parties interested, the court may decree a sale thereof and a division of the money arising from such sale among the parties, according to their respective rights; and this section shall apply to cases where all the parties are of full age, to cases where all the parties are infants, to cases where some of the parties are of full age and some infants, to cases where some or all of the parties are non compos mentis, and to cases where all or any of the parties are non-residents; and any party, whether of full age, infant, or non compos mentis, may file a bill under this section, an infant by his guardian or prochein ami and a person non compos mentis by his committee: Provided, That in every case of partition any tenant in common who may have received the rents and profits of the property to his own use may be required to account to his cotenants for their respective shares of said rents and profits, and any amounts found to be due on said accounting may be charged against the share of the party owning the same in the property, or its proceeds in case of sale. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1203, ch. 854, § 93; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 523, ch. 1329.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

This section and § 21–213 were originally § 93 of the code of 1901 and probably should be read together.

AMENDMENT

The 1902 amendment deleted the words "who was such at the date of this code" which followed the word "coparcener" in the first clause, and struck out the proviso of the 1901 Act and inserted in lieu thereof the words following the word "provided." The proviso of the 1901 Act read as follows: "Provided, That if the parties entitled as heirs at law to the real estate of an intestate can not agree upon a partition thereof, or any of said parties be a minor, or the courts shall be of opinion that said estate can not be divided without loss or injury to the parties interested, before any sale shall be made thereof, the oldest son, child, or person entitled, if of age, shall have the election to take the whole estate and pay to the others their just proportions of the value in money; and if the oldest child or person entitled refuses to take the estate and pay to the others money for their proportions, then the next oldest child or person entitled, being of age, shall have the same election, and so on to the youngest child or person entitled; and if all refuse, then the property shall be sold as aforesaid; and in every case of partition any tenant in common who may have received the rents and profits of the property to his own use or may have had the exclusive possession and enjoyment of the property may be required to account to his cotenants for their respective shares of said rents and profits, or, as the case may be, for the value of the use and occupation of their undivided shares of the property; and any amounts found due on said accounting may be charged against the share of the party owing the same in the property or its proceeds in case of sale."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Historical

For history of partition of District of Columbia among original proprietors, see Bursey v. Lyon (30 App. D. C. 597).

Accounting

Statute creates equitable lien against the interest of a cotenant to the amount found to be due from him on accounting permitted by statute. Loving v. Moore (37 App. D. C. 214).

Quaere: Whether common-law action of account lies by one tenant in common against the other who has secured more than his just share, in view of provisions of this section. Lyon v. Bursey (42 App. D. C. 519).

When one of tenants in common occupied property without payment of rent, an accounting under this section would not be allowable inasmuch as this section presupposes a subletting. Allen v. Jones (56 App. D. C. 245, 12 Fed. (2d) 186).

Cotenants

Mere acquiescence by one tenant in common in upkeep and improvements by his cotenant, who has complete possession of the common property, is not sufficient to establish partition in pais, without proof of some agreement between the parties to that end. Addison v. Barnes (45 App. D. C. 284).

A cotenant is not liable to his cotenants for use and occupation, unless there has been an actual or constructive ouster of the cotenants. Allen v. Jones (56 App. D. C. 245, 12 Fed. (2d) 186).

Where marriage relationship was dissolved at suit of wife by Florida court, full faith and credit being given Florida judgment, the estate of which husband and wife were seised as tenants by the entireties on date of that decree became a "tenancy in common," and hence complaint for seeking partition of the property would be treated as one between tenants in common. Scholl v. Scholl (D. C., D. C. 1947, 72 F. Supp. 823).

Counsel Fees

In partition, the fees of plaintiff's attorney cannot be charged against all the parties when in good faith they retain and are represented by other counsel. Fletcher v. Coomes (52 App. D. C. 159, 285 Fed. 893).

Definitions

The terms "parties" and "rights" mentioned in this section are defined and limited by the provisions of §§ 16–1305 and 16–1306. Devlin v. Esher (52 App. D. C. 30, 280 Fed. 1004).

Dower

Inchoate dower right of a wife of a tenant in common is not to be set off to the wife on sale of the property for partition, but the husband is entitled to entire distributive share. Devlin v. Esher (52 App. D. C. 30, 280 Fed. 1004).

Law Governing

To the extent that statutory law does not cover subject of dower completely, the common law still controls. Magruder v. Magruder, 1944 (141 F. 2d 537, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 378, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 37, 323 U. S. 711, 89 L. Ed. 572).

Order of Sale

Where the property is susceptible of division in kind, a sale will not be ordered against the will of one of the parties. Walker v. Lyon (6 App. D. C. 484).

In partition proceeding where widow requests assignment of dower, after assignment is made court has power to proceed to order a sale and division of proceeds. Magruder v. Magruder, 1944 (141 F. 2d 537, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 378, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 37, 323 U. S. 711, 89 L. Ed. 572).

Parties

"No one is entitled to maintain partition who has not an estate that entitles him to immediate possession." Sis v. Boarman (11 App. D. C. 116).

Purpose

This chapter regarding partition and assignment of dower was intended to achieve a comprehensive plan for partition and sale of property held in common subject to right of dower as well as other situations of common and joint ownership. Magruder v. Magruder, 1944 (141 F. 2d 537, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 378, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 37, 323 U. S. 711, 89 L. Ed. 572).

Res Judicata

Decisions of courts of Michigan, in which testator resided at time of his death, that share of his residuary estate, devised by will to a remainderman who died before deaths of testator and last surviving life beneficiary, should be divided equally between deceased remainderman's sister and half-brother as deceased's sole legal heirs on date of last surviving life beneficiary's death, were not res judicata in suit for partition of portion of residuary realty in District of Columbia, but courts of District had exclusive jurisdiction to decide what disposition should be made of such share. Greenwood v. Page, 1944 (138 F. 2d 921, 78 U. S., App. D. C. 166).

Surety

In action on bond of trustee for sale of infant's property, the surety cannot be heard to question validity of the bond. United States ex rel. Hine v. Morse (218 U. S. 493, 54 L. Ed. 1123, 31 Sup. Ct. 37, revg. 29 App. D. C. 433, 31 App. D. C. 433).

Title

A mere averment of title in defendant is not sufficient to make a question of title: "proof is required to show that the claim of title is fair and reasonable, and not a mere sham intended to delay and embarrass the complainant." Smith v. Butler (15 App. D. C. 345).

While the jurisdiction of a court of equity to decree partition, or sale for partition, is undoubted in cases where there is no serious question of legal title as between the parties, it is equally well settled that the court does not sustain a bill for partition unless the legal title be clear and where the legal title is disputed, the court will retain the bill to give the plaintiff an opportunity to establish his title at law. Roller v. Clarke (19 App. D. C. 539, mfd. 199 U. S. 641, 50 L. Ed. 300, 26 Sup. Ct. 141).

"A bill of partition can not be made the means of trying a disputed title." Staub v. Staub (47 App. D. C. 180) citing Jordan v. O'Brien (33 App. D. C. 189); Hasler v. Williams (34 App. D. C. 319), distinguishing Taylor v. Leesnitzer (37 App. D. C. 356) where rights were determined because no motion to dismiss was made. See also Goodman v. Wren (34 App. D. C. 516) re rights of equitable owners to maintain partition.

Title

Where title to property purchased by husband and wife was taken in their names as tenants by the entireties, and both parties obligated themselves for balance due on a first trust, as of date of divorce decree obtained by wife in Florida, the parties became "tenants in common" and were equally bound by terms of contract of purchase and equally liable on the trust, so that wife was entitled to one-half of net value of the estate as of date of divorce decree, less any monies that either had paid on the property for benefit of other since date of the last accounting. Scholl v. Scholl (D. C., D. C. 1947, 72 F. Supp. 823).

Whenever any person or persons shall hold real estate, by descent or purchase, in the whole of which a widow is entitled to dower, either the widow or any person entitled to said property or an undivided share therein may apply to said court to have the widow's dower therein assigned; and thereupon the court shall appoint three commissioners to lay off and assign said dower, if practicable, the report of said commissioners to be subject to ratification by the court. In all cases of partition between two or more joint tenants or tenants in common of real estate, in the whole of which a widow is entitled to dower, the said dower shall be laid off and assigned, in like manner, before said partition shall be decreed. When an estate of which a woman is dowable is entire, and the dower can not be set off thereout by metes and bounds, it may be assigned by the court as of a third part of the net rents, issues, and profits thereof. NOTES TO DECISIONS

ASSIGNMENT, EFFECT OF

After assignment of dower has been made, the widow's estate is in the nature of "tenements and hereditaments" within this chapter authorizing partition and is then subject to partition sale since it is, then, just as divestible a property right as if the division had been by metes and bounds of the land itself. Magruder v. Magruder, 1944 (141 F. 2d 537, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 378, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 37, 323 U. S. 711, 89 L. Ed. 572).

After assignment of dower and entry into possession, widow becomes seized for her lifetime of a freehold estate. Magruder v. Magruder, 1944 (141 F. 2d 537, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 378, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 37, 323 U. S. 711, 89 L. Ed. 572).

CONDITION PRECEDENT

Assignment of dower is condition precedent to partition. Hasler v. Williams (34 App. D. C. 319).

RIGHT TO ASSIGNMENT

Upon death of husband, a widow's right to dower is in the nature of a chose in action, including the right to have the dower assigned. Magruder v. Magruder, 1944 (141 F. 2d 537, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 378, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 37, 323 U. S. 711, 89 L. Ed. 572).

SPECIFICALLY

Construing the word "specifically" it is said: "The act undoubtedly requires explicitness and certainty; it requires that the owner of the property * * * should have full and accurate notice of the claims of those who deal with the latter upon the faith of the legal liability of the property. For that purpose it requires that 'the amount claimed' should be set forth specifically; but it is the amount claimed, not the items that go to make up that amount, that is required to be so stated." Emack v. Campbell (14 App. D. C. 186).

§ 16–1303 [25: 383]. Assignment of dower of widow of tenant in common.

Whenever the widow of any tenant in common of real estate shall be entitled to dower in his undivided share of said property, and a partition shall be decreed between his heirs or devisees and the other tenants in common, the said dower shall attach to and may, in like manner, be assigned and laid out in the shares assigned in severalty to the said heirs or devisees, and the shares of the other tenants in common shall be assigned to them, respectively, in severalty, free from such dower. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1202, ch. 854, § 87.)

Whenever an application is made to the court to decree a partition of real estate between tenants in common, it shall not be necessary to make the wife of any of such persons a party to the proceedings, but her right of dower shall attach to whatever part of such property may be assigned in severalty to her husband, and the other parts thereof shall be assigned free of said right of dower. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1202, ch. 854, § 88.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

IN GENERAL

Under this section and sections 89, 90 and 93, Code of 1901 (§§ 16–1301, 16–1305, 16–306), property may be sold by way of partition, free of a wife's inchoate right of dower, and the husband is entitled to his entire distributive share. Devlin v. Esher (52 App. D. C. 30, 280 Fed. 1004).

§ 16–1305 [25: 385]. Sale of land encumbered by dower—Lack of consent—Consent in writing—Her portion.

Whenever a decree is rendered for the sale of land, in the whole of which a widow is entitled to dower, if she will not consent to a sale of the same free of her dower, the court may, if it appears advantageous to the parties, cause her dower to be laid off and assigned as aforesaid. If she will consent in writing to the sale of the property free from her dower, the court shall order the same to be sold free of her dower, and shall allow her, in commutation of her dower, such portion of the net proceeds of sale as may be just and equitable, not exceeding one-sixth nor less than one-twentieth, according to the age, health, and condition of the widow. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1202, ch. 854, § 89.)

CROSS REFERENCE

See note to § 16–1304. Devlin v. Esher (52 App. D. C. 30, 280 Fed. 1004).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

DUTY OF COURT

Where dower interest of widow is involved in partition proceeding, the court must first determine, in its discretion, whether it appears advantageous to parties including widow to cause her dower to be laid off and assigned, and only after assignment has been made can court proceed with sale without consent of widow. Magruder v. Magruder, 1944 (141 F. 2d 537, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 378, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 37, 323 U. S. 711, 89 L. Ed. 572).

FORMULA FOR DIVISION

Where widow refuses to consent to partition sale but requests assignment of dower and court after making assignment proceeds to order sale and division of proceeds, in making division of proceeds it is proper for court to use statutory formula applicable to situation in which widow consents to sale, but it is equally proper for court to apply common law formula. Magruder v. Magruder, 1944 (141 F. 2d 537, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 378, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 37, 323 U. S. 711, 89 L. Ed. 572).

Whenever real property is decreed to be sold for the purpose of division of the proceeds between tenants in common because the said property is incapable of being divided between them in specie, the court may decree a sale of the property free and discharged from any right of dower by the wife of any of the parties in his undivided share. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1203, ch. 854, § 90.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

Section 9 of chapter 125 of the act of March 3, 1921 (41 Stat. 1312) provides "Sections 1529, 1530 (§§ 16–1401, 16–1402) * * * of said Code of Law (D. C. Code of 1901), authorizing payment of money into court in certain cases, are hereby made applicable to the said Municipal Court."

Chapter 15.—QUIETING TITLE OBTAINED BY ADVERSE POSSESSION

Sec.

16–1501. Procedure—Sufficiency of bill—Parties—Decree—Recording—Service—Defendants under disabilities—Limitation.

§ 16–1501 [25: 1]. Procedure—Sufficiency of bill—Parties—Decree—Recording—Service—Defendants under disabilities—Limitation.

When title to any real estate in the District of Columbia shall have become vested in any person or persons by adverse possession, the holder thereof may file a bill in the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia to have such title perfected, in which bill it shall be sufficient to allege that the complainant holds the title to such real estate, and that the same has vested in him, or in himself and in those under whom he claims, by adverse possession; and in such action it shall not be necessary to make any person a party defendant except such persons as may appear to have a claim or title adverse to that of the complainant. Upon the trial of such cause, proof of the facts showing title in the complainant by adverse possession shall entitle him to a decree of the court declaring his title by adverse possession, and a copy of such decree may be entered of record in the office of the recorder of deeds for said District. In any such action if process shall be returned not to be found, notice by publication may be substituted as in case of nonresident defendants. If in any case it shall be unknown whether one who, if living, would be an adverse party is living or dead, or in the case of a decedent, whether he died testate or left heirs, or his heirs or devisees are unknown, the cause may be proceeded with under the provisions of section 13–113: Provided, That the rights of infants or others under legal disability shall be saved for a period of two years after the removal of their disabilities: Provided, however, That the entire period during which such rights shall be preserved shall not exceed twenty-two years from the time such rights accrued, either in said complainant or in the person or persons under whom he claims. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1207, ch. 854, § 111; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 524, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The 1902 amendment struck out the word "plaintiff" and inserted in lieu thereof the word "complainant" where this word now appears; struck out the word "nine" and inserted in lieu thereof the word "ten" before the word "provided," the first time it is used; and struck out the word "claimant" and inserted in lieu thereof the word "complainant" in the last proviso clause.

COMPILER'S NOTE

Title 25, § 2, D. C. Code 1929 Edit. was duplicated by Title 24, § 175 of said Code and appears herein as § 16–515. Said section provides as follows:

"In an action to recover vacant and unimproved lots of ground it shall not be necessary, in order to maintain the defense of adversary possession, to show that the premises in controversy had been inclosed; but if it appear that the property had been assessed for taxation to the defendant, or those under whom he claims, and that he or they had regularly paid the taxes on the same and were the only persons who had exercised control over the same for a period of fifteen years before the bringing of the action, such facts shall be the equivalent of possession by actual inclosure."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

IN GENERAL

"A great deal of indulgence has always been extended to one in the undisturbed possession of property, in respect of proceedings to quiet or perfect a title that had not been assailed." Myers v. Mayhew (32 App. D. C. 205).

"A title is good (as distinguished from good of record) if it has been acquired by adverse possession under such circumstances, and for such length of time, as to render it indefeasible at law or in equity." Marsh v. Kenyon (37 App. D. C. 574), citing Block v. Ryan (4 App. D. C. 283).

COTENANT

One cotenant may hold adversely to his co-owner, although ouster or disseisin is not to be presumed from the mere fact of sole possession. Henderson v. Mann (47 App. D. C. 174).

DURATION OF POSSESSION

Adverse possession held clearly shown by 30 years' possession of lot with clearly defined boundaries which extended beyond the line as surveyed. Brumbaugh v. Gompers (50 App. D. C. 130, 269 Fed. 472).

EJECTMENT

This section has no application to action in ejectment based upon title by adverse possession. McMillan v. Fuller (41 App. D. C. 384).

EVIDENCE—SUFFICIENCY

Evidence held sufficient to be submitted to the jury on the question of adverse possession. Davis v. Coblens (174 U. S. 719, 43 L. Ed. 1147, 19 Sup. Ct. 832, affg. 12 App. D. C. 51).

INCLOSURE

"Actual inclosure is not necessary to prove possession; that while inclosure is the most tangible evidence of possession, a continuous, uninterrupted, open, actual, exclusive, and adverse possession is in law equally as satisfactory." Howison v. Masson (29 App. D. C. 338), citing Holtzman v. Douglas (5 App. D. C. 397, affd. 168 U. S. 278, 42 L. Ed. 466, 18 Sup. Ct. 65).

LIMITATION OF ACTIONS

There is an apparent conflict between § 111 (this section) and § 1265 (§ 12–201) of the 1929 edition, as to the extent of the principal limitation of actions, and also as to the extent of the saving to parties under disabilities. But in order to give effect to both sections, the former section being the act of Congress of March 3, 1899, must be read as an exception to the latter more general provision. Gwin v. Brown (21 App. D. C. 295).

POSSESSION TO BE ADVERSE

Possession, to become adverse, and effectual to defeat a clear pre-existing legal title, must be actual, continuous, and exclusive, attended with such manifest intention of holding and continuing the possession as will make that possession notorious to every one interested in reclaiming the property to the rightful ownership. Reid v. Anderson (13 App. D. C. 30).

POSSESSION UNDER MISTAKE

Title by adverse possession may be secured although possession was had under mistake (whether the mistake was honest or deliberate). Rudolph v. Peters (35 App. D. C. 438, Ann. Cas. 1912A, 446), citing Johnson v. Thomas (23 App. D. C. 141).

REMEDY

A bill in equity is the proper remedy to perfect title by adverse possession, and not ejectment, where defendants have not entered into possession or attempted to oust the plaintiff. Myers v. Mayhew (32 App. D. C. 205), citing Peck v. Heurich (6 App. D. C. 273, affd. 167 U. S. 624, 42 L. Ed. 302, 17 Sup. Ct. 927).

SUBSEQUENT ABANDONMENT

Title acquired by adverse possession is not lost by subsequent abandonment of possession. Myers v. Mayhew (32 App. D. C. 205), citing Todd v. Kauffman (8 Mackey (19 D. C.) 204).

Chapter 16.—QUO WARRANTO

Sec.
16–1601. Against whom issued—Civil action.
16–1602. Who may institute—Ex rel. proceedings.

16–1610. Proceedings against corporate director or trustee.
16–1611. Action against intruder for damages—Limitation.

§ 16–1601 [24: 231]. Against whom issued—Civil action.

A quo warranto may be issued from the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia in the name of the United States—

First. Against a person who usurps, intrudes into, or unlawfully holds or exercises within the District a franchise or public office, civil or military, or an office in any domestic corporation.

Second. Against any one or more persons who act as a corporation within the District without being duly authorized, or exercise within the District any corporate rights, privileges, or franchises not granted them by the laws in force in said District.

And said proceedings shall be deemed a civil action. (Mar. 3, 1901; 31 Stat. 1419, ch. 854, § 1538.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

COMMON-LAW PRINCIPLES

Sections 16–1601 to 16–1604 of this chapter regarding writ of quo warranto leave the former common-law principles governing the issuance of writs of quo warranto in full force. U. S. ex rel. Noel v. Carmody (App. D. C. 1945, 148 F. 2d 684).

§ 16–1602 [24: 232]. Who may institute—Ex rel. proceedings.

The Attorney General or the district attorney may institute such proceeding on his own motion, or on the relation of a third person. But such writ shall not be issued on the relation of a third person except by leave of the court, to be applied for by the relator, by a petition duly verified, setting forth the grounds of the application, or until the relator shall file a bond with sufficient surety, to be approved by the clerk of the court, in such penalty as the court may prescribe, conditioned for the payment by him of all costs incurred in the prosecution of the writ in case the same shall not be recovered from and paid by the defendant. NOTES TO DECISIONS

CLAIMANT TO OFFICE

A citizen and taxpayer who makes no claim to the office can not make application for quo warranto. Newman v. United States ex rel. Frizzell (238 U. S. 537, 59 L. Ed. 1446, 35 Sup. Ct. 881). See also Hayes v. Burns (25 App. D. C. 243, app. dism. 201 U. S. 650, 50 L. Ed. 905, 26 Sup. Ct. 744).

A writ of quo warranto may issue against an officer of a private corporation on complaint of one of its members or stockholders, even though the relator does not himself seek the same office. U. S. ex rel. Noel v. Carmody (App. D. C. 1945, 148 F. 2d 684).

COMPLAINT, SUFFICIENCY

Where by-law of Bar Association provided for committee on nominations which was directed to nominate at least two and not more than three names for each of offices to be filled, at ensuing election, committee nominated only one individual for office of president because of committee's inability to find another member who was both qualified for office and willing to be considered, another nominee was presented by petition, but the committee's nominee received overwhelming majority of votes, quo warranto complaint to remove committee's nominee from office of president was properly dismissed. U. S. ex rel. Noel v. Carmody (App. D. C. 1945, 148 F. 2d 684).

NOT AN ADEQUATE REMEDY AT LAW

Quo warranto is not an adequate remedy at law because the right to bring such action is not absolute, but lies within the discretion of the Attorney General or of the district attorney or of the court. Columbian Cat Fanciers v. Koehne (68 App D. C. 257, 96 Fed. (2d) 529).

"THIRD PERSON"

Congress used the words "third person" in the sense of "any person." Newman v. United States ex rel. Frizzell (238 U. S. 537, 59 L. Ed. 1446, 35 Sup. Ct. 881).

§ 16–1603 [24: 233]. Attorney General and district attorney refusing to act—Procedure.

If the Attorney General and district attorney shall refuse to institute such proceeding on the request of a person interested, such person may apply to the court by verified petition for leave to have said writ issued; and if in the opinion of the court the reasons set forth in said petition are sufficient in law, the said writ shall be allowed to be issued by any attorney, in the name of the United States, on the relation of said interested person, on his compliance with the condition prescribed in section 16–1602 as to security for costs. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1420, ch. 854, § 1540.)

STATUTORY CROSS REFERENCE

This section is in U. S. C., Title 28, § 377c.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

PERSON INTERESTED

The interest which will justify such a proceeding by a private individual must be more than that of a taxpayer; it must be an interest in the office itself, and must be peculiar to the applicant. Newman v. United States ex rel. Frizzell (238 U. S. 537, 59 L. Ed. 1446, 35 Sup. Ct. 881).

The action must be brought by a person claiming title to the office in question and out of possession thereof. Columbian Cat Fanciers v. Koehne (68 App. D. C. 257, 96 Fed. (2d) 529).

When such proceeding is against a person for usurping an office, on the relation of a person claiming the same office, the relator shall set forth in his petition the facts upon which he claims to be entitled to the office. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1420, ch. 854, § 1541.)

CROSS REFERENCE

See notes to § 16–1601.

§ 16–1605 [24: 235]. Notice to defendant.

On the issuing of the writ the court may fix a time within which the defendant may appear and answer the same. If the defendant can not be found in the District, the court may direct notice to be given to him by publication as in other cases of proceedings against nonresident defendants, and upon proof of publication, if the defendant shall not appear, judgment may be rendered as if he had been personally served. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1420, ch. 854, § 1542; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 544, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The 1902 amendment struck out the word "clerk" and inserted in lieu thereof the word "court" in the first sentence.

§ 16–1606 [24: 236]. Default—Proceedings.

If the defendant shall not appear as required by the writ, after being personally served, the court may proceed to hear proof in support of the writ, and render judgment accordingly. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1420, ch. 854, § 1543.)

§ 16–1607 [24: 237]. Pleading—Trial by jury.

The defendant may demur or plead specially or plead "not guilty" as the general issue, and the United States may reply as in other actions of a civil character; and any issue of fact shall be tried by a jury if either party shall require it, otherwise it shall be determined by the court. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1420, ch. 854, § 1544.)

Where the defendant is found by the jury to have usurped or intruded into or unlawfully held or exercised an office or franchise, the verdict shall be that he is guilty of the act or acts in question, and judgment shall be rendered that he be ousted and excluded therefrom and that the relator recover his costs. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1420, ch. 854, § 1545.)

§ 16–1609 [24: 239]. Usurping corporate franchise.

Where the proceeding is against persons acting as a corporation without being legally incorporated, the judgment against the defendants shall be that they be perpetually restrained and enjoined from the commission or continuance of the acts complained of. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1420, ch. 854, § 1546.)

§ 16–1610 [24: 240]. Proceedings against corporate director or trustee.

Where the proceeding is against a director or trustee of a corporation and the court finds that at his election either illegal votes were received or legal votes rejected, or both, sufficient to change the result if such error be corrected, judgment may be rendered that the defendant be ousted, and that the relator, if entitled to be declared elected, be admitted to the office, and a mandamus may be issued to the proper parties, being officers or members of said corporation, to admit him to said office. The said judgment may require the defendant to deliver to the relator all books, papers, and other things in his custody or control pertaining to the said office, and obedience to said judgment may be enforced by attachment. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1420, ch. 854, § 1547.)

RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE

Mandamus in District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia has been abolished; similar relief may be obtained by appropriate action or motion as prescribed by rules of court, see Rule 81 (b).

§ 16–1611 [24: 241]. Action against intruder for damages—Limitation.

At any time within a year after such judgment the said relator may bring an action against the party ousted and recover the damages sustained by him by reason of such usurpation of the office to which he was entitled. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1421, ch. 854, § 1548.)

§ 16–1701 [24: 91]. Reference of law, admiralty and equity causes to referee for trial—Exceptions.

By consent of the attorneys or solicitors on both sides, manifested by written stipulation, any common-law or admiralty or equity cause pending in the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia, except suits for divorce or nullity of marriage, or suits wherein any party to be affected by the result is an infant, idiot, or lunatic, may be referred for trial, upon the issues of law and fact therein involved, by an order of court, to some referee consented to by the parties or their counsel and named in the order. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1254, ch. 854, § 412; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 530, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The 1902 amendment struck out the words "the defendant" and inserted in lieu thereof the words "any party."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

AWARD AS CONDITION PRECEDENT

An award by arbitration is not a condition precedent to be proved before bringing suit. Fontano v. Robbins (18 App. D. C. 402).

POWERS

United States commissioners have only such powers as to procedure that may be conferred by the State statutes on examining magistrates of the State; United States commissioner can go no further in his procedure than the State examining magistrate could do. United States v. Mace ((C. C. A. 8), 281 Fed. 635).

SETTING ASIDE ARBITRATOR'S AWARD

If the arbitrator professes to decide upon the law and he mistakes it, the court will set aside the award; also where the arbitrator's reasons did not appear upon the face of the award, but only upon another paper delivered therewith. Bailey v. District of Columbia (4 App. D. C. 356).

SUBMISSION TO ARBITRATION WITHOUT ORDER OF COURT

As to submission to arbitration without an order of court, see District of Columbia v. Bailey (171 U. S. 161, 43 L. Ed. 118, 18 Sup. Ct. 868, revg. 9 App. D. C. 360).

§ 16–1702 [24: 92]. Referee—Oath—Time for hearing.

The referee, before proceeding to hear the cause, shall be sworn faithfully and fairly to try the issues and determine the questions referred to him, as the case may require, and to make a just and true award thereof.

He shall thereupon fix a time for the hearing of said cause and notify all parties thereof. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1254, ch. 854, § 413.)

§ 16–1703 [24: 93]. Powers of referee.

He shall have power to administer oaths, to cause subpœnas and subpœnas duces tecum to be issued to witnesses and to compel their attendance by attachment, and to punish a witness by fine and imprisonment for contempt of court, for nonattendance, or refusal to be sworn, or to testify. He shall have the same power to adjourn from time to time, and to preserve order in the trial or hearing before him, and to punish any violation thereof, as a court in regular session. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1254, ch. 854, § 414.)

§ 16–1704 [24: 94]. Referee—Additional powers.

In suits in equity the referee shall have power to take depositions in cases where they are taken before an examiner in chancery, and in all suits shall receive and consider all depositions and other evidence in like manner as where the trial or hearing is by the court. He may allow amendments to process or pleadings, pass interlocutory orders, award costs, and hear and determine all questions arising in the cause, with like effect as if done by order of the court. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1255, ch. 854, § 415.)

§ 16–1705 [24: 95]. Award—When filed—Notice—Ending the reference.

Within sixty days after the reference is made, unless a longer time is agreed upon by both parties or allowed by the court, the referee shall file with the clerk a written award and give notice thereof to each party interested; otherwise either party may notify the adverse party, or his attorney or solicitor, that he elects to end the reference, and the cause shall proceed as if no reference had been made. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1255, ch. 854, § 416.)

§ 16–1706 [24: 96]. Form of award.

The final award of the referee shall state separately the facts found by him and his conclusions of law, and direct the judgment or decree to be entered thereupon, including a determination as to costs, and in common-law cases the finding as to the facts shall have the effect of a verdict of a jury. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1255, ch. 854, § 417.)

§ 16–1707 [24: 97]. Award — Setting aside — Modification—Causes.

On motion filed within twenty days after notice of the filing of the award to the parties or their attorneys, the court may set aside his award because of corruption or misconduct of the referee, or because he exceeded his powers or so imperfectly executed them that a final award was not made, or may modify his award in case of an evident miscalculation of figures, or if it relates to matter not submitted, or is imperfect in form. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1255, ch. 854, § 418.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

SETTING ASIDE ARBITRATORS' AWARD

Arbitrators' corruption or gross mistake, either apparent on face of arbitration award or made out by evidence, warrants court's interference with award, but arbitrators' mere error of judgment does not warrant such interference. Mancuso v. L. Gillarde Co. (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 61 A. 2d 677).

§ 16–1708 [24: 98]. Judgment.

Judgment or decree, if no such motion is made, or it is overruled, or the award is only modified as aforesaid, shall thereupon be entered by the clerk as in the award directed, and shall stand as the judgment of the court. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1255, ch. 854, § 419.)

§ 16–1709 [24: 99]. Appeals in equity causes.

An appeal may be taken to the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia from such final decree in equity causes in like manner as from decrees rendered by the court. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1255, ch. 854, § 420.)

§ 16–1710 [24: 100]. Exceptions to rulings of referee.

Upon the trial of issues of fact in an action at law exceptions may be taken to the rulings of the referee upon the admissibility of evidence or upon questions of law arising during the hearing; and a refusal to make a finding upon a question of fact, upon sufficient evidence in law to sustain it, or making a finding of fact without sufficient evidence in law to sustain it, shall be deemed such a ruling upon a question of law. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1255, ch. 854, § 421.)

RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE

Formal exceptions unnecessary, see Rule 46.

§ 16–1711 [24: 101]. Exceptions to rulings of referee—Reduction to writing—Bill of exceptions.

Such exceptions must be taken at the time the rulings excepted to are made, and must be reduced to writing by the exceptant, or they may be noted on the minutes of the referee and afterwards stated in a bill of exceptions, which shall be settled in the same manner as where the trial is by a jury, as directed by the rules of court, the referee exercising the same power therein as the trial justice in case of a jury trial. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1255, ch. 854, § 422.)

CROSS REFERENCE

See Rules of Civil Procedure, §§ 16–1701, 16–1710.

§ 16–1712 [24: 102]. Appeals in common-law cases.

An appeal may be taken to the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia from a final judgment in a common-law case, entered upon the award of the referee, in the same manner and with like effect as from a judgment rendered by the court on the verdict of a jury. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1255, ch. 854, § 423.)

§ 16–1713 [24: 103]. Exceptions part of record on appeal.

The exceptions taken as aforesaid shall constitute a part of the record upon which an appeal from the judgment shall be heard. It shall not be necessary, however, to take exceptions to the conclusions of law appearing upon the face of the referee's award; but any error therein shall be considered on appeal as if presented in a formal bill of exceptions. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1255, ch. 854, § 424.)

§ 16–1714 [24: 104]. Failure of referee to act—Misconduct.

In case of the disability of the referee, or his failure or refusal to proceed with the reference, or his misconduct, the court which passed the order of reference may rescind the same. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1255, ch. 854, § 425.)

§ 16–1715 [24: 105]. Fees of referee.

The fees of the referee may be fixed by rule of court or agreement of the parties, and taxed as part of the costs of the cause. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1256, ch. 854, § 426.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

FEES PART OF COSTS

Fees to special auditor may be taxed as part of the costs of the cause. Davis v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (63 App. D. C. 395, 73 Fed. (2d) 118).

§ 16–1716 [24: 106]. Several referees.

The reference may be to more persons than one, provided they be an odd number of persons, in which case all must meet together and hear all the allegations and proofs of the parties; but a majority may determine all questions submitted to or arising before them. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1256, ch. 854, § 427.)

§ 16–1717 [24: 107]. Death of party.

If the death of either party shall happen pending the trial or hearing of a cause before a referee, the reference shall be at an end. If such death shall occur after the cause is submitted to the referee for final judgment or decree, the referee shall return his award, and thereupon the representative of such decedent may appear, or be required by the adverse party to appear, as provided in sections 12–101 to 12–116, and the cause thereupon be proceeded with as if such death had not occurred. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1256, ch. 854, § 428.)

RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE

Substitution of parties, see Rule 25.

§ 16–1718 [24: 108]. Death of referee.

If any referee shall die before making his award the court shall, upon the consent of the parties or their counsel, appoint a referee, who shall have the same power to act as if originally appointed by mutual consent of the parties. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1256, ch. 854, § 429.)

§ 16–1719 [24: 109]. Common-law references.

Nothing herein contained shall prevent the court from referring a cause to an arbitrator, subject to the ratification of his award by the court, according to the course of the common law and the former practice of the court. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1256, ch. 854, § 430.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

COMMON LAW APPLICABLE

Common-law rules prevail as to powers of officers in executing a writ of replevin. "The rule of the common law * * * seems to be that an officer, in executing a writ of replevin, may not break an outer door or window of a dwelling to gain entrance to seize the property of the occupant or of a person rightfully domiciled therein. He may enter either an open outer door or window, provided it can be accomplished without committing a breach of the peace; he may then, after a request and refusal, break open any inner doors belonging to the defendant, in order to take the goods. We think a further reasonable rule is deducible from the cases, that when an officer, in the execution of a writ, finds an outer door or window slightly ajar, but not sufficiently so to admit him, he may open the door or window, provided he does not find it obstructed, but if it is fastened or obstructed so as to require force to overcome the obstruction, he may not use such force for such an entrance would constitute a breaking." Palmer v. King (41 App. D. C. 419, L. R. A. 1916 D, 278, Ann. Cas. 1915 C, 1139).

GOODS TAKEN BY POLICE

Replevy of goods taken by police from person accused of crime, see Mutual Comm. & Stock Co. v. Moore (13 App. D. C. 78).

NATURE OF ACTION

It is fundamental that the gist of the action of replevin is plaintiff's right to immediate possession and defendant's wrongful taking or wrongful or unlawful detention. Daime v. Price (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 63 A. 2d 767).

PROMISSORY NOTES

Replevin action is proper against a bank to recover possession of overdue promissory notes received by it from a private bank to secure a payment of an overdraft, when it is apparent the notes evidenced a debt secured by deed of trust on property that was owned by plaintiff and her sister, that the debt was paid on maturity of the notes and they were left with banking firm for safekeeping but the bank used them to pay overdraft without plaintiff's authority. District Nat. Bank v. Trimble (46 App. D. C. 319).

SUFFICIENCY OF BILL IN EQUITY

Equity will not require a specific delivery of art collection when the bill does not disclose what, if any, disposition of the art collection was made or attempted to be made in the will. Dante v. Hutchins (49 App. D. C. 348, 265 Fed. 988).

WHEN PURCHASE WAS FRAUDULENT

When vendor replevies goods on ground that the purchase was fraudulent and it appears that the value of the goods was in excess of balance due the vendor, it is proper to tender the excess to the defendant and upon his refusal to receive tender, pay the amount into court. Samaha v. Mason (27 App. D. C. 470).

§ 16–1802 [24: 392]. Declaration—Form.

The declaration in replevin shall be in the following or equivalent form: "The plaintiff sues the defendant for (wrongly taking and detaining) (unjustly detaining) his, said plaintiff's, goods and chattels, to wit: (describe them) of the value of ——— dollars. And the plaintiff claims that the same be taken from the defendant and delivered to him; or, if they are eloigned, that he may have judgment of their said value and all mesne profits and damages, which he estimates at ——— dollars, besides costs." (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1421, ch. 854, § 1550.)

§ 16–1803 [24: 393]. Affidavit—Content.

At the time of filing the declaration in replevin, the plaintiff, his agent, or attorney shall file an affidavit stating—

First. That, according to affiant's information and belief, the plaintiff is entitled to recover possession of chattels proposed to be replevied, being the same described in the declaration.

Second. That the defendant has seized and detained or detains the same.

Third. That said chattels were not subject to such seizure or detention and were not taken upon any writ of replevin between the parties. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1421, ch. 854, § 1551; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 544, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The 1902 amendment added the words "between the parties" at the end of this section.

§ 16–1804 [24: 394]. Undertaking to abide judgment of the court.

The plaintiff shall at the same time enter into an undertaking by himself or his agent with surety, approved by the clerk, to abide by and perform the judgment of the court in the premises. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1421, ch. 854, § 1552; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 544, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The 1902 amendment inserted the words "by himself or his agent."

CROSS REFERENCE

General provision concerning bonds, § 28–2401 et seq.

§ 16–1805 [24: 395]. Failure of officer to obtain possession—Procedure.

If the officer's return of the writ of replevin be that he has served the defendant with copies of the declaration, notice to plead, and summons, but that he could not get possession of the goods and chattels sued for, the plaintiff may prosecute the action for the value of the same and damages for detention, or he may renew the writ in order to get possession of the goods and chattels themselves. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1421, ch. 854, § 1553.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Replevin in attachment and garnishment proceedings, § 16–321.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

DAMAGES FOR VALUE AND DETENTION

Where writ in action to replevy an alleged irreplaceable fender shield was returned "not executed" and plaintiff did not renew the writ by prosecuted action without seizure of the shield, plaintiff was properly given judgment merely for value of shield and damages for its detention rather than for recovery of shield, though defendant had voluntarily produced shield and had put it in evidence, and court thereafter ordered shield to be turned over to the marshal pending decision. Byrne v. Tabet (D. C. Mun. App. 1947, 50 A. 2d 815).

§ 16–1806 [24: 396]. Publication against defendant.

If the officer's return be that he has taken possession of the goods and chattels sued for, but that the defendant is not to be found, the court, subject to the provisions of section 13–111 as to mailing notice, may order that the defendant appear to the action by some fixed day; and of this order the plaintiff shall cause notice to be given by publication in some newspaper of the District at least three times, the first of which shall be at least twenty days before the day fixed for the defendant's appearance. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1421, ch. 854, § 1554; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 544, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The 1902 amendment inserted after the word "court" the words "subject to the provisions of section one hundred and eight hereof as to mailing notice" which section of the 1901 Code appears herein as § 13–111.

§ 16–1807 [24: 397]. Default.

If the defendant fails to appear, the court may proceed as in case of default after personal service. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1421, ch. 854, § 1555.)

§ 16–1808 [24: 398]. Pleading.

If the defendant appear he may plead not guilty, in which case all special matters of defense may be given in evidence, or he may plead specially. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1421, ch. 854, § 1556.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

BURDEN OF PROOF

In replevin to recover household goods which plaintiff claimed defendant had bought for plaintiff with his money and which defendant claimed to have bought with her own money, burden of proof upon such issue was upon plaintiff, and, if no evidence were produced on either side, plaintiff would have been out of court. Imhoff v. Walker (D. C. Mun. App. 1947, 51 A. 2d 309).

In replevin to recover household goods which defendant claimed as a gift from plaintiff and which, it was not disputed, had originally been plaintiff's property, defendant had burden of establishing a gift of such goods. Imhoff v. Walker (D. C. Mun. App. 1947, 51 A. 2d 309).

SET-OFF

Damages for breach of warranty of chattel sold on conditional sale, proper set-off in replevin. Marks v. Frigidaire Sales Corp. (60 App. D. C. 359, 54 Fed. (2d) 974, cert. den. 285 U. S. 544, 76 L. Ed. 936. 52 Sup. Ct. 394).

§ 16–1809 [24: 399]. Motion for return of property—Procedure—Objection to sufficiency of surety—Section applicable in Municipal Court.

On the taking possession of the goods and chattels by the marshal or coroner by virtue of the writ of replevin, the defendant may, on one day's notice to the plaintiff or his attorney, move for a return of the property to his possession; and the court may thereupon inquire into the circumstances and manner of the defendant's obtaining possession of such property, and if it shall seem just may order the property to be returned to the possession of the defendant, to abide the final judgment in the action, and may, in its discretion, require the defendant to enter into an undertaking, with surety or sureties, similar to that required of the plaintiff upon the commencement of the action, and in such case a judgment for the plaintiff shall be rendered against the surety or sureties, as well as against the defendant. If it shall appear that the possession of the property was forcibly or fraudulently obtained by the defendant, or that the possession, being first in the plaintiff, was procured or retained by the defendant without authority from the plaintiff, the court may refuse to order the return. The defendant may also, on similar notice, object to the sufficiency of the security in the undertaking, and the court may require additional security, in default of which the property shall be returned to the defendant, but the action may proceed as if the property had not been taken. This section is applicable also to the Municipal Court. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1422, ch. 854, § 1557; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 544, ch. 1329; Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. 1312, ch. 125, § 9.)

AMENDMENTS

The 1902 amendment inserted the words "or coroner" after the word "marshal" in the first phrase of the first sentence.

The 1921 act made this section applicable to the Municipal Court.

CROSS REFERENCE

§ 16–1810 [24: 400]. Motion for return of property—Notice—Duty of officer.

If the defendant shall notify the officer taking possession of the property, in writing, of his intention to make either of the motions aforesaid, it shall be the duty of the officer to retain possession of the property until said motion shall be disposed of, provided that the same shall be filed and notice given, as aforesaid, to the plaintiff, or his attorney, within two days thereafter. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1422, ch. 854, § 1558.)

§ 16–1811 [24: 401]. Measure of plaintiff's damages.

Whether the defendant plead and the issue thereon joined is found against him, or his plea is held bad on demurrer, or he makes default after personal service or after publication, the plaintiff's damages shall be ascertained by the jury trying the issue, where one is joined, or by a jury of inquest, where there is no issue of fact, and the damages shall be the full value of the goods, if eloigned by the defendant, including, in every case, the loss sustained by the plaintiff by reason of the detention, and judgment shall pass for the plaintiff accordingly. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1422, ch. 854, § 1559.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

EVIDENCE

Testimony of witness that, when he took check drawn by defendant's husband, now deceased, to order of cash to bank and had it cashed for him, defendant's husband stated that he intended to use the money to buy furniture from third party was inadmissible as part of "res gestae". Jackson v. Goode (D. C. Mun. App. 1946, 49 A. 2d 913).

INSTRUCTIONS

Defendant's instruction that question for jury to determine was whether plaintiff had shown by a fair preponderance of evidence that on date she brought replevin suit she was entitled as against all the world to immediate and exclusive possession of the furniture which was subject of the suit was properly modified by substituting for the words "all the world" the words "the defendant." Jackson v. Goode (D. C. Mun. App. 1946, 49 A. 2d 913).

RIGHT TO POSSESSION

Testimony as to statements made by defendant's deceased husband that he bought the property in controversy in replevin suit from certain person was not admissible as part of the "res gestae". Jackson v. Goode (D. C. Mun. App. 1946, 49 A. 2d 913).

In replevin suits it is not necessarily the title which is in issue but merely the right to possession as between the parties. Jackson v. Goode (D. C. Mun. App. 1946, 49 A. 2d 913).

SUBSEQUENT ACTION

A buyer who brings replevin for the possession of an automobile repossessed by the seller, with nominal damages for detention, is not thereby barred from subsequent action for illegal and malicious seizure. Wardman-Justice Motors v. Petrie (59 App. D. C. 262, 39 Fed. (2d) 512, 69 A. L. R. 648).

§ 16–1812 [24: 402]. Judgment for defendant.

If the issue be found for the defendant, or the plaintiff dismiss or fail to prosecute his suit, the judgment shall be that the goods, if delivered to the plaintiff, be returned to the defendant with damages, or, on failure, that the defendant recover against the plaintiff and his surety the damages by him sustained, to be assessed by the jury trying the issue; or, where the plaintiff dismisses or fails to prosecute his suit, by the jury of inquest. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1422, ch. 854, § 1560.)

§ 16–1813 [24: 403]. Verdict when goods are eloigned.

If the defendant has eloigned the things sued for the court may instruct the jury, if they find for the plaintiff, to assess such damages as may compel the defendant to return the things. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1422, ch. 854, § 1561.)

§ 16–1814 [24: 404]. Judgment for plaintiff.

The judgment in such cases shall be that the plaintiff recover against the defendant the value of the goods as found and the damages so assessed, to be discharged by the return of the things, within ten days after the judgment, with damages for detention, which the jury shall also assess. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1422, ch. 854, § 1562.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

WHERE GOODS NOT RECOVERED

If the goods are not recovered in the replevin proceeding, or returned within ten days after judgment, the plaintiff shall be entitled to judgment for the value of the goods as damages, and also damages for the detention. Wardman-Justice Motors v. Petrie (59 App. D. C. 262, 39 Fed. (2d) 512, 69 A. L. R. 648).

§ 16–1901 [24: 411]. What can be set off.

Mutual debts and claims under contract between the parties to a common-law action, or between any of the several defendants and the plaintiff, or between one party and the testator or intestate of the other, or between the testators or intestates of both parties, may be set off against each other by plea in bar, whether said debts or claims be of the same or a different nature or degree, and whether the claims be for liquidated debts or unliquidated damages for breach of contract; and if either debt be in the form of the penalty of a bond the exact sum to be set off shall be stated in the plea. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1422, ch. 854, § 1563; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 544, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The 1902 amendment added the words "or between any of the several defendants and the plaintiff" after the word "action."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Durant v. Murdock (3 App. D. C. 114) (plea of set-off barred on its face by statute of limitations cannot be pleaded to prevent a summary judgment under 73d rule); United States v. West (8 App. D. C. 59) (when a plea of set-off only is filed, it is equivalent to a plea of confession and avoidance and transfers burden of proof to defendants); Samaha v. Samaha (18 App. D. C. 76) (right of plaintiff to dismiss action after plea filed).

Even if defendant had entered a plea of recoupment, coupled with non assumpsit, it would not amount to an admission of the existence of a cause of action, for the plea of non assumpsit is a denial of liability. Hornblower v. George Washington University (31 App. D. C. 64, 14 Ann. Cas. 696).

DAMAGES FROM WRONGFUL INJUNCTION

Where District Court dismissed wife's suit for divorce and taxed husband with her counsel fees, if court should find that wife's attorney knowingly participated in wrongful suing out of injunction by wife to tie up husband's funds, husband would be allowed to set off his damage from the injunction against the claim for counsel fees. Shima v. Shima, 1944 (139 F. 2d 533, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 265, 150 A. L. R. 1179).

Where judgment dismissing wife's suit for divorce and taxing husband with wife's counsel fees determined neither the facts nor the law with regard to husband's right to set off, against claim for counsel fees, damages sustained by wife's suing out of an injunction tying up husband's funds, husband would be allowed to set off such damage against the claimed fees if wife's attorney knowingly participated in wrongful issuance of injunction, notwithstanding allowance of fees had become final. Shima v. Shima, 1944 (139 F. 2d 533, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 265, 150 A. L. R. 1179).

DISTINGUISHED FROM COMMON LAW

Set-off did not exist at common law and is entirely founded upon statutory regulation and it is carefully to be distinguished from recoupment, which is a right existing at common law, and which arises when there are counterclaims accruing upon the same general contract. Durant v. Murdock (3 App. D. C. 114).

IN EQUITY

In equity suit against a contractor to enforce mechanics' lien for materials furnished, a recoupment or set-off will not be allowed against claim of complainant, of penalty by reason of failure to finish building on time, as complainant was not privy to the contract. Carver v. Hall (3 App. D. C. 170).

A creditor, having unliquidated demands against another not reduced to judgment, may set them off in equity against a judgment recovered against him by that other person, if there has been no opportunity to set them off in the suit which led to the judgment, and if the person who holds the judgment is insolvent. Fedarwisch v. Alsop (18 App. D. C. 318).

Cross-demands and counterclaims, whether arising out of the same or wholly disconnected transactions, and whether liquidated or unliquidated, may be enforced by way of set-off whenever the circumstances are such as to warrant the interference of equity to prevent wrong and injustice. Fitzgerald v. Wiley (22 App. D. C. 329).

Damages, to be recouped in equity proceeding, by a cross-bill, as to foreclose of mortgage on patents to be granted against person interested in mortgage debt, as result of negligence on the part of such person, a patent attorney, in not notifying mortgagor whereby patent lapsed and sale was prevented, must be limited to interest person has in original bill. Fitzgerald v. Wiley (22 App. D. C. 329).

PLEADING

Plea of set-off "must state facts which not only bring it within the privilege of set-off, but would also constitute a good cause of action if the party pleading were the plaintiff in the prosecution of a suit therefor. And while the technical formality and accuracy of a declaration may not be required, the plea must, nevertheless, inform the plaintiff, with reasonable certainty, of the particulars of the demand which he is called upon to defend." McGuire v. Gerstley (26 App. D. C. 193, affd. 204 U. S. 489, 51 L. Ed. 581, 27 Sup. Ct. 332).

Set-off must be specially pleaded. Simmons v. Jaselli (38 App. D. C. 242). See also Knight v. W. T. Walker Brick Co. (23 App. D. C. 519).

REPLEVIN

In replevin action, after default on conditional sales contract, the right of defaulting buyer for breach of contract may be set off. Marks v. Frigidaire Sales Corp. (60 App. D. C. 359, 54 Fed. (2d) 974).

§ 16–1902 [24: 412]. Form of plea.

The plea of set-off may be as follows: That the plaintiff, at the commencement of the suit, was, and still is, indebted to the defendant in the sum of ——— dollars, for that, and so forth, as appears by the particulars of said indebtedness hereunto annexed; and defendant is willing that the same may be set off against the plaintiff's demand. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1423, ch. 854, § 1564.)

§ 16–1903 [24: 413]. Set-off deemed an action by defendant—Plaintiff may not dismiss—Procedure—Jurisdiction—Municipal Court.

A defendant who files a plea of set-off, founded on a claim against the plaintiff, shall be deemed to have brought an action at the time of filing such plea against the plaintiff for the matters mentioned in the plea; but it shall not be necessary that the amount of the claim so sought to be set off shall be such that the court would have jurisdiction of an original action to recover the same; and the plaintiff shall not thereafter be allowed to dismiss his suit without the consent of the defendant, but the defendant shall be entitled to a trial of and judgment upon his claim, but the same shall be open to the same defenses to which it would be open in an action brought by him thereon; and on the trial of an issue on said plea of set-off judgment shall be rendered for the balance found due, whether to the plaintiff or to the defendant, with costs: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall be construed to enlarge the jurisdiction of the municipal court so as to authorize any judgment by such court in excess of one thousand dollars exclusive of interest and costs. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1423, ch. 854, § 1565; Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. 1310, ch. 125, § 1.)

AMENDMENT

The 1921 act changed the jurisdiction from the "justice of the peace" court to the municipal court.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

GENERALLY

Where defendant has sought affirmative relief by set-off or counterclaim, plaintiff may not discontinue action without defendant's consent, and, even though plaintiff fails to prosecute his claim, defendant is entitled to trial of and judgment upon his claim. Tendler v. L. E. Massey, Inc. (D. C. 1943, 33 A. 2d. 626).

JURISDICTION

In landlord's proceeding in municipal court for possession and rent, where tenant elected to plead its claim against landlord for $2,859.05 for negligent injury, allegedly caused by leakage of rain to chattels in leased premises, the issue was within the jurisdiction of the municipal court. Geracy, Inc. v. Hoover, 1942 (133 F. 2d 25, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 55, 147 A. L. R. 185).

PLEADING

Where plaintiff filed in municipal court of District of Columbia particulars of demand in which she set up cause of action for $109.80, to which defendants responded with affidavit of defense and counterclaim accompanied by bill of particulars admitting they owed $100, and claiming $420 in counterclaim and demanding judgment for $320, plaintiff was not required to file an affidavit of defense in response to affidavit of merit which accompanied counterclaim, since rule 16 of such court must be so interpreted as to produce a result consistent with clearly expressed purpose of rule 2, providing that no formal pleadings shall be required, even for initiation of Class B cases. Shields v. Hawkins, 1942 (125 F. 2d 204, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 172).

RES JUDICATA

Where tenant claimed $2,859.05 from landlord for negligent injury to chattels in leased premises, if tenant chose to reduce its claim to the dimensions of municipal court jurisdiction and submit to the adjudication of municipal court, in which the landlord had instituted proceeding for restitution of premises, the tenant was privileged to do so, but, if it did so, it forfeited the privilege of having the same issue adjudicated in the district court. Geracy, Inc. v. Hoover, 1942 (133 F. 2d 25, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 55, 147, A. L. R. 185).

Where tenant pleaded its claim for $2,859.05 against landlord for negligent injury to chattels in leased premises as a defense to landlord's action in municipal court for possession of premises and for rent, the determination of the issue adversely to the tenant became "res judicata" thereof, and precluded tenant from recovering on such claim in action instituted in district court. Geracy, Inc. v. Hoover, 1942 (133 F. 2d 25, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 55, 147 A. L. R. 185).

Voluntary nonsuit taken by plaintiff without objection by defendant or expression of any desire to proceed with hearing on defendant's cross-claim was not "res judicata" of plaintiff's right to maintain a subsequent action against defendant on same cause of action. Tendler v. L. E. Massey, Inc. (D. C. 1943, 33 A. 2d 626).

When cross-demands have existed between persons under such circumstances that if one had brought an action against the other a counterclaim or set-off could have been pleaded, neither can be deprived of the benefit thereof by an assignment by the other; but in an action by the assignee of any nonnegotiable debt the defendant may set off any indebtedness to him of the assignor, existing before notice of the assignment, as well as any indebtedness to him of the plaintiff. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1423, ch. 854, § 1566.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

NO APPLICATION TO NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS

"Taking this section as a whole, it is resolved into the statement that in an action by the assignee of any nonnegotiable debt, the defendant may set off any indebtedness to him of the assignor. The terms used are wholly inapplicable to negotiable instruments. According to accurate legal terminology, the person who transfers a promissory note is not called an assignor, but an indorser; the person to whom it is transferred is not designated the assignee, but the indorsee; and the use of the words 'nonnegotiable debt,' as meaning a negotiable promissory note would be a startling neologism." Lincoln v. Grant (47 App. D. C. 475).

If the defendant's plea of set-off covers or applies to only part of the plaintiff's demand judgment may be forthwith rendered for the part not controverted and the costs accrued until the filing of the plea, and the case shall be proceeded with for the residue as if the part for which judgment was rendered had not been included therein. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1423, ch. 854, § 1567.)

§ 16–1906 [24: 416]. Action against principal and sureties.

In an action against principal and sureties an indebtedness of the plaintiff to the principal may be set off as if he were the sole defendant, and in such case, if the indebtedness so set off shall exceed the plaintiff's demand, the judgment for the excess shall be in favor of the defendant, who is sued as principal. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1423, ch. 854, § 1568.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

SUFFICIENCY OF FACTS

Plea that plaintiffs attempted to destroy defendants' business by persuading one partner to dissolve the partnership held not to set up facts sufficient to constitute a valid set-off, recoupment, or cause of action. McGuire v. Gerstley (204 U. S. 489, 51 L. Ed. 581, 27 Sup. Ct. 332, affg. 26 App. D. C. 193).

§ 16–1907 [24: 417]. Action by trustee.

If the plaintiff is trustee for another, or has no actual interest in the contract on which the action is founded, a demand against the plaintiff shall not be pleaded by way of set-off, but a demand against the person whom he represents or for whose benefit the action is brought may be pleaded. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1423, ch. 854, § 1569.)

§ 16–1908 [24: 418]. Action by or against executor or administrator.

In an action against an executor or administrator, in his representative capacity, the defendant may plead, by way of set-off, a demand belonging to the decedent where he would have been entitled to rely upon the same in an action against him, and in an action brought by an executor or administrator, in his representative capacity, a demand against the decedent, belonging at the time of his death to the defendant, may be pleaded by way of set-off, as if the action had been brought by the decedent in his lifetime. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1423, ch. 854, § 1570.)

§ 16–1909 [24: 419]. Setting off judgments.

Where reciprocal claims between different parties have passed into judgments the court may, on motion, in its discretion, order that the judgments shall be set off against each other and satisfaction of both be entered to the amount of the smaller claim. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1424, ch. 854, § 1571.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

AUTHORITY DISCRETIONARY

Where attorney was to be paid out of a judgment, his interest is in the nature of an equitable lien and the court ought not to exercise its discretionary authority and allow another judgment to be set off against it when the effect would be to absorb the fund out of which appellees are entitled to be paid. Continental Casualty Co. v. Kelly (70 App. D. C. 320, 106 Fed. (2d) 841).

Chapter 20.—SURETIES

Sec.
16–2001. Counter security—Removal of fiduciary from office.
16–2002. Judgment or decree entered to use of surety or indorser satisfying judgment—Execution may issue against other sureties.
16–2003. Pledges of debtor not distrained if principal debtor sufficient.
16–2004. Pledges shall answer if principal does not or will not pay.
16–2005. Sureties to have lands and rents of debtor until satisfied—Exception.

When the surety, or his personal representatives, of any officer, commissioner, receiver, or trustee appointed under a decree of court and required to give bond shall apprehend himself to be in danger of suffering from the suretyship and shall petition the court to be relieved from the suretyship, or that the court shall require said officer, commissioner, receiver, or trustee to give counter security, the court may, on reasonable notice to the trustee or other officer, require him to give counter security or to give a new bond in the same manner as if none had been given by him, and on his failure so to do by a day named may remove him from his office or trust and appoint a new trustee or other officer in his stead to complete the duties of his office or trust, and may thereupon order him to deliver over to his successor all the trust property, including moneys, books, papers, bonds, notes, and evidences of debt, and may compel compliance with said order by attachment. § 16–2002 [24: 432]. Judgment or decree entered to use of surety or indorser satisfying judgment—Execution may issue against other sureties.

Where any person shall recover a judgment or money decree against the principal debtor and a surety or indorser, and the judgment shall be satisfied by the surety or indorser, the latter shall be entitled to have the judgment or money decree entered by the clerk to his use and to have execution in his own name against the principal, and where any judgment or money decree shall be rendered against several sureties and one of them shall satisfy the whole debt, the said surety shall be entitled to have the judgment or decree entered to his use, as aforesaid, and to have execution against each of the other sureties in the judgment or decree for a proportionate part of the debt so paid by him; and on the motion of said surety so paying the entire debt and notice to the other sureties the court may determine for what amount execution shall issue against each of the other sureties. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1424, ch. 854, § 1573.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Foreign Judgments

In action by surety, which had given New York cost bond, against principal to recover loss sustained by surety because of payment of judgment for costs against principal, where New York court had jurisdiction of subject matter and of parties, final judgment awarding costs was required to be given complete effect under the "full faith and credit" clause of U. S. Const. Art. 4, § 1. Lloyd v. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (D. C. 1943, 31 A. 2d. 669, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 88, 320 U. S. 780, 88 L. Ed. 468, rehearing denied 64 S. Ct. 204, 320 U. S. 814, 88 L. Ed. 491, rehearing denied 64 S. Ct. 1148, 322 U. S. 770, 88 L. Ed. 1595).

In action by surety, which had given New York cost bond, to recover loss sustained because of payment of judgment against principal for costs, trial court did not err in receiving in evidence certified copy of New York judgment for costs and canceled check evidencing payment of judgment by surety. Lloyd v. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (D. C. 1943, 31 A. 2d 669, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 88, 320 U. S. 780, 88 L. Ed. 468, rehearing denied 64 S. Ct. 204, 320 U. S. 814, 88 L. In action by surety, which had given New York cost bond, against principal to recover loss sustained because of payment of judgment for costs against principal, record did not sustain defense of fraud and collusion in obtaining the judgment for costs. Lloyd v. *U. § 17–101 [18: 26]. Repealed. May 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 110, ch. 139, § 142.

Section relating to appeals from District Court was based on Act Feb. 9, 1893, 27 Stat. 435, ch. 74, § 7; Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1225, ch. 854, § 226; Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. 1312, ch. 125, § 12, and is now covered by sections 1291, 1292 of title 28, U. S. C. See also D. C. Code, sections 11–771, 11–772.

NOTES PRIOR TO REPEAL

Compiler's Note

The Code of 1901, which appears in 31 Stat. 1189–1436, ch. 854, §§ 1 to 1642, was the last official code of the District and was original and independent legislation. Consequently, where a section of that code is set out and antecedent statutes are referred to in the history line, they have to do only with origins and the 1901 Code is not in fact amendatory of them and no comment concerning them will ordinarily be found in the notes concerning amendments.

Amendment

The act of 1921 deleted the words "including any final order or judgment in any case heard on appeal from a justice of the peace," following the words, "or any justice thereof."

Statutory Reference

Post office authorities requiring transmission of publication by freight.—Whenever the owner of any publication required by an order of the Post Office Department to be transmitted by freight believes that he is unfairly discriminated against, he may apply to the Post Office Department for an opportunity to be heard; that upon such application being duly filed in writing, the owner of such publication shall have opportunity for a full and fair hearing before said department, and pending final determination no change shall be made in the method of transportation of such publication as ordered by the Department. The testimony in any such hearing or proceedings shall be reduced to writing and filed in the Post Office Department prior to entering an order upon such hearing. That upon such hearing if the Post Office Department decides adversely to the contention of the publisher, such publisher shall have the right, within the period of twenty days after the date of the order of the Post Office Department made upon such hearing, to appeal to the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, for a review of such order by said court of appeals, by filing in the court a written petition praying that the order of the Post Office Department be set aside. A copy of such petition shall be forthwith served upon the Post Office Department and thereupon the said Department forthwith shall certify and file in the court a transcript of the record and testimony. Upon the filing of such transcript the court shall have jurisdiction to affirm, set aside, or modify the order of the Department.

The jurisdiction of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia to affirm, set aside, or modify such orders of the Post Office Department shall be exclusive.

Such proceedings in the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia shall be given precedence over other cases pending therein and shall be in every way expedited. (July 28, 1916, 39 Stat. 424, ch. 261, § 2.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

In General

Since this act, Supreme Court of United States could not review judgments and decrees of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia. In re Massachusetts (197 U. S. 482, 49 L. Ed. 845, 25 Sup. Ct. 512).

It was too late to assert a new and additional ground when case in ejectment came before the District Court and consequently it cannot then be alleged that a forfeiture resulted by reason of the tenant's allowing the attachment to be issued and levied. Davis v. Taylor (51 App. D. C. 97, 276 Fed. 619).

Jurisdiction is appellate and not original. Hartman v. Masters (57 App. D. C. 196, 19 Fed. (2d) 670).

An appeal does not lie from an order denying a motion for new trial, for rehearing, or to vacate a judgment, and the appeal should be taken from the judgment itself. Gersing v. Chafitz, 1942 (133 F. 2d 384, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 38).

Where appeal to Supreme Court from District Court for District of Columbia was unauthorized, cause was remanded in order that a new judgment might be entered from which an appeal could be perfected to Court of Appeals for District of Columbia. U. S. v. Belt, 1943 (63 S. Ct. 1278, 319 U. S. 521, 87 L. Ed. 1559, vacating 47 F. Supp. 239).

Adoption Proceedings

The aggrieved party may appeal from a final order of the District Court in an adoption proceeding. Barnes v. Paanakker (72 App. D. C. 39, 111 Fed. (2d) 193).

Amendment of Pleadings

The grant or refusal of leave to amend a pleading is a power intrusted to the trial courts that injustice and hardship may be prevented and the merits of the case fairly tried, and whether in the particular instance the leave should be granted or refused is not reviewable in the appellate court. Plummer v. Johnson (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 35 A. 2d 647).

Antitrust Act

When the Supreme Court of the United States had settled that by reason of the Expediting Act the Court of Appeals was without jurisdiction of an appeal in a suit in equity under the Antitrust Act and that a consent decree was valid, the Court of Appeals, in refusing to vacate its judgment and mandate departed from the limits of admissible discretion. United States v. California Co-op. Canneries (279 U. S. 553, 73 L. Ed. 838, 49 Sup. Ct. 423).

Appealable Interest

"It is a condition precedent to the right of appeal that the appellant must show that he is directly aggrieved by the order appealed from." Barksdale v. Morgan (34 App. D. C. 549).

Executor cannot appeal from an order made in equity cause sustaining an exception to auditor's report allowing claim of an attorney for professional fee in acting for executor, under probate court order authorizing the executor to employ counsel, for such executor has no interest in the claim. Barksdale v. Morgan (34 App. D. C. 549).

Appellate Court will not review a case where the appellants are not aggrieved by the order made in their favor. Dieterich v. Dieterich (48 App. D. C. 356).

Appeal From Justices of the Peace

The controversy in respect of appeals to the Court of Appeals in the Supreme Court of the District in cases appealed from justices of the peace, raised under 1901 Code, §§ 82 and 226 (§ 17–101), was not only disposed of by the Court of Appeals in Groff v. Miller (30 W. L. R. 434), but determined by the repeal of § 82 by the act of June 30, 1902. In re Key (189 U. S. 84, 47 L. Ed. 720, 23 Sup. Ct. 624).

Appeal in Forma Pauperis

Practice of the courts of appellate jurisdiction in allowing appeals or writs of error to be brought by defendants in criminal cases in forma pauperis, upon proof of inability to pay costs and fees, furnishes no authority or precedent for allowing the privilege to a plaintiff in a civil action. Ex parte Harlow (3 App. D. C. 203); but see U. S. Code, title 28, § 832).

Wife who prosecuted in forma pauperis an appeal from a decree granting husband a divorce a vinculo and moves to have him pay alimony pending appeal, such motion was denied for the application was made to the court after rendition of the decree appealed from, and the transcript having been filed the lower court lost jurisdiction. McLarren v. McLarren (44 App. D. C. 555).

Appointment of Receiver

After appointment of receiver an order directing that certain property covered by original order shall be delivered to him is supplemental only and not appealable. Mcarns v. Sullivan (49 App. D. C. 179, 262 Fed. 633).

Appeal from order of Supreme Court of District appointing receiver, was one of right and not dependent upon an order of allowance by court of appeals. Vernon v. Provident Relief Assn. (57 App. D. C. 236, 19 Fed. (2d) 710).

On appeal under this section, interlocutory decree of District Court, appointing receiver for a grocery business was reversed, evidence failing to sustain plaintiff's claim of a partnership interest therein. Chaparas v. Kountakis (59 App. D. C. 367, 42 Fed. (2d) 351).

In suit for an accounting and discovery and for appointment of receiver, where verified complaint alleged that defendant was resident of District of Columbia, but summons was served on defendant in Virginia and the return, verified by a Virginia sheriff, alleged that defendant "is a nonresident of the District of Columbia", denial of defendant's motion, made on special appearance, to quash service of process was error. Contella v. Clayton, 1944 (140 F. 2d 469, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 291).

Bankruptcy Cases

No appellate jurisdiction over the District Court of the District sitting as a Court of Bankruptcy. Sullivan v. Goldman (38 App. D. C. 319, cert. den. 225 U. S. 701, 56 L. Ed. 1264, 32 Sup. Ct. 835).

The remedy of a person aggrieved in a bankruptcy proceeding in the District Court is by an appeal of right under the terms of the Bankruptcy Act, 11 U. S. C. § 47, rather than by a special appeal. In re Leigh, 1944 (139 F. 2d 386, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 261, 55 Am. Bankrup. Rep. N. S. 274).

Where bankrupt misconceived form of his appeal and erroneously petitioned for a special appeal instead of bringing an appeal of right, but no substantial rights of appellee were affected, and it would not have been in interest of justice to dismiss special appeal by reason of expiration of time for bringing an appeal of right, appellate court took jurisdiction of the case as an appeal of right. In re Leigh, 1944 (139 F. 2d 386, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 261, 55 Am. Bankrup. Rep. N. S. 274).

A bankrupt who seeks a review of an order on a motion is entitled as a substantial right to have court consider the motion papers and all exhibits as they were presented to referee, and an order denying completion of record to bring before the court such motion papers and exhibits is appealable of right under the Bankruptcy Act, 11 U. S. C. § 47, and is not a proper subject for special appeal. In re Leigh, 1944 (139 F. 2d 386, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 261, 55 Am. Bankrup. Rep. N. S. 274).

Bill of Exceptions

"There is no power in this court, by certiorari or otherwise, to correct the imperfections or misstatements that are alleged to exist in the bill of exceptions taken and certified to this court." Kelly v. Moore (22 App. D. C. 1).

Bill of Review

The purpose of a "bill of review" is to obtain a reversal or modification of a final decree and a bill may be maintained on the grounds of error of law apparent on the face of the record without further examination of matters of fact, new facts discovered since the decree which should materially affect the decree and probably induce a different result, and fraud in procuring the decree. Fraser v. Doing, 1942 (130 F. 2d 617, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 111).

The purpose of a "bill of review" or of a "complaint in the nature of bill of review" is to permit the same court to examine its earlier record and to answer the challenge made to its accuracy. Fraser v. Doing, 1942 (130 F. 2d 617, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 111).

Where disputed record in equity cause was not included in record on appeal from judgment dismissing complaint in the nature of a bill of review impeaching decrees entered in equity cause, every reasonable assumption was required to be indulged in favor of district court's judgment dismissing complaint and in support of that court's exercise of discretion. Fraser v. Doing, 1942 (130 F. 2d 617, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 111).

Where answer to complaint in the nature of a bill of review impeaching decrees entered in equity cause alleged that plaintiff had made a general appearance in equity cause, nothing to the contrary was alleged or proved, plaintiff stipulated at pre-trial that there were no issues of fact raised by the pleadings except so far as records in equity cause might indicate, action was submitted on complaint and answer and record in equity cause was not before reviewing court on appeal from judgment dismissing complaint, reviewing court concluded that plaintiff did make a general appearance in equity cause and subjected himself to jurisdiction of court for all purposes and hence he could not sustain his contention that court lacked jurisdiction to enter its decrees and defendant was entitled to judgment as a matter of law. Fraser v. Doing, 1942 (130 F. 2d 617, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 111).

A complaint in the nature of a bill of review filed less than 10 days after final decree in equity sought to be impeached was entered was premature, since under Rule 59 following section 723c of 28 U. S. C. decree was still open to correction in the same proceeding by a motion for a new trial. Fraser v. Doing, 1942 (130 F. 2d 617, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 111).

Condemnation Proceedings

Court has jurisdiction to hear appeals in a proceeding to take land by condemnation and determine the compensation to be made for it. Winslow v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. (28 App. D. C. 126, affd. 208 U. S. 59, 52 L. Ed. 388, 28 Sup. Ct. 190). See also Seufferle v. Macfarland (28 App. D. C. 94).

Contempt Cases

A punitive sentence appropriate only to a proceeding at law for criminal contempt where the contempt consisted in doing that which had been prohibited by an injunction could not properly be imposed in contempt proceedings which were instituted, entitled, tried, and, up to the moment of sentence, treated as a part of the original cause in equity. Gompers v. Buck's Stove & Range Co. (221 U. S. 418, 55 L. Ed. 797, 31 Sup. Ct. 492, 34 L. R. A. (N. S.) 874, revg. 33 App. D. C. 516).

An appeal did not lie, nor did a writ of error, but a writ of certiorari was granted from a judgment of the District Court of the District of Columbia in a proceeding for an alleged criminal contempt of an injunction. Gompers v. United States (233 U. S. 604, 58 L. Ed. 1115, 34 Sup. Ct. 693, revg. 40 App. D. C. 293).

An alleged criminal contempt of an injunction is within the meaning of U. S. C., title 18, § 582, which provides for three-year limitation for criminal prosecution. Gompers v. United States (233 U. S. 604, 58 L. Ed. 1115, 34 Sup. Ct. 693, revg. 40 App. D. C. 293).

Appeal lies from order finding defendant guilty of criminal contempt. Pierce v. United States (37 App. D. C. 582, cert. den. 223 U. S. 732, 56 L. Ed. 634, 32 Sup. Ct. 528).

Order adjudging one in contempt for failure to deliver property to receivers was not a final order. Mearns v. Sullivan (49 App. D. C. 179, 262 Fed. 633).

Where jurisdiction of Federal appellate court in contempt appeal was established insofar as action against members of the court for alleged libel and conspiracy to damage the party adjudged in contempt was concerned, the members of the court could not be held liable for their judicial action in the contempt appeal. Fletcher v. Stephens, 1941 (133 F. 2d 394, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 98, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 1165, 319 U. S. 755, 87 L. Ed. 1708).

Where Federal appellate court's jurisdiction was not attacked in contempt appeal and the court took jurisdiction, the jurisdiction thus established could not be "collaterally attacked", in action against members of the court, which affirmed the contempt judgment, for alleged libel and conspiracy to damage the party adjudged in contempt. Fletcher v. Stephens, 1942 (133 F. 2d 394, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 98, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 1165, 319 U. S. 755, 87 L. Ed. 1708).

Disbarment Proceedings

Where District Court and Court of Claims had jurisdiction in disbarment proceedings, United States Court of Appeals for District of Columbia had jurisdiction of the subject matter on appeal. Fletcher v. Evening Star Newspaper Co., 1940 (114 F. 2d 582, 72 App. D. C. 303, certiorari denied 61 S. Ct. 732, 312 U. S. 694, 85 L. Ed. 1130).

Divorce Proceeding

Trial court can grant an order requiring husband to pay attorney fees and costs of printing brief only until the transcript is lodged in the Appellate Court. Bernsdorff v. Bernsdorff (26 App. D. C. 228).

In action for divorce on ground of adultery, where evidence was in sharp and irreconcilable conflict, judgment for defendants would not be disturbed. Bacon v. Bacon (C. A., D. C. 1948. 169 F. 2d 679).

Federal Communications Commission

On review of a decision of the Federal Communications Commission, the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia may correct errors of law, and on remand the commission is bound to act on the correction. Federal Communications Commission v. Pottsville Broadcasting Co., 1940 (60 S. Ct. 437, 309 U. S. 134, 84 L. Ed. 656, reversing 105 F. 2d 36, 70 App. Div. 157, certiorari granted 60 S. Ct. 107, 308 U. S. 535, 84 L. Ed. 451).

Where modification of license of second class radio station, which had been operating in daytime only, to permit operation for unlimited time with increased power allegedly created electrical interference after sunset in secondary service area of first class station, and thus degraded the status of the first class station from a clear channel station by reclassifying it, although its license was not expressly modified, the first class station was entitled to appeal from the modification order of the Federal Communications Commission under 47 U. S. C. § 402 (b) (2), permitting appeal by a "person aggrieved or whose interests are adversely affected." National Broadcasting Co. v. Federal Communications Commission, 1942 (132 F. 2d 545, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 238, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 526, 317 U. S. 624, 87 L. Ed. 505, affirmed 63 S. Ct. 1035, 319 U. S. 239, 87 L. Ed. 1374).

Federal Trade Commission Orders

Congress, in making its provision for the use of the Circuit Courts of Appeals, in reviewing the Federal Trade Commission's orders, intended to include within that description the Court of Appeals of the District as the appellate tribunal to be charged with the same duty in the District. Federal Trade Comm. v. Klesner (274 U. S. 145, 71 L. Ed. 972, 47 Sup. Ct. 557).

Final Decree

Final order of dismissal as to one count of a declaration is not appealable, where the disposition of the subject-matter depends upon the issues made by and under the remaining counts. Commercial Bank v. Consumers Brew. Co. (16 App. D. C. 186).

"An order for the payment of alimony pendente lite, although merely an incident in all these proceedings, is in effect a final order" and therefore appealable as of right. Lesh v. Lesh (21 App. D. C. 475), citing Alexander v. Alexander (13 App. D. C. 334). See also Lynham v. Hufty (44 App. D. C. 589).

Order of justice of peace quashing attachment is not appealable, while the action remains undisposed of. United States ex rel. Robertson v. Barnard (24 App. D. C. 8).

Order dismissing defendant in criminal case from the indictment without day is final and therefore appealable. United States v. Cadaar (24 App. D. C. 143, revd. on other grounds 197 U. S. 475, 49 L. Ed. 842, 25 Sup. Ct. 487).

"A decree may be final in the sense that it may be appealed from, though not final in the strict technical sense of the term. If it dispose of all questions within the pleadings, and nothing remains but to adjust an account between the parties in the execution of the decree, it is final. But if the reference is for a judicial purpose, as to state an account between the parties, upon which a further decree is to be entered, it is not final." King v. Harrington (35 App. D. C. 111), citing Gilbert v. Washing- ton Beneficial Endowment Assn. (10 App. D. C. 316), Metzger v. Kelly (34 App. D. C. 548).

Decree holding certain defendants liable and ordering reference, held not final and appealable. United States ex rel. Philips v. Bailey (57 App. D. C. 287, 22 Fed. (2d) 715).

Order removing administrator is a final appealable order. Perry v. Wilson (60 App. D. C. 109, 48 Fed. (2d) 1021).

The district court's final approval of a sale under a deed of trust constitutes a "final order" which may be reviewed by Court of Appeals for District of Columbia. Ex parte Thomas, 1940 (114 F. 2d 847, 73 App. D. C. 50).

Trial court's action in overruling demurrer to indictment was final, subject only to appeal. Blount v. Huff, 1944 (144 F. 2d 21, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 204, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 276, 323 U. S. 787, 89 L. Ed. 628).

An order overruling motion of defendant to dismiss original complaint was not an appealable "final order." Toomey v. Toomey (App. D. C. 1945, 149 F. 2d 19).

"Final orders, judgments and decrees" which are subject to review are those which expressly or by necessary implication determine rights and liabilities of all parties with reference to matter in controversy and leave nothing of a judicial character to be done. Stewart v. Roberts (App. D. C. 1946, 154 F. 2d 697).

An order denying motion for judgment in accordance with previous motion for directed verdict and, in effect, restoring case to docket for retrial was not an appealable "final order", and appeal was required to be dismissed for lack of jurisdiction. Stewart v. Roberts (App. D. C. 1946, 154 F. 2d 697).

Under this section authorizing appeal from "final order", an order is not appealable unless it amounts to a final disposition of case on its merits so that court has nothing to do but execute judgment. Cammack v. Howard (App. D. C. 1946, 154 F. 2d 22, 81 U. S. App. D. C. 22).

Orders of the district court of the United States which revoked the authority of appellant to do business as a bondsman in criminal cases in this jurisdiction were judicial orders and therefore appealable. In Re Carter (C. A. D. C. 1949, 177 F. 2d 75, 85 U. S. App. D. C. 229, certiorari denied, 70 S. Ct. 250, 338 U. S. 900, 94 L. Ed. 198).

It is not function of appellate court to assume the powers of trial court. Schilling v. Schwitzer-Cummins Co., 1944 (142 F. 2d 82, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 20).

Appellate court will not reverse a ruling granting or refusing a view by jury unless an abuse of discretion is shown. Washington Coca Cola Bottling Works v. Kelly (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 40 A. 2d 85).

Habeas Corpus

Provisions of the United States Code are not required to give this court jurisdiction on appeal in habeas corpus cases. That jurisdiction was conferred by the statute which created Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia. Costello v. Palmer (20 App. D. C. 210).

An order dismissing petition for a writ of habeas corpus by one in custody of United States marshal under a writ of capias ad satisfaciendum issued in a proceeding under §§ 794 and 795, R. S. D. C., was a final order and appealable to Court of Appeals where the habeas corpus proceeding was an independent suit, growing out of preceding cause, but having no necessary dependence or connection therewith. Costello v. Palmer (20 App. D. C. 210).

Appeal will lie from order awarding custody of child on habeas corpus. Nuckols v. Nuckols (38 App. D. C. 441), citing Goldsmith v. Valentine (35 App. D. C. 299).

Appeal from order dismissing petition for writ of habeas corpus was dismissed as frivolous, where petition contained no allegations of fact supporting claim that petitioner did not have the aid of competent counsel or that he did not have a fair trial. Griffin v. Clemmer (C. A., D. C. 1948, 169 F. 2d 961; cert. granted, 335 U. S. 866, 69 S. Ct. 136, 336 U. S. 704, 69 S. Ct. 814, 93 L. Ed. 993, rehearing denied, 337 U. S. 921, 69 S. Ct. 1152, 93 L. Ed. 1730; see also 183 Fed. (2d) 990.

Harmless Error

When law action was tried by consent without a jury, except for the paper required to consent to waive jury and as the defect is not jurisdictional and is not assigned for error or otherwise complained of, it may be disregarded. Equitable Trust Co. v. Denver & R. G. R. Co. ((C. C. A. 2), 250 Fed. 327, cert. den. 246 U. S. 672, 62 L. Ed. 932, 38 Sup. Ct. 423).

A reversal because of erroneous exclusion of evidence is proper only if it is shown that the exclusion was harmful. Sorrels v. Alexander, 1944 (142 F. 2d 769, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 112).

Although United States Attorney filed in appellate court a written confession of error and motion to remand, appellate court had duty to examine record and determine for itself whether there was prejudicial error. Upshaw v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1948, 168 F. 2d 167, certiorari granted 68 S. Ct. 1505, 334 U. S. 842, 92 L. Ed. 1767, reversed 69 S. Ct. 170, 335 U. S. 410, 93 L. Ed. 100).

Injunctions

Only such interlocutory orders granting injunctions "as affirmatively changed or affected possession of property" are appealable as matter of right. McCaul Co. v. Harr (51 App. D. C. 111, 276 Fed. 633), citing United States Elec. Lighting Co. v. Metropolitan Club (6 App. D. C. 536); Macfarland v. Washington, A. & Mt. V. R. Co. (18 App. D. C. 456); and Hayes v. Conger (36 App. D. C. 202); Trans-Atlantic Trust Co. v. Pagenstecher (53 App. D. C. 42, 287 Fed. 1019).

Appeal from decree of District Court granting a temporary injunction was premature. Mellon v. Mertz (58 App. D. C. 302, 30 Fed. (2d) 311).

Preliminary injunction restraining picketing is not appealable. New Negro Alliance v. Harry Kaufman (64 App. D. C. 362, 78 Fed. (2d) 415).

Interlocutory Decrees

Court of Appeals may review interlocutory orders of the District Court, as well as final judgments; but it is unnecessary to say that if the judgment reviewed was interlocutory, so is the judgment affirming it. Hartranft v. Mullowny (247 U. S. 295, 62 L. Ed. 1123, 38 Sup. Ct. 518).

Neither an order overruling motion to vacate order of publication nor a decree pro confesso is appealable. Chappell v. O'Brien (22 App. D. C. 190).

Special appeal from interlocutory order allowed when it appeared that the trial of the issues framed would result in vexatious delay and costs to no purpose, should it be afterwards determined that trial court was without jurisdiction. Healey v. Maroney (34 App. D. C. 99).

This section requires a final order, or such an interlocutory order as is contemplated by the statute conferring general appellate jurisdiction. Mearns v. Sullivan (49 App. D. C. 179, 262 Fed. 633).

When order is interlocutory merely, no appeal lies as a matter of right, but may be filed by special leave of court. Church v. Church (50 App. D. C. 239, 270 Fed. 361, 14 A. L. R. 769); Sykes v. Jenny Wren Co. (64 App. D. C. 379, 78 Fed. (2d) 729, 104 A. L. R. 864).

Appeal from interlocutory decree not changing possession of property is premature. Mellon v. Mertz (58 App. D. C. 302, 30 Fed. (2d) 311).

Decree referring sale of goods under chattel mortgage to auditor for final accounting, interlocutory order and not appealable. Fidelity Storage Co. v. Jaques (61 App. D. C. 337, 62 Fed. (2d) 876, cert. den. 289 U. S. 733, 77 L. Ed. 1481, 53 Sup. Ct. 594).

An interlocutory order that adjudicates no legal rights, but preserves the status quo is not appealable. Dunning v. Harrah (65 App. D. C. 92, 80 Fed. (2d) 535).

United States Court of Appeals may allow appeals from interlocutory orders of the District Court, but not from interlocutory orders of the Municipal Court. Serkowich v. Wardell (69 App. D. C. 389, 102 Fed. (2d) 253).

An order denying a motion to postpone distribution of personal estate of deceased provided legatee should furnish a bond was not a "final order," but was an "interlocutory order" from which an appeal could not be taken, since its operation was dependent on whether or not bond was furnished. Hengesbach v. Hengesbach, 1942 (130 F. 2d 838, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 209).

Order sustaining motion of plaintiffs to dismiss compulsory counterclaim was not an appealable "final order" but was an "interlocutory order". Toomey v. Toomey (App. D. C. 1945, 149 F. 2d 19).

Where testamentary trustee sued to have District Court take jurisdiction of trust and court entered order taking supervision of administration of estate but refused stay of proceedings, under Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act, 50 U. S. C. App., § 521, only concerning consideration of question as to whether court should receive accountings and supervise administration and left way open for renewal of motion to stay, should that become appropriate when account had been presented, the orders were "interlocutory" and appeal, taken as a general appeal as though orders complained of were final, would be dismissed. Cammack v. Howard (App. D. C. 1946, 154 F. 2d 22, 81 U. S. App. D. C. 22).

Mandamus

Use of mandamus to compelling entry of judgment according to mandate of Court of Appeals. Ex parte Mansfield (11 App. D. C. 558). See also Hartman v. Masters (46 App. D. C. 271).

Moot Questions

Where husband had been improperly imprisoned for contempt for noncompliance with order awarding maintenance pendente lite and suit money, in wife's suit for maintenance, the fact that he had been released from custody on giving bond for satisfaction of contempt judgment did not require dismissal of appeal from order denying writ of habeas corpus as "moot", since husband was in custody of law and was restrained of his liberty. Bates v. Bates, 1944 (141 F. 2d 723, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 14).

Where motion to dismiss, filed after decision was rendered, disclosed that parties had settled case, judgment would be vacated and appeal dismissed, and cause remanded with directions to dismiss case as moot. Mueller Brass Co. v. Alexander Milburn Co. (App. D. C. 1945, 152 F. 2d 142).

Ne Exeat

An order refusing to quash a writ of ne exeat issued on divorced wife's complaint to prevent former husband from leaving the jurisdiction of the court and directing that the writ continue in force was a "final order" and was appealable. Jacobsen v. Jacobsen, 1942 (126 F. 2d 13, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 223).

New Trial Orders

An order overruling motion for reconsideration of a denial of a motion for new trial does not extend time for appealing. Gersing v. Chafitz, 1942 (133 F. 2d 384, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 38).

Where motion for new trial was not filed within ten days after entry of judgment, as required by rule 59 of Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, following § 723c of 28 U. S. C., the time for taking appeal was not suspended beyond the date of the overruling of the motion, and therefore notice of appeal which was filed more than 30 days thereafter did not give Federal appellate court jurisdiction. Gersing v. Chafitz, 1942 (133 F. 2d 384, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 38).

An order granting a new trial on judge's own initiative more than ten days after entry of judgment is reviewable. Freid v. McGrath, 1943 (133 F. 2d 350, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 388, mandate recalled on other grounds 135 F. 2d 833, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 385).

Court of Appeals for District of Columbia cannot review trial court's decision to grant or deny new trial on ground that verdict was excessive or inadequate. Feltman v. Sammond (App. D. C. 1948, 166 F. 2d 213).

Parties

Where action was commenced by Price Administrator for injunctive relief and treble damages under former Emergency Price Control Act, 50 U. S. C. App., § 925 (e), and Price Administrator resigned and more than a year passed and no action was proposed or taken to substitute another party plaintiff or to continue or maintain the action or to show that there was need for so continuing or maintaining the action which was dismissed on defendant's motion, the United States, which filed a notice of appeal without seeking to be substituted as a party, was not entitled to appeal and appeal would be dismissed. U. S. v. Seigel (App. D. C. 1948, 168 F. 2d 143).

Possession of Property

Possession obtained by writ of restitution under municipal court judgment before reversal of district court judgment dismissing complaint, in suit to enjoin enforcement of municipal court judgment, was "rightful possession" as against contention that because dismissal of injunction suit was erroneous, possession was wrongful and could not be recognized in determining whether subsequent interlocutory orders were appealable on theory that possession of property was changed or affected thereby. Laughlin v. Berens, 1942 (128 F. 2d 23, 75 App. D. C. 409).

Where defendant obtained possession by writ of restitution under municipal court judgment before reversal of district court's judgment dismissing complaint, in suit to enjoin enforcement of municipal court judgment, district court order vacating an unexecuted order of restitution obtained by plaintiffs and district court order denying plaintiffs' motion for preliminary injunction to restore the status quo were not appealable under provisions of this section permitting appeal from "interlocutory order whereby possession of property is changed or affected." Laughlin v. Berens, 1942 (128 F. 2d 23, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 409).

Under provision of this section permitting appeals from interlocutory orders whereby possession of property is changed or affected, Congress intended to permit appeals only from interlocutory orders which if carried into effect would change or affect the actual possession of the property as it existed immediately before the order. Laughlin v. Berens, 1942 (128 F. 2d 23, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 409).

Probate Court

Order of Probate Court directing that a petition shall stand as a caveat is not appealable. Craighead v. Alexander (38 App. D. C. 229).

Appeal will not lie from order of Probate Court framing issues on caveat to will. Hutchins v. Hutchins (40 App. D. C. 180), distinguishing National Safe Deposit, Sav. & Trust Co. v. Sweeny (3 App. D. C. 401); Dugan v. Northcutt (7 App. D. C. 351); National Safe Deposit, Sav. & Trust Co. v. Heiberger (19 App. D. C. 506).

Questions Not Raised Below

Where record did not reveal that contention concerning unilateral nature of contract was presented to trial court as ground for motion for directed verdict or otherwise, appellant was not entitled to present such contention on appeal. Friedman v. Decatur Corporation, 1943 (135 F. 2d 812, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 326, affirming 39 F. Supp. 692).

Ordinarily, issues on appeal should be confined to those which were duly presented at trial. Schaff v. R. W. Claxton, Inc., 1944 (144 F. 2d 532, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 207, certiorari denied 69 S. Ct. 168, 335 U. S. 871, 93 L. Ed. 415; see also 169 F. 2d 303, 83 U. S. App. D. C. 271).

Where accused's witness was asked on cross-examination when he had first met accused, and witness' answer that he had met accused in federal prison was not called to court's attention in any way by trial counsel of accused, it was too late to urge on appeal that the answer was sufficient ground to set aside conviction. Sykes v. U. S., 1944 (143 F. 2d 140, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 97).

Where defendant did not move before trial to suppress evidence allegedly obtained by means of illegal search and seizure, or explain his failure to do so, no complaint could be made on appeal of admission of such evidence. Cromer v. U. S., 1944 (142 F. 2d 697, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 400, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 1274, 322 U. S. 760, 88 L. Ed. 1588).

Question whether the filing of an unqualified motion to dismiss by nonresident who had not been served personally constituted a general appearance was waived by failure to present it either to trial court or on appeal. Rone v. Rone, 1944 (141 F. 2d 23, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 369).

Where no motion for binding instructions is made, review may not ordinarily be had, but in serious criminal cases practice has been to notice error vitally affecting the issue regardless of failure to conform with rules. Williams v. U. S., 1944 (140 F. 2d 351, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 322).

Having failed to present the plea of unconstitutionality of a statute on its face to the district court, the appellant cannot urge it in appellate court since the rule is if the question is not raised in the trial court, it will not be considered on appeal. Keyes v. Madsen (C. A. D. C. 1949, 179 F. 2d 40, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 24, certiorari denied, 70 S. Ct. 628, 339 U. S. 928, 94 L. Ed. 546).

RECORD

The circumstances showing the essential justice of sentence are not a necessary part of record on appeal and appellate court could not consider question of possible abuse of discretion in imposing sentence. Gaston v. U. S., 1944 (143 F. 2d 10, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 37, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 1286, 322 U. S. 764, 88 L. Ed. 1591).

REEXAMINATION OF RULINGS

Where appellate court affirmed conviction in reliance on decision which had been affirmed by Supreme Court, but thereafter Supreme Court vacated its earlier judgment and rendered contrary decision, the judgment would be vacated and cause remanded to enable the appellate court to reexamine its ruling in the light of subsequent decision of Supreme Court. Busey v. District of Columbia, 1943 (63 S. Ct. 1277, 319 U. S. 579, 87 L. Ed. 1598, vacating 129 F. 2d 24, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 352, certiorari granted 63 S. Ct. 1154, 319 U. S. 735, 87 L. Ed. 1695, mandate conformed to 138 F. 2d 592, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 189).

RIGHT TO APPEAL

As a general rule, an executor is not aggrieved and therefore cannot appeal until either the estate as a whole, or his individual interests are affected, as by an order refusing probate, etc. He cannot appeal for the protection of interests of particular devisees or legatees who are able to protect themselves by taking an appeal of their own. Spriggs v. Stones (C. A. D. C. 1949, 174 F. 2d 671, 85 U. S. App. D. C. 95).

SCOPE OF REVIEW

Ordinarily the scope of review of the decree of the District Court would be limited to the assignments of error but as the decree was entered under a mandate of the Supreme Court, the Supreme Court would have jurisdiction to consider on its own motion whether its mandate has been complied with. Continental Ins. Co. v. Reading Co. (259 U. S. 156, 66 L. Ed. 871, 42 Sup. Ct. 540).

On appeal, a case should be disposed of under the law as determined by later decisions. Schaff v. R. W. Claxton, Inc., 1944 (144 F. 2d 532, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 207).

Federal appellate court has power not only to correct errors in judgment under review, but to make such disposition of case as justice requires and in determining what justice requires court must consider any change, either in fact or in law, which has supervened since judgment was entered. Schaff v. R. W. Claxton, Inc., 1944 (144 F. 2d 532, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 207, certiorari denied 69 S. Ct. 168, 335 U. S. 871, 93 L. Ed. 415; see also 169 F. 2d 303, 83 U. S. App. D. C. 271).

Even if it were an improper practice for trial court to direct counsel to prepare findings, such fact would not authorize the appellate court to review evidence de novo, but proper procedure would be to remand case to trial court and direct that new findings be made. Schilling v. Schwitzer-Cummins Co., 1944 (142 F. 2d 82, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 20).

In order to sustain a conviction, the appellate court must be able to find that the evidence is more consistent with guilt than innocence. Williams v. U. S., 1944 (140 F. 2d 351, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 322).

On appeal from judgment for contestants in will contest, the question is whether there was sufficient evidence to support the verdict, giving to it every legitimate and permissible inference. Duckett v. Duckett (App. D. C. 1945, 150 F. 2d 985).

On matters of law, unmixed, reviewing courts are free to substitute their own judgment for that of administrative agency, although great weight must be given to administrative judgment. Agnew v. Board of Governors of Federal Reserve System (App. D. C. 1946, 153 F. 2d 785, 80 U. S. App. D. C. 377, certiorari granted 66 S. Ct. 979, 328 U. S. 125, 90 L. Ed. 1604 reversed 67 S. Ct. 411, 329 U. S. 441, 91 L. Ed. 408).

Where jury reached verdict on conflicting evidence, appellate court must affirm judgment based on verdict, in absence of error of law. Gardner v. Capital Transit Co. (App. D. C. 1946, 152 F. 2d 288).

By virtue of the assignment, appellant bank transferred its interest in the judgment out of which the action sprung and, as a consequence, it was not a party aggrieved within the purview of the statute and had no legal or equitable right upon which to predicate its suit below. Mount Vernon Savings Bank v. Wardman (C. A., D. C. 1949, 173 A. 2d 648, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 343).

TRADE-MARKS

Both the applicant for cancelation of trade-mark and the registrant opposing it are given the right of appeal to the Court of Appeals for the District. United States ex rel. Baldwin v. Robertson (265 U. S. 168, 68 L. Ed. 962, 44 Sup. Ct. 508).

TRADING WITH THE ENEMY ACT

Alien property custodian and treasurer could appeal from a judgment of the District Court in an action under § 9 of the Trading With the Enemy Act. United States v. Securities Corp. General (55 App. D. C. 256, 4 Fed. (2d) 619).

WRITS OF PROHIBITION

When exercise of power is unlawful and there is no other adequate remedy, the Appellate Court will order the writ of prohibition to issue to prohibit further proceedings in the court below. In re Macfarland (30 App. D. C. 365), app. dism. (215 U. S. 614, 54 L. Ed. 349, 50 Sup. Ct. 402).

A writ of prohibition will not lie to prohibit collection of judgment of Municipal Court on an undertaking to stay execution, although such judgment was for more than $1,000. Bailey v. Walker (55 App. D. C. 74, 2 Fed. (2d) 123).

§ 17–102 [18: 27]. Court of Appeals—Appeals from interlocutory orders in criminal case prohibited.

Nothing contained in any Act of Congress shall be construed to empower the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia to allow an appeal from any interlocutory order entered in any criminal action or proceeding or to entertain any such appeal heretofore or hereafter allowed or taken. (July 3, 1926, 44 Stat. 831, ch. 755; June 7, 1934, 48 Stat. 926, ch. 426.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

APPEALS FROM MUNICIPAL COURT

United States Court of Appeals for the District may allow appeals from interlocutory orders of the District, but not from interlocutory orders of the Municipal Court. Serkowich v. Wardells (69 App. D. C. 389, 102 Fed. (2d) 253).

Section relating to appeals from police court was based on Act Mar. 2, 1897, 29 Stat. 607, ch. 360; Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1225, ch. 854, § 227, and is now obsolete. Appeals are now to the Municipal Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia. See D. C. Code § 11–771.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

In General

Appellate Court ought not to entertain affidavits contradicting or explaining the recitals in the record certified from the police court. "The certified record imports verity." Talty v. District of Columbia (20 App. D. C. 489).

Upon the perfecting of an appeal the court below was ousted of its jurisdiction. Prioleau v. Superintendent of Washington Asylum & Jail (55 App. D. C. 99, 2 Fed. (2d) 317).

Certiorari

Court of Appeals refused to issue certiorari to review a refusal of a justice of the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia to allow a writ of error to the police court of the District, as, under U. S. C., title 28, § 347, it had no jurisdiction. Ferguson v. District of Columbia (270 U. S. 633, 70 L. Ed. 771, 46 Sup. Ct. 355).

All the power that the Appellate Court can exercise over convictions in the police court is strictly of an appellate character, by writ of error, when questions arising in the course of the trial are regularly presented and reserved by bill of exceptions and not by original common-law writ of certiorari. Sullivan v. District of Columbia (19 App. D. C. 210).

Final Order

Order of police court denying return of liquor seized under a warrant which was later dismissed was a final order. Dickhart v. United States (57 App. D. C. 5, 16 Fed. (2d) 345).

Intervener

Party permitted to intervene in original proceedings in police court became a party to the proceeding and was entitled to carry appeal to court of appeals. Automobile Brokerage Corp. v. United States (59 App. D. C. 243, 39 Fed. (2d) 288).

Notice of Writs of Error

"The proper time to give notice of intention to apply to this court for a writ of error in these cases tried in the police court is when the first exception is taken. * * * But it will not be necessary to repeat the notice with every exception that is taken." Tubins v. District of Columbia (21 App. D. C. 267).

Payment of Fine Precluding Appeal

Where defendant on conviction was sentenced to pay a fine of $25 or serve 25 days, and he paid fine without attempting to stay judgment and without making protest or giving notice of intent to appeal, the payment which was voluntary, satisfied the judgment, rendered case "moot" and precluded defendant from appealing. Hanback v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 35 A. 2d 189).

Right of Appeal

At common law there was no review of criminal cases as of right. District of Columbia v. Clawans (300 U. S. 617, 81 L. Ed. 843, 57 Sup. Ct. 660), affg. (66 App. D. C. 11, 84 Fed. (2d) 265).

Due process does not comprehend the right of appeal. District of Columbia v. Clawans (300 U. S. 617, 81 L. Ed. 843, 57 Sup. Ct. 660, affg. 66 App. D. C. 11, 84 Fed. (2d) 265).

Fact that party is not entitled to an appeal as matter of right is not to be considered in determining whether one charged with a petty offense is entitled to a trial by jury. District of Columbia v. Clawans (300 U. S. 617, 81 L. Ed. 843, 57 Sup. Ct. 660, affg. 66 App. D. C. 11, 84 Fed. (2d) 265).

Writs of Error

Writ of error will not lie to review order denying motion to quash an information. Capital Trac. Co. v. United States (34 App. D. C. 591).

Writs of error to the police court are not granted to review formal defects in pleading merely. Jefferson v. District of Columbia (40 App. D. C. 381).

Section relating to appeals from Municipal Court was based on Act Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. 1312, ch. 125, § 12 and is now obsolete. See D. C. Code, sections 11–771, 11–772.

NOTES PRIOR TO REPEAL

NOTES TO DECISIONS

In General

Findings may not be challenged on appeal, evidence having been introduced after motion for favorable findings. Breuninger v. Lightbown (60 App. D. C. 297, 53 Fed. (2d) 551).

By the 1921 act, appeals from the Municipal Court to the Supreme Court were abolished, the authority to issue the statutory writ of certiorari denied, and review by the Court of Appeals through writ of error provided. United States ex rel. Eure v. Borden (65 App. D. C. 84, 80 Fed. (2d) 527).

Cost Bond

Cost bond should not be required for writ of error to municipal court. George v. Capital Trac. Co. (54 App. D. C. 144, 295 Fed. 965).

Moot Questions

The question of refusal to require the posting of a supersedeas bond pending appeal has become moot because even if a supersedeas bond had been posted, it would have expired by its own terms upon the reversal of the judgment which the bond superseded. Daime v. Price (D. C. Mun. App. 1950, 71 A. 2d 611).

Party Aggrieved

Administrator may appeal as a "party aggrieved." Webb v. Lohnes (68 App. D. C. 310, 96 Fed. (2d) 582).

Power of District Court

Whether interrogatories served on a garnishee are proper or the answers thereto sufficient are questions which in their determination call for the exercise of judicial discretion, and the exercise of that discretion can be reviewed in the manner provided by law, but the District Court is not empowered to require the judges of the municipal court to decide either question, one way or the other. Security Savings & Commercial Bank v. Aukam, 1941 (120 F. 2d 722, 74 App. D. C. 155).

Scope of Review

The error now asserted is not plain and was not brought to court's attention until after court had considered and decided the case. Fairness both to appellees and to court's obligation to other litigants requires that court should not permit this appeal, after it has been presented and lost on one basis, to be presented again on an opposite basis. Schooler v. Schooler (C. A., D. C. 1948, 173 A. 2d 299, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 147).

§ 17–105 [18: 30]. Repealed. May 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 110, ch. 139, § 142.

Section relating to appeals from Juvenile Court was based on Act Mar. 19, 1906, 34 Stat. 77, ch. 960, § 22 and is now obsolete. See D. C. Code, sections 11–771, 11–772.

18–110. Descent through alien ancestor no bar.

18–111. When lands escheat.

§ 18–101 [25: 231]. Course of descents generally.

On the death of any person seized of an estate in fee simple in lands, tenements, or hereditaments in the District of Columbia, and intestate thereof, the same shall descend in fee simple to such person's kindred in the following order, namely:

First. To his child or children and their descendants, if any, equally.

Second. If there be no child or descendant of a child, then equally to the father and mother of the intestate, or the whole to the sole surviving parent.

Third. If there be no father or mother, then to the brothers and sisters of the intestate, and their descendants equally.

Fourth. If there be no brother or sister, or descendant from a brother or sister, then the whole shall go to the widow or widower of the intestate.

Fifth. If none such, then one moiety of the estate shall go to the paternal, the other to the maternal kindred of the intestate in the following order:

Sixth. First to the grandfather and grandmother equally, but if one be dead the entire moiety to the sole surviving grandparent.

Seventh. If none, then to the uncles and aunts of the intestate, and their descendants equally.

Eighth. If none such, then to the great-grandfathers and great-grandmothers, in the same manner prescribed for grandfather and grandmother in subdivision 6.

Ninth. If none, then to the brothers and sisters of the grandfathers and grandmothers, and their descendants equally.

Tenth. And so on in other cases, without end, passing to the nearest lineal ancestors and the descendants of such ancestors.

Eleventh. If there be no paternal kindred, the whole shall go to the maternal kindred; and if there be no maternal kindred, the whole shall go to the paternal kindred. If there be neither maternal nor paternal kindred, the whole shall go to the kindred of the husband or wife of the intestate in the like course as if such husband or wife had died entitled to the estate; and if the intestate has had more husbands or wives than one, and all have died before such intestate, then the estate shall be equally divided among the kindred of the several husbands or wives in equal degree equally. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1342, ch. 854, § 940; Mar. 6, 1935, 49 Stat. 39, ch. 28, § 3 (A).)

COMPILER'S NOTE

Section 3 B of the 1935 act repealed §§ 941–951 of the 1901 act (D. C. Code, 1929 ed., title 25, §§ 232–242).

AMENDMENT

Section 3 (A) of the 1935 act amended § 940 of the 1901 act to read as set out above.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

AGREEMENTS BETWEEN KIN

Where deceased's cousins entered into agreement admitting that other claimants were deceased's uncle and aunt and providing for distribution of deceased's estate but in plenary proceedings to determine heirship cousins refused to execute answer admitting such relationship, and instead filed answer which denied such relationship and stated that the cousins were deceased's sole heirs, after which the alleged uncle and aunt filed answer claiming to be deceased's sole heirs, in cousin's action for declaratory relief, evidence sustained finding that the cousins had not repudiated the agreement and justified determination that the agreement was enforceable. Wueger v. Braun, 1942 (132 F. 2d 25, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 50).

ANCESTRAL PROPERTY

Real estate devised to testatrix by her grandmother was ancestral property, and would have descended to her surviving brother as her sole heir at law in the absence of a will under the prior law. Thomas v. Young (57 App. D. C. 282, 22 Fed. (2d) 588).

CONSTRUCTION OF WILLS

Where will devised the residue consisting of personal property to heirs at law and next of kin in accordance with existing laws of tht District, the surviving next of kin, who were first cousins, are entitled to take all the personalty as against second cousins who would have been heirs had realty been devised. Binford v. Diller (C. A., D. C. 1949, 177 F. 2d 731; 85 U. S. App. D. C. 365).

EVIDENCE

To establish pedigree there must be some competent evidence of relationship between himself and declarants. Welch v. Lynch (30 App. D. C. 122).

PER STIRPES OR PER CAPITA

Where property descends to descendants of the maternal grandfather, the distribution is per stirpes of the grandfather and not per capita. McManus v. Lynch (28 App. D. C. 381).

§ 18–102 [25: 243]. Trust estates.

Whenever a trustee is seized of the naked legal estate in any lands, tenements, or hereditaments in fee simple, and shall die intestate thereof, the said legal estate shall be deemed to have descended to such person or persons as would inherit the beneficial estate if the same were vested in him according to the provisions aforesaid. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1343, ch. 854, § 952.)

§ 18–103 [25: 244]. Heirs, other than children of intestate and their descendants, must be such at time of death of ancestor.

No right in the inheritance shall accrue to or vest in any person other than the children of the intestate and their descendants, unless such person is in being and capable in law to take as heir at the time of the intestate's death; but any child or descendant of the intestate born after the death of the intestate shall have the same right of inheritance as if born before his death. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1343, ch. 854, § 953.)

CROSS REFERENCE

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CONSTRUCTION

The term "in being" must be construed to refer to a child born prior to the death of the intestate and is distinguished from "not in being" referring to an unborn child. The applicability of this statute is further negated by the provision of § 18–101 to the facts of this case. Blethyn v. Bidder (D. C., D. C. 1948, 80 F. Supp. 962).

§ 18–104 [25: 245]. Whole- and half-blood take equally.

In no case shall there be any distinction between the kindred of the whole and the half-blood. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1343, ch. 854, § 954; Mar. 6. 1935, 49 Stat. 40, ch. 28, § 4.)

AMENDMENT

The superseded 1901 act read as follows: "There shall be no distinction between brothers and sisters of the whole- or the half-blood, all being descendants of the same father, where the estate descended on the part of the father, nor between brothers and sisters of the whole- or the half-blood, all being descendants of the same mother, where the estate descended on the part of the mother."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CONSTRUCTION

The court construed this section, providing that in "no case shall there be any distinction between kindred of the whole and half blood" as meaning exactly what it says. Consequently, the parties were held to have the same legal status in the distribution of the estate. Blethyn v. Bidder (D. C. D. C. 1948, 80 F. Supp. 962).

§ 18–105 [25: 246]. Representation.

Whenever those entitled to share in the estate in fee simple in lands, tenements, or hereditaments in the District of Columbia, of an intestate, are all in the same degree of kindred to the intestate, they shall take per capita or by persons; and, where a part of them are dead and a part living, the issue of those dead shall take per stirpes or by stocks the shares of their deceased parents. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1343, ch. 854, § 955; Mar. 6, 1935, 49 Stat. 40, ch. 28, § 5.)

AMENDMENT

The superseded section of the 1901 act read as follows: "If in the descending or collateral line any father or mother be dead, leaving a child or children, such child or children shall, by representation, be considered in the same degree as the father or mother would have been if living, and shall have the same share of the estate as the father or mother if living would have been entitled to, and no more; and in such case, when there are more children than one, the share aforesaid shall be equally divided among such children."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

TIME OF DETERMINATION

Where, at time will was made, testatrix's heirs at law consisted of one brother and nine nieces and nephews, and will gave realty to testatrix's brother for life and after death of brother "to such persons as may at the time of the death of my said brother be my heirs at law", the testatrix's heirs were to be determined as of date of death of her brother rather than at the time of death of testatrix. Costello v. Costello (App. D. C. 1945, 149 F. 2d 379, certiorari denied 66 S. Ct. 41, 326 U. S. 733, 90 L. Ed. 436).

Where testator bequeathed residuary estate to widow for life with remainder to his son and with direction that, if son should die without leaving lawful issue, the whole of estate after death of widow should pass to testator's heirs at law, and the son predeceased the widow, the heirs of testator were to be ascertained as of date of death of life tenant, and therefore method of distribution among the heirs was to be determined by this section in effect at that time rather than by Code of Laws 1901, § 955 in effect at time of testator's death. Central Dispensary and Emergency Hospital v. Saunders (165 F. 2d 626, 83 U. S. App. D. C. 52).

If any man shall have a child or children by any woman whom he shall afterwards marry, such child or children, if acknowledged by the man, shall, in virtue of such marriage and acknowledgment, be legitimated and capable in law of inheriting and transmitting heritable property as if born in wedlock. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1344, ch. 854, § 957.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CHILDREN BORN OUT OF WEDLOCK

Child born out of wedlock legitimated under this section. Thomas v. Murphy (71 App. D. C. 69, 107 Fed. (2d) 268).

There was no evidence introduced before the court that the father had married either of the women and acknowledged the children as his own, both of which acts, marriage and acknowledgment, are necessary to legitimatize children in this jurisdiction under the Code. Blethyn v. Bidder (D. C. D. C. 1948, 80 F. Supp. 962).

The illegitimate child or children of any female and the issue of such illegitimate child or children shall be capable in law of taking real estate by inheritance from their mother, or from each other, or from the descendants of each other, as the case may be: Provided, That such illegitimate child or children, or the issue of such illegitimate child or children, shall not take by descent any interest in the real estate of the mother when such mother is mentally incapacitated from making a will, and shall remain so mentally incapacitated until her death; and where such illegitimate child or children shall die leaving no descendants or brothers or sisters, or the descendants of such brothers or sisters, then and in that case the mother of such illegitimate child or children, if living, shall be entitled as heir to the real estate of such illegitimate child or children, and if the mother be dead, the heirs of the mother shall take in like manner as if such illegitimate child or children had been born in lawful wedlock. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1344, ch. 854, § 958; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 537, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The 1902 amendment added the proviso from the beginning and ending with the words "until her death."

CROSS REFERENCE

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CONSTRUCTION

The Code materially liberalized the status of bastards to inherit and other pertinent sections of the Code must be interpreted in the light of the obvious Congressional intent to liberalize the common law status of illegitimate children. Blethyn v. Bidder (D. C. D. C. 1948, 80 F. Supp. 962).

A decision of the Maryland court, though not binding in this jurisdiction, should be given great weight in interpreting a statute of the District of Columbia which was presumably derived from the same source as the Maryland statute. Wilson v. Charlent (D. C. D. C. 1949, 81 F. Supp. 690).

Any child or children of an intestate, or their issue, who may have received from the intestate any real estate by way of advancement may elect to come into partition with his other heirs on bringing such advancement, or the value thereof at the time such advancement was received, into hotchpot with the estate descended; but such child or children, or their issue, shall not be entitled to claim a share by descent without bringing such advancement, or the value thereof as aforesaid, into the common stock or hotchpot, if there be another child or children not equally provided for: Provided, That if any child or children or descendant shall have been advanced by the intestate by settlement or portion of personalty, which shall not be equalized under the provisions of section 18–707, such advance shall be treated as real estate for the purposes of this section. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1344, ch. 854, § 959; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 537, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The 1902 amendment struck out the word "unprovided" and inserted in lieu thereof the words "not equally provided."

§ 18–109 [25: 250]. Party committing murder or manslaughter takes no interest in estate of deceased—Descent of affected property—Bona fide purchasers.

No person who shall be convicted of the felonious homicide of another, either by way of murder or manslaughter, shall take any estate or interest of any kind whatsoever in any kind of property whatsoever from that other by way of inheritance, distribution, devise, or bequest, or shall take any remainder, reversion, or executory interest dependent upon the death of that other; and the estate or interest or property to which the person so convicted would have succeeded or would have taken in any way from or after the death of the person so killed by him shall go as if the person so convicted had died before the person whom he shall be convicted of killing. And every policy of insurance procured, directly or indirectly, by the person so convicted for his own benefit or payable to him upon the life of the person so killed shall be void. This section shall not affect the rights of bona fide purchasers of any such property for value without notice. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1344, ch. 854, § 961.)

In making title by descent it shall be no bar to a party claiming as heir that any ancestor, whether living or dead, through whom he derives his descent from the intestate is or has been an alien. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1344, ch. 854, § 960.)

Any lands in the District of Columbia of which any person shall die seized in fee simple intestate, without any heir capable of inheriting, shall escheat to the United States. (Comp. Stat. D. C., p. 497, § 38; Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1344, ch. 854, § 962; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 537, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The superseded 1901 act read as follows: "Any lands within the District of Columbia of which any person has died or shall hereafter die seized in fee simple, without any heir of the whole-blood who could have inherited if he had been a citizen of the United States, or without leaving any relation of the half-blood within two degrees, that is, first cousins as the same are reckoned by the common law, shall escheat to the United States."

Chapter 2.—DOWER AND CURTESY RIGHTS

Sec.

18–201. Dower—Right of quarantine—"Dower" defined.
18–202. Dower in equitable titles.
18–203. Forfeiture of dower by desertion and adultery of wife.

18–205. Jointure after marriage—Election to take dower.
18–206. Legal jointure.
18–207. Dower not to be defeated by default or fraudulent judgment against husband—Fraudulent assignment by guardian of heir.
18–208. Assignment by guardian.
18–209. Restoration to dower upon eviction from jointure.
18–210. Devise in lieu of dower.
18–211. Renunciation of devises and bequests—Form—Limitation—Interest to be taken by widow or widower upon such renunciation.
18–212. Devise of both realty and personalty as bar.
18–213. Devise of either realty or personalty as bar.
18–214. Not barred when nothing passed by the devise.
18–215. Estate by the curtesy.

§ 18–201 [14: 28]. Dower—Right of quarantine—"Dower" defined.

A widow, after the death of her husband, incontinent, and without any difficulty, shall have her marriage and her inheritance and shall give nothing for her dower, her marriage, or her inheritance, which her husband and she held the day of the death of her husband, and she shall tarry in the chief house of her husband by forty days after the death of her husband, within which days her dower shall be assigned her (if it were not assigned her before) or that the house be a castle; and if she depart from the castle, then a competent house shall be forthwith provided for her, in the which she may honestly dwell, until her dower be to her assigned, as it is aforesaid; and she shall have in the meantime her reasonable estovers of the common; and for her dower shall be assigned unto her the third part of all the lands of her husband, which were his during coverture, except she were endowed of less at the church door. (9 Henry 3, ch. 7, § 1, 1225; Kilty's Rept., p. 205; Alex. Brit. Stat., p. 1; Comp. Stat. D. C., p. 36, § 164.)

Compiler's Note

This section sets forth a British statute continued in force by virtue of the act of March 3, 1901 (31 Stat. 1189, ch. 854, § 1). It was obviously impossible to modernize the language of this statute.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Decisions Under Prior Law

Appellant was entitled to a decree declaring a deed of trust to be without legal effect or operation to bar her of her right to dower in the premises therein mentioned and described; and her right and title to dower should, in all respects, be and remain as if said appellant had never joined in said deed; and she was entitled to an assignment of dower, and to an account for rents and profits for the time they have been wrongfully withheld from her. Follansbee v. Follansbee (1 App. D. C. 326).

When dower was not specifically assigned, the widow of the former owner and mother of the children would not be a proper party. Baltimore & P. R. Co. v. Taylor (6 App. D. C. 259).

Inchoate right of dower could not be broader than the estate of the husband upon which it depended. Sis v. Boarman (11 App. D. C. 116).

A widow being in possession of the only piece of property in which her dower could be assigned, her right thereto ought to confer upon her such continuing right of possession as to bar ejectment by the heirs at law, whose duty it was to make the proper assignment. Wilkes v. Wilkes (18 App. D. C. 90).

Common Law Rule

At common law the wife had no dower in an equity of redemption. Follansbee v. Follansbee (1 App. D. C. 326).

Refusal to Release Dower

Equity would not at instance of vendee decree specific performance of a contract for the sale of land when the wife of the vendor refused to relinquish her right of dower to the vendor. Barbour v. Hickey (2 App. D. C. 207, 24 L. R. A. 763).

Where wife of vendor is entitled to dower in the lands, conveyance of good title can not be made without her consent, and where she refuses to release her dower, equity will not enforce specific performance of husband's contract to sell. Reilly v. Cullinane (53 App. D. C. 17, 287 Fed. 994).

§ 18–203 [14: 30]. Forfeiture of dower by desertion and adultery of wife.

If a wife willingly leave her husband, and go away, and continue with her advouterer, she shall be barred forever of action to demand her dower, that she ought to have of her husband's lands, if she be convict thereupon, except that her husband willingly, and without coertion reconcile her, and suffer her to dwell with him; in which case she shall be restored to her action. (13 Edw. I, ch. 34, § 4, 1285; Kilty's Rept., p. 213; Alex. Brit. Stat., p. 138; Comp. Stat. D. C., p. 36, § 165.)

§ 18–207 [14: 34]. Dower not to be defeated by default or fraudulent judgment against husband—Fraudulent assignment by guardian of heir.

In case where the husband, being impleaded for land, giveth up the land demanded unto his adversary by covin; after the death of the husband, the justices shall award the wife her dower, if it be demanded. In case the husband loseth the land by default, if the wife, after the death of her husband, demandeth her dower, and if it be alledged, that her husband lost the land, by judgment, and it be found that it was by default, the tenant must answer; then it behoveth the tenant to answer further, and to shew that he had right, and hath in the aforesaid land, according to the form of the writ that the tenant before purchased against the husband. And if he can shew that the husband of such wife had no right in the lands, nor any other but he that holdeth them, the tenant shall go quit, and the wife shall recover nothing of her dower; which thing if he can not shew, the wife shall recover her dower. Where it chanceth that a woman not having right to demand dower, the heir being within age, doth purchase a writ of dower against a gardian, and the gardian endoweth the woman by favour, or maketh default, or by collusion defendeth the plea so faintly, whereby the woman is awarded her dower in prejudice of the heir; it is provided, that the heir, when he cometh to full age, shall have an action to demand the seisin of his ancestor against such a woman, like as he should have against any other deforceor; yet so, that the woman shall have her exception saved against the demandant, to shew that she had right to her dower, which if she can shew, she shall go quit and retain her dower, and the heir shall be grievously amerced, according to the discretion of the justices; and if not, the heir shall recover his demand, &c. In like manner the woman shall be aided, if the heir or any other do implead her for her dower, or if she lose her dower by default, in which case the default shall not be so prejudicial to her, but that she shall recover her dower, if she have right thereto. (13 Edw. 1, ch. 4, 1285; Kilty's Rept., p. 212; Alex. Brit. Stat., p. 106; Comp. Stat. D. C., p. 37, § 169.)

§ 18–208 [14: 35]. Assignment by guardian.

A writ of admeasurement of dower shall be granted to a gardian; neither shall the heir, when he cometh to full age, be barred by the suit of such a gardian, that sueth against the tenant in dower feignedly, and by collusion, but that he may admeasure the dower after, as it ought to be admeasured by the law. (13 Edw. 1, ch. 7, 1285; Kilty's Rept., p. 212; Alex. Brit. Stat., p. 111; Comp. Stat. D. C., p. 38, § 170.)

If any woman be lawfully expulsed or evicted from her jointer, or from any part thereof, without any fraud or covin, by lawful entry, action, or by discontinuance of her husband, then every such woman shall be endowed of as much of the residue of her husband's tenements or hereditaments, whereof she was before dowable, as the same lands and tenements so evicted and expulsed shall amount or extend unto. (27 Henry 8, ch. 10, § 7, 1535; Kilty's Rept., p. 231; Alex. Brit. Stat., p. 296; Comp. Stat. D. C., p. 39, § 173.)

§ 18–210 [14: 37]. Devise in lieu of dower.

Every devise of land or of any estate therein, or bequest of personal estate to the wife of the testator, shall be construed to be intended in bar of her dower in lands or share of the personal estate, respectively, unless it be otherwise expressed in the will. (Mar. 3, 1901. 31 Stat. 1376, ch. 854, § 1172.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

COMMON LAW

Under common law existing in Maryland prior to creation of District of Columbia, a husband was not permitted to deprive his wife of her reasonable share of his estate, either directly or indirectly, and a bequest to wife was not considered in lieu of her legal interest, but instead she took both. Mead v. Phillips, 1943 (135 F. 2d 819, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 365, 147 A. L. R. 322).

CONSTRUCTION

The statutory provision for widows in District of Columbia constitutes a recognition and, in part, a restatement of her rights at common law, and it is not to be regarded as an abrogation of common law, but instead, to extent that § 18–210 fails to cover the entire subject, the common law is to be looked to for amplification and definition. Mead v. Phillips, 1943 (135 F. 2d 819, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 365, 147 A. L. R. 322)

PURPOSE

This section and § 18–211 requiring widow to elect between husband's will and her legal interests were enacted to avoid result reached by early cases permitting widow to take both under the will and her legal interest, but it was not their purpose to deprive a widow of her common-law rights. Mead v. Phillips, 1943 (135 F. 2d 819, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 365, 147 A. L. R. 322).

§ 18–211 [14: 38]. Renunciation of devises and bequests—Form—Limitation—Interest to be taken by widow or widower upon such renunciation.

A widow shall be barred of her right of dower in the land and share in the personal estate by any such devise or bequest unless within six months after administration may be granted on her husband's estate she shall file in the probate court a written renunciation to the following effect: "I, A. B., widow of ———, late of ———, deceased, do hereby renounce and quit all claim to any devise or bequest made to me by the last will of my husband exhibited and proved according to law; and I elect to take in lieu thereof my dower and legal share of the estate of my said husband." If, during said period of six months, a suit should be instituted to construe the will of her husband, the period of six months for the filing of such renunciation shall commence to run from the date when such suit shall be finally determined, by appeal or otherwise.

By renouncing all claim to any and all devises and bequests, made to her by the will of her husband, she shall be entitled, in addition to her dower, to the distributive share of his personal property, which she would have taken had he died intestate, and, except in cases of valid antenuptial or postnuptial agreements, this provision for the wife shall apply with the effect (without formal renunciation) to cases where the husband has made no devise or bequest to his wife.

By renouncing, within the period above prescribed, all claim to any and all devises or bequests, made to him by the will of his wife, the husband shall be entitled to the distributive share in her personal property which he would have taken had she died intestate, and, except in cases of valid antenuptial or postnuptial agreements, this provision for the husband shall apply with like effect (without formal renunciation) to cases where the wife has made no devise or bequest to her husband. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1376, ch. 854, § 1173; Apr. 19, 1920, 41 Stat. 567, ch. 153.)

AMENDMENT

The 1920 amendment added the last sentence in the first paragraph, deleted, after the words "shall be entitled" in the second paragraph, the words "To one third part of the personal estate of her husband which shall remain after payment of his just debts and claims against him, and no more," and added, after the words "shall be entitled" aforesaid, the rest of the section.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

ACCEPTANCE OF TERMS OF WILL

When widow was aware of her rights within the six-months' period, and did not so renounce them, for the reason that she accepted an annuity instead of her right of dower, she could not make an election later for the purpose of getting refund of income tax. Semmes v. United States ((Ct. Cls.), 6 Fed. Supp. 119).

A widow may not defeat the general purpose of the will by a sale of the property and a division of its proceeds four years after she has elected, by acquiescence and by conduct, to take the provision the will makes for her. Evans v. Evans (60 App. D. C. 371, 55 Fed. (2d) 533).

COMMON LAW

Under common law existing in Maryland prior to creation of District of Columbia, a husband was not permitted to deprive his wife of her reasonable share of his estate, either directly or indirectly, and a bequest to wife was not considered in lieu of her legal interest, but instead she took both. Mead v. Phillips, 1943 (135 F. 2d 819, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 365, 147 A. L. R. 322).

COMMON-LAW RIGHTS

The common-law rights of widow, as restated and recognized in this section barring widow's common-law rights in husband's estate unless within time specified she files written renunciation of bequests contained in her husband's will, remain intact until a valid election has been made by her, or in her behalf, against those interests. Mead v. Phillips, 1943 (135 F. 2d 819, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 365, 147 A. L. R. 322).

CONSTRUCTION

The statutory requirement of an election by widow between her husband's will and her common-law rights is not a "privilege" bestowed by this section but is a "limitation" upon the common-law rights of the widow and must be so construed. Mead v. Phillips, 1943 (135 F. 2d 819, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 365, 147 A. L. R. 322).

This section barring widow's common-law rights in husband's estate unless within specified time she files written renunciation of bequest contained in her husband's will is not a "statute of limitations". Mead v. Phillips, 1943 (135 F. 2d 819, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 365, 147 A. L. R. 322).

The statutory provision for widows in District of Columbia constitutes a recognition and, in part, a restatement of her rights at common law, and it is not to be regarded as an abrogation of common law, but instead, to extent that sections 18–210 et seq. fail to cover the entire subject, the common law is to be looked to for amplification and definition. Mead v. Phillips, 1943 (135 F. 2d 819, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 365, 147 A. L. R. 322).

Defective Bequest

If husband's bequest in favor of widow is defective, there is no requirement that widow make an election. Mead v. Phillips, 1943 (135 F. 2d 819, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 365, 147 A. L. R. 322).

Defective Gift

Addition of name of depositor's brother to bank account under circumstances not amounting to a gift and for purpose of permitting brother to obtain money in event of depositor's death was ineffective as amounting to an attempted testamentary disposition without compliance with testamentary requirements and as evading this section permitting widow to claim distributive share of personal estate of husband when will makes no devise in her favor. Gibson v. Industrial Bank of Washington (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 36 A. 2d 62).

Deprivation of Rights

The common-law rights of dower in land and of "thirds" in personal property depended, not alone on the welfare of the widow, but of her children as well, and therefore to interpret a statutory limitation on the common-law rights in such manner as to cut them off arbitrarily, upon death of an incompetent widow, would be to disregard one of the two primary purposes of this section. Mead v. Phillips, 1943 (135 F. 2d 819, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 365, 147 A. L. R. 322).

Election by Court

Upon request, an equity court can act on behalf of, and in interest of, an insane widow in making election between widow's common-law rights and bequest in her husband's will. Mead v. Phillips, 1943 (135 F. 2d 819, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 365, 147 A. L. R. 322).

An incompetent widow cannot, personally, make an election to renounce husband's will, but court of competent jurisdiction can exercise the power, in her behalf, during statutory period or thereafter, prior to her death. Mead v. Phillips, 1943 (135 F. 2d 819, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 365, 147 A. L. R. 322).

Where widow's privilege of renouncing bequest contained in husband's will is not exercised on behalf of incompetent widow during her lifetime and matter is brought to attention of equity court, it is court's duty to make election, weighing, in doing so, the various considerations including provision which was made for care and comfort of widow, prior to her death, and the court's determination should be made as of time when widow was living, in light of circumstances then existing. Mead v. Phillips, 1943 (135 F. 2d 819, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 365, 147 A. L. R. 322).

Insane or Incompetent Widow

Where widow was incompetent and unable to exercise privilege of renouncing bequest contained in her husband's will, if determination was not made of rights of the widow and of her estate, the husband's will would be inoperative as to her and his estate would be distributed, as to her, in the same manner as if he had died intestate. Mead v. Phillips, 1943 (135 F. 2d 819, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 365, 147 A. L. R. 322).

Where widow is incompetent, the welfare of widow is not sole consideration in determining whether bequest contained in her husband's will should be renounced on behalf of widow, but welfare of her heirs or other dependents may be considered. Mead v. Phillips, 1943 (135 F. 2d 819, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 365, 147 A. L. R. 322).

The policy of District of Columbia in regard to application to insane widow of this section barring widow of common-law rights in husband's estate unless within time specified she files a renunciation of bequest in husband's will is clearly manifested in section 12–201 governing limitation of actions, which contains a blanket exemption in favor of infants and insane persons. Mead v. Phillips, 1943 (135 F. 2d 819, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 365, 147 A. L. R. 322).

Where widow's privilege of renouncing bequest contained in husband's will was not exercised on behalf of incompetent widow during her lifetime, complaint of administratrix of widow's estate to recover widow's share of husband's estate and to recover widow's property and damages from trustee of the incompetent widow stated a cause of action. Mead v. Phillips, 1943 (135 F. 2d 819, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 365, 147 A. L. R. 322).

Laches

Where trustee of insane widow was also beneficiary and representative of the husband's estate, trustee's "laches" in protecting interests of widow could not deprive equity court of power to act in widow's interest in making an election between widow's common-law rights and bequest contained in her husband's will. Mead v. Phillips, 1943 (135 F. 2d 819, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 365, 147 A. L. R. 322).

Where an equity court acts in interest of an insane widow in determining whether bequest in husband's will should be renounced, bad faith or laches of heirs or representatives may become proper considerations, along with others, to guide court, but such considerations provide no basis for concluding that an equity court has no power to act in interest of an insane widow or that inaction of her trustee constitutes an election solely by reason of lapse of time. Mead v. Phillips, 1943 (135 F. 2d 819, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 365, 147 A. L. R. 322).

Petition, Right to

If heirs or representatives of insane widow delay in petitioning equity court to act on behalf of insane widow in making an election between widow's common-law rights and bequest in husband's will, those interested in the husband's estate can petition the court to act. Mead v. Phillips, 1943 (135 F. 2d 819, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 365, 147 A. L. R. 322).

Presumptions

The fact that money was expended under husband's will for care and comfort of his insane widow did not authorize a presumption that the widow had elected to abide by the provisions of her husband's will. Mead v. Phillips, 1943 (135 F. 2d 819, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 365, 147 A. L. R. 322).

Purpose

The purpose of this section barring widow's common-law rights in husband's estate unless within time specified she files written renunciation of bequest contained in husband's will is that renunciation shall constitute an "election to reject", and a failure to renounce shall constitute an "election to accept" the offer. Mead v. Phillips, 1943 (135 F. 2d 819, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 365, 147 A. L. R. 322).

The widow's privilege of renouncing bequest contained in her husband's will and electing to enjoy her dower or statutory rights is intended to permit her to decide whether her interests will be better served by another arrangement. Mead v. Phillips, 1943 (135 F. 2d 819, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 365, 147 A. L. R. 322).

This section and § 18–210 requiring widow to elect between husband's will and her legal interests were enacted to avoid result reached by early cases permitting widow to take both under the will and her legal interest, but it was not their purpose to deprive a widow of her common-law rights. Mead v. Phillips, 1943 (135 F. 2d 819, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 365, 147 A. L. R. 322).

Renunciation Required

A widow must file a renunciation of her rights under the will in order to take under the law; inadequate provisions under the will do not relieve her of this duty. Cahill v. Eberly (59 App. D. C. 228, 38 Fed. (2d) 539).

Mere oral declarations privately made by the widow can not take the place of a written renunciation. Cahill v. Eberly (59 App. D. C. 228, 38 Fed. (2d) 539).

Representative of Widow

A widow's representative cannot act in her behalf to make renunciation of husband's will, except with permission of court, or unless a statute confers the power. Mead v. Phillips, 1943 (135 F. 2d 819, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 365, 147 A. L. R. 322).

Where guardian ad litem of incompetent widow made no suggestion concerning an election in widow's behalf to renounce bequest in husband's will, it was duty of trustee to request promptly a determination by equity court of the widow's interest and where trustee had failed to act it became the duty of the widow's representative to request proper action. Mead v. Phillips, 1943 (135 F. 2d 819, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 365, 147 A. L. R. 322).

Where widow was incompetent, guardian ad litem made no suggestion concerning an election in widow's behalf to renounce bequest contained in her husband's will and widow's trustee who was also beneficiary and representative of the husband's estate failed to act for protection of interests of widow, court of equity could exercise power of renunciation after expiration of statutory period and after widow's death. Mead v. Phillips, 1943 (135 F. 2d 819, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 365, 147 A. L. R. 322).

§ 18–212 [14: 39]. Devise of both realty and personalty as bar.

If the will of the husband devise and bequeath a part of both real and personal estate to the wife, she shall renounce the whole or be otherwise barred of her right to both real and personal estate. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1377, ch. 854, § 1174.)

CROSS REFERENCE

See § 18–214 and notes.

§ 18–213 [14: 40]. Devise of either realty or personalty as bar.

If the will devise only a part of the real estate or bequeath only a part of the personal estate, the devise or bequest shall bar her of only the real or personal estate, as the case may require: Provided, nevertheless, That if the devise of either real or personal estate, or of both, shall be expressly in lieu of her legal share of one or both she shall accordingly be barred, unless she renounce as aforesaid. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1377, ch. 854, § 1175.)

CROSS REFERENCE

See § 18–214 and notes.

§ 18–214 [14: 41]. Not barred when nothing passed by the devise.

If, in effect, nothing shall pass by such devise she shall not be thereby barred, whether she shall or shall not renounce as aforesaid, it being the intent hereof that a widow accepting or abiding by a devise in lieu of her legal right shall be considered a purchaser with a fair consideration. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1377, ch. 854, § 1176.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CONSTRUCTION OF TERMS

"An examination of section 1176 (this section) and the four sections immediately preceding it shows that devises and bequests were used interchangeably in those sections. * * * Section 1176 (this section) therefore applies equally to devises and bequests." Jordan v. American Security & Trust Co. (38 App. D. C. 391).

DEFECTIVE BEQUEST

If husband's bequest in favor of widow is defective, there is no requirement that widow make an election. Mead v. Phillips, 1943 (135 F. 2d 819, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 365, 147 A. L. R. 322).

VALUE OF DEVISE

Where a will, bequeathing $10 to the wife of the testator, falsely states that he has previously satisfactorily provided for her out of his estate, the widow need not file a renunciation of the bequest, and she is entitled to one-half rather than one-third of the personalty. Jordan v. American Security & Trust Co. (38 App. D. C. 391).

As the statutes require the widow to file a renunciation of her rights under the will, this section does not relieve her of that obligation even though the value does not equal the value of her rights under the law. Cahill v. Eberly (59 App. D. C. 228, 38 Fed. (2d) 539).

§ 18–215 [14: 42]. Estate by the curtesy.

On the death of any married woman owning real estate in fee simple and intestate thereof, if there has been a child born of the marriage capable of inheriting said property, the husband surviving her shall be entitled to an estate by the curtesy therein, whether the wife's estate be legal or equitable and whether the wife's seizin be in deed or in law only. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1375, ch. 854, § 1159.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Estate by the curtesy is not exempt from liability for the debts of the tenant by the curtesy. Uhler v. Adams (1 App. D. C. 392).

When married woman, who has had issue by her husband, dies without disposing of her real estate by deed or will, the surviving husband is entitled at common law to his tenancy by curtesy. Uhler v. Adams (1 App. D. C. 392).

When remainder in fee after a life estate is limited to several as tenants in common, and one of them is a married woman, and the precedent estate terminated during the marriage, the husband's right of curtesy will attach on death of the wife. Rhodes v. Robie (9 App. D. C. 305).

A feme covert can devise the real estate acquired from her husband, free from any tenancy by curtesy in the husband. Zeust v. Staffan (16 App. D. C. 141).

ATTACHING OF ESTATE

Upon death of married woman leaving issue, and intestate, the husband's initiate estate as tenant by the curtesy becomes consummate, "which entitled him to claim the possession at her death, and to maintain an action therefor, to the exclusion of her heirs at law during his life." Welch v. Lynch (30 App. D. C. 122), citing Frey v. Allen (9 App. D. C. 400).

EFFECT OF DEVISE

A married woman's devise of "all my property" carries the absolute estate freed of any right of the husband as tenant by the curtesy. Balster v. Cadick (29 App. D. C. 405).

Devise to husband held in lieu of curtesy. Gibson v. Gibson (53 App. D. C. 380, 292 Fed. 657).

Chapter 3.—ASSETS OF ESTATE

Sec.
18–301. Assets to be included in inventory and administered.
18–302. Discharge or bequest of debt or demand not valid against creditors—Included as asset.
18–303. Claims of testator against executor not discharged — Included as assets — Liability of surety.
18–304. Failure of executor to include claims of testator against executor in inventory—Remedy.
18–305. Debt due by administrator or collector.

§ 18–301 [29: 161]. Assets to be included in inventory and administered.

Leases for years, estates for the life of another person or other persons, and all goods, wares, merchandise, utensils, furniture, things annexed to the freehold which may be removed without prejudice thereto, the growing crop on the land of the deceased, and every other species of personal property, not including the clothing of the widow and minor children of the deceased and personal ornaments suitable to their station, and not including the property exempted by section 18–406, shall be included in the inventory, and, together with the proceeds of any real estate sold for the payment of debts, shall be considered assets to be administered by an executor or administrator. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1240, ch. 854, § 317; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 529, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The 1902 amendment inserted after the word "station" the words "and not including the property exempted by section 314." The D. C. Code, 1901 Edit., § 314 is compiled herein as § 18–406.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

EFFECT OF SOLVENCY

Where it is substantially stated in the bill that decedent's estate will be solvent, plaintiff's remedy may best be sought in the probate court rather than in court of equity. Street v. Stubblefield (57 App. D. C. 276, 20 Fed. (2d) 1017).

GIFTS CAUSA MORTIS

Money paid defendant by his brother shortly before the latter's death, at a time when his illness was expected to result in death at any time, was a valid gift causa mortis, where decedent was of sound mind at the time of the gift, the defendant cared for him during his last illness and paid the final expenses, and there was sufficient personalty remaining to satisfy the widow's claim. Railey v. Railey ((D. C.-D. C.), 30 Fed. Supp. 121).

OPTION TO PURCHASE REAL ESTATE

Ninety-nine-year lease, with option to purchase, is personalty. Bean v. Reynolds (15 App. D. C. 125).

RENTS

If there is enough personalty to pay debts, the rents accruing after death of testator need not be used. Brosnan v. Fox (52 App. D. C. 143, 284 Fed. 923).

§ 18–302 [29: 162]. Discharge or bequest of debt or demand not valid against creditors—Included as asset.

The discharge or bequest, in a will, of any debt or demand of a testator against any executor named in a will, or against any other person, shall not be valid as against the creditors of the deceased, but shall be construed only as a specific bequest of such debt or demand, and the amount thereof shall be included in the inventory of the effects of the deceased and be assets for the payment of his debts, if necessary for that purpose, and, if not so necessary, shall be paid in the same manner and proportion as other specific legacies. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1240, ch. 854, § 318.)

The naming of any person as executor in a will shall not operate as a discharge or bequest of any just claim which the testator had against such executor; but such claim shall be included among the credits and effects of the deceased in the inventory, and the executor shall be liable for the same, as for so much money in his hands, at the time such debt or demand becomes due; and he shall apply and distribute the same, in the payment of debts and legacies and among the next of kin, as part of the personal estate of the deceased: Provided, That in such cases the sureties of the executor shall not be liable if the claim against the executor would have been uncollectible if some other person had been executor. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1240, ch. 854, § 319; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 529, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The act of 1902 added the proviso.

§ 18–304 [29: 164]. Failure of executor to include claims of testator against executor in inventory—Remedy.

On the failure of the executor to give in such claim in the list of debts due the deceased, any person interested in the administration may allege the same by petition to said probate court, and the said court, with consent of the parties, may decide on the same, or it may be referred by the parties, with the court's approval; or at the instance of either party the court may direct an issue to be tried by a jury; and if said claim shall in any of such proceedings be decided to be a just claim of the decedent against the executor, said executor shall be charged with the amount thereof as aforesaid. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1240, ch. 854, § 320.)

§ 18–305 [29: 165]. Debt due by administrator or collector.

In like manner it shall be the duty of every administrator and collector to give in a claim against himself, and on his giving it, or failure so to do, there shall be the same proceeding as above described with regard to an executor; and the same rule shall apply to his sureties. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1240, ch. 854, § 321; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 529, ch. 1329; Apr. 19, 1920, 41 Stat. 563, ch. 153.)

AMENDMENTS

The 1902 amendment added the words "and the same shall apply to his sureties" at the end.

The 1920 amendment added the words "and collector."

Chapter 4.—INVENTORY OF ASSETS

Sec.

18–401. Inventory—When made—Contents—Exceptions.
18–402. Appraisers.
18–403. Appraisers—Refusal to act or death of.
18–404. Appraisement—Notice—Return.
18–405. Contents of inventory.
18–406. Exceptions to inventory.
18–407. Collector's inventory.
18–408. Co-executor or administrator may file inventory if others neglect to do so.

§ 18–401 [29: 171]. Inventory—When made—Contents—Exceptions.

Every executor, administrator, or collector shall, within two months after his appointment, or such longer time as the court may allow, make and return, upon oath, into court a true inventory of all the goods, chattels, moneys, and credits of the deceased which are by law to be administered and which shall have come to his possession or knowledge; and if the court shall think fit it may also order him to include in the inventory all the real estate of the deceased: Provided, That this section shall not apply to the cases provided for in sections 20–203 and 20–303. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1238, ch. 854, § 309; June 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 268, ch. 242, § 3.)

AMENDMENTS

The act of June 24, 1949, cited to text, struck out the words "three months" and inserted in lieu thereof the words "two months".

§ 18–404 [29: 174]. Appraisement—Notice—Return.

It shall be the duty of the executor, administrator, or collector or of the appraisers to give notice to the persons immediately interested in the administration, or at least two of them, if they are numerous, of the time and place of making said appraisement, and thereupon they shall proceed at said time and place to value said property and estate, setting down each article or item separately, with the value thereof, in dollars and cents, and when such appraisement shall have been completed they shall certify the same under their hands and seals, and the same shall be returned with the inventory. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1239, ch. 854, § 312; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 529, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The 1902 amendment deleted the word "and" and inserted in lieu thereof the word "or" after the word "collector."

§ 18–405 [29: 175]. Contents of inventory.

The inventory shall contain a particular statement of all bonds, mortgages, notes, and other securities for the payment of moneys belonging to the deceased, and of all other debts and accounts due him, which are known to the executor, administrator, or collector, who shall designate those debts which he considers sperate and those which he considers desperate, and also an account of all moneys belonging to the deceased which shall come to his hands. And whenever, after an inventory has been returned, assets not therein included shall come to the knowledge of the executor, administrator, or collector an additional inventory and appraisement shall be promptly prepared and filed in the manner aforesaid. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1239, ch. 854, § 313.)

§ 18–406 [29: 176]. Exceptions to inventory.

There shall be excepted from the inventory the wearing apparel of the deceased, family pictures, the family Bible, and schoolbooks used in the family, and provisions for the support of the family on hand at the time of decedent's death. But if said decedent shall have been at the head of a family, or a householder, the property exempt under sections 15–401 to 15–403, as therein stated, shall so continue exempt from all claims against said decedent, and shall be distributed by the court to such members of the family or household as in the judgment of the court the necessity and exigencies of the particular case may require. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1239, ch. 854, § 314.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

FAMILY PORTRAITS

Family portraits "seem to have been recognized as heirlooms at common law, and as such went to the heirs at law, and not to the executor * * *." By custom they are not included in the inventories in the District. Brown v. Easterhazy (25 W. L. R. 478).

SALE OF EXEMPTED PROPERTY

Exemption follows proceeds of sale. Howard v. Howard (38 App. D. C. 575).

§ 18–407 [29: 177]. Collector's inventory.

In case an inventory shall be returned by a collector, duly appointed, the executor or administrator thereafter administering shall, within two months after his appointment, either return a new inventory in place of the collector's inventory or an acknowledgment in writing that he has received from the collector the articles contained in the first inventory, and consents to be answerable for the same, as if said inventory had been made out by him as administrator, unless it shall appear that he has been prevented from making such return by the improper detention of the personal estate of the deceased by the collector. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1239, ch. 854, § 315; June 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 268, ch. 242, § 4.)

AMENDMENTS

The act of June 24, 1949, cited to text, struck out the words "three months" and inserted in lieu thereof the words "two months".

§ 18–408 [29: 178]. Co-executor or administrator may file inventory if others neglect to do so.

If there be more than one executor or administrator, any one or more of them, on the neglect of the rest, may, if authorized by the court, return an inventory. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1239, ch. 854, § 316.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Constitutionality

This section properly construed does not give an unconstitutional preference to local creditors over nonresident creditors. Duehay v. Acacia Mut. Life Ins. Co. (70 App. D. C. 245, 105 Fed. (2d) 768).

Insolvent Estates

The correct rule in the administration of an insolvent estate is to marshal the assets and distribute them ratably among creditors of the same class, irrespective of their source. Sackett, Chapman, Brown & Cross v. Osgood (App. D. C. 1945, 149 F. 2d 825).

Law Governing Interest

In ancillary administration proceedings in estate of a Maryland resident, question as to rate of interest allowable on claims against estate was to be determined under District of Columbia law. Hightstown Rug Co. v. National Sav. & Trust Co. (App. D. C. 1947, 162 F. 2d 10, 82 U. S. App. D. C. 204).

Liability for Non-Payment

Fact that voluntary payment by local debtor of local assets to a foreign domiciliary executor or administrator might afford a valid acquittance of the debt under some circumstances does not establish that a debtor who refuses to pay such assets voluntarily to such foreign representative should be held liable in damages. Cameron v. Riggs Nat. Bank of Washington, D. C. (D. C., D. C. 1944, 53 F. Supp. 56).

A bank which refused to make payment to foreign domiciliary executor of testatrix's funds held by bank in checking and savings accounts until elapse of period of one year within which local debtors could assert their claims against the assets, unless otherwise protected against such claims, was not liable for interest on the funds withheld, as damages. Cameron v. Riggs Nat. Bank of Washington, D. C. (D. C., D. C. 1944, 53 F. Supp. 56).

Participating Creditors

Where insolvent nonresident died possessed of property in the District of Columbia, ancillary administrator was appointed, but no claims were filed by local creditors, and only two nonresident creditors presented claims, the District Probate Court had discretionary power to require that other creditors, who had filed claims in the domiciliary estate, be given notice and allowed to participate with creditors who had filed claims in ancillary estate. Sackett, Chapman, Brown & Cross v. Osgood (App. D. C. 1945, 149 F. 2d 825).

Purpose

This section is intended for the protection of local creditors. Sackett, Chapman, Brown & Cross v. Osgood (App. D. C. 1945, 149 F. 2d 825).

Remedy

Under this section, local creditors are given an opportunity to assert their claims against local assets of a decedent domiciled elsewhere. Cameron v. Riggs Nat. Bank of Washington, D. C. (D. C., D. C. 1944, 53 F. Supp. 56).

Time for Assertion of Claims

Ordinarily, the period of one year fixed by this section is period that local debtor may reasonably await assertion of claims of local creditors before making payment to a foreign domiciliary executor or administrator, unless otherwise protected against such claims. Cameron v. Riggs Nat. Bank of Washington, D. C. (D. C., D. C. 1944, 53 F. Supp. 56).

TRANSMISSION OF FUNDS

Where there were no locally domiciled creditors, the probate court might, in its discretion, order the funds in hands of ancillary administrator to be transmitted to the domiciliary administrator, even though some creditors from other states had presented their claims locally. Sackett, Chapman, Brown & Cross v. Osgood (App. D. C. 1945, 149 F. 2d 825).

§ 18–502 [29: 192]. No claim to be noticed unless legally authenticated.

No executor or administrator shall be bound to discharge any claim against his decedent unless the same shall be exhibited to him, legally authenticated, or unless such claim shall have been passed by the probate court and entered by the register of wills upon his docket. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1247, ch. 854, § 357.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CONSTRUCTION

The meaning of this section is to be deduced from the language of its heading as well as from the language of the body thereof. Clawans v. Sheetz (67 App. D. C. 366, 92 Fed. (2d) 517).

The phrase "To be noticed" and the words "To discharge" must be read together to determine the meaning of the statute. Clawans v. Sheetz (67 App. D. C. 366, 92 Fed. (2d) 517).

§ 18–503 [29: 193]. Debts to be proved.

No executor or administrator shall discharge any claim against his decedent (otherwise than at his own risk) unless the same be first passed by the probate court, or unless the said claim shall be proved according to the following rules: (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1243, ch. 854, § 330.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

DISPUTED CLAIMS

"Under section 330 of the code (this section) the approval of a claim properly proved relieves the executor or administrator from liability if he elects to pay it; but, by section 342 (§ 18–516) he may contest it at law, and in such action the approval of the probate court is deprived of even evidentiary value * * *. It is settled in this District that the probate court is without jurisdiction to compel an executor or administrator to pay a claim asserted against a decedent's estate." Miniggio v. Hutchins (43 App. D. C. 117), citing Cook v. Speare (13 App. D. C. 446); Richardson v. Daggett (24 App. D. C. 440).

LIABILITY OF EXECUTOR OR ADMINISTRATOR

This section was designed to relieve the executor or administrator from liability if he should elect to pay claims passed upon by the court, or properly proved. Clawans v. Sheetz (67 App. D. C. 366, 92 Fed. (2d) 517).

SUIT

There is nothing in this section which prevents suit on a claim which has neither been exhibited to the executor legally authenticated nor passed by the probate court. Clawans v. Sheetz (67 App. D. C. 366, 92 Fed. (2d) 517).

§ 18–504 [29: 194]. Judgment or decree—Voucher or proof of.

The voucher or proof of a judgment or decree shall be a short copy thereof under seal, attested by the clerk of the court where it was obtained, who shall certify that the said judgment or decree hath not been satisfied. There shall likewise be a certificate of some person authorized to administer an oath, indorsed on or annexed to a statement of the debt due on such judgment or decree, that the creditor or his agent since the death of the deceased hath taken before him the following oath, to wit: "That the creditor hath not received any part of the sum for which the judgment or decree was passed except such part (if any) as is credited"; and if the creditor on the judgment or decree be an assignee of the person who obtained it, the oath shall go on and say further, "and that to the best of his knowledge or belief no other person hath received any parcel of the said sum except such part (if any) as is credited," and an assignee shall also produce the assignment under the hand of the assignor; and if there be more than one assignment, each assignment shall be produced under the hand of the party assigning. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1243, ch. 854, § 331.)

§ 18–505 [29: 195]. Bond, note, check, protested bill of exchange—Original or copy of instrument to constitute voucher.

In case of a specialty, bond, note, check, or protested bill of exchange, the vouchers shall be the instrument of writing itself, or a proved copy in case it be lost, with a certificate of the oath made as aforesaid since the death and indorsed on or annexed to the instrument, or a statement of the claim "that no part of the money intended to be secured by such instrument hath been received or any security or satisfaction given for the same except what (if any) is credited." (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1243, ch. 854, § 332.)

§ 18–506 [29: 196]. Proof by assignee.

If the creditor in such instrument be an assignee, there shall be the same oath of the creditor or agent, according to the best of his knowledge and belief, with respect to any payments prior to the time of the assignment. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1243, ch. 854, § 333.)

§ 18–507 [29: 197]. Commercial papers—Proof.

In case of a bill of exchange or other commercial paper, the protest or other things which would be required (if the deceased were alive) shall be necessary to justify an executor or administrator in making payment or distribution. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1243, ch. 854, § 334.)

§ 18–508 [29: 198]. Claims for rent—Proof.

If the claim be for rent, there shall be produced the lease itself, or the deposition of some credible witness or witnesses, or an acknowledgment in writing of the deceased, establishing the contract and the time which hath elapsed during which rent was chargeable, and a statement of the sum due for such rent, with an oath of the creditor or agent indorsed thereon "that no part of the sum due for said rent or any security or satisfaction for the same hath been received except what (if any) is credited."

The proof of a claim for rent in arrear, so as to render the same a preferred claim, shall be the proofs and vouchers for rent aforesaid, and proof that the claim is such that an attachment therefor might be levied on said deceased's goods and chattels in the hands of the administrator, but the preference given for rent is not to impair the landlord's right of attachment if he thinks proper to exercise it. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1243, ch. 854, § 335.)

§ 18–509 [29: 199]. Open account—Proof.

The vouchers or proofs of any claim on open account shall be a certificate of an oath taken by the creditor or agent since the death, indorsed on or annexed to the account, that the account as stated is just and true, and that he, the creditor, or any one for him, hath not received any part of the money stated to be due or any security or satisfaction for the same except what (if any) is credited. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1243, ch. 854, § 336.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS

Proof and presentation of claim under this section would operate to suspend the running of the statute of limitations. Berry & Whitman Co. v. Dante (43 App. D. C. 110).

§ 18–510 [29: 200]. Claims outside of District—How proved.

When an affidavit or deposition to prove claims shall have been taken out of the District, the same shall be good if taken and certified as aforesaid by a notary public, or by some person there authorized to administer an oath, and certified to be such under the seal of the clerk of any court of record, or by any officer having official cognizance of the fact, and the said oath shall be as available as if taken before an officer authorized to administer an oath within this District: Provided, That such additional certificate shall not be required as to notaries public within the United States or any place under the jurisdiction thereof when the seal of such notary is attached. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1244, ch. 854, § 337; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 529, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The 1902 amendment added the proviso.

§ 18–511 [29: 201]. Executor or administrator's claim must be under oath.

If the creditor be an executor or an administrator the claim shall not be received, although vouched and approved as aforesaid, unless he make oath, to be certified as aforesaid, "that it does not appear from any book or writing of his decedent that any part of the said claim hath been discharged except what (if any) is credited, and that to the best of the dependent's knowledge and belief no part of the said claim hath been discharged and no security or satisfaction given for the same except what (if any) is credited." (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1244, ch. 854, § 338.)

§ 18–512 [29: 202]. Claims of executors and administrators to be passed by probate court.

In no case shall an executor or administrator be allowed to retain for his own claim against the decedent, unless the same be passed by the probate court, and every such claim shall stand on an equal footing with other claims of the same nature. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1244, ch. 854, § 339.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

EXAMINATION BY COURT

Administratrix' claims against estate will be critically examined by probate court and will not be allowed unless the court is satisfied that they are good. Perkins v. Berger, 1944 (145 F. 2d 856, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 286).

§ 18–513 [29: 203]. Docket of claims.

The register of wills shall enter in a suitable book, to be provided by him for that purpose, all claims against a decedent as they are regularly passed by the probate court, giving the date of the passage, the name of the creditor, the character of such claim, whether on note or open account, bond, bill, obligation, judgment, or other evidence of debt, and the amount thereof, and the entry of a claim upon such docket shall be taken as notice to the executor or administrator of its existence. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1246, ch. 854, § 354.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

NOTICE OF CLAIM

The executor is charged with notice of claims only in case they shall be exhibited to him, legally, and then treated, or shall have been passed by the probate court and entered by the register of wills upon his docket. Clawans v. Sheetz (67 App. D. C. 366, 92 Fed. (2d) 517).

§ 18–514 [29: 204]. Filed claim no evidence of correctness if disputed—Filing as tolling limitations.

The claim thus entered (as provided in section 18–513) shall not afford any evidence as to the justice or correctness of any debt therein entered whenever the same shall be controverted by an executor or administrator in any suit instituted for the recovery of such debt; nor shall the same be construed to take any debt out of the operation of a plea of limitations. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1246, ch. 854, § 355.)

§ 18–515 [29: 205]. Plea of limitations within discretion of executor or administrator.

It shall not be considered as the duty of an executor or administrator to avail himself of the act of limitations to bar what he supposes to be a just claim, but the same shall be left to his honesty and discretion. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1244, ch. 854, § 341.)

CROSS REFERENCE

See notes to § 12–201 et seq.

§ 18–516 [29: 206]. Claims may be rejected and disputed.

No executor or administrator shall be obliged to discharge any claim of which vouchers and proofs shall be exhibited as aforesaid, but may reject and at law dispute the same in case he shall have reason to believe that the deceased never owed the debt, or had discharged the same, or a part thereof, or had a claim in bar. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1244, ch. 854, § 342.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

IN GENERAL

An executor or administrator may contest a claim properly proved at law. Clawans v. Sheetz (67 App. D. C. 366, 92 Fed. (2d) 517).

§ 18–517 [29: 207]. Passing of claims not conclusive.

In no case shall the order made by the probate court that an account or claim will pass when paid be deemed of validity to establish such claim or account; but in case the executor or administrator thinks fit to contest the same such account or claim shall derive no validity from the order aforesaid, but shall be proved in the same manner as if no such order had been made. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1244, ch. 854, § 343.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Effect of Passing Claim

An executor or administrator may contest at law a claim properly proved, and, in such action, the approval of the probate court by this section is deprived of even evidentiary effect. Clawans v. Sheetz (67 App. D. C. 366, 92 Fed. (2d) 517).

§ 18–518 [29: 208]. Creditors to file suit within nine months from time claim is contested.

If a claim be exhibited against an executor or administrator which he shall think it his duty to dispute or reject, he may retain in his hands assets proportioned to the amount of the claim, which assets shall be liable to other claims, or to be delivered up or distributed in case the claim be not established; and if on any claims exhibited and disputed as aforesaid the creditor or claimant shall not, within three months after such dispute or rejection, commence a suit for recovery the creditor shall be forever barred; and the executor or administrator may plead this section in bar, together with the general issue or other plea proper to bring the merits of the cause to trial; and on any dividend to be made three months after such dispute or rejection and failure to bring suit the executor or administrator may proceed to pay or distribute as if he had not knowledge or notice of such claim or as if it did not exist; but if the claim be put in suit within the three months it may be ascertained by verdict or otherwise, and the court shall proceed as herein directed, regard being had to the rules herein laid down as to the notice to be given by the executor or administrator and distribution or payment be made after such notice. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1245, ch. 854, § 348; June 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 268, ch. 242, § 5.)

Amendments

The act of June 24, 1949, cited to text, struck out the words "nine months" where they appeared three times in the section and inserted each time in lieu thereof the words "three months".

Cross Reference

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Decisions Under Prior Law

Prior to enactment of the Code, law of Maryland as to limitations was in force in the District. Glover v. Patten (165 U. S. 394, 41 L. Ed. 760, 17 Sup. Ct. 411, affg. 1 App. D. C. 466).

Computation of Time

A claim so exhibited and disputed is specifically barred, unless suit for its recovery is commenced within nine months after its rejection. National Sav. & Trust Co. v. Ryan (49 App. D. C. 159, 262 Fed. 613); Clawans v. Sheetz (67 App. D. C. 366, 92 Fed. (2d) 517).

§ 18–519 [29: 209]. Payment of claims.

An executor or administrator shall, within thirteen months from the date of his letters, or within such further time, not exceeding four months longer, as shall be allowed by the probate court on his making oath that he has reason to apprehend that the personal estate and assets which are or shall be in his hands will be insufficient to discharge the just debts of and claims against the deceased, discharge all such claims known to him or pay each claimant his just proportion of the money then in his hands (retaining as herein directed); it shall likewise be his duty once in every term of six months after the first distribution to make a distribution of the money which hath since come to his hands until he shall have fully administered, and on failure his administration bond may be put in suit. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1244, ch. 854, § 344.)

§ 18–520 [29: 210]. Priorities.

In paying the debts of a decedent, after the payment of funeral expenses according to the condition and circumstances of the deceased, not exceeding six hundred dollars, an executor or administrator shall observe the following rules: Claims for rent in arrear against deceased persons, for which an attachment might be levied by law, shall have preference. Judgments and decrees of courts in the District of Columbia shall next be wholly discharged. After such claims for rent, judgments, and decrees shall be satisfied, all other just claims shall be on an equal footing without priority or preference. If there be not sufficient to discharge all such judgments and decrees, a proportionate dividend shall be made between the judgment and decree creditors. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1246, ch. 854, § 356.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Application of Act

The statutes are equally applicable to the administration of all estates in the District, whether domiciliary or ancillary. Duehay v. Acacia Mut. Life Ins. Co. (70 App. D. C. 245, 105 Fed. (2d) 768).

Funeral Expenses

This section and section 605 of Title 20 limiting the amount for funeral expenses to $600 merely provide for a limitation on the amount which may be given priority over claims of other creditors and beneficiaries, and not an invariable maximum that must always be observed, and therefore claim for funeral expenses in amount of $3,863 was properly ordered to be paid pro rata with other general claims lawfully payable out of deceased's estate. National Metropolitan Bank of Washington v. Joseph Gawler's Sons (D. C. Mun. App. 1947, 52 A. 2d 280).

Executors were not controlled by limitation of this section and § 20–605 in view of discretionary authority granted them by will empowering executors to pay funeral expenses in such amount as they deemed proper, but they were bound to act in good faith and expend only such amount as in their discretion they deemed proper. National Metropolitan Bank of Washington v. Joseph Gawler's Sons (App. D. C. 1948, 168 F. 2d 571).

Executors did not have burden to establish good faith and sound discretionary action under provision of will empowering them to pay funeral expenses in such amount as they deemed proper, and burden was on funeral establishment which attacked their action, to prove the charge. National Metropolitan Bank of Washington v. Joseph Gawler's Sons (App. D. C. 1948, 168 F. 2d 571).

This section and § 20–605 relating to funeral expenses limit amount allowable for funeral expenses in absence of authority by testator to contrary and even then such sections should control where estate is insolvent. National Metropolitan Bank of Washington v. Joseph Gawler's Sons (App. D. C. 1948, 168 F. 2d 571).

MONUMENT

An allowance to executrix for purchase of monument placed over grave of deceased is proper, where the rights of creditors have not been prejudiced. Sinnott v. Kenaday (14 App. D. C. 1); revd. on other grounds (179 U. S. 606, 45 L. Ed. 339, 21 Sup. Ct. 233).

§ 18–521 [29: 211]. Meeting of creditors.

Any executor or administrator shall be entitled to appoint a meeting of creditors on some day by the court approved, and passage of claims, payment, or distribution may be there made under the court's direction and control. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1247, ch. 854, § 358.)

CITED

Clawans v. Sheetz (67 App. D. C. 366, 92 Fed. (2d) 517).

§ 18–522 [29: 212]. Notice of distribution.

In all cases where an executor or administrator is to make payment or distribution among the creditors of his decedent, he may give notice three successive weeks previously in some convenient newspaper of the time and place for making it; and in case the creditor shall not attend in person or by agent or attorney to receive the amount or proportionable part of his claim, all interest on such claim or proportionable part shall cease from that time: Provided, That the executor or administrator shall at any time thereafter on demand pay the said claims, or a proportionable part, to the party, his agent, or attorney duly authorized; and whenever the executor or administrator shall proceed to make an additional payment or dividend he may advertise as aforesaid, and interest shall stop as aforesaid; and if at the time for the making of any additional dividend a just claim, established as hereinbefore directed, shall be exhibited, the creditor shall be entitled to such sum as will place him on an equal footing with those who have already received a dividend. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1244, ch. 854, § 345.)

§ 18–523 [29: 213]. Retaining for claims.

It shall be the duty of an executor or administrator to pay all just claims against his decedent exhibited to him, or a just proportionable part thereof, according to the assets; and if any claim be known to him (although the same be not exhibited) he shall retain the same, or a just proportionable part, for the benefit of the creditor: Provided, That if any executor or administrator shall have actual knowledge of a claim which has not been exhibited or passed he shall give notice in writing to the creditor, requiring the claim to be either exhibited or passed, as herein provided, within thirty days if such creditor be a resident and within ninety days if he be a nonresident of said District, and after the expiration of such period, and after the expiration of the period for distribution provided by section 18–519 the executor or administrator shall not be required to retain any part of the estate for the benefit of such creditor, unless in the meantime such claim shall have been so exhibited or passed. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1245, ch. 854, § 346.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

FAILURE TO EXHIBIT, EFFECT

This section does not provide that failure to exhibit in response to the notice will bar the claim. Clawans v. Sheetz (67 App. D. C. 366, 92 Fed. (2d) 517).

§ 18–524 [29: 214]. Executor or administrator to withhold amount claimed pending litigation.

And if any action shall be commenced against an executor or administrator for the recovery of a larger debt or damages than he shall think due, so that the same can not be ascertained before verdict, the executor or administrator shall be allowed to retain such sum to meet the said debt or damages as the probate court shall allow, and if more than enough be allowed, the party shall afterwards account for it, but nothing shall be retained on account of such further debt or damages where the court shall be satisfied that there will be money sufficient coming in after such dividend to meet the said damages, or a just proportion thereof, regard being had to other claims. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1245, ch. 854, § 347.)

§ 18–525 [29: 215]. Executor or administrator not responsible for claims made after distribution.

In case all the assets have been paid away, delivered, or distributed as herein directed, and a claim shall afterwards be exhibited of which the executor or administrator hath not knowledge or notice by the exhibition of the claim legally authenticated, as herein required, he shall not be answerable for the same; and if he be sued for any claim and shall make it appear to the court in which suit is brought that he hath so paid away, delivered, or distributed, and the plaintiff can not prove that the defendant had notice as aforesaid before such payment, delivery, or distribution, the court shall not proceed to give judgment (although the amount of the claim against the deceased may be ascertained) until the plaintiff shall be able to show further assets coming into the defendant's hands, but if the plaintiff shall prove notice, as aforesaid, of the said claim against the defendant, judgment may be immediately given for such sum as the plaintiff ought to have received at the dividend, and fieri facias may issue and have effect, and further judgment may be given on coming in of further assets. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1245, ch. 854, § 349.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

IN GENERAL

An executor is exonerated as to any claims as to which he had not legal notice prior to distribution. Clawans v. Sheetz (67 App. D. C. 366, 92 Fed. (2d) 517).

§ 18–526 [29: 216]. Notice to creditors to file claims.

No executor or administrator who shall, after the lapse of six months after the date of his letters, have paid away assets to the discharge of just claims shall be answerable for any claim of which he had no knowledge or notice by an exhibition of the claim legally authenticated: Provided, That at least three months before he shall make distribution he shall have caused to be inserted in so many newspapers as the probate court may direct an advertisement as follows, or fully to the following effect, namely: "This is to give notice that the subscriber, of ———, hath obtained from the probate court of the District of Columbia letters testamentary (or of administration) on the personal estate of ———, late of ———, deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same, with the vouchers thereof legally authenticated, to the subscriber on or before the ——— day of ——— next; they may otherwise by law be excluded from all benefit of said estate.

"Given under my hand this ——— day of ———." (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1246, ch. 854, § 350; June 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 268, ch. 242, § 6.)

AMENDMENTS

The act of June 24, 1949, cited to text, struck out the words "one year" and inserted in lieu thereof the words "six months" and struck out the words "at least six months" and inserted in lieu thereof the words "at least three months".

NOTES TO DECISIONS

HISTORICAL

This section is similar to the Maryland Act of 1798 as amended (Acts 1828, ch. 131, § 2). Clawans v. Sheetz (67 App. D. C. 366, 92 Fed. (2d) 517).

NECESSITY OF EXHIBIT

Knowledge or notice of a claim to an executor must be by an exhibition of the claim, legally authenticated. Parish v. Hedges (34 App. D. C. 21).

§ 18–527 [29: 217]. Report and proof of notice.

The executor or administrator may report to the court, with an affidavit of the proof thereof annexed, the fact of having given such notice, and the court, on being satisfied that its order has been complied with and the said notice has been given, shall indorse on said report its certificate that it has been proven to its satisfaction that said notice hath been given as therein reported, and shall order said report and certificate to be recorded among the records of the court. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1246, ch. 854, § 351; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 529, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The 1902 amendment struck out the word "their" and inserted in lieu thereof the word "its," following the words "satisfied that" and "proven to."

§ 18–528 [29: 218]. Report of notice to be prima facie evidence.

The said report and certificates shall be prima facie evidence, in all cases whatever, of the giving of such notice as therein stated. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1246, ch. 854, § 352.)

§ 18–529 [29: 219]. Copy of report of notice as legal evidence.

A copy of said report, certificate, and order, under the seal of the register of wills, shall be legal and competent evidence. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1246, ch. 854, § 353.)

§ 18–530 [29: 220]. Distribution of residue.

Whenever it shall appear by the first or other account of an executor or administrator that all the claims against, or debts of, the decedent which have been known by or notified to him have been discharged or allowed for in his account, it shall be his duty to deliver up and distribute the surplus or residue of the personal estate not disposed of by any will, as hereinafter directed: Provided, That his power and duty with respect to future assets shall not cease; and after such delivery he shall not be liable for any debts afterwards notified to him, provided he shall have advertised as hereinbefore directed, unless assets shall afterwards come into his hands which shall be answerable for such debts. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1247, ch. 854, § 359.)

Chapter 6.—SALE OF ASSETS

Sec.
18–601. Sale of personal estate.
18–602. Order for sale.
18–603. Power of sale in will.
18–604. Sale of real estate directed in will—Procedure.
18–605. Power of co-executors to sell under power in will.
18–606. Survivor of several trustees.
18–607. Sale of real estate.
18–608. Bond to prevent sale of real estate.
18–609. Sale of real estate to satisfy debts and legacies.
18–610. Sale of property subject to dower.
18–611. Appointment of trustee to sell real estate—Bond of trustee.
18–612. Proceeding by creditors to have real estate sold.

§ 18–601 [29: 231]. Sale of personal estate.

In case any executor or administrator shall not have money sufficient to discharge the just debts of and claims against the decedent, the probate court shall, on his application, made after the return of an inventory, direct a sale of the personal property therein contained, or of such part as the court may think proper, and in such manner and on such terms as the court may direct. The court shall have power to direct a sale as aforesaid, if deemed by the court advantageous to the persons interested in the administration, on the application of any of the said persons. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1240, ch. 854, § 322.)

No executor or administrator shall sell any property of his decedent without an order of the probate court authorizing such sale; and any such sale made without a previous order authorizing it shall be void and pass no title to the purchaser. If any executor or administrator shall sell, pledge, or dispose of any property without such previous order, his letters may be revoked and an administrator appointed, whose duty it shall be immediately to recover possession of said property, and such removed executor or administrator may be proceeded against by attachment; but where there are two or more executors or administrators, and a sale, pledge, or disposition of property has been made without the consent of all, the revocation shall only extend to the person or persons so offending, and the remaining executors or administrators shall have power to discharge the duties of their office and institute proceedings for the recovery of the property and attachment as aforesaid. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1240, ch. 854, § 323.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Application of Section

This section should be applied where an administrator not only has become actively a party to an arrangement by which another makes an appropriation of estate assets such as a business before his appointment but during the course of his administration confirms it by refusing to include the property within his inventory, to report, or to account for the profits of the business, and to take steps to secure its recovery or legal disposition after full warning that that might be required. Burke v. Canfield, 1941 (121 F. 2d 877, 74 App. D. C. 6).

Common Law

"At common law an executor or administrator had absolute power of disposal over all personal property coming into his hands, including choses in action, and such sales protected purchasers, except where fraud appeared." Phoenix Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Harris (45 App. D. C. 474).

Construction

"Owing to this rule of the common law, statutes providing for the granting of decrees of court as to sales generally are construed to be for the protection of the administrator and not as a limitation of his power." Phoenix Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Harris (45 App. D. C. 474).

"The provisions of section 323 (this section) of our code were intended to apply merely to local executors and administrators dealing with property within this jurisdiction. The section declares, * * *, his letters may be revoked, clearly indicating, we think, that the prohibition was not intended to extend to contracts made by executors and administrators of other jurisdictions. In other words, this statute was addressed to the constituent elements or validity of a local contract by executors and administrators, rather than to the procedure to be followed in establishing all contracts by executors and administrators, wherever made." Phoenix Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Harris (45 App. D. C. 474).

Section 18–602 shall not be construed to apply to any case where an executor shall be authorized by will of his testator to make sale of any property. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1241, ch. 854, § 324.)

§ 18–604 [29: 234]. Sale of real estate directed in will—Procedure.

In all cases in which a testator has directed his real estate to be sold for the payment of his debts or legacies, the executor may sell and convey the same, and shall account for the proceeds thereof to the probate court in the same manner that he is bound to account for the proceeds of personal estate; but such sale shall not be valid unless ratified by said court after notice given by publication according to the practice in equity. In case the executor shall refuse or decline to act, or shall die without executing the power vested in him, it shall be lawful for the court, on the application of any person interested, to appoint an administrator de bonis non with the will annexed to execute such power in the same manner in which the executor appointed by the will might have done. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1241, ch. 854, § 325.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Approval of Court

Where executor was empowered by will to sell real estate at his discretion, court's refusal to approve sale by executor because of a higher bid would not be disturbed, except that before accepting the higher bid the court should afford the original bidder, and other bidders, opportunity to submit further bids if desired. De Marco v. Kertz (App. D. C. 1945, 151 F. 2d 305).

The Judicial Sales Act, 28 U. S. C. §§ 847–849, and the local civil rules of the District Court for the District of Columbia adopted thereunder are applicable only to sales which are required or authorized by court order, and not those under a power created by will; hence, for sales made by executor under terms of a will, ratification by the probate court according to the practice in equity is required, and not in accordance with provisions of said sections. De Marco v. Kertz (App. D. C. 1945, 151 F. 2d 305).

Price of Bid

Where a will authorizes executor to sell real estate at his discretion, the bidder makes his offer to the executor subject to the approval of the court, as required by this section, and in selling the property the court is acting as trustee for the parties in interest and must exercise a wise, judicial discretion to secure for the estate the highest price consistent with a just regard for the rights of the bidder. De Marco v. Kertz (App. D. C. 1945, 151 F. 2d 305).

The general rule applicable to public judicial sales of property, that the court will not ordinarily set aside a sale made in the manner prescribed by law because of mere inadequacy of price, grew out of the necessity of encouraging free bidding at public sales, and rule is not applicable to a private sale. De Marco v. Kertz (App. D. C. 1945, 151 F. 2d 305).

Rejection of Offer or Bid

Where a will authorizes executor at his discretion to sell real estate, a private offer, which is made subject to ratification by the court under this section, may be rejected when a higher bid is made at any time prior to ratification. De Marco v. Kertz (App. D. C. 1945, 151 F. 2d 305).

§ 18–605 [29: 235]. Power of co-executors to sell under power in will.

Where part of the executors named in any testament of any person so making or declaring any will of any lands, tenements, or other hereditaments to be sold by his executors, after the death of any such testator, do refuse to take upon him or them the administration and charge of the same testament and last will wherein they be so named to be executors, and the residue of the same executors do accept and take upon them the cure and charge of the same testament and last will; then all bargains and sales of such lands, tenements, or other hereditaments, so willed to be sold by the executors of any such testator, as well heretofore made, as hereafter to be made by him or them, only of the said executors that so doth accept, or that heretofore hath accepted and taken upon him or them any such cure or charge of administration of any such will or testament, shall be as good and as effectual in the law, as if all the residue of the same executors named in the said testament, so refusing the administration of the same testament, had joined with him or them in the making of the bargain and sale of such lands, tenements, or other hereditaments so willed to be sold by the executors of any such testators, which heretofore hath made or declared, or that hereafter shall make or declare any such will, of any such lands, tenements, or other hereditaments after his decease, to be sold by his executors. (21 Henry VIII, ch. 4, § 1, 1529; Kilty's Rept. p. 230; Alex. Br. Stat., p. 280; Comp. Stat. D. C., p. 20, § 85.)

CROSS REFERENCE

See note to § 19–104.

§ 18–606 [29: 236]. Survivor of several trustees.

In all cases where two or more trustees shall be appointed by last will to execute a trust, or shall be empowered to sell, dispose of, or convey lands or other property devised to them jointly, upon the death of any one or more of them the survivor or survivors shall be held authorized to execute such trust or power; and if any one of such trustees shall in writing, signed by him and attested by a witness, relinquish or disclaim said trust or refuse to act under said will, and shall deliver such writing to the probate court of the District for record, the right of such trustee to act shall cease, and the remaining trustee or trustees appointed by said will shall be authorized to execute the trusts of said will and make all sales and execute all conveyances and other acts necessary for that purpose. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1241, ch. 854, § 326.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

EFFECT OF DEATH

A trust charged upon the executors, as such, does not become extinct by the death of one of them, and if the executors were authorized to sell real estate, the survivor can sell it. Kennedy v. Mangan (51 App. D. C. 296, 278 Fed. 1009).

When will devised real property in trust for missing brother and if not heard from in seven years to have trustees sell, in such case the trustees had power to sell the property after seven years for the benefit of legatees, and equity would limit power to sell only if required by express terms of the will. Kennedy v. Mangan (51 App. D. C. 296, 278 Fed. 1009).

The probate court shall have plenary authority to administer also the real estate situated in the District of Columbia of decedents so far as may be necessary for the payment of debts and legacies, and to distribute among those entitled thereto any surplus proceeds of any sale of real estate made in the course of such administration, and the bonds of all executors and administrators shall be responsible for the proceeds of sale of all real estate sold by them under the order of the said justice for such purposes of administration: Provided, however, That no such sale shall be made unless the same be required for the purposes of paying debts and such legacies as are chargeable upon the real estate, nor until the auditor of the court shall have ascertained and reported such debts and legacies, the deficiency of personal assets, and the real estate necessary to be sold for the payment of debts and legacies; and such report shall be subject to exception. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1214, ch. 854, § 146; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 527, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The 1902 amendment struck out the words "a deficiency of personal assets for such purposes" and inserted in lieu thereof the words "such debts and legacies, the deficiency of personal assets, and the real estate necessary to be sold for the payment of debts and legacies."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Prior to the enactment of the Code, the Supreme Court of this District had "jurisdiction and power to decree the sale of the real estate of a deceased debtor, whether the title be legal or equitable, for the payment of debts; and upon the allegation that the deceased was seized * * * and died indebted, there would be furnished a foundation for a decree of sale of such real estate." Duncanson v. Manson (3 App. D. C. 260, affd. 166 U. S. 533, 41 L. Ed. 1105, 17 Sup. Ct. 647).

ALLOWANCE OF LITIGATION COSTS

Where testator, prior to his second marriage, had made will giving his property to his stepchildren, but shortly after testator's death a child was born of the second marriage, resulting in litigation and a holding that the will was revoked by the marriage and birth of the child, and the personal estate was insufficient to pay all costs of litigation, the court properly charged against the real estate an allowance to executors for services of their attorneys and an allowance to the infant's guardian ad litem. Pascucci v. Hart (App. D. C. 1947, 160 F. 2d 255).

The authority of the probate court to sell real estate to pay debts and legacies includes the right to sell to pay the ordinary and necessary administration costs, and where litigation was necessary in the establishment of an infant's right to title to realty, the costs of such litigation would be entitled to priority over debts and legacies. Pascucci v. Hart (App. D. C. 1947, 160 F. 2d 255, 82 U. S. App. D. C. 12).

COLLATERAL ATTACK

If the court had jurisdiction, the sale cannot be attacked collaterally. Duncanson v. Manson (3 App. D. C. 260, affd. 166 U. S. 533, 41 L. Ed. 1105, 17 Sup. Ct. 647).

DISTRIBUTION AFTER PAYMENT OF DEBTS

When the real estate of an intestate is sold in administration proceeding in the District of Columbia for the payment of his debts, there can be no distribution of any part of the proceeds until after payment of all of the estate's debts, and this provision is not limited to debts payable to residents of the District. Wiggins v. Mayer (57 App. D. C. 293, 22 Fed. (2d) 869).

EXECUTORS' EXPENSES

Where a suit to cancel a deed was not for the purpose contemplated by §§ 607, 608, and 609 and consequently compliance with the terms of these sections was not a condition precedent to executors' right to institute action, court erred in disallowing their expenses. Ramsey v. Curtis (C. A. D. C. 1950, 182 F. 2d 687, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 386).

PERSONAL PROPERTY MUST BE FOUND TO BE INSUFFICIENT

The statute contemplates a prior determination of the insufficiency of the personal property before an administrator can claim rents. Shields v. Shields (69 App. D. C. 331, 101 Fed. (2d) 255).

§ 18–608 [29: 238]. Bond to prevent sale of real estate.

An order for the sale of the real estate shall not be granted if any of the persons interested in the estate shall give bond to the United States, with security to be approved by said probate court, conditioned to pay all the debts or legacies, or both, as the case may be, that shall eventually be found due, and the costs of administration. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1214, ch. 854, § 147.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

EXECUTORS' EXPENSES

Where a suit to cancel a deed was not for the purpose contemplated by §§ 607, 608, and 609 and consequently compliance with the terms of these sections was not a condition precedent to executors' right to institute action, court erred in disallowing their expenses. Ramsey v. Curtis (C. A., D. C. 1950, 182 F. 2d 687, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 386).

§ 18–609 [29: 239]. Sale of real estate to satisfy debts and legacies.

If the said probate court shall be satisfied, upon a report of the auditor, that it is necessary to sell said real estate, or part thereof, it shall authorize the same, or so much thereof as may be necessary for the payment of the debts or legacies, or both, to be sold by the executor or administrator, on such terms as the court may direct. Any surplus of the proceeds of such sale, after payment of debts and legacies and costs of administration, shall be deemed real estate, and shall be distributed among the heirs or devisees as the right may appear. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1214, ch. 854, § 148.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

EFFECT OF DIRECTIONS IN WILL

A conveyance of real estate to trustees with specific directions to sell as soon as possible, converted such property into personalty, by the doctrine of equitable conversion, and was therefore subject to federal estate tax. Tait v. Dante ((C. C. A. 4), 78 Fed. (2d) 303, cert. den. 296 U. S. 614, 80 L. Ed. 436, 56 Sup. Ct. 134).

EXECUTORS' EXPENSES

Where a suit to cancel a deed was not for the purpose contemplated by §§ 607, 608, and 609 and consequently compliance with the terms of these sections was not a condition precedent to executors' right to institute action, court erred in disallowing their expenses. Ramsey v. Curtis (C. A., D. C. 1950, 182 F. 2d 687, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 386).

§ 18–610 [29: 240]. Sale of property subject to dower.

Where there shall be a widow entitled to dower in the real estate of the decedent, the probate court, before authorizing a sale of said real estate, shall issue a commission to one or more suitable persons to set off and assign her dower out of such estate, and her dower shall be assigned to her; or, if the court shall find the widow's dower can not be set off without injury to the property, if she shall consent thereto by her answer to the petition, the real estate may be sold free of her dower, and she shall receive out of the proceeds a commutation of her dower according to the practice in equity. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1215, ch. 854, § 149.)

§ 18–611 [29: 241]. Appointment of trustee to sell real estate—Bond of trustee.

If any person shall die having devised real estate to be sold for the payment of debts or other purposes without having appointed a trustee to sell or convey the property, or if the person so appointed shall neglect or refuse to execute the trust, or shall die before the execution of such trust, the equity court shall have authority, on the application of any person interested, to appoint a trustee to sell and convey said property and apply the proceeds of sale to the purposes intended. And in all cases where a trustee shall be appointed by last will and testament to execute any trust, and any person interested in the execution of such trust shall make it appear that it is necessary for the safety of those interested therein that the trustee should give bond and security for the due execution of the trust, the said court may order and direct that such bond be given by the trustee by a day named, and on failure of the trustee to give such bond, with security to be approved by the court as directed, the court may displace such trustee and appoint another in his stead, who shall give such bond; and such bond shall be given to the United States and may be sued on for the use of any person interested. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1204, ch. 854, § 94.)

When any person shall die leaving any real estate in possession, remainder, or reversion, and not leaving personal estate sufficient to pay his debts, the said equity court, on any suit instituted by any of his creditors, may decree that all the real estate left by such person, or so much thereof as may be necessary, shall be sold to pay his debts; and this section shall apply to cases where the heirs or devisees are residents or nonresidents, are of full age or infants, are of sound mind or non compos mentis, and also to cases where the deceased left no heirs or it is not known whether he left heirs or devisees or the heirs or devisees be unknown; and if there be no known heirs the attorney of the United States for the District of Columbia shall be notified of said suit and appear thereto. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1204, ch. 854, § 96.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

COLLATERAL ATTACK

If sale of real estate is made under a decree, an infant cannot successfully in later proceeding, collaterally attack the decree when he was present in person and did not object to appointment of guardian for him. Duncanson v. Manson (3 App. D. C. 260, affd. 166 U. S. 533, 41 L. Ed. 1105, 17 Sup. Ct. 647).

PARTIES

In a creditors' bill filed for purpose of subjecting real estate of a deceased person as assets to payment of his debts, the executor or administrator is a necessary party, but if there are no personal assets, and consequently no qualified executor or administrator, a creditors' bill may be maintained without executor or administrator. Plumb v. Bateman (2 App. D. C. 156).

PERSONAL ESTATE INSUFFICIENT

Allegation and proof of deficiency in personal assets is jurisdictional in proceedings under this section. Dahlgren

v. National Sav. & Trust Co. (41 App. D. C. 201), citing Glenn v. Sothoron (4 App. D. C. 125).

In suit brought under this section by creditors of a decedent, a decree ordering the sale of decedent's real estate for payment of creditors' claims was affirmed, the personal estate being insufficient to pay them. West v. McLaughlin (57 App. D. C. 163, 18 Fed. (2d) 813).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

IN GENERAL

"It is not the full and complete administration of the estate that marks the period for distribution, but the payment of or allowance for all debts and claims made known against the estate, after notice given, and when that is done it at once becomes the duty of the administrator to deliver up and distribute the residue of the estate to those entitled thereto." Sterrett v. National Safe Deposit, Sav. & Trust Co. (10 App. D. C. 131), construing § 10 of subch. 10 of the Testamentary Act of Maryland of 1798.

Distribution of property of persons dying in common disaster. Young Womens Christian Assn. v. French (187 U. S. 401, 47 L. Ed. 233, 23 Sup. Ct. 184, revg. 18 App. D. C. 9).

"An executor or administrator may make distribution of the surplus in his hands, after discharging the debts of the estate, without waiting for an order of the probate court." Miller-Shoemaker Co. v. Sturgeon (31 App. D. C. 406).

§ 18–702 [29: 282]. When surviving spouse entitled to whole.

If the intestate leave a widow or surviving husband and no child, parent, grandchild, brother, or sister, or the child of a brother or sister of the said intestate, the said widow or surviving husband shall be entitled to the whole. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1249, ch. 854, § 374; Apr. 19, 1920, 41 Stat. 563, ch. 153.)

AMENDMENT

The 1920 amendment added the words "or surviving husband."

§ 18–703 [29: 283]. When surviving spouse entitled to one-third.

If there be a widow or surviving husband and a child or children, or a descendant or descendants from a child, the widow or surviving husband shall have one-third only. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1249, ch. 854, § 375; Apr. 19, 1920, 41 Stat. 563, ch. 153.)

AMENDMENT

The 1920 amendment added the words "or surviving husband."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CAUSA MORTIS GIFTS

The United States Supreme Court has held in cases involving a gift causa mortis that title to the property passes at the time of delivery, subject to a condition subsequent that the grantor may revoke the transfer if he lives and that it cannot, therefore, be considered as property of which the grantor dies possessed. Wilkins v. Woodruff (D. C. Mun. App. 1950, 74 A. 2d 59).

LIFE ESTATE

Will construed to give wife life estate in realty during widowhood, consent of devisees necessary to sale. Evans v. Evans (60 App. D. C. 371, 55 Fed. (2d) 533).

§ 18–704 [29: 284]. When surviving spouse entitled to one-half.

If there be a widow or surviving husband and no child or descendants of the intestate, but the said intestate shall leave a father or mother, or brother or sister, or child of a brother or sister, the widow or surviving husband shall have one-half. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1249, ch. 854, § 376; Apr. 19, 1920, 41 Stat. 563, ch. 153.)

AMENDMENT

The 1920 amendment added the words "or surviving husband."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

WAR-RISK INSURANCE

Distributees of war-risk insurance policy after death of the widow were to be determined as of the date of the death of the insured, under this section and § 385 of the Code (§ 18–713). Condon v. Mallan (58 App. D. C. 371, 30 Fed. (2d) 995).

Where decedent's estate consisted of proceeds from war risk insurance policy and decedent was resident of District of Columbia at the date of death, the law of the District is controlling. Condon v. Mallan (58 App. D. C. 371, 30 Fed. (2d) 995).

WRONGFUL DEATH

Under the Wrongful Death Act, § 3, the proceeds of the recovery are required to be distributed among the next of kin, which includes both the widow and father, where the decedent leaves no surviving child. Doleman v. Levine (295 U. S. 221, 79 L. Ed. 1402, 55 Sup. Ct. 741).

§ 18–705 [29: 285]. Distribution of surplus after payment to surviving spouse.

The surplus, exclusive of the widow's or surviving husband's share, or the whole surplus (if there be no widow or surviving husband), shall go as follows: (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1250, ch. 854, § 377; Apr. 19, 1920, 41 Stat. 563, ch. 153.)

AMENDMENT

The 1920 amendment added the words "or surviving husband."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

WRONGFUL DEATH

Under the Wrongful Death Act, § 3, the proceeds of the recovery are required to be distributed among the next of kin, which includes both the widow and father, where the decedent leaves no surviving child. Doleman v. Levine (295 U. S. 221, 79 L. Ed. 1402, 55 Sup. Ct. 741).

§ 18–706 [29: 286]. Children to share equally.

If there be children and no other descendants, the surplus shall be divided equally among them. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1250, ch. 854, § 378.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

INDEBTEDNESS TO CHILDREN

When mother dies indebted to children and bequeaths to them a portion of her own estate which is more than the indebtedness, such bequest is not in satisfaction for they would inherit the entire estate if no will had been made. Patten v. Glover (1 App. D. C. 466, affd. 165 U. S. 394, 41 L. Ed. 760, 17 Sup. Ct. 411).

When mother borrowed money on real estate and gave it to son to establish him in business, taking no security therefor but under agreement that it would be deducted from his share of estate, such advancement operates as an ademption of a legacy. Miller v. Payne (28 App. D. C. 396).

§ 18–707 [29: 287]. Grandchildren's share — Advancements.

If there be a child or children and a child or children of a deceased child, the child or children of such deceased child shall take such share as his, her, or their deceased parent would, if living, be entitled to, and every other descendant or descendants in existence at the death of the intestate shall stand in the place of his, her, or their deceased ancestor: Provided, That if any child or descendant shall have been advanced by the intestate, by settlement or portion, the same shall be reckoned in the surplus, and, if it be equal or superior to a share, such child or descendant shall be excluded, but the widow shall have no advantage by bringing such advancement into reckoning: And provided further, That, if any child or descendant shall have received from the intestate any real estate by way of advancement, which shall not be equalized under the provisions of section 18–108, the value of any such advancement shall be treated as personalty for the purposes of this section; but maintenance or education or money or realty, given without a view to a portion or settlement in life, shall not be deemed advancement; and in all cases those in equal degree claiming in the place of an ancestor shall take equal shares. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1250, ch. 854, § 379; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 530, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The 1902 amendment struck out the word "personality" and inserted in lieu thereof the word "personalty."

CROSS REFERENCE

Advancement as satisfacton of legacy, § 19–109.

§ 18–708 [29: 288]. Share of father and mother.

If there be no child, or descendant, the whole shall go to the father and mother in equal shares, or to the survivor of them. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1250, ch. 854, § 380; Mar. 6, 1935, 49 Stat. 39, ch. 28, § 1.)

AMENDMENT

The superseded 1901 Act read as follows: "If there be a father and no child or descendant, the father shall have the whole; if there be a mother and no father, child or descendant, the mother shall have the whole."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

WRONGFUL DEATH

Under the Wrongful Death Act, § 3, the proceeds of the recovery are required to be distributed among the next of kin, which includes both the widow and father, where the decedent leaves no surviving child. Doleman v. Levine (295 U. S. 221, 79 L. Ed. 1402, 55 Sup. Ct. 741).

§ 18–709 [29: 289]. Share of brother or sister or their descendants.

If there be a brother or sister, or child or descendant of a brother or sister, and no child, descendant, or father or mother of the intestate, the said brother, sister, or child or descendant of a brother or sister shall have the whole. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1250, ch. 854, § 381.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CONSTRUCTION

A decision of the Maryland court, though not binding in this jurisdiction, should be given great weight in interpreting a statute of the District of Columbia which was presumably derived from the same source as the Maryland statute. Wilson v. Charlent (D. C. D. C. 1949, 81 F. Supp. 690).

§ 18–710 [29: 290]. Brothers and sisters to share equally.

Every brother and sister of the intestate shall be entitled to an equal share, and the child or children, or descendants of a brother or sister of the intestate, shall stand in the place of their deceased parents respectively. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1250, ch. 854, § 382.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

PER STIRPES OR PER CAPITA

In construing an illiterate will children of testator's brothers held to take per capita rather than per stirpes under residuary clause, although testator had used the words "divided between my Brother Edwin and Charles children." McIntire v. McIntire (192 U. S. 116, 48 L. Ed. 369, 24 Sup. Ct. 196, affg. 20 App. D. C. 134).

§ 18–711 [29: 291]. Share of collateral relations.

After children, descendants, father, mother, brothers, and sisters of the deceased and their descendants, all collateral relations in equal degree shall take, and no representation among such collaterals shall be allowed. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1250, ch. 854, § 383; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 530, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The 1902 amendment deleted the words "and there shall be no distinction between the whole and half-blood" at the end.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

COUSINS

Where will devised the residue consisting of personal property to heirs at law and next of kin in accordance with existing laws of the District, the surviving next of kin, who were first cousins, are entitled to take all the personalty as against second cousins who would have been heirs had realty been devised. Binford v. Diller (C. A., D. C. 1949, 177 F. 2d 731).

§ 18–712 [29: 292]. Share of grandfather and grandmother.

If there be no collaterals, the grandfathers and grandmothers, or such of them as survive, shall take alike. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1250, ch. 854, § 384; Mar. 6, 1935, 49 Stat. 39, ch. 28, § 2.)

AMENDMENT

The superseded 1901 act read as follows: "If there be no collaterals, a grandfather may take, and if there be two grandfathers they shall take alike; and a grandmother, in case of the death of her husband, the grandfather, shall take as he might have done."

§ 18–713 [29: 293]. Death of distributee before distribution.

If any person entitled to distribution shall die before the same shall be made, his or her share shall go to his or her representatives. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1250, ch. 854, § 385.)

CROSS REFERENCE

See note to § 18–704. Condon v. Mallan (58 App. D. C. 371, 30 Fed. (2d) 995).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

IN GENERAL

The widow on the death of her husband was a distributee of one-half of his personal estate. Owing to her being the beneficiary, this portion could not be ascertained until her death. Her estate then became entitled to her share, and her next of kin, her daughter, inherited her estate. Condon v. Mallan (58 App. D. C. 371, 30 Fed. (2d) 995).

§ 18–714 [29: 294]. Share of posthumous children.

Posthumous children of intestates shall take in the same manner as if they had been born before the decease of the intestate, but no other posthumous relation shall be considered as entitled to distribution in his or her own right. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1250, ch. 854, § 386.)

§ 18–715 [29: 295]. No distinction between whole and half-blood.

In the distribution of personal estate there shall be no distinction between the whole and half-blood. (June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 530, ch. 1329, § 386a.)

§ 18–716 [29: 296]. Share of illegitimate children—Their issue—Mother.

The illegitimate child or children of any female and the issue of any such illegitimate child or children shall be capable to take from their mother, or from each other, or from the descendants of each other, in like manner as if born in lawful wedlock. When an illegitimate child or children shall die leaving no descendants, or brothers or sisters, or the descendants of such brothers or sisters, then and in that case the mother of such illegitimate child or children, if living, shall be entitled as next of kin, and if the mother be dead the next of kin of the mother shall take in like manner as if such illegitimate child or children had been born in lawful wedlock. NOTES TO DECISIONS

CONSTRUCTION

A decision of the Maryland court, though not binding in this jurisdiction, should be given great weight in interpreting a statute of the District of Columbia which was presumably derived from the same source as the Maryland statute. Wilson v. Charlent (D. C. D. C. 1949, 81 F. Supp. 690).

CONSTRUCTION OF TERMS

"The mother of illegitimate children may be their next of kin, and illegitimate children of any female are next of kin to each other," and the phrase "next of kin" in section 1301 of the Code (§ 16–1201) is used in the same sense. Southern R. Co. v. Hawkins (35 App. D. C. 313).

LEGISLATIVE INTENT

"It was evidently the intent of Congress in enacting this statute to remove the common-law disability of inheritance through the maternal line, and to that extent places illegitimates upon the same basis as legitimates. This amounted to a declaration of public policy." Southern R. Co. v. Hawkins (35 App. D. C. 313).

Congress intended that an illegitimate child, insofar as inheritance is concerned, is to be considered in all respects as the child of its mother. It would be highly artificial to draw a distinction between property of which the mother was seized and possessed at the time of her death and the property of which she should have become seized and possessed had she lived. Wilson v. Charlent (D. C., D. C. 1949, 81 F. Supp. 690).

If there be no widow or relations of the intestate within the fifth degree, which shall be reckoned by counting down from the common ancestor to the more remote, the whole surplus shall belong to the District of Columbia, to be disbursed by the commissioners of the District for the benefit of the poor. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1251, ch. 854, § 388.)

CONVERSION OF PROPERTY

Where, in 1879, one died without known heirs or next of kin and a sum of money was found on his person which the authorities turned over to the policemen's pension fund, an administrator appointed in 1886 could recover such fund in tort for conversion since there was no authority in law for turning the money over to the pension fund. Tucker v. Nebeker, 2 App. D. C. 326.

POWER OF COURT

The probate court, upon a finding that there are no heirs of deceased intestate, has power to decree distribution to District of Columbia as escheatee. Frazier v. Kutz, 1944 (139 F. 2d 380, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 241).

The probate court's jurisdiction to hear, determine and decree upon all claims between executors and administrators and legatees or persons entitled to a distributive share of an intestate estate includes duty of finding that there are or that there are not statutory heirs, and upon the finding to make distribution as this section requires. Frazier v. Kutz, 1944 (139 F. 2d 380, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 241).

The probate court has power, in absence of next of kin, to order in a proper case the payment of residuum of intestate's estate to an escheatee, as this section provides. Frazier v. Kutz, 1944 (139 F. 2d 380, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 241).

PRESUMPTIONS

There is a presumption that an intestate left heirs and the presumption obtains until claimant by escheat overcomes it by strong and convincing evidence. Frazier v. Kutz, 1944 (139 F. 2d 380, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 241).

REMOTENESS OF RELATIONSHIP

A bequest to each one of testatrix's cousins living at the time of testatrix's death, irrespective of the remoteness of relationship, and of whether his or her parent cousin should be living, was not intended to incorporate this section, which provides that intestate property shall pass to the District, when there are no relations within the fifth degree. Dalton v. White, 1942 (129 F. 2d 55, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 93).

REMAND FOR FURTHER PROOF

Where creditor filed petition for administration of deceased's estate stating that after diligent search, creditor was satisfied that deceased died intestate and without surviving relation, and District of Columbia relied upon allegations of creditor's petition, pleadings and evidence were insufficient to authorize probate court to determine whether the District was entitled to distribution under this section, and case was remanded for determination of question whether intestate died without heirs. Frazier v. Kutz, 1944 (139 F. 2d 380, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 241).

TIME WHEN TITLE RESTS

If on death of an intestate there were no kin within classes named in this section, property after payment of debts eo instante vested in and became property of the District of Columbia as statutory escheatee. Frazier v. Kutz, 1944 (139 F. 2d 380, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 241).

§ 18–718 [29: 298]. Distribution of specific property.

In case the surplus remaining in the administrator's hands after payment of all just debts exhibited and proved or notified and not barred, or after retaining for the same, shall consist of specific property or articles mentioned in the inventory or inventories, the administrator, if he can not satisfy the parties, may apply to the court to make distribution, and the court may appoint a day for making distribution and by summons call on the said parties to appear; and the said court may, at the appointed time, proceed to distribute. But if a majority in point of value shall neglect to appear, or appearing shall object to the distribution of the articles, or if the court shall deem a sale of the said articles or any part of them more advantageous, a sale shall be directed accordingly, and the rules herein laid down relative to a sale by order of the said court shall be observed. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1251, ch. 854, § 389.)

§ 18–719 [29: 299]. Distribution of specific articles, how to be made.

Whenever a distribution of specific articles is to be made the probate court may appoint two disinterested persons, not in any way related to the parties concerned, to make such distribution among the persons entitled as to them shall seem meet and proper; or if, in their opinion, upon a view of such articles, no distribution among the persons entitled could be by them made which would operate equally, but a sale thereof would be more advantageous to such persons, they shall return to the probate court their opinion in writing, and the court shall thereupon order a sale of such articles, upon reasonable notice, and cause the proceeds of such sale to be equally distributed among the parties entitled. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1251, ch. 854, § 390.)

§ 18–720 [29: 300]. Partial distribution.

When any person entitled, after payment of debts, shall be in want of subsistence or greatly straitened in his circumstances, and shall apply to the probate court by petition, and satisfy the court that he is in want of subsistence or greatly straitened in circumstances, and that it probably will not require more than one-half of the assets to discharge the debts, the court may direct the administrator to deliver to the petitioner any part of what the court shall suppose will be his distributive share, or any part of a legacy or bequest in money not exceeding one-third part, the said petitioner giving bond, with security approved by the court, to the administrator for returning the same or an equivalent, with interest, whenever so directed by the court; and the court shall have power to determine in a summary way on any such petition, after summons against such administrator duly returned "summoned" or "non est." (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1251, ch. 854, § 391.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

IN GENERAL

"Section 391 (this section) authorizes the court to deliver any part of what the court shall suppose will be the distributive share," and the requirement of a bond is sufficient protection in the event that the beneficiary should subsequently be divested of her interest in the estate. Hutchins v. Hutchins (41 App. D. C. 122).

COLLECTORS

Collector may be authorized to make partial distribution under this section. Hutchins v. Hutchins (41 App. D. C. 122).

TRUSTEES

This section confers no jurisdiction on an equity court to order partial distribution of a fund administered by a trustee under its supervision. Hutchins v. Dante (40 App. D. C. 262).

§ 18–721 [29: 301]. Distribution of specific bequests.

And the court, in like manner, on any petition by a person in such circumstances to whom a specific legacy or bequest has been made, being satisfied that the assets, exclusive of all specific legacies, will not be nearly exhausted by debts, may direct the executor or administrator with the will annexed to deliver to the petitioner the said specific legacy or bequest on his giving bond as aforesaid. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1251, ch. 854, § 392.)

§ 18–722 [29: 302]. Bequest to female.

Where a bequest of personal property or money is made to a female and directed by the will to be paid on her attaining to full, mature, or to a lawful age, such female shall be entitled to receive and demand such personal property or money on her arriving at the age of eighteen years or being married. NOTES TO DECISIONS

IN GENERAL

Under a will directing the payment of income from an estate to a female "when she shall reach the age of eighteen years," she is entitled to receive it on attaining that age, and it should not be paid to her guardian. Perin v. Perin (41 W. L. R. 265).

This section provides an exception to the general rule under common law that infants, whether male or female, attain their majority at the age of 21 years. Jones v. Jones (63 App. D. C. 373, 72 Fed. (2d) 829, 95 A. L. R. 352).

§ 18–723 [29: 303]. Meeting of legatees or next of kin.

Any administrator shall be entitled to appoint a meeting of persons entitled to distributive shares or legacies or a residue, on some day by the court approved, and payment or distribution may be there made under the court's direction and control. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1251, ch. 854, § 394.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

IN GENERAL

"Ordinarily it would be safer for an administrator to pursue the course pointed out by this latter section (this section), but there is no express command of the law that he should do so." Miller-Shoemaker Co. v. Sturgeon (31 App. D. C. 406).

"This provision merely gives expression to the well-settled rule that a legacy is payable in cash, unless some other form of payment is authorized by the person entitled. In the present case the distributee was a nonresident, and the executors, waiving their right to make payment here under the direction of the court, assumed the risk of sending the money by check to California. To absolve themselves from responsibility to the distributee, it must appear that he expressly or impliedly authorized them so to act, and, unless he did, in contemplation of law the money still is in their hands and they must respond to the order of the court" directing them to pay it. In this case the check was received and cashed by an imposter, and the executors were directed to pay the legatee his distributive share. Moore v. Moore (47 App. D. C. 23).

Settlement of administrator's first and final accounts was not to be given the effect of an adjudication of distributee's rights. Claudy v. Duvall (55 App. D. C. 319, 5 Fed. (2d) 381).

Chapter 8.—FAMILY ALLOWANCE AND ADMINISTRATION OF SMALL ESTATES

Sec.
18–801. Family allowance for surviving spouse and minor children.
18–802. Petition for distribution of small estate—Order.
18–803. Waiver of administration—Publication of notice to creditors—Final order.
18–804. Exemptions from liability.
18–805. Waiver of bond and commissions.
18–806. Forms to be furnished—Fees.
18–807. Discovery of additional property.
18–808. False affidavits and other violations—Penalty.
18–809. Repeal of inconsistent laws.
18–810. Application of chapter.

§ 18–801. Family allowance for surviving spouse and minor children.

Upon the death of any person leaving a surviving spouse the said surviving spouse shall be entitled to an allowance out of the personal estate of said decedent of the sum of $500 for his or her use, and that of any minor children, to be paid in money or in specific property at its fair value as may be elected, and which allowance shall be exempt from any and all debts and obligations of the decedent, and subject only to payment of funeral expenses not exceeding $200; and, if there be no surviving spouse, the surviving minor children if any there be shall be entitled to a like allowance, and which shall be payable, in the discretion of the probate court, to the person having their custody or to such other person as it shall designate, and shall be used by such person solely for said minor's care and maintenance. Said family allowance shall be in addition to the respective share or shares of the surviving spouse and children. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 394 (a), as added June 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 269, ch. 244.)

§ 18–802. Petition for distribution of small estate—Order.

When any person dies, leaving a small estate consisting only of personal property of a value not in excess of $500, and there be a surviving spouse or minor children entitled to the family allowance authorized in the preceding section, if such surviving spouse or minor children (acting through the person having their custody or a next friend) file in the probate court a petition, under oath, declaring: The time and place of decedent's death; the known next of kin; the known assets and by whom held; that petitioner has made a diligent search to discover all assets of the deceased; the amount of funeral expenses and to whom due; and that said assets do not exceed $500 in value, the probate court, if satisfied that the allegations in the petition are true, shall pass a final order (1) declaring that no formal administration is necessary and no probate is required of any will; (2) fixing the amount of funeral expenses allowable, to whom due, and out of what property to be paid; (3) vesting title to the remainder of the property in the surviving spouse or minor children, as the case may be, in satisfaction of his, her, or their family allowance; and (4) directing the person or persons having possession of said property to pay over, transfer, and deliver the same as allotted. The probate court may also authorize in said order, or by further order, the sale of any of said property as the exigencies of the situation require. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 394 (b), as added June 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 269, ch. 244.)

§ 18–803. Waiver of administration—Publication of notice of creditors—Final order.

(1) When anyone dies intestate, leaving a small estate consisting only of personal property of a value not in excess of $500, and there be no spouse or minor children surviving, if the person entitled to be preferred in the appointment of an administrator files in the probate court a petition, under oath, declaring: The time and place of decedent's death; the known next of kin; that diligent search has been made for a will; the known creditors, together with the amount of each claim, including contingent and disputed claims; and funeral expenses; the known assets and by whom held; that petitioner has made a diligent search to discover all assets and debts of the deceased; that said assets do not exceed $500 in value; and that there are no known legal proceedings pending in which the decedent is a party; the probate court, if satisfied that the allegations in said petition are true, shall pass a preliminary order declaring that no formal administration is necessary and instructing the petitioner to publish once in substantially the usual form notice to creditors to exhibit their claims duly authenticated, within thirty days after such notice, and which notice shall be inserted in one newspaper of general circulation in the District of Columbia as said court shall direct.

(2) Whenever such a preliminary order has been passed and the notice has been published and the time provided in such notice has expired, the petitioner shall file, under oath, a statement, with the usual proof of publication attached, that the notice has been published, and that the said time has expired, and listing all then known creditors, including contingent and disputed claims, and the amount of each claim. If satisfied that said statement is true, and after hearing and disposing of any objections filed in the probate court by any one interested in the estate, the probate court shall pass a final order (1) directing the petitioner to pay from the estate all of said claims, in the order of priority provided by law, and (2) authorizing any person having possession of any property of the decedent's estate to transfer, pay over, and deliver the same in accordance with petitioner's directions, and (3) decreeing that, after the Register of Wills certifies upon said final order that he has seen the vouchers for the payment of said claims and is satisfied that said claims, as well as the fees hereinafter provided for, have been paid, then the remaining balance of the estate, if any, shall be vested as follows: First, in the adult surviving children equally, and, secondly, if there be no adult surviving children, then in those persons who would be entitled thereto under the statute of distributions (the share of any minor shall be payable, in the discretion of the probate court, to the person having custody or to such other person as it shall designate, to be used solely for the care and maintenance of such minor).

(3) The probate court may also provide in its final order for sale of any property, upon such terms as it deems advisable, and for the distribution of the proceeds in accordance with its final order. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 394 (c), as added June 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 269, ch. 244.)

§ 18–804. Exemptions from liability.

In the absence of fraud, no person who pays over, transfers, or delivers any property pursuant to the provisions of a final order entered under section 18–802, or to the directions of a petitioner acting under authority of a final order under section 18–803, shall be liable for the application thereof, nor shall any such person, nor any person who receives any property pursuant to the provisions of a final order entered under section 18–802, or to the directions of a petitioner acting under authority of a final order under section 18–803, be responsible for any claims on account of the payment, transfer, delivery, or receipt of such property; and the property distributed pursuant to a final order in either case shall be and become the absolute property of the respective distributees thereof. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 394 (d), as added June 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 269, ch. 244.)

§ 18–805. Waiver of bond and commissions.

No petitioner under this chapter shall be required to be represented by an attorney, or to give bond, nor receive any commission for performing any work or services hereunder. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 394 (e), as added June 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 269, ch. 244.)

§ 18–806. Forms to be furnished—Fees.

The Register of Wills shall prepare, and make available, forms whereby the petition and final order under section 18–802, and the petition, preliminary order, the statement, the final order, and the certificate of payment under section 18–803, shall constitute in each case one connected instrument. In lieu of all other fees, costs, or charges, the Register of Wills shall receive a fee of $5 for all services and work administered under this chapter, including the taking of all affidavits plus a fee of 25 cents for each certified copy of the aforesaid instruments. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 394 (f), as added June 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 269, ch. 244.)

§ 18–807. Discovery of additional property.

The discovery of any additional property of the decedent, after the filing of a petition in either case provided for in this chapter, shall be reported by the petitioner to the probate court as soon as discovered by him. The existence of said additional property shall not invalidate any proceedings under this chapter except when the additional property is discovered before the passage of the final order provided for, and either (1) is real estate or (2) increases the total value of the estate to more than $500, in which case no final order shall be passed under this chapter and the court shall require regular administration. Where additional property is discovered after passage of the final order, if said property is entirely personal and does not increase the value of the total estate to more than $500, then such additional property may be distributed pursuant to a new petition under the appropriate section of this chapter; in all other cases such additional property may not be distributed under this chapter. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 394 (g), as added June 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 269, ch. 244.)

§ 18–808. False affidavits and other violations—Penalties.

Any person who makes a false affidavit under this chapter, or who willfully violates any order of the probate court under this chapter or any other provision of this chapter, shall be liable to a fine of not exceeding $500 for each offense. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 394 (h), as added June 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 269, ch. 244.)

§ 18–809. Repeal of inconsistent laws.

All Acts or parts of Acts inconsistent with the provisions of this chapter shall be, and they are hereby, repealed to the extent of such inconsistency but only to such extent. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 394 (i), as added June 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 269, ch. 244.)

§ 18–810. Application of chapter.

This chapter shall apply to the estates of all persons dying after June 24, 1949. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 394 (j), as added June 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 269, ch. 244.)

TITLE 19.—WILLS

1.	Wills in general	19–101
2.	Devises by will	19–201
3.	Probate of wills	19–301
4.	Register of wills	19–401

Chapter 1.—WILLS IN GENERAL

Sec.
19–101. Capacity to make will.
19–102. Nuncupative wills invalid—Exception—Proof.
19–103. Form of will—Witnesses—Alteration—Revocation.
19–104. Devises to attesting witnesses void.
19–105. Attesting devisee not to retain nor demand any property under will or codicil.
19–106. Attestation by creditor valid.
19–107. Execution of power by will.
19–108. Revival of will after revocation.
19–109. Advancement as satisfaction of legacy.
19–110. Lapsed or void devises.
19–111. Opening will before delivery to probate court.

§ 19–101 [29: 21]. Capacity to make will.

No will, testament, or codicil shall be good and effectual for any purpose whatever unless the person making the same be, if a male, of the full age of twenty-one years, and if a female, of the full age of eighteen years, and be at the time of executing or acknowledging it, as hereinafter directed, of sound and disposing mind and capable of executing a valid deed or contract. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1433, ch. 854, § 1625.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Evidence

Any degree of importunity or undue influence which deprives the testator of his free agency, and which is such as he is too weak to resist, and in effect renders the instrument not his free and unconstrained act, is sufficient to and will invalidate the will or testament of the party. Barbour v. Moore (4 App. D. C. 535).

Declarations of testator and his relations with the parties are competent circumstances tending to throw light upon his state of mind and disposition. The only limitation is that it shall not be received as proof of the independent fact or the truth of the things declared, but as supplementary only to direct proof of the alleged fraud and undue influence. Manogue v. Herrell (13 App. D. C. 455).

Testimony plainly of a hearsay character, including the certificates of the physicians for the commitment of testator to insane asylum is inadmissible, especially when testimony of physicians themselves was not taken. Keely v. Moore (22 App. D. C. 9, affd. 196 U. S. 38, 49 L. Ed. 376, 25 Sup. Ct. 169).

In Federal courts a will is not set aside on evidence showing only suspicion or possibility of undue influence. Robinson v. Duvall (27 App. D. C. 535, affd. 207 U. S. 583, 52 L. Ed. 351, 28 Sup. Ct. 260).

It was proper to submit question to jury to determine testamentary capacity of testatrix, a woman of about eighty-two years, when she executed will during a decline of her physical and mental condition. Morgan v. Adams (29 App. D. C. 198, app. dism. 211 U. S. 627, 53 L. Ed. 362, 29 Sup. Ct. 213).

Trial court did not err when it excluded evidence which tended to show a delusion affecting person more than thirty years before the making of the will and codicils. Turner v. American Security & Trust Co. (29 App. D. C. 460, affd. 213 U. S. 257, 53 L. Ed. 788, 29 Sup. Ct. 420).

Testimony of testatrix's brother, who had made his home with her for 36 years, that testatrix had repeatedly agreed or promised in presence of others to leave him her real estate if he remained single and continued to live with her was admissible on issues of undue influence and testamentary capacity in opposition to probate of will naming testatrix's sister sole beneficiary. Duckett v. Duckett, 1943 (134 F. 2d 527, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 303).

Fraud and Undue Influence

If sole beneficiary of will, after taking sole charge of testatrix, first made false statements to other relatives with purpose of inducing them not to visit testatrix and then allowed her to suppose, contrary to fact, that the other relatives were making no effort to see testatrix, doing nothing for her and showing no interest in her welfare, such conduct would constitute both "fraud" and "undue influence" which would vitiate the will. Duckett v. Duckett, 1943 (134 F. 2d 527, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 303).

Incorporation of Document

Testator may so construct disposition of his property as to have recourse to some paper or document in order to explain his intention and to apply provisions of his will to the subject matter thereof. This doctrine of incorporation by reference must clearly identify the instrument to which will refers and must be in existence at the date of the will. Vestry of St. John's Parish v. Bostwick (8 App. D. C. 452).

Law Governing

The law of wills and of probate as existing in Maryland on February 27, 1801, was and is the law of the District of Columbia, except as since altered by Congress. Pascucci v. Alsop, 1945 (147 F. 2d 880; 79 U. S. App. D. C. 354, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1406, 89 L. Ed. 1987).

In re Allen's Estate (D. C., D. C. 1946, 64 F. Supp. 107).

Nature of Proceedings

Proceedings for the probate of wills are statutory and are substantially in rem. The proceeding is upon the will itself and to determine its status. The judgment runs against no person, but is, simply, that the instrument before the court is, or is not, the will of the testator. Cruit v. Owen (21 App. D. C. 378).

Sound and Disposing Mind

Fact to be found by the jury is not that the testator was demented at the particular time or that he was victim of insane delusions, but whether from any one of these conditions that he was not of sound and disposing mind and of capacity to make a valid deed or contract. National Safe Deposit, Sav. & Trust Co. v. Heiberger (19 App. D. C. 506).

If person of sound mind executes a will, and the same is his voluntary act, the law presumes knowledge on his part of its contents and such presumption also applies to illiterates. Lipphard v. Humphrey (28 App. D. C. 355, affd. 209 U. S. 264, 52 L. Ed. 783, 28 Sup. Ct. 561).

An insane delusion exists when a person conceives the existence of something fanciful and extravagant, something having no foundation in reason or fact, and is dominated and controlled by such imagination, and therefore acts as he would not otherwise have acted. Riddle v. Gibson (29 App. D. C. 237).

If one acts under a delusion superinduced by false testimony, of the falsity of which he has no knowledge, it cannot be said that he is the victim of an insane delusion. Morgan v. Morgan (30 App. D. C. 436, 13 Ann. Cas. 1037).

The test is whether the testator, at the time of executing the paper purporting to be his will, was capable of making a valid deed or contract. Lewis v. American Security & Trust Co. (53 App. D. C. 258, 289 Fed. 916); Thompson v. Smith (70 App. D. C. 65, 103 Fed. (2d) 936).

STATUS AS MARRIED WOMAN

Will made by married woman while separated from husband, from whom she is later divorced, was not revoked although she subsequently remarried. Chapman v. Dismer (14 App. D. C. 446).

§ 19–102 [29: 22]. Nuncupative wills invalid—Exception—Proof.

No nuncupative will made after Jan. 1, 1902, shall be valid in the District; but any soldier being in actual military service, or mariner being at sea, may dispose of his movables, wages, and personal estate by word of mouth: Provided, That such disposition shall be proved by at least two witnesses who were present at the making thereof and were requested by the testator to bear witness that such was his last will, nor unless such will were made in the time of the last sickness of the deceased, and the substance thereof reduced to writing within ten days after the making thereof. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1434, ch. 854, § 1634.)

All wills and testaments shall be in writing and signed by the testator, or by some other person in his presence and by his express directions, and shall be attested and subscribed in the presence of the said testator by at least two credible witnesses, or else they shall be utterly void and of no effect; and, moreover, no devise or bequest, or any clause thereof, shall be revocable otherwise than by some other will or codicil in writing or other writing declaring the same, or by burning, canceling, tearing, or obliterating the same by the testator himself or in his presence and by his direction and consent; but all devises and bequests shall remain and continue in force until the same be burned, canceled, torn, or obliterated by the testator or by his direction in the manner aforesaid, or unless the same be altered or revoked by some other will, testament, or codicil in writing, or other writing of the testator signed in the presence of at least two witnesses attesting the same, any former law or usage to the contrary notwithstanding. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1433, ch. 854, § 1626.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

ALTERATION

Where a testator properly executed a will on two sheets of paper, and subsequently attempted to alter the will by substituting another sheet for the first, which was discarded, without notifying witnesses, or signing in the presence of witnesses, it is not entitled to probate. Henry v. Fraser (58 App. D. C. 260, 29 Fed. (2d) 633, 62 A. L. R. 1364).

BIRTH OF CHILD

Where testator was unmarried and without children by a former marriage at time he executed will which contained no provision for any child of subsequent marriage, his subsequent marriage and the birth of a child amounted to an implied revocation of the previously executed will, notwithstanding this section specifying with particularity the manner in which will may be revoked. Pascucci v. Alsop, 1945 (147 F. 2d 880, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 354, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1406, 89 L. Ed. 1987).

A will in favor of wife executed by married man without children was not revoked by subsequent birth of a child. Allen v. Heron (App. D. C. 1946, 157 F. 2d 707).

Where will was executed after testator's marriage, subsequent birth of a child to the marriage did not operate as a revocation of will. In re Allen's Estate (D. C., D. C. 1946, 64 F. Supp. 107).

CANCELLATION

Pencil cross-marks across entire first page of will and large parts of second and third page, and across individual words and attestation clause, constituted "cancellation" of will. In re Smith's Estate (D. C., D. C. 1948, 77 F. Supp. 217).

CONSTRUCTION

In ascertaining meaning of this section governing revocation of will, court was to be guided by the construction of like provision of statute of frauds by courts of England and like provisions by courts of Maryland, from which jurisdiction, this section had been adopted. Pascucci v. Alsop, 1945 (147 F. 2d 880, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 354, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1406, 89 L. Ed. 1987).

Where this section, specifying with particularity the manner in which a will may be revoked and concluding with words "any former law or usage to the contrary notwithstanding," had been adopted from Maryland which had adopted the English statute of frauds which had been enacted in 1676, it was the "law or usage" prior to 1676 that was affected by those words. Pascucci v. Alsop, 1945 (147 F. 2d 880, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 354, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1406, 89 L. Ed. 1987).

Where English statute has been adopted, the known and settled construction of the statute by courts of law is considered as silently incorporated into the statute, or is received with all the weight of authority. Pascucci v. Alsop, 1945 (147 F. 2d 880, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 354, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1406, 89 L. Ed. 1987).

In absence of District of Columbia decisions construing this section regarding cancellation of wills, cases from other jurisdictions having similar statutory provisions are persuasive. In re Smith's Estate (D. C., D. C. 1948, 77 F. Supp. 217).

DEPENDENT RELATIVE REVOCATION

Attempted revision of bequest of six thousand eight hundred dollars after execution and attestation of will by writing other numbers and numerals over the word "six" and corresponding but entirely obliterated numeral was ineffective to revoke or revise bequest and hence under doctrine of "dependent relative revocation," original bequest must prevail. In re Chaconas' Estate (D. C., D. C. 1948, 80 F. Supp. 549).

Where second will, revoking first will, was cancelled by pencil marks across portions of will and attestation clause, without substituted will being prepared and without clear and convincing showing that testator had determined what disposition to make of property upon revocation, the doctrine of "dependent relative revocation" was inapplicable and second will must be deemed to have been revoked, without reinstating first will. In re Smith's Estate (D. C., D. C. 1948, 77 F. Supp. 217).

EVIDENCE

In the absence of other evidence of intent of testatrix in making various cancelations in her own handwriting on the face of original will, unwitnessed holographic writing found after death in writing desk drawer with original will constituted persuasive "evidence" that cancelations on original will were conditional and were dependent upon the consummation of an effective revised testamentary disposition along the lines of uncompleted suggestions in holographic writing. Wolfe v. Snyder (D. C., D. C. 1943, 48 F. Supp. 227).

Evidence established that cancelations in testatrix' handwriting on the face of original will were "conditional revocations" dependent upon consummation of an effective revised testamentary disposition in accordance with suggestions in unwitnessed holographic writing found in writing desk drawer with original will, and no such revised disposition having been consummated, the cancelations were ineffective, leaving original will in force. Wolfe v. Snyder (D. C., D. C. 1943, 48 F. Supp. 227).

Formalities

The re-execution of a will requires the same formalities as required for its original execution. Notes v. Doyle (32 App. D. C. 413).

Unless the formalities prescribed are complied with, the instrument is void. Survivors of Seventh Georgia Regiment v. Larner (55 App. D. C. 156, 3 Fed. (2d) 201).

Execution of will—qualification of witnesses—interest. Peters v. Peters (64 App. D. C. 331, 78 Fed. (2d) 215).

Marriage

In the United States, in absence of a statute abolishing the common-law rule and establishing a new rule in its place, the marriage of a man and the birth of a child, capable of inheriting, revoke a prior will, if both occur after the execution thereof, especially where the child is born after the death of its father. Pascucci v. Alsop, 1945 (147 F. 2d 880, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 354, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1406, 89 L. Ed. 1987).

Order of Signatures

Will was valid even though attesting witnesses signed it before testatrix where all signed at substantially same time and in each other's presence. Billings v. Woody (App. D. C. 1948, 167 F. 2d 756, certiorari denied 69 S. Ct. 46, 335 U.S. 822, 93 L. Ed. 377).

Partial Cancelation

Partial cancelation of will should be regarded as a final act of "revocation" by the testator in the absence of evidence that the act of cancelation was merely a deliberative act performed with the intention of later executing a codicil or a new will. Wolfe v. Snyder (D. C., D. C. 1943, 48 F. Supp. 227).

Presumptions

Marks amounting to cancellation on face of will are presumed to have been placed on document with intent to revoke. In re Smith's Estate (D. C., D. C. 1948, 77 F. Supp. 217).

Revocation—What Constitutes

A conveyance of the title subsequently declared void does not operate as a revocation of a previous will. McGowan v. Elroy (28 App. D. C. 188).

Subsequent marriage of testatrix and birth of issue does not revoke will. Morris v. Foster (51 App. D. C. 238, 278 Fed. 321).

Where cancellation or destruction of will is connected with the making of another will so as fairly to raise the inference that testator meant revocation of old will to depend upon the efficacy of the new disposition, if the will intended to be substituted is inoperative from defect of attestation or any other cause, the revocation fails and the original will remains in force. Wolfe v. Snyder (D. C., D. C. 1943, 48 F. Supp. 227).

Signature on Envelope

Writing which purported to be the will of decedent, which was executed by decedent, folded and sealed in an envelope, the face of which envelope was inscribed "my last will and testament" followed by witnesses' signatures under such inscription, was not entitled to probate because paper upon which witnesses affixed their signatures was not physically attached to paper purporting to be the will and witnesses had not affixed their signatures to will itself. In re Lee's Estate (D. C., D. C. 1948, 80 F. Supp. 293).

Subscription

The evidence would allow an inference that the testator had signed in an adjoining room before he brought the will to the room in which the witnesses were present, and in the absence of clear and convincing testimony to the contrary, the presumption of regularity is not defeated. Betts v. Lonas (C. A. D. C. 1948, 172 A. 2d 759, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 206).

Transfer Effective at Death

Generally, where design of owner of bank deposit is to retain sole control during his life and intended transfer or gift is not to take effect until death, arrangement is testamentary in character and void under statute of wills. Gibson v. Industrial Bank of Washington (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 36 A. 2d 62).

What Law Governs

All wills, in their very nature, are ambulatory and revocable during the life of the testator; and, in respect to personal estate, they speak only from and have effect upon the death of the testator; and to say that a will shall have effect and be declared valid in respect to a prior law, which has been repealed and given place to a different rule as a substitute, is to declare valid a testamentary paper without existing law to support it. Colonna v. Alton (23 App. D. C. 296).

Witnessing

Attesting witnesses need not know the contents of the document; "they may attest it without the presence of each other; they, or any of them, need not see the testator sign the will, provided he acknowledge the signature to each of the witnesses; and they need not even know that the document they have witnessed is a will." Notes v. Doyle (32 App. D. C. 413).

It is not necessary that testator should sign his will in the presence of witnesses, but that he shall, before witnesses sign, indicate that the document is his will and that he has signed it. Bullock v. Morehouse (57 App. D. C. 231, 19 Fed. (2d) 705).

§ 19–104 [29: 24]. Devises to attesting witnesses void.

If any person shall attest the execution of any will or codicil to whom any beneficial devise, legacy, estate, interest, gift, or appointment of or affecting any real or personal estate, other than and except charges on lands, tenements or hereditaments for payment of any debt or debts, shall be thereby given or made, such devise, legacy, estate, interest, gift, or appointment, shall, so far only as concerns such person attesting the execution of such will or codicil, or any person claiming under him, be utterly null and void; and such person shall be admitted as a witness to the execution of such will or codicil; notwithstanding such devise, legacy, estate, interest, gift or appointment mentioned in such will or codicil. (25 Geo. II, ch. 6, § 1, 1752; Kilty's Rep., p. 253; Alex. Br. Stat., p. 781; Comp. Stat., D. C., p. 557, § 5.)

Compiler's Note

This section sets forth a British statute continued in force by virtue of the act of March 3, 1901 (31 Stat. 1189, ch. 854, § 1). It was obviously impossible to modernize the language of this statute.

§ 19–105 [29: 25]. Attesting devisee not to retain nor demand any property under will or codicil.

No person to whom any beneficial estate, interest, gift, or appointment shall be given or made, which is null and void under section 19–104, and who shall have been examined as a witness concerning the execution of such will or codicil, shall, after he shall have been so examined, demand or take possession of or receive any profits or benefit of or from any such estate, interest, gift, or appointment so given or made to him in or by any such will or codicil; or demand, receive, or accept from any person or persons whatsoever, any such legacy or bequest, or any satisfaction or compensation for the same, in any manner, or under any colour or pretence whatsoever. (25 Geo. II, ch. 6, § 7, 1752; Kilty's Rep., p. 253; Alex. Br. Stat., p. 783; Comp. Stat. D. C., p. 558, § 7.)

§ 19–106 [29: 26]. Attestation by creditor valid.

In case, by any will or codicil already made or hereafter to be made, any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, are or shall be charged with any debt or debts; and any creditor whose debt is so charged, hath attested or shall attest the execution of such will or codicil, every such creditor, notwithstanding such charge, shall be admitted as a witness to the execution of such will or codicil. (25 Geo. II, ch. 6, § 2, 1752; Kilty's Rep., p. 253; Alex. Br. Stat., p. 782; Comp. Stat. D. C., p. 558, § 6.)

No appointment made by will in the exercise of a power shall be valid unless the same be so executed that it would be valid for the disposition of the property to which the power applies if it belonged to the testator. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1434, ch. 854, § 1629.)

No will or codicil, or any part thereof, which shall be in any manner revoked shall, after being revoked, be revived otherwise than by the re-execution thereof, or by a codicil executed in the manner hereinbefore required, and then only to the extent to which an intention to revive is shown. NOTES TO DECISIONS

APPLICATION OF STATUTE

Section has no bearing when the doctrine of "dependent relative revocation" is invoked. In Re Nutting's Estate (D. C. D. C. 1949, 82 F. Supp. 689).

§ 19–109 [29: 29]. Advancement as satisfaction of legacy.

A provision for or advancement to any person shall be deemed a satisfaction, in whole or in part of a devise or bequest to such person contained in a previous will if it would be so deemed in case the devisee or legatee were the child of the testator; and, whether he be a child or not, it shall be so deemed in all cases in which it shall appear from parol or other evidence to be so intended. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1434, ch. 854, § 1630.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

EVIDENCE

Evidence established that payments made by testator during lifetime to brother were made in payment of trust obligation arising before execution of will and were not intended to be in partial satisfaction of bequest to brother. In re Chaconas' Estate (D. C., D. C. 1948, 80 F. Supp. 549).

PARENT AS DEBTOR

Where parent, who is a debtor to his child, makes an advancement to such child, it is presumed to be a satisfaction pro tanto of the debt. Glover v. Patten (165 U. S. 394, 41 L. Ed. 760, 17 Sup. Ct. 411, affg. 1 App. D. C. 466).

PRESUMPTIONS

A legacy is never presumed to be in satisfaction of a trust obligation. In re Chaconas' Estate (D. C., D. C. 1948, 80 F. Supp. 549).

§ 19–110 [29: 30]. Lapsed or void devises.

If a devisee or legatee die before the testator, leaving issue who survive the testator, such issue shall take the estate devised or bequeathed as the devisee or legatee would have done if he had survived the testator, unless a different disposition be made or required by the will. Unless a contrary intention appear by the will, such property as shall be comprised in any devise or bequest in such will which shall fail or be void or otherwise incapable of taking effect shall be deemed included in the residuary devise or bequest, if any, contained in such will. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1434, ch. 854, § 1631.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CERTAINTY OF CHARITABLE BEQUESTS

Charitable bequest held not void for uncertainty. Washington Loan & Trust Co. v. Hammond (51 App. D. C. 260, 278 Fed. 569).

COMMON LAW

The common law still prevails in this District as to devises and bequests contained in the residuum. George Washington University v. Riggs Nat. Bank (66 App. D. C. 389, 88 Fed. (2d) 771).

At common law, a bequest of personalty which failed of distribution would go to the residuum or next of kin, but not so as to devises of realty. George Washington University v. Riggs Nat. Bank (66 App. D. C. 389, 88 Fed. (2d) 771).

CONSTRUCTION

Where a bequest was made to a legatee and the legatee predeceased grantor and where the residuary clause distributed the residue including lapsed legacies to four institutions, the special bequest passes into the residuary estate and goes to the institution named. Bunker v. Jones (C. A. D. C. 1950, 181 F. 2d 619, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 231).

CY PRES DOCTRINE

The doctrine of "judicial cy pres" applies in the District of Columbia. Noel v. Olds, 1944 (138 F. 2d 581, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 155, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 611, 321 U. S. 773, 88 L. Ed. 1067).

The doctrine of judicial cy pres is recognized in the District of Columbia but the facts of the case do not warrant the invocation of such doctrine. Roberds v. Markham (D. C. D. C. 1948, 81 F. Supp. 38).

DEATH OF LEGATEE

Death of a specific legatee prior to death of the testator will "lapse" the legacy in the absence of a statute otherwise providing. Wolfe v. Snyder (D. C., D. C. 1943, 48 F. Supp. 227).

INTENT

Words of a will cannot be ignored in searching its meaning as the court must look within the four corners of the will for the intention of the testatrix and the language must be given effect. If and when read with other parts of the will such intent can be ascertained, the statute does not apply in this case. Pace v. Bradley (C. A. D. C. 1948, 171 F. 2d 350, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 212).

TRUST FUNDS, BALANCE OF

Testamentary provision for issue of beneficiary for life of testamentary trust to take the balance of trust fund was a "different disposition made or required by will" within meaning of this section, and hence where beneficiary for life predeceased testatrix his issue took the trust fund outright. Wolfe v. Snyder (D. C., D. C. 1943, 48 F. Supp. 227).

§ 19–111 [29: 31]. Opening will before delivery to probate court.

It shall be lawful for any person in whose possession or custody a will or codicil shall be after the death of the testator or testatrix, to open and read the same in the presence of any near relatives of the deceased, who may conveniently have notice thereof, and of other persons, and immediately thereafter to deliver such will or codicil to the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia, holding a special term as a probate court, or to the register of wills, until due proceedings may be had for proving the same, or until it be demanded by an executor or other person authorized to demand it, for the purpose of having it proved according to law. (June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 545, ch. 1329, § 1635a.)

All lands, tenements, and hereditaments, and personal estate which might pass by deed or gift, or which would, in case of the proprietor's dying intestate, descend to or devolve on his or her heirs or other representatives, shall be subject to be disposed of, transferred, and passed by his or her last will, testament, or codicil, in accordance with the provisions of this title. NOTES TO DECISIONS

EQUITABLE ESTATE

Devise of equitable estate remaining in grantor, after he has created a naked power in one to convey an estate to another upon the performance of a condition. Mayer v. American Security & Trust Co. (33 App. D. C. 391, affd. 222 U. S. 295, 56 L. Ed. 206, 32 Sup. Ct. 95).

PRESUMPTION

In determining whether the property of a testator passes by his will, there is a presumption that he did not intend to die intestate, which presumption is greatly strengthened by words of general description in the residuary clause. Fairclaw v. Forrest, 1942 (130 F. 2d 829, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 197, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 531, 318 U. S. 756, 87 L. Ed. 1130).

TITLE, PASSAGE OF

Where property or interest is devisable at the time of testator's death, and testator has sufficiently indicated his testamentary intention to dispose of it, the will is effective to pass the title to the devisee. Fairclaw v. Forrest, 1942 (130 F. 2d 829, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 197, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 531, 318 U. S. 756, 87 L. Ed. 1130).

§ 19–202 [29: 42]. Bequests for religious purposes.

No devise or bequest of lands, or goods, or chattels to any minister, public teacher, or preacher of the gospel, as such, or to any religious sect, order, or denomination, or to or for the support, use, or benefit of or in trust for any minister, public teacher, or preacher of the gospel, as such, or any religious sect, order, or denomination, shall be valid unless the same shall be made at least one calendar month before the death of the testator. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1434, ch. 854, § 1635.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CONSTRUCTION

Statute is to be strictly construed, since its purpose is to prevent improvident testamentary gifts to the exclusion of lawful heirs. Such a construction should be adopted which will prevent intestacy and not one which will render the will invalid. The doctrine of "dependent relative revocation" is to be applied to facts presented. In Re Nutting's Estate (D. C., D. C. 1949, 82 F. Supp. 689).

SECTARIAN INSTITUTIONS

Georgetown College held not to be a sectarian institution, so that bequest made to it less than one calendar month before testator's death was not void. Speer v. Colbert (200 U. S. 130, 50 L. Ed. 403, 26 Sup. Ct. 201, affg. 24 App. D. C. 187).

§ 19–203 [29: 43]. General devise of all property.

Every devise and bequest purporting to be of all real or personal property, or both, belonging to the testator shall be construed to include also all property of either or both kinds, respectively, over which he has a general power of appointment, unless the contrary intention shall appear in the will or codicil containing such devise or bequest. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1434, ch. 854, § 1633; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 545, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The act of 1902 deleted a phrase, "and the legal title of all such property which he holds in trust," following the word "appointment."

CROSS REFERENCE

See notes to § 19–201.

§ 19–204 [29: 44]. Devise of land to include leaseholds.

A devise of the land of a testator, or of his land in any place, or in the occupation of a person named or otherwise described in a general manner, shall be construed to include his leasehold estates or any of them to which such descriptions shall extend, as well as freehold estates, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1434, ch. 854, § 1632.)

§ 19–205 [29: 45]. After-acquired real estate.

Any will executed after January 17, 1887, and before the first day of January 1902, devising real estate, from which it shall appear that it was the intention of the testator to devise property acquired after the execution of the will, shall be deemed, taken, and held to operate as a valid devise of all such property; and any will executed after January 1, 1902, which shall by words of general import devise all the estate or all the real estate of the testator shall be deemed, taken, and held to operate as a valid devise of any real estate acquired by said testator after the execution of such will, unless it shall appear therefrom that it was not the intention of the testator to devise such after-acquired property. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1433, ch. 854, § 1628; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 545, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The 1902 amendment added the first part of the section ending with the words "January 1, 1902."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

INTENTION

Although a testator may dispose by will of after-purchased lands, it is nevertheless necessary that his intention to make such disposition should clearly appear upon the face of the will. Bradford v. Matthews (9 App. D. C. 438).

Under act of June 30, 1902, a will is made to operate and take effect upon all real estate of the testator owned by him at the time of his death, unless it shall appear from the will that it was not the intention of the testator to devise such after-acquired property. Crenshaw v. McCormick (19 App. D. C. 494).

PASSAGE BY RESIDUARY CLAUSE

Any will containing a general residuary clause, or general devise of all of the testator's real property, sufficient under the old law to pass all real estate possessed at the time of its execution, would pass all after-acquired real estate as well. Taylor v. Leesnitzer (37 App. D. C. 356), overruling McAleer v. Schneider (2 App. D. C. 461).

PROPERTY IN ENTIRETY

A will by either spouse disposing of property held in entirety will be given effect when the other spouse dies first and the will remains unchanged and unrepublished until the death of the survivor. Fairclaw v. Forrest, 1942 (130 F. 2d 829, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 197, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 531, 318 U. S. 756, 87 L. Ed. 1130).

PURPOSE

The purpose of this section making wills executed after January 1, 1902, effective as to after-acquired real estate in absence of intention to contrary, was to make general words of devise effective without reference to the time of acquisition of property and not to change the nature of estates from inalienable or nondevisable to devisable ones. Fairclaw v. Forrest, 1942 (130 F. 2d 829, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 197, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 531, 318 U. S. 756, 87 L. Ed. 1130).

RESIDUARY CLAUSE

Where will executed in 1928 stated that testatrix's husband had been excluded from benefits thereunder because all the real estate in which testatrix was interested was held in joint tenancy with husband and all of testatrix's earnings for 25 years had gone into such real estate, and the residuary clause devised all the residue, real, personal, and mixed, to testatrix's brother, and testatrix's husband thereafter died before testatrix whose will was not thereafter republished, the residuary clause was valid, as respects real estate theretofore owned by testatrix in joint tenancy with her husband who had predeceased testatrix. Fairclaw v. Forrest, 1942 (130 F. 2d 829, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 197, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 531, 318 U. S. 756, 87 L. Ed. 1130).

WILL, EFFECTIVE DATE

Before the Wills Act of 1837 and the after-acquired property statutes, the testator could not devise realty which he did not own at the time he made his will because of the theory that a devise of realty took effect on the date of the execution of the will but so far as it formerly applied to exclude after-acquired property from the effects of the will, this section has overruled such theory and the will is effective as of the date of death. Fairclaw v. Forrest, 1942 (130 F. 2d 829, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 197, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 531, 318 U. S. 756, 87 L. Ed. 1130).

19–313. Wills filed prior to June 8, 1898, may be probated as of real estate.

§ 19–301 [29: 51]. Notice of petition for probate.

Upon the filing of a petition for probate of a will, notice, as hereinafter provided, shall be issued to all persons who would be entitled to or interested in the estate of the testator in case such will had not been executed to appear in said court on a date named in the notice, and to show cause why the prayer of the petition should not be granted.

(a) Such notice may be by a citation in which the return date named is not earlier than ten days after the filing of said petition, and which citation shall be served in the District of Columbia, by the United States marshal, or deputy marshal, not less than five days before the return day named in said citation.

(b) Such notice may be by a citation in which the return date named is not earlier than twenty days after the filing of said petition, and which citation shall be served not less than ten days before the return date named in said citation: Provided, That such citation may be served only on nonresidents of the District of Columbia, and upon residents of said District who have been returned "Not to be found" under paragraph (a) of this section, and such service may be made only by a person not less than eighteen years of age who is not a party to or otherwise interested in the estate of the decedent, and the return in such case must be made under oath in the District of Columbia, unless the person making the service be a sheriff or deputy sheriff, a marshal or deputy marshal, authorized to serve process where service is made, and such return must show the time and place of service.

(c) Such notice, whenever there is proof by the petition for probate or by other affidavit that any or all of such persons, interested as aforesaid, are nonresidents of the District of Columbia, or whenever they or any of them have been returned "Not to be found" under paragraph (a) of this section, may be by a publication in which the return date named is not less than thirty days after the date of the first appearance of the publication, and which shall be published once in each of three successive weeks in some newspaper of general circulation in the District of Columbia, and a copy of this published notice shall be mailed to the last-known address of each of the persons, interested as aforesaid, who is not shown to have been returned served personally under either paragraph (a) or paragraph (b) of this section. The court may by general rule prescribe the form of such notice by publication, and may order such other publication as the case may require.

In all cases where it is made to appear to the satisfaction of the court that all or any of the next of kin or heirs at law of the deceased are unknown, such unknown next of kin or heirs at law may be proceeded against and described in the publication of notice hereinbefore provided for as "the unknown next of kin," or "the unknown heirs at law," as the case may be, of the deceased, and by such publication of such notice under such designation such unknown next of kin and heirs at law shall be as effectually bound and concluded as if known and their names were specifically set forth in said order of publication.

In case any will shall have been admitted to probate prior to June 30, 1902, upon publication against unknown heirs or next of kin, any person interested may file a petition for further probate of such will, alleging that the heirs at law or next of kin of the deceased, or some of them, as the case may be, are unknown, and upon satisfactory showing being made to the court publication of notice may be made against the unknown next of kin or heirs at law of the deceased; and upon such publication being made, as required by the court, a decree may be made confirming such previous probate, and such decree so made shall be as effectual as if the said heirs at law or next of kin were named in the order of publication. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1211, ch. 854, sec. 130; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 526, ch. 1329; June 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 267, ch. 241, § 1.)

AMENDMENTS

The act of June 24, 1949, cited to text, among other changes in the first paragraph, set out separately paragraphs (a), (b) and (c).

The 1902 amendment struck out the following: "If the parties in interest, or any of them, be unknown, upon statement of that fact in the petition under oath, they may be described therein, and in the notice of publication, as the unknown heirs and next of kin of the decedent, with like effect as if known and specifically named in the petition, notice and proceedings," and inserted the last two paragraphs.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

JURISDICTION OF PROBATE COURT

Probate court has been clothed with full and complete jurisdiction to take proof of wills of either personal or real estate, and to admit the same to probate and record, and Congress, having established this special court for this special purpose, intended its jurisdiction to be exclusive. Gracie v. American Security & Trust Co. (51 App. D. C. 141, 277 Fed. 543).

LAW GOVERNING

The law of wills and of probate as existing in Maryland on February 27, 1801, was and is the law of the District of Columbia, except as since altered by Congress. Pascucci v. Alsop, 1945 (147 F. 2d 880, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 354, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1406, 89 L. Ed. 1987); In re Allen's Estate (D. C., D. C. 1946, 64 F. Supp. 107).

VOLUNTARY APPEARANCE

Where a petition alleged widower as only next of kin, upon whom service was had, and he appeared, filed a caveat, and the will was sustained, and thereafter publication was had for unknown heirs, and the widower moved to vacate the verdict on the ground that court was without jurisdiction because of failure to publish before framing the issues, jurisdiction attached to any person who voluntarily appeared. Lewis v. Luckett (32 App. D. C. 188, affd. 221, U. S. 554, 55 L. Ed. 851, 31 Sup. Ct. 682), citing Dugan v. Northcutt (7 App. D. C. 351).

WAIVER OF CITATION

Citation may be waived (see § 19–304) and such waiver of citation does not estop the filing of a caveat. Bowen v. Howenstein (39 App. D. C. 585).

§ 19–302 [29: 52]. Who may appear.

Any person, although not cited, who may be interested in sustaining or defeating the will may appear and support or oppose the application to admit the same to probate. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1212, ch. 854, § 133.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

SUFFICIENCY OF INTEREST

"Any interest, however slight, is sufficient to entitle a party to oppose a testamentary paper, and for like reason, such interest entitles a party to insist upon probate." Vestry of St. John's Parish v. Bostwick (8 App. D. C. 452).

§ 19–303 [29: 53]. Guardian ad litem for infant or non compos.

Whenever it shall appear that any party interested as aforesaid is under age, or non compos, the court shall appoint a guardian ad litem to represent said party at the hearing of the application to admit the will to probate, and with authority to file a caveat, as he may be advised, in behalf of said party. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1212, ch. 854, § 138.)

§ 19–304 [29: 54]. Waiver of notice—Proof of execution.

If all parties interested adversely to the will shall waive the notice aforesaid and consent that the will be admitted to probate and record, it may be so admitted to probate and record without the proceedings directed as aforesaid: Provided, That in no case shall any will or testament be admitted to probate and record save upon formal proof of its proper execution. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1212, ch. 854, § 135.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

JURISDICTION OF PROBATE COURT

Probate court has exclusive jurisdiction to take proof of wills and to admit the same to probate and record. Gracie v. American Security & Trust Co. (51 App. D. C. 141, 277 Fed. 543).

PROOF

Admission by caveator of formal execution of will does not dispense with necessity for proof thereof. National Safe Deposit, Sav. & Trust Co. v. Heiberger (19 App. D. C. 506).

WAIVER OF CITATION

Waiver of citation does not preclude subsequent filing of caveat, Bowen v. Howenstein (39 App. D. C. 585), but does bring party within jurisdiction of court. Fardon v. Washington Loan & Trust Co. (44 App. D. C. 69).

§ 19–305 [29: 55]. Probate.

When the notice as prescribed in section 19–301 has been completed in any case, the court shall proceed, if no caveat be filed, to take the proofs, or to consider the proofs theretofore taken, of the execution of the will. All the witnesses to such will who are within the District and competent to testify must be produced and examined, or the absence of any of them satisfactorily accounted for. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1211, ch. 854, § 131; June 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 267, ch. 241, § 2.)

AMENDMENTS

The act of June 24, 1949, cited to text, amended section by subsituting as the first sentence thereof, the words "When notice as prescribed in section 19–301 has been completed in any case, the court shall proceed, if no caveat be filed, to take the proofs, or to consider the proofs theretofore taken, of the execution of the will" in lieu of "On the day appointed as aforesaid, or such subsequent day as the court may appoint, due proof of such publication and mailing being made, the court shall proceed to take proof of the will".

NOTES TO DECISIONS

ILLITERATE TESTATORS

The same rule applies in cases of illiterate testators. Lipphard v. Humphrey (28 App. D. C. 355, affd. 209 U. S. 264, 52 L. Ed. 783, 28 Sup. Ct. 561).

PRODUCTION OF WITNESSES

"In all cases the subscribing witnesses, if living and within the jurisdiction, must be called to prove the fact of execution; and if it appears from their evidence that the will was formally executed and the testator competent, it must be admitted to probate." Lipphard v. Humphrey (28 App. D. C. 355, affd. 209 U. S. 264, 52 L. Ed. 783, 28 Sup. Ct. 561).

WITNESS DEAD

"When any of the witnesses to a will has died, proof of his signature is sufficient prima facie proof of attestation of the will by him." Keely v. Moore (22 App. D. C. 9, affd. 196 U. S. 38, 49 L. Ed. 376, 25 Sup. Ct. 169).

§ 19–306 [29: 56]. Proof of will—Register of wills may take testimony—Witnesses beyond District of Columbia.

In case the will contains a devise of real estate, and any attesting witness thereto residing in the District is unable, from sickness, age, or other cause, to attend court, the register of wills may, with such will, attend upon said witness and take his testimony. If the testimony of resident attesting witnesses or witness to such will shall have been taken, and any other such witness to said will shall reside out of the District or be temporarily absent therefrom, but within the United States, it shall be sufficient to prove the signature of such witnesses so out of the District.

If the sole witnesses to such will shall be out of said District as aforesaid, or if one or more should be within the United States and one or more be in some foreign country, then it shall be sufficient to take the testimony of any one or all within the United States, as the court may determine, and to prove the signatures of those whose testimony is not required to be taken.

If all such witnesses shall be out of the United States, then it will be sufficient to take the testimony of such of them as the court may require, and to prove the signature or signatures of the others.

The testimony of such witnesses out of the District to be taken hereunder shall be under a commission issued by the court to one or more competent persons, and in such case the original will or codicil shall accompany the commission and be exhibited to the witnesses.

No notice need be given of the time and place of taking such testimony, unless in a case in which probate is opposed. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1211, ch. 854, § 132.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

DEPOSITIONS

Depositions can be substituted for oral testimony only by statutory authority. Hutchins v. Hutchins (41 App. D. C. 367).

EVIDENCE

Declarations of testatrix made after execution of her will showing that she made a different disposition of her property are inadmissible, especially when there is no tendency to show want of mental capacity. Lipphard v. Humphrey (28 App. D. C. 355, affd. 209 U. S. 264, 52 L. Ed. 783, 28 Sup. Ct. 561).

NONRESIDENT WITNESS

"Section 132 of the Code (this section) specifically provides that, if the testimony of the resident witness is taken and any other witness resides out of the District, it shall be sufficient to prove the signature of such nonresident witness, and that the will shall thereupon be admitted to probate." Scott v. Herrell (31 App. D. C. 45).

TESTIMONY OF WITNESS IN FOREIGN COUNTRY

D. C. 1901, § 1058 (31 Stat. 1354, ch. 854 (§ 14–201)) expressly provides that to take the testimony of a witness in a foreign country, letters rogatory shall issue, addressed to some court of record therein, accompanied by the interrogatories and cross-interrogatories propounded to the witness. Hutchins v. Hutchins (41 App. D. C. 367).

§ 19–307 [29: 57]. Caveat—Will not to be probated while issues pending.

If, upon or prior to the hearing of the application to admit the will to probate, any party in interest shall file a caveat in opposition, duly verified, and setting forth facts inconsistent with the validity of the will, the said will shall not be admitted to probate until the issues raised by said caveat shall be determined, as hereinafter directed. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1212, ch. 854, § 136.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

BURDEN OF PROOF

Under a caveat to a will challenging the mental capacity of the testator, whether before or after the will has been admitted to probate, the burden of proof on the issue whether the testator was of sound and disposing mind and capable of executing a valid deed or contract, is upon the caveator. Brosnan v. Brosnan (263 U. S. 345, 68 L. Ed. 332, 44 Sup. Ct. 117).

EQUITABLE REMEDIES

"Equity furnishes the only complete remedy in the exceptional class of cases * * * where the complex relief sought consists in setting aside a deed and will embracing the same property and the same parties, enjoining the beneficiaries * * * and declaring them trustees * * * with a general order for an accounting. This is true, even though there be * * * an adequate statutory remedy (this section and § 19–309)." Karrick v. Landon (41 App. D. C. 416).

§ 19–308 [29: 58]. Admission to probate.

If, upon hearing the proofs submitted, the court shall be of opinion that the will was duly executed and the testator was competent to execute the same, and no caveat shall be filed against the admission of the same to probate, the court shall decree that the said will be admitted to probate and record. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1212, ch. 854, § 134.)

§ 19–309 [29: 59]. Caveat.

If, upon the hearing of the application to admit a will to probate, the court shall decree that the same be admitted to probate, any person in interest may file a caveat to said will and pray that the probate thereof may be revoked at any time within one year after such decree. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1212, ch. 854, § 137; June 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 268, ch. 243.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

APPEAL

Appellate court will not reach the question of fraud upon the merits because a caveator cannot raise on appeal an issue which he failed to pose as an issue to be tried in a caveat proceeding. Probate procedure in this jurisdiction gives any person in interest ample opportunity to raise by caveat, prior to the decree of probate, any issue he may wish to raise in respect of the validity of a will. Lanston v. Schwartz (C. A. D. C. 1949, 174 F. 2d 31, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 329).

APPEARANCE

Signing of waiver constitutes appearance, but, by leave of court, same may be withdrawn. Fardon v. Washington Loan & Trust Co. (44 App. D. C. 69).

Signing of waiver brings one within one-year limitation, notwithstanding fact that there was a subsequent order of publication. Fardon v. Washington Loan & Trust Co. (44 App. D. C. 69).

DEFENSE TO COMPULSORY ACCOUNTING

After probate of a will and until revocation, executor is required to act in accordance with terms of will, and, in absence of wrongdoing on his part, is fully protected in so doing. Cashell v. Eslin (D. C., D. C. 1944, 55 F. Supp. 747).

ESTOPPEL TO FILE

Quaere: Whether receipt of legacy under will works an estoppel to file a caveat and effect of offer to return the same. Craighead v. Alexander (38 App. D. C. 229).

RIGHT TO FILE

"The object of the section is to extend to the persons coming within its description a certain period within which to contest a will that has been regularly admitted to probate. As to them the probate is not a finality until the expiration of the prescribed periods. Until then the right to the caveat is absolute." Craighead v. Alexander (38 App. D. C. 229).

Waiver and consent does not deprive any person of right to file a caveat. Fardon v. Washington Loan & Trust Co. (44 App. D. C. 69), citing Bowen v. Howenstein (39 App. D. C. 585).

SUFFICIENCY OF INTEREST

The interest which a person must possess to enable him to assail the validity of a will is such that, had the testator died intestate, he would have been entitled to a distributive share in the estate. Angell v. Groff (42 App. D. C. 198).

Petition for caveat of will must show petitioner to be "next of kin," but also "person in interest." Naylor v. Mealy (62 App. D. C. 321, 67 Fed. (2d) 693).

To be a person interested, a beneficiary under a prior will must show that, except for the effect of the later will, if valid, to revoke the earlier one, the latter remained the last will and testament of the testator until his death. Werner v. Frederick (68 App. D. C. 158, 94 Fed. (2d) 627).

An heir, claiming by intestacy, may caveat a probated will regardless of possible effect of an earlier purported will which has not been proved or put in issue by any one claiming under it. Lonas v. Betts (App. D. C. 1947, 160 F. 2d 281, 82 U. S. App. D. C. 55; see also 172 F. 2d 759, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 206).

TIME FOR FILING

When the caveat was not filed until more than three months after the order of probate, the allegations of fraud, practiced in procuring the waiver of citation and service, were evidently made to excuse their failure to proceed within statutory period, and when further delayed for year and day, it was of no effect. Craighead v. Alexander (38 App. D. C. 229).

When person was legally alive for more than two years after the probate of his father's will, he was barred from caveating the will, and his heirs, having no rights which they could assert during his lifetime, are likewise barred. Angell v. Groff (42 App. D. C. 198).

The dismissal of a caveat to a will, which involved real and personal property, in so far as caveat was a caveat to a will of personal property, was proper where will was admitted to probate on July 5, 1938, and caveat was not filed until June 30, 1939. Hengesbach v. Hengesbach, 1940 (114 F. 2d 845, 73 App. D. C. 1).

§ 19–310 [29: 60]. No prior will to be probated pending issues.

While issues raised by a caveat are pending, either for trial or on appeal, no prior will shall be admitted to probate. (Apr. 19, 1920, 41 Stat. 557, ch. 153, § 137a.)

§ 19–311 [29: 61]. Plenary proceedings.

The court may, in all cases of controversy therein, direct a plenary proceeding to be had, by bill or petition, to which there shall be answer under oath, which may be compelled by the usual process, and all the depositions shall be taken down in writing and filed; or, if either party shall require it, the court shall direct an issue to be made up to be tried by a jury. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1213, ch. 854, § 139.)

§ 19–312 [29: 62]. Trial of issues as to wills—Trial by jury—Notice—Service to absent parties not essential for jurisdiction—Judgment.

Whenever any caveat shall be filed, issues shall be framed under the direction of the court for trial by jury: Provided, That in all cases in which all persons interested are sui juris and before the court the issues may be tried and determined by the court, without a jury, upon the written consent of all such parties. If they are to be tried by a jury, they shall be triable in said probate court by petit jurors drawn for service in the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia; and at least ten days prior to the time of trial all of the heirs at law or next of kin of the decedent, or both together, as the case may require, and all persons claiming under the will in question, or any other instrument on file purporting to be a will of the decedent, shall be each served with a copy of said issues and a notification of the time and place of the trial thereof. If any one of them be an infant or of unsound mind he shall have a guardian ad litem appointed for him by the court before such trial shall proceed. If, as to any party in interest, the notification shall be returned "not to be found," the court shall assign a new day for such trial, and shall order publication, at least twice a week for a period of not less than four weeks, of the substance of the issues and of the date fixed for the trial thereof in some newspaper of general circulation in the District, and may order such further publication as the case may require. And the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia may from time to time prescribe and revise rules and regulations for service personally upon such party outside of the District of Columbia of a copy of such issues and notification. Personal service on absent parties shall not be essential to the jurisdiction of the court. The proceeding for impaneling a jury for the trial of said issues shall be the same as if they were being tried in the Circuit Court. In all cases in which such issues shall be tried the verdict of the jury and the judgment of the court thereupon shall, subject to proceedings in error and to such revision as the common law provides, be res judicata as to all persons; nor shall the validity of such judgment be impeached or examined collaterally. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1213, ch. 854, § 140; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 526, ch. 1329; Apr. 19, 1920, 41 Stat. 557, ch. 153.)

AMENDMENTS

The 1902 amendment struck out the words "a copy of the issues and notification of trial" and substituted therefor the words "the substance of the issues and of the date fixed for trial thereof."

The 1920 amendment provided for service in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, and struck out a sentence following the sentence ending "of the court" and three sentences at the end of the section, all of which were procedural as to juries.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

BURDEN OF PROOF

"In the District of Columbia, under a caveat to a will challenging the mental capacity of the testator, whether before or after the will has been admitted to probate, the burden of proof on the issue whether the testator * * * was of sound and disposing mind and capable of executing a valid deed or contract, is upon the caveator." Brosnan v. Brosnan (263 U. S. 345, 68 L. Ed. 332, 44 Sup. Ct. 117).

CONSTRUCTION

Under § 6 of the act of Congress of June 8, 1898, the word "week" was not intended to mean the conventional week beginning with Sunday and ending with Saturday, but a period of seven consecutive days. Leach v. Burr (17 App. D. C. 128, affd. 188 U. S. 510, 47 L. Ed. 567, 23 Sup. Ct. 393).

This section is still in force, notwithstanding Rule 38, 28 U. S. C., following § 723c, relating to jury trials, demand therefor, and waiver thereof, in view of rule 81 following said section providing that rules do not apply to probate proceedings in the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia except to appeals therein, and hence the failure to demand jury trial in a will contest was not a "waiver" of the right thereto. In re Cottrill's Estate (D. C., D. C. 1941, 39 F. Supp. 689).

Rule 1, § 2, of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia providing that in determining contested issues of law or fact or of law and fact in probate proceedings, District Court rules and federal procedural rules shall also govern procedure on motions, depositions, discovery and testimony and at hearing or trial of issues, does not purport to modify this section. In re Cottrill's Estate (D. C., D. C. 1941, 39 F. Supp. 689).

Under 28 U. S. C., § 723b, providing that all laws in conflict with procedural rules shall be of no further force or effect. Rule 38, 28 U. S. C., following § 723c, relating to jury trials, demand therefor, and waiver thereof is not applicable as such to will contests in the District of Columbia, and does not in effect repeal this section in view of Rule 82 providing that rules do not apply to probate proceedings in the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia except to appeals therein. In re Cottrill's Estate (D. C., D. C. 1941, 39 F. Supp. 689).

DIRECTED VERDICT

In proceeding to probate will, where there was no evidence of fraud sufficient to justify submission of such issue to jury the trial judge properly directed a verdict against caveators on such issue. Pollard v. Hawfield (C. A., D. C. 1948, 170 F. 2d 170, certiorari denied 69 S. Ct. 514, 336 U. S. 909, 93 L. Ed. 1073, rehearing denied 69 S. Ct. 654, 336 U. S. 929, 93 L. Ed. 1089).

DISCRETION OF COURT

In proceeding to probate will where it did not appear that physician had had any experience or training in mental illnesses or that he had ever treated or observed any paralytic case which had resulted in impairment of the mind and there was but little if any evidence in the record to indicate that either partial paralysis of the testatrix with its resultant confinement or advanced age of testatrix caused any impairment of mind, limiting testimony of physician as to paralysis and refusing to permit him to testify to effect of paralysis on mental faculties was not an abuse of discretion. Pollard v. Hawfield (C. A., D. C. 1948, 170 F. 2d 170, certiorari denied 69 S. Ct. 514, 336 U. S. 909, 93 L. Ed. 1073, rehearing denied 69 S. Ct. 654, 336 U. S. 929, 93 L. Ed. 1089).

EVIDENCE

Where probate of will naming testatrix's sister sole beneficiary was opposed on ground of undue influence and want of testimentary capacity, § 14–302 providing that if one of original parties to transaction or contract has died, the other party thereto shall not be allowed to testify to any declaration of the deceased in suit against personal representative of deceased did not require exclusion of testimony of testatrix's brother that testatrix had repeatedly agreed or promised in presence of others to leave him her real estate if he remained single and continued to live with her. Duckett v. Duckett, 1943 (134 F. 2d 527, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 303).

The persons named as executors and legatees in an alleged will cannot, in order to probate the will, be permitted to utilize § 14–302 providing that if one of original parties to transaction or contract has died the other party thereto shall not be allowed to testify to any declaration of deceased in suit against personal representative of deceased. Duckett v. Duckett, 1943 (134 F. 2d 527, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 303).

Testimony of testatrix' brother, who had made his home with her for 36 years, that testatrix had repeatedly agreed or promised in presence of others to leave him her real estate if he remained single and continued to live with her was admissible on issues of undue influence and testamentary capacity in opposition to probate of will naming testatrix's sister sole beneficiary. Duckett v. Duckett, 1943 (134 F. 2d 527, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 303).

Where probate of will is opposed on ground of fraud and undue influence, it is not necessary that there be direct proof of undue influence. Duckett v. Duckett, 1943 (134 F. 2d 527, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 303).

A finding that testator's subscription to purported will was procured by fraud, coercion, misrepresentation, undue influence, and pretension, executed by the sole beneficiary named in will, or some other person, was supported by sufficient evidence. Duckett v. Duckett (App. D. C. 1945, 150 F. 2d 985).

Evidence supported finding that will had been procured by undue influence, duress or coercion by beneficiary, so that it should be denied probate.—Martin v. Staples (App. D. C. 1947, 164 F. 2d 106).

HARMLESS OR PREJUDICIAL ERROR

In will contest, refusal to permit attorney for testatrix to testify concerning instruction given him by testatrix on ground that communication was privileged was error. Sorrels v. Alexander, 1944 (142 F. 2d 769, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 112).

Where witness was permitted to use notes to refresh her memory, refusal to strike out testimony of witness when it developed on cross-examination that some of notes were not made until two years after event about which witness testified was not reversible error where counsel failed to object to use of notes when witness asked if she might use them, and later when it developed that they had not been made contemporaneously, counsel not only failed to move that her testimony be stricken from record, but used her notes in argument to jury. Sorrels v. Alexander, 1944 (142 F. 2d 769, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 112).

In will contest, erroneous refusal to permit attorney for testatrix to testify concerning instructions given him by testatrix did not authorize reversal, where record did not show what was intended to be elicited from witness or time when the instructions were received. Sorrels v. Alexander, 1944 (142 F. 2d 769, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 112).

In will contest, where it was developed when counsel for testatrix was on witness stand that he had held in his possession, and not offered for probate for a period of two weeks wills of testatrix's brother-in-law and sister, remark of court that when will is left with an attorney to be filed "it ought to be filed immediately" was not prejudicial where judge in subsequent charge left jury free to determine, without comment on his part, weight to be given to the evidence. Sorrels v. Alexander, 1944 (142 F. 2d 769, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 112).

INSTRUCTIONS

In proceeding to probate will, refusal of requested prayers on presumption of undue influence and on testamentary capacity was not error where the charge given properly informed the jury as to the law. Pollard v. Hawfield (C. A., D. C. 1948, 170 F. 2d 170, certiorari denied 69 S. Ct. 514, 336 U. S. 909, 93 L. Ed. 1073, rehearing denied 69 S. Ct. 654, 336 U. S. 929, 93 L. Ed. 1039).

QUESTIONS FOR JURY

In proceeding for probate of will, where there was evidence that testatrix' sister, who was named sole beneficiary, after taking sole charge of testatrix first made false statements to other relatives with purpose and effect of inducing them not to visit testatrix and then allowed her to suppose, contrary to fact, that the other relatives were making no effort to see testatrix, doing nothing for her and showing no interest in her welfare, issues of fraud and undue influence were for the jury. Duckett v. Duckett, 1943 (134 F. 2d 527, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 303).

In will contest, evidence on question whether testatrix at time of making and signing the will was of sound and capable mind was sufficient for jury. Sorrels v. Alexander, 1944 (142 F. 2d 769, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 112).

In will contest, evidence on question whether will was obtained or procured by undue influence, duress or coercion was sufficient for jury. Sorrels v. Alexander, 1944 (142 F. 2d 769, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 112).

In will contest, evidence of fraud in procurement of will was sufficient for jury. Frene v. Muratori, 1944 (142 F. 2d 768, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 101).

REVIEW

Order framing issues is interlocutory only, and reviewable only by special appeal. Hutchins v. Hutchins (40 App. D. C. 180), citing National Safe Deposit, Sav. & Trust Co. v. Sweeney (3 App. D. C. 401), Dugan v. Northcutt (7 App. D. C. 351), National Safe Deposit, Sav. & Trust Co. v. Heiberger (19 App. D. C. 506).

In proceeding to probate will where no exceptions were taken to the charge on undue influence and testamentary capacity, charge on such matters could not be attacked on appeal. Pollard v. Hawfield (C. A., D. C. 1948, 170 F. 2d 170, certiorari denied 69 S. Ct. 514, 336 U. S. 909, 93 L. Ed. 1073, rehearing denied 69 S. Ct. 654, 336 U. S. 929, 93 L. Ed. 1039).

STAY BY PROHIBITION

Prohibition will not lie to stay proceedings under an order framing issue for trial by jury. In re Dahlgren (30 App. D. C. 588).

TRIAL

The trial proceeded when it was shown by the record that at the time the issues were framed and the trial fixed, and at the trial the caveatees were present in person and by their attorneys. Storey v. Storey (30 App. D. C. 41).

§ 19–313 [29: 63]. Wills filed prior to June 8, 1898, may be probated as of real estate.

Any person interested under any will filed in the office of the register of wills for the District of Columbia prior to June 8, 1898, may offer the same for probate as a will of real estate, whereupon such proceedings shall be had as by this code are authorized in regard to wills offered for probate after said date. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1213, ch. 854, § 141.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

IN GENERAL

This section is permissive and not mandatory. Young v. Norris Peters Co. (27 App. D. C. 140).

EQUITY JURISDICTION

Determination of title to real estate devised by will is within the general jurisdiction of a court of equity. Beyer v. Le Fevre (186 U. S. 114, 46 L. Ed. 1080, 22 Sup. Ct. 765, revg. 17 App. D. C. 238).

JURISDICTION

By act of June 8, 1898, 30 Stat. 434, ch. 394, plenary jurisdiction was given the District Supreme Court of all questions as to wills devising real estate in the District of Columbia. Leach v. Burr (188 U. S. 510, 47 L. Ed. 567, 23 Sup. Ct. 393, affg. 17 App. D. C. 238).

Chapter 4.—REGISTER OF WILLS

Sec.
19–401. Appointment—Oath of office.
19–402. Bond.
19–403. Powers.
19–404 Repealed.
19–404a. Payment of fees, costs and other moneys.
19–405. Repealed.
19–406. Required to post table of fees.
19–407. Penalty for failure to post table of fees.
19–408. Penalty for charging greater fees.
19–409. To act as clerk of probate court.
19–410. Not to practice law.
19–411. Penalty for charging for advice.

§ 19–401 [29: 1]. Appointment—Oath of office.

There shall be appointed for the District a register of wills, who shall take an oath for the faithful and impartial discharge of the duties of his office. The register of wills shall be appointed by the United States District Court for the District of Columbia and shall be subject to removal by that court. (R. S., D. C., § 929; Aug. 2, 1949, 63 Stat. 491, ch. 383, § 3.)

AMENDMENTS

The act of Aug. 2, 1949, cited to text, added the last sentence.

Said act was entitled: "An Act to transfer the office of the probation officer of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, the office of the Register of Wills for the District of Columbia, and the Commission on Mental Health, from the government of the District of Columbia to the Administrative Office of the United States Court, for budgetary and administrative purposes."

Said act provided in part as follows:

"That the office of the probation officer of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, the office of the Register of Wills for the District of Columbia, and the Commission on Mental Health, are hereby transferred from the government of the District of Columbia to the Administrative Office of the United States Courts for budgetary and administrative purposes, and the provisions of chapter 41 of title 28, United States Code, shall apply to such offices.

"SEC. 2. The provisions of title 18, sections 3654, 3655, and 3656, shall apply to the United States District Court for the District of Columbia. Accordingly, the first paragraph of section 3654 of title 18 is amended by striking therefrom the words, 'except in the District of Columbia', so that said paragraph shall read as follows:

" 'Any court having original jurisdiction to try offenses against the United States may appoint one or more suitable persons to serve as probation officers within the jurisdiction and under the direction of the court making such appointment.'

"SEC. 4. That the office of the Register of Wills shall be a part of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia.

§ 19–402 [29: 2]. Bond.

The register of wills shall, before he acts as such, give a bond to the United States, with two or more sureties, to be approved of by the chief justice of the District Court of the United States for the District, in the sum of five thousand dollars, faithfully to discharge the duties of his office and seasonably to record the decrees and orders of the justice of the District Court holding the special term for probate court business for the District, and all wills proved before him or the court, and all other matters directed to be recorded in the court or in the office of the register, which bond shall be entered in full upon the minutes of the court, and the original filed with the records thereof. (R. S., D. C., § 930; Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1208, ch. 854, § 116.)

§ 19–403 [29: 3]. Powers.

The said register of wills may receive inventories and accounts of sales, examine vouchers, and state accounts of executors, administrators, collectors, and guardians, subject to final passage or rejection of same by the court, may take probate of claims against the estates of deceased persons that are proper to be brought before him, and pass any claims not exceeding three hundred dollars; may take the probate of wills and accept the bonds of executors, administrators, collectors, and guardians, subject to approval by the court. It shall be his duty to make full and fair entries of the proceedings of said court, and also to make a fair record in a strong bound book or books of all wills proved before him or said court, and of all other matters by law directed to be recorded in said court, and to lodge every original paper filed with him in such place of safety as the court may appoint. He shall make out and issue every summons, process, and order of the court, and in every respect act under its control and direction in reference to matters coming within the jurisdiction of said court. He shall be, and hereby is, authorized to appoint five deputies, who may do and perform any and all the acts necessary in the administration of his office and the certification of the records of said court which he himself is authorized to do; also to appoint and fix the number and the compensation of the employees of said probate court and office of register of wills: Provided, That the employees of said office shall not be in excess of the number actually necessary for the proper conduct of the office of said register of wills. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1209, ch. 854, § 121; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 525, ch. 1329; Mar. 4, 1923, 42 Stat. 1488, ch. 265; Apr. 24, 1926, 44 Stat. 322, ch. 176; Aug. 7, 1946, 60 Stat. 889, ch. 792.)

AMENDMENTS

The 1902 amendment raised from one to two the number of deputies permitted to be appointed, and added the concluding proviso.

The 1923 act is the Classification Act of 1923.

The 1926 act provided: "That on and after July 1, 1927, all fees and emoluments of office * * * of register of wills shall be paid at least weekly to the collector of taxes for the District of Columbia for deposit in the Treasury of the United States * * *," and provided that thereafter appropriations for the operation and maintenance thereof be included in the annual estimates of appropriation for the government of the District of Columbia (see § 19–405).

The act of Aug. 7, 1946, cited to text, increased number of authorized deputies from two to five.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

COMPENSATION ALTHOUGH DISQUALIFIED

Where petitioners failed to bring the disqualification of the administrator to the attention of the probate court until administration was almost completed, such administrator will be allowed reasonable commissions and compensation to date of appointment and qualification of his successor, including expenses and reasonable attorney's fees, and costs of the proceeding will be taxed against petitioners. In re Allen's Estate ((D. C.-D. C.), 30 Fed. Supp. 243).

DISQUALIFICATION OR REMOVAL

An order removing a disqualified administrator is a final appealable order. Perry v. Wilson (60 App. D. C. 109, 48 Fed. (2d) 1021).

Petitioners whose knowledge of the disqualification of administrator existed at the time of his appointment are reprimanded by the court for failure to disclose it at that time. In re Allen's Estate ((D. C.-D. C.), 30 Fed. Supp. 243).

Conviction of conspiracy to violate the National Prohibition Act is sufficient under this act to disqualify and cause removal of an administrator. In re Allen's Estate ((D. C.-D. C.), 30 Fed. Supp. 243).

§ 20–102 [29: 72]. Persons between 18 and 21 years of age.

In case letters testamentary or of administration shall be granted to any person above eighteen but under twenty-one years of age, the bond executed by him for the faithful performance of his duties shall be as binding as if he were of full age. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1236, ch. 854, § 294.)

§ 20–103 [29: 73]. Administrator with the will annexed—Preference.

In case any will admitted to probate shall not appoint an executor, or the executor therein appointed shall have died or renounced the executorship, or shall be incompetent to serve, administration shall be granted with the will annexed to the person who would have been entitled to administration in case of the intestacy of the deceased testator: Provided, however, That if there be a residuary legatee named in such will, he shall be preferred to all, except a widow. And the condition of the bond of the administrator so appointed and the oath to be taken by him and his duties and liabilities shall be the same if he had been appointed executor in the will and had received letters testamentary. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1236, ch. 854, § 298.)

Whenever any person shall apply to the probate court for letters testamentary or of administration, he shall set forth, under oath, as fully as possible, all the personal and real estate left by the decedent and the amount of his debts as far as can be ascertained; and the penalty of the bond required of him, except in the cases provided for in sections 20–203, 20–302, 20–303, shall be sufficient to secure the proper application of all the personal estate of the testator or intestate; and when it shall become necessary to sell the real estate of the decedent, in part or in whole, the executor or administrator shall give such additional bond, with approved security, as shall be directed by the court, to secure the proper application of the proceeds arising from such sale or sales. And whenever an executor is empowered by the will to make sale of the real estate of the testator, for any purpose, he shall account for said proceeds in said court. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1236, ch. 854, § 295.)

§ 20–105 [29: 75]. Letters de bonis non—Form—Duties.

If an executor or administrator shall die before the administration of the estate is completed, letters of administration de bonis non or de bonis non cum testamento annexo, as the case may require, shall be granted, in the discretion of the court, giving preference, however, to the person who would be entitled in the order given in sections 20–201 to 20–219, if he shall actually apply for the same; and the form of the letters shall be the same as in the case of an original administration, except that it shall be confined to the property of the deceased not already administered, and the authority shall be to administer all property herein described as assets and not distributed and delivered or retained by the executor or former administrators, under the court's direction. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1237, ch. 854, § 299.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Appointment of Brother or Mother

Where decedent's father was also his administrator, the appointment, at father's death, of brother as administrator, to exclusion of divorced mother, was proper. Haviland v. Harriss (60 App. D. C. 255, 50 Fed. (2d) 1069).

§ 20–106 [29: 76]. Will proved after letters granted—Letters revoked—Administrator's liability—Pending actions—Accounting—Prior distribution—Will declared invalid after distribution—Liability.

If administration be granted, and a will disposing of the estate of the deceased shall afterwards be proved according to law, and letters testamentary shall have issued thereon, the same shall be considered a revocation of the letters of administration. But the administrator shall not be held to answer for any acts done by him according to law, in good faith, and in ignorance of such will and before any actual or implied revocation of his letters; and the executor obtaining letters shall be authorized to prosecute any actions at law or in equity commenced by the administrator and obtain judgment in his own name, and likewise to defend any suit commenced against the administrator; and said executor shall have the benefit of all judgments obtained by the administrator and be bound by all judgments obtained against him to the extent of assets received by said executor, unless such judgments were obtained by fraud. And it shall be the duty of said administrator to account for and deliver to the executor without delay all goods, chattels, and personal estate and proceeds of any realty sold in his possession, belonging to the deceased, in default of which his bond may be put in suit by the executor or administrator cum testamento annexo.

And if distribution of the estate, or any part thereof, shall have been lawfully made by the administrator, the distributee or distributees, and their personal representatives, and not the administrator so distributing the estate, shall be answerable for the property so distributed, or its value, to the person or persons thereto entitled.

And if any will be hereafter adjudged invalid in any action begun after distribution of the estate, or any part thereof, lawfully made by the executor or executrix, in good faith and without knowledge on his or her part of the invalidity of such will, and without notice that such action was intended, the distributee or distributees of the property, and their personal representatives, and not such executor or executrix, shall be answerable for the property, or its value, to the person or persons thereto entitled. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1235, ch. 854, § 290; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 528, ch. 1329.)

Amendment

The 1902 amendment changed the first part of the second sentence of the first paragraph before the semicolon which formerly read: "But all acts done by the administrator according to law, before any actual or implied revocation of his letters, shall be valid and effectual," and added the last two paragraphs of the section.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Defenses to Compulsory Accounting

That time within which a caveat to will could be filed by heirs not found within jurisdiction but given notice of application for probate of will by publication had not yet expired was not a sufficient defense to residuary legatee's action against executor to compel an accounting and distribution of residuary estate. Cashell v. Eslin (D. C., D. C. 1944, 55 F. Supp. 747).

Duty of Executor

After probate of a will and until its revocation, executor is required to act in accordance with terms of will, and, in absence of wrongdoing on his part, is fully protected in so doing. Cashell v. Eslin (D. C., D. C. 1944, 55 F. Supp. 747).

Effect of Letters of Administration

Letters of administration granted on a petition setting out the existence of a will and averring that no proceedings had been taken for its probate and seeking no adjudication as to the will, and the order being silent on that point, is not an adjudication that decedent died intestate. Morris v. Foster (51 App. D. C. 238, 278 Fed. 321). A subsequent probate of the will and granting of letters testamentary revoke the letters of administration. Morris v. Foster (51 App. D. C. 238, 278 Fed. 321), citing In re Coit (3 App. D. C. 246).

§ 20–107 [29: 77]. Removal of co-executor, co-administrator, or co-collector for negligence or misconduct—Complaint—Recovery of loss or damage.

If any joint executor, administrator, or collector shall apprehend that he is likely to suffer by the negligence or misconduct in the administration or the improper use or misapplication of the assets of the estate by any co-executor, co-administrator, or co-collector, he may make complaint to said court; and if said complaint shall be adjudged well founded, the court shall have authority, in its discretion, to revoke the powers and authority of the executor, administrator, or collector so complained of and to compel the delivery and surrender to the remaining executor, administrator, or collector of the assets and all books, papers, and evidences of debt of the estate that may be in the possession or control of the person so dismissed from the administration; and the remaining executors, administrators, or collectors shall be entitled to recover, in an action on the case, for any loss or damage they may suffer through the executor, administrator, or collector whose powers shall have been revoked as aforesaid. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1210, ch. 854, § 125.)

§ 20–108 [29: 78]. Additional bond—Failure to provide—Revocation—Delivery of assets.

Whenever the probate court shall be satisfied that the bond already given by an executor or administrator is insufficient, the said executor or administrator may be required to file an additional bond, and on his failure to do so his letters may be revoked. And upon the revocation of letters testamentary or of administration under this provision, the executor or administrator whose letters are so revoked shall forthwith deliver to any substituted executor or administrator all the assets of his testator or intestate in his possession or under his control. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1236, ch. 854, § 296.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

PETITION FOR ADDITIONAL BOND

Court has power, upon petition of attorney who has contract with executrix for payment of a fee, but no lien on proceeds of judgment, alleging insolvency of executrix and her intention to remove the fund from the jurisdiction on its receipt, to require the executrix to give additional bond, or revoke her letters and thus prevent collection of judgment by her. Parish v. McGowan (39 App. D. C. 184, revd. on other grounds, 237 U. S. 285, 59 L. Ed. 955, 35 Sup. Ct. 543). See also Cropper v. McLane (6 App. D. C. 119, dism. 163 U. S. 682, 41 L. Ed. 316, 16 Sup. Ct. 1200).

§ 20–109 [29: 79]. Counter security—Application of surety—Delivery of property—Inventory—Duties and liability of surety.

If any surety of an executor or administrator shall apprehend himself to be in danger of suffering from the suretyship, he may apply to the probate court, and the said court may call upon the party to give counter security, to be approved by the court; and if the party so called on shall not, within a fixed reasonable time, give counter security, the court may order the property remaining in the hands of such executor or administrator to be delivered up to such surety, and the court may enforce the delivery by proper process; and an inventory of the property delivered to such surety shall be returned without delay, and the property contained in such inventory shall be by the said surety sold, distributed, and delivered up, as the case may require, under the immediate order of the court, as if such surety were executor or administrator; but inasmuch as it would be inconvenient to creditors and others interested in the estate, if there should be a double administration, the executor or administrator shall go on to discharge his trust, unless the court revoke his letters for some just cause, as hereinbefore directed, and he shall be answerable for the property in the same manner as if it were not on his default as aforesaid delivered to the surety; and he shall be entitled to sue the said surety and recover damages in case he shall suffer from the misconduct of such surety, in diminishing any part of the property, without obtaining an allowance for the same from the court; and the said surety shall bring into court, to be deposited with the register of wills, the money arising from the sale of any property as aforesaid, to be applied according to the meaning of this code. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1211, ch. 854, § 128.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

"PROPERTY" DEFINED

Term "property" as herein used includes the proceeds of the sale of property. In re McKnight's Estate (1 App. D. C. 28).

§ 20–110 [29: 80]. Accounting by representative of deceased executor or administrator.

On the application of an administrator de bonis non the court may order the executor or the administrator of a deceased executor or administrator to deliver over to him all the personal property that was in the hands of the said deceased executor or administrator, as such, and also all the money, bonds, notes, accounts, and evidences of debt which the said deceased executor or administrator may have taken, received, and had at the time of his death, including the proceeds of sale of either personal or real estate made by said deceased executor or administrator, which shall be deemed unadministered assets. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1237, ch. 854, § 301.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Other provision concerning accounting for deceased executor or administrator, §§ 20–607, 20–608.

§ 20–111 [29: 81]. Enforcement of order against representative of deceased executor or administrator.

On the failure of said executor or administrator to comply with said order by a day named, the court may enforce its order by attachment against such executor or administrator, and may direct the bond of the deceased executor or administrator, or that of the executor or administrator so failing, or both, to be put in suit for the use of the administrator de bonis non. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1237, ch. 854, § 302.)

§ 20–112 [29: 82]. Liability of executor or administrator of a deceased executor or administrator for conversion of property of estates.

All and every the executor and executors, administrator or administrators of an executor or administrator of right, who shall waste or convert to his own use, goods, chattels, or estate of his testator or intestate, shall from henceforth be liable and chargeable in the same manner as his or their testator or intestate should or might have been. (4 and 5 Wm. and Mary, ch. 24, § 12, 1692; Alex. Br. Stat., p. 585; Comp. Stat. D. C., p. 41, § 180.)

§ 20–113 [29: 83]. Executor de son tort.

Every person and persons that shall obtain, receive, and have any goods or debts of any person dying intestate, or a release or other discharge of any debt or duty that belonged to the intestate, upon any fraud, or without valuable consideration as shall amount to the value of the same goods or debts, or near thereabouts (except it be in or towards satisfaction of some just and principal debt of the value of the same goods or debts to him owing by the intestate at the time of his decease) shall be charged and chargeable as executor of his own wrong; and so far only as all such goods and debts coming to his hands, or whereof he is released or discharged by such administrator, will satisfy, deducting nevertheless to and for himself allowance of all just, due and principal debts upon good consideration, without fraud, owing to him by the intestate at the time of his decease, and of all other payments made by him, which lawful executors or administrators may and ought to have and pay by law. (43 Eliz. ch. 8, § 2, 1601; Kilty's Rep., p. 236; Alex. Br. Stat., p. 427; Comp. Stat. D. C., p. 41, § 178.)

§ 20–114 [29: 84]. Executor de son tort—Liability for waste.

All and every the executors and administrators of any person or persons, who as executor or executors in his or their own wrong, or administrators, shall waste or convert any goods, chattels, estate or assets of any person deceased to their own use, shall be liable and chargeable in the same manner as their testator or intestate would have been if they had been living. (30 Car. 2, ch. 7, § 2, 1677; Kilty's Rep., p. 176; Alex. Br. Stat., p. 567; Comp. Stat. D. C., p. 41, § 179.)

§ 20–115 [29: 85]. Investment of funds.

Whenever, under the provisions of a will, it shall be necessary for an executor or an administrator cum testamento annexo to retain in his hands the personal estate or any part thereof after all just claims are discharged, as where money or some other thing is directed to be paid at a distant period or upon a contingency, the probate court shall have the power, on the application of such executor or administrator or of a party interested, to decree or give directions in relation thereto; and it shall be the duty of said executor or administrator to apply to the said probate court, and the said court shall have full power to decree or direct what part of the personal estate shall be retained or appropriated for the purpose and in what manner it shall be disposed of, and the legacy or benefit intended by the will shall be secured to the person to be entitled at a future period or contingency, and how the necessary part of the personal estate to be appropriated for the purpose shall be prevented from lying dead or being unproductive, and how it shall be applied, agreeably to the intent of the will or the construction of law, in case the contingency shall not take place. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1248, ch. 854, § 369.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

DUTIES OF EXECUTOR

Under a bequest of the income of a fund to a life tenant, with remainder over, it is the duty of the executor to invest the fund, pay the income to the person entitled for life, and preserve the principal for the remainderman. Payne v. Robinson (26 App. D. C. 283).

STATUS OF EXECUTOR

"The executor does not cease to be executor because the period of administration, so called, may be passed. He is still executor as long as he has anything under the will to execute." Marfield v. McCurdy (25 App. D. C. 342).

"The principal difference between an executor during the period of administration and an executor after the lapse of the period of administration is that the former is responsible to the probate court for the faithful execution of his trust, the latter to a court of equity." Marfield v. McCurdy (25 App. D. C. 342).

§ 20–116 [29: 86]. Continuing decedent's business—Verified petition—Affidavits—Contents—Accounting—Debts of business as expenses of estate.

The probate court may, in its discretion, authorize any fiduciary, accountable to it, to continue the business of a decedent for a period not exceeding twelve months after decedent's death. No order shall be entered so authorizing a fiduciary until he shall have filed a petition under oath, supported by the affidavits of two reputable persons familiar with the decedent's business, setting forth the appraised value of the business, whether the decedent conducted it at a profit or loss and the approximate amount thereof, and the estimated amount of the expenses per month necessary to be incurred in order to continue the business. Any fiduciary who is given such authorization shall file monthly statements showing all receipts and disbursements, debts contracted and obligations incurred, and the profit or loss; and the court, in its discretion, may order the discontinuance of the business at any time.

Debts contracted and obligations incurred by the fiduciary in so continuing the business of the decedent shall be deemed to be an expense of administration of the estate. (Apr. 19, 1920, 41 Stat. 556, ch. 153, § 123a.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

COMPUTATION OF COMMISSIONS

No case is made for payment to executor in operating decedent's business over and above the amount already permitted by the Code. Stoner v. Doherty (C. A. D. C. 1950, 182 F. 2d 673, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 368).

CONTINUING BUSINESS

Executor is not required to continue the business of a decedent although he followed the appropriate practice in obtaining the approval of the court to do so. Stoner v. Doherty (C. A. D. C. 1950, 182 F. 2d 673, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 368).

§ 20–117 [29: 87]. Executor's or administrator's bond—Recording—Copies—Ex rel. actions upon—Actions by subsequent administrator—Actions by creditors.

Every bond executed by an executor or administrator shall be recorded in the office of the register of wills; and any person conceiving himself to be interested in the administration of the estate shall be entitled to have or demand a copy of such bond, under the hand and seal of the register of wills, on which an action may be maintained, in the name of the United States, for the use of the party interested, and judgment may be recovered in such action for the damage actually sustained. And an administrator appointed in the place of an executor or administrator who has resigned, been removed, or whose letters have been revoked, may in like manner maintain an action against the executor or former administrator and his sureties, on his administration bond, for all loss and damage to the estate resulting from this breach of duty. No creditor shall be entitled to maintain an action on a testamentary or administration bond for any claim against a testator or intestate until, when practicable, an action has been commenced against the executor or administrator of the deceased and a summons issued therein has been returned "Not to be found," or a writ of fieri facias or of attachment, issued on a judgment against such executor or administrator, has been returned "nulla bona," or until such apparent insolvency of the executor or administrator or insufficiency of his effects as in the judgment of the court before which such action may be tried shall show the said creditor to be without remedy except by such action on the executor's or administrator's bond. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1236, ch. 854, § 297; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 529, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The 1902 amendment inserted the words "when practicable" after the word "until."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

ACTIONS WITHIN SECTION

This section was inapplicable to action against an executrix, on a special bond, to recover value of a note executed by testator. Hawley v. Hawley, 1940 (114 F. 2d 745, 72 App. D. C. 376).

This section governs actions on general bonds and the normal "administration of estates" which involves the collection, management, and distribution of estate, including legal proceedings necessary to satisfy claims of creditors, next to kin, legatees, or whatever other parties may have any claim to property of a deceased person. Hawley v. Hawley, 1940 (114 F. 2d 745, 72 App. D. C. 376).

CONSTRUCTION BY MARYLAND COURT—EFFECT

A decision of the Maryland Court of Appeals interpreting Maryland statute from which a section of District of Columbia Code was derived was not controlling because rendered after law was adopted by the District, but was persuasive of proper interpretation of the District statute. Hawley v. Hawley, 1940 (114 F. 2d 745, 72 App. D. C. 376).

EFFECT OF JUDGMENT

Quaere: Whether a judgment or decree against an administrator is conclusive evidence of the debt in an action against the surety on his bond, although the preponderance of authority seems to affirm that it is. Bonding Co. v. United States ex rel. Paynter (23 App. D. C. 535).

EXECUTION AND RETURN

"The requirement of execution and return was satisfied, notwithstanding the return was made the next day after issue, by order of the plaintiff's attorney." Bonding Co. v. United States ex rel. Paynter (23 App. D. C. 535).

SPECIAL UNDERTAKING

That executor with consent of residuary legatee gave a special undertaking instead of a general bond did not affect executor's obligation to account to residuary legatee and make distribution of such legatee's share of residuary estate within a reasonable time after such residue could be determined. Cashell v. Eslin (D. C., D. C. 1944, 55 F. Supp. 747).

The giving of a special undertaking by executor creates a personal obligation to creditors and legatees not present where a general bond is given. Cashell v. Eslin (D. C., D. C. 1944, 55 F. Supp. 747).

§ 20–118 [29: 88]. Fiduciary residing outside District of Columbia—Power of attorney to register of wills—Failure to give power.

In the case of the grant of either original or ancillary letters testamentary, or of administration, or of collection, or of guardianship, the person designated shall, if a nonresident of the District of Columbia, file in the office of the register of wills, before the issuance of such letters, an irrevocable power of attorney designating the register of wills and his successors in office as the person upon whom all notices and process issued by any competent court in the District of Columbia may be served, with like effect as personal service, in relation to any suit, matter, cause, or thing affecting or pertaining to the estate in which the letters are issued. It shall be the duty of said register of wills to forthwith forward by registered mail to the address of such fiduciary, which shall be stated in said power of attorney, any notice or process served upon said register as aforesaid.

In the event that any fiduciary shall fail to file such power of attorney within ten days after the passing of the order of appointment, such order shall thereupon stand revoked, and he shall forfeit all rights to the office. (Apr. 19, 1920, 41 Stat. 562, ch. 153, § 308a.)

§ 20–119 [29: 89]. Resignation—Petition—Accounting—Liability.

If any person, after having accepted the office of executor or administrator, shall desire to retire from and resign the same, he may file his petition to that effect, accompanied by a full and particular account, under oath, of his receipts and disbursements, if any, and the court shall thereupon direct such notice as it may think proper to be given of said application, and, if no cause be shown to the contrary, may release and discharge him from his office and pass such order as to costs and commissions and impose such terms in other respects as the nature of the case may require: Provided, That such executor or administrator shall not, by said discharge, be released from any liability for past acts, defaults, or omissions of duty. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1235, ch. 854, § 292.)

ELIGIBILITY

Consul of Greece in the city of Washington entitled to sole administration of estate of deceased national. (See notes to § 20–107.) Diamantopoulos v. Glekas (56 App. D. C. 151, 11 Fed. (2d) 200).

Appointment of administrator in Virginia does not imply a finding of domicile in Virginia. In re Grinnage's Estate (69 App. D. C. 370, 101 Fed. (2d) 695).

Appointment of administrator in Virginia does not prevent granting of letters of administration of personalty in the District by the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia. In re Grinnage's Estate (69 App. D. C. 370, 101 Fed. (2d) 695).

PROPERTY

A claim against the United States does not furnish the foundation for a local administration when the decedent was domiciled in another jurisdiction at the time of his death. In re Coit's Estate (3 App. D. C. 246).

A government check in the possession of the treasurer of the United States, payable to a particular person, is for jurisdictional purposes personal property in the District of Columbia. In re Grinnage's Estate (69 App. D. C. 370, 101 Fed. (2d) 695).

REMOVAL OF ADMINISTRATOR

Unless power of probate court to remove an administratrix for a particular cause can be found in this chapter or by necessary inference therefrom, it does not exist. Perkins v. Berger, 1944 (145 F. 2d 856, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 286).

The fact that administratrix asserted a stale claim against deceased's estate did not authorize removal of administratrix. Perkins v. Berger, 1944 (145 F. 2d 856, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 286).

§ 20–202 [29: 102]. Bond by administrator.

Every administrator, except corporations authorized to act as administrators, shall, before entering on his duties, file in the probate court his bond to the United States, with security approved by the court, in such penalty as the court shall direct, with condition to administer according to law all the money, goods, chattels, rights, and credits of the deceased; and when the court shall have ordered the sale of the decedent's real estate, he shall give a like bond conditioned to administer the proceeds of the real estate that may be sold for the payment of the decedent's debts which shall come into his possession, or to the possession of any other person for him, and in all other respects perform the trust reposed in him, and shall also take and subscribe an oath similar to that prescribed for executors. CONSULAR OFFICER

A bond is required where Greek consul is appointed administrator of estate of deceased national. Diamantopoulos v. Glekas (56 App. D. C. 151, 11 Fed. (2d) 200).

§ 20–203 [29: 103]. Special bond.

If the person appointed as administrator shall be entitled to the residue of the estate after the payment of the debts, he may, instead of the bond herein provided for, execute a bond, with security approved by the court, in such penalty as the court may consider sufficient, conditioned for the payment of all the debts and claims against the deceased, and all damages which shall be recovered against him as administrator; and where the administrator shall file the consent in writing of those entitled to the residue and they shall all be of full age, the court may, if it sees fit, direct that only such special bond be given, and in such cases the administrator shall not be required to return any inventory or account, but shall be personally answerable for all debts, claims, and damages that may be recovered against him, in like manner as the executor who gives a similar bond: Provided, That the surety or sureties in said bond shall not be liable for a greater amount than the penalty thereof. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1234, ch. 854, § 275; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 528, ch. 1329.)

Relations on the part of the father shall be preferred to those on the part of the mother, in equal degree. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1235, ch. 854, § 286.)

§ 20–215 [29: 115]. Persons entitled to administer—Persons incompetent to serve to be excluded.

If any person described in sections 20–204 to 20–216 should be incompetent to serve, then administration shall be granted as if such person were not living. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1235, ch. 854, § 287.)

§ 20–216 [29: 116]. Persons entitled to administer—Creditors.

If there be no relations, or those entitled decline or refuse to appear and apply for administration, on proper summons or notice, administration may be granted to the largest creditor applying for the same; and if creditors neglect to apply, it may be granted at the discretion of the court. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1235, ch. 854, § 288.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

APPOINTMENT BY OTHER COURT

The validity of appellee's appointment as administratrix by the New Jersey court is not an essential condition to her appointment as administratrix ad litem. Welch v. Welch (57 App. D. C. 212, 19 Fed. (2d) 686).

DATE OF APPOINTMENT

Where one has so conducted himself by management of a business and sale of assets belonging to a decedent that he becomes an executor de son tort, his subsequent appointment as administrator reflects back to the death of the decedent. Penn v. Whidden (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 42 A. 2d 136).

REMAND FOR FURTHER PROOF

Where creditor filed petition for administration of deceased's estate stating that after diligent search, creditor was satisfied that deceased died intestate and without surviving relation, and District of Columbia relied upon allegations of creditor's petition, pleadings and evidence were insufficient to authorize probate court to determine whether the District was entitled to distribution under escheat statute, § 18–717, and case was remanded for determination of question whether intestate died without heirs. Frazier v. Kutz, 1944 (139 F. 2d 380, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 241).

VALIDATION OF ACTS

Where one has so conducted himself by management of business and sale of assets belonging to a decedent that he becomes an executor de son tort, his subsequent appointment as administrator validates any previous acts which would have been valid if done after his appointment and his acts as executor de son tort, though void, are thereby made valid. Penn v. Whidden (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 42 A. 2d 136).

§ 20–217 [29: 117]. Notice of application.

Upon any application for letters of administration, such notice thereof shall be given, by publication or otherwise, as the rules of the court may require. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1235, ch. 854, § 289; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 528, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The 1902 amendment deleted the words "but it shall not be necessary to notify any collateral relatives more remote than brothers and sisters of the intestate" following the present last word of the section.

§ 20–218 [29: 118]. Declining administration.

If any person entitled to administration shall, in writing, decline the same, the court shall proceed as if such person were not entitled. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1235, ch. 854, § 291.)

§ 20–219 [29: 119]. Letters of administration—Form.

The form of letters of administration shall be as follows:

District of Columbia, to wit:

The United States of America.

To all persons to whom these presents shall come, greeting:

Know ye that administration of the goods, chattels, and credits of ———, late of ———, deceased, is hereby granted and committed unto ———, of ———.

Witness (A B) the Chief Justice of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia.

Test: C D, Register of Wills.

(Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1235, ch. 854, § 293; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 529, ch. 1329.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

The act of June 25, 1936, 49 Stat. 1921, ch. 804, changed the name of the Supreme Court to "District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia" and provided "nothing in this act shall affect the jurisdiction or functions of the court."

AMENDMENT

The 1902 amendment changed the word "present" to "presents."

Chapter 3.—EXECUTORS

Sec.

20–301. Letters testamentary—Bond—Oath—Corporations.
20–302. Bonds for debts only—Removal of executor for waste.

20–306. Absent executor—Summons—Notice.
20–307. Summons to each of several executors.
20–308. Renunciation.
20–309. Executor disqualified.
20–310. No power to act without letters.
20–311. Form of letters testamentary.
20–312. Executor of executor.

§ 20–301 [29: 131]. Letters testamentary—Bond—Oath—Corporations.

When any will or codicil respecting either real or personal property shall have been authenticated and admitted to probate, letters testamentary thereon shall be issued to the executor named therein, if he is legally competent and will accept the trust: Provided, That he shall first execute a bond to the United States, with security to be approved by the court, in such penalty as the court may require, with a condition that he will administer according to law and to the will of the testator all his goods, chattels, rights, and credits, and the proceeds of all his real estate that may be sold for the payment of his debts or legacies which shall at any time come to the possession of the executor or to the possession of any other person for him, and in all other respects faithfully perform the trusts reposed in him: And provided further, That said executor shall take and subscribe and file an oath that he will well and truly administer the estate of the deceased according to law and will give a just account of his administration when thereto lawfully called: Provided, That the above conditions as to bond and oath shall not apply to corporations authorized to act as executors. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1232, ch. 854, § 262.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

ANCILLARY LETTERS

Where testatrix, who was domiciled in Michigan and whose estate and beneficiaries were largely in Michigan but who had intangible property in District of Columbia, named resident of District of Columbia, as sole executor, but Michigan court appointed Michigan resident as administrator with will annexed, because Michigan law forbids appointment of a nonresident executor, it was within discretion of District of Columbia court to appoint the Michigan executor as ancillary administrator. Purcell v. Cramton, 1944 (143 F. 2d 22, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 99).

The requirement of this section that when any will shall have been authenticated and admitted to probate letters testamentary thereon shall be issued to the executor named therein, if he is legally competent and will accept the trust, does not apply to ancillary letters. Purcell v. Cramton, 1944 (143 F. 2d 22, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 99).

LIABILITY OF EXECUTOR

An executor executing a general bond is responsible for payment of debts and claims to extent of assets collected only, and cannot be sued on general bond until determination is made of the extent to which creditors can be paid from assets. Hawley v. Hawley, 1940 (114 F. 2d 745, 72 App. D. C. 376).

§ 20–302 [29: 132]. Bonds for debts only—Removal of executor for waste.

Whenever a testator shall, by last will and testament, request that his executor be not required to give bond for the performance of his duty, in such case the bond required of the executor shall be in such penalty as the court may consider sufficient to secure the payment of the debts due by the testator: Provided, however, That the penalty of such bond shall not exceed double the value of the personal estate; and when less than this sum it may be increased, or an additional bond may be required, whenever it shall be made to appear to the court that the bond as given is insufficient to secure the payment of the debts of the testator: And provided further, That whenever any party interested shall make it appear to the court that any executor who has given such bond only as is herein provided for is wasting the assets of the estate, or that the assets are in danger of being lost, wasted, or misappropriated, then the said executor may be removed or required to give additicnal bond with security in a penalty sufficient to secure the interests of all the creditors, distributees, and legatees entitled to take said estate, and on his failure to give bond as required his letters may be revoked; and upon such revocation the same results shall ensue as hereinafter provided in section 20–108. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1232, ch. 854, § 263; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 528, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The 1902 amendment struck out the words "creditor, distributee, or legatee entitled to take under the will," and inserted in lieu thereof the words "party interested."

AVOIDANCE OF DEED

If deed was procured by undue influence and deceased grantor left a valid will, her executor had right to avoid the deed. Kashouty v. Deep, 1942 (126 F. 2d 233, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 259).

§ 20–303 [29: 133]. Special bond.

If the executor is the residuary legatee of the personal estate of the testator, or provided the residuary legatee of full age shall notify his consent to the court, he may, instead of the bond prescribed as aforesaid, give bond with security approved by the court, and in a penalty prescribed by the court, conditioned to pay all the debts and just claims against the testator, and all damages which shall be recovered against him as executor, and all legacies bequeathed by the will, in which case he shall not be required to file any inventory or render any account. And if such bond be given by the executor, he shall be answerable for the full amount of all debts, claims, and damages that may be recovered against him as executor as if he were sued in his own right, and any legatee may recover the full amount of his legacy in a suit on the executor's bond or in equity, and the giving of the bond shall be considered an assent to the legacy: Provided, That the surety or sureties in said bond shall not be liable for a greater amount than the penalty thereof. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1232, ch. 854, § 264.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

ACTIONS ON BONDS

This section does not prevent recovery on special bond until debt or claim sued upon has been recovered in a separate action brought against executor. Hawley v. Hawley, 1940 (114 F. 2d 745, 72 App. D. C. 376).

LIABILITY OF EXECUTOR

A special bond given by an executor who is also residuary legatee operates as an admission that there are sufficient assets in the estate to pay all debts and forecloses that question, and executor assumes thereby responsibility of payment of debts to the full extent of his personal estate. Hawley v. Hawley, 1940 (114 F. 2d 745, 72 App. D. C. 376).

§ 20–304 [29: 134]. Joint executor—Joint or separate bond.

When two or more persons are appointed executors, the court may take a separate bond with security from each of them or a joint bond with security from all of them together. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1233, ch. 854, § 265.)

CROSS REFERENCE

See notes to § 20–302.

§ 20–305 [29: 135]. Letters of administration cum testamento annexo.

If there be only one executor named in the will, and he shall have been present at the probate of the will, and shall not within twenty days thereafter file a bond and qualify as executor by taking the oath aforesaid, letters of administration with the will annexed may be granted as if no executor had been named. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1233, ch. 854, § 266.)

§ 20–306 [29: 136]. Absent executor—Summons—Notice.

If said executor shall not have been present at the probate of the will, but shall be within the District, a summons may be issued to him, either at the instance of any person interested or ex officio by the register of wills, requiring him to appear and file his bond as required by law within twenty days after service of said summons; and if he be not found in said District, notice shall be given to him by publication to appear within thirty days after the first publication of said notice, and on his failure to appear and give his bond and qualify by taking the prescribed oath, as aforesaid, administration may be granted as if no executor had been named in the will. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1233, ch. 854, § 267; June 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 268, ch. 242, § 2.)

AMENDMENTS

The act of June 24, 1949, cited to text, struck out the words "twenty" and "within thirty days after the first publication", and inserted in lieu thereof, respectively, the words "five" and "within ten days after publication".

§ 20–307 [29: 137]. Summons to each of several executors.

If there be more than one executor named in a will, there may be the same proceeding with respect to each of them as if he were the sole executor, and any circumstances under which letters of administration may be granted on failure of a sole-named executor shall authorize the granting of letters testamentary to one or more of the executors on failure of one or more of the others; and any circumstances under which letters of administration may be granted on failure of a sole-named executor shall authorize the granting of such letters of administration on failure of all the executors named to appear and qualify as aforesaid. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1233, ch. 854, § 268.)

§ 20–308 [29: 138]. Renunciation.

If any executor named in a will shall file or transmit to the probate court an attested renunciation of his executorship, there shall be the same proceeding with respect to granting letters testamentary or of administration as if the party so renouncing had not been named in the will. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1233, ch. 854, § 269.)

§ 20–309 [29: 139]. Executor disqualified.

If any person named as executor be disqualified from serving, letters testamentary or of administration may be granted as if he had not been named as executor. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1233, ch. 854, § 270.)

§ 20–310 [29: 140]. No power to act without letters.

In case letters testamentary shall be granted to one or more of the executors named in a will on failure of the rest, no executor not named in said letters shall in any manner interfere with the administration; and if letters of administration with the will annexed shall be granted, no executor named in the will shall in any manner interfere with the administration; and no executor named in a will shall, before letters testamentary are granted to him, have any power to dispose of any part of the estate of the deceased or to interfere therewith, further than is necessary to collect and preserve the same. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1233, ch. 854, § 271.)

§ 20–311 [29: 141]. Form of letters testamentary.

The following shall be the form of letters testamentary to be issued under the seal of the probate term of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia:

District of Columbia, to wit:

The United States of America.

To all persons to whom these presents shall come, greeting:

Know ye that the last will and testament of ———, of ———, deceased, hath, in due form of law, been exhibited, proved, and recorded in the office of the register of wills of the District of Columbia, a copy of which is to these presents annexed, and administration of all the goods, chattels, and credits of the deceased is hereby granted and committed unto ———, the executor by said will appointed.

COMPILER'S NOTE

The act of June 25, 1936, 49 Stat. 1921, ch. 804, changed the name of the Supreme Court to "District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia" and provided "Nothing in this Act shall affect the jurisdiction or functions of the court."

§ 20–312 [29: 142]. Executor of executor.

In no case shall the executor of an executor, as such, be entitled to administration de bonis non on the estate of the first deceased. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1237, ch. 854, § 300.)

Chapter 4.—COLLECTORS

Sec.
20–401. Letters ad colligendum.
20–402. Bond of collector—Oath—Form.
20–403. Duties of collector—Liability—Commission.
20–404. When powers to cease.
20–405. Liability of collector for refusing to deliver estate.

§ 20–401 [29: 151]. Letters ad colligendum.

Letters ad colligendum may be granted to one or more persons in case of a contest in relation to a will, or the absence of the executor from the District, or his delay in qualifying, or for other sufficient cause, and the form of such letters shall be as follows:

To all persons to whom these presents shall come, greeting:

Know ye that, whereas ———, of ———, deceased, had, as is said, at his decease, personal property within the District of Columbia, administration whereof can not immediately be granted, but which, if speedy care be not taken, may be lost, destroyed, or diminished, to the end that the same may be preserved for those who may appear to have a legal right or interest therein, we do hereby request and authorize ———, of ———, to secure and collect said property, wheresoever the same may be, in said District, whether the same be goods, chattels, debts, or credits, and to make a true inventory thereof and exhibit the same with all convenient speed, with an account of his collections, into the office of the register of wills.

§ 20–402 [29: 152]. Bond of collector—Oath—Form.

Every collector, except corporations authorized to act as such, before letters shall be issued to him, shall execute a bond to the United States, in a penalty and with security to be approved by said court, with the following condition:

"The condition of the above obligation is such that if the above bounden ——— shall well and honestly discharge the office of collector of the goods, chattels, and personal estate of ———, deceased, in the District of Columbia, and shall make or cause to be made a true and perfect inventory or inventories of such of said goods, chattels, personal estate, and debts as shall come to his possession or knowledge and make return of the same to the probate court of the District, and shall also deliver to the person or persons who shall be authorized by the court to receive them such of said goods, chattels, personal estate, and debts as shall come to his possession, except such as shall be allowed for by said court, then the said obligation shall be void; it shall otherwise be in full force and virtue at law."

And he shall also take and subscribe the following oath:

"I, ———, do swear that I will well and truly discharge the office of collector of the goods, chattels, and personal estate of ———, deceased, according to the tenor of the letters granted me by the probate court of the District of Columbia and the directions of law, to the best of my knowledge, so help me God." § 20–403 [29: 153]. Duties of collector — Liability — Commission.

The collector shall collect the goods, chattels, and personal estate of the deceased, including the debts due him, and cause the same to be appraised and return an inventory thereof, as an administrator is required to do, and may, under the authority of the court, sell perishable articles and bring suits for debts or other property, as an administrator may do, and shall account for the money recovered. The said collector may, if authorized by the court, take possession of, hold, manage, conserve, and control all real estate affected by the will or wills in dispute, and said collector shall discharge, pendente lite, all the duties of an administrator, including the payment of debts, and shall be liable to an action by any creditor of the deceased and shall be entitled to the protection of any provision of law expressly relating to executors and administrators.

Said collector may be allowed a commission not exceeding 10 per centum on the personal property, debts due the estate, and rentals from real estate actually collected by him.

In the event that such collector is authorized by the court to take possession of the real estate affected by such will or wills as hereinbefore set forth, the letters of collection shall so expressly specify, and his bond as such collector, in addition to the several matters set forth in section 20–402, shall specifically include the faithful performance of his duties with respect to such real estate. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1238, ch. 854, § 306; Apr. 19, 1920, 41 Stat. 562, ch. 153.)

AMENDMENT

The 1920 amendment deleted the words "said collector may be authorized and directed by the court to discharge, pendente lite, all or any of the duties of an administrator, including the payment of debts" and inserted the second sentence of the first paragraph; raised the maximum from 3 to 10 per centum; and, added the last paragraph.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

ATTORNEY'S FEES

An attorney whose services are rendered to an estate at request of collector of estate may look to the estate for his compensation and measure of allowance to the attorney is such as court may consider proper in light of applicable facts. Buck v. Putnam, 1944 (146 F. 2d 662, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 295).

Where account of collector of estate showed collection of assets to amount of approximately $580,000, allowance of fee of $6,000 to collector's attorney for services rendered by him to collector in administration of estate was not an abuse of discretion. Buck v. Putnam, 1944 (146 F. 2d 662, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 295).

COMMISSION

Where account of collector of an estate showed collection of assets to amount of approximately $580,000, allowance of a commission of 1½ percent of fund handled by collector during the 10-month period which he served was not an abuse of discretion. Buck v. Putnam, 1944 (146 F. 2d 662, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 295).

DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Probate court has authority, in case of the contest of a will, to appoint a collector of the personal estate, under sec. 304 of the 1901 Code (31 Stat. 1237, ch. 854 (§ 20–401)), and his powers, when so appointed, are those in general of a temporary administrator. Hutchins v. Dante (40 App. D. C. 262).

Duty of executors and trustees in respect to the payment of income is merely ministerial, and the collector, acting as administrator, may, under the court's direction, temporarily perform that duty. Hutchins v. Hutchins (41 App. D. C. 122).

Under secs. 306–308 of the 1901 Code (31 Stat. 1238, ch. 854 (§§ 20–403 to 20–405)), collectors may bring suits, but there is no expression permitting suits to be brought against them. Berry & Whitmore Co. v. Dante (43 App. D. C. 110).

Attorneys rendering services to the estate may recover fees from collector when such services were requested by collector in his representative capacity. Brandenburg v. Dante (49 App. D. C. 141, 261 Fed. 1021).

POWERS OF COLLECTOR

Collector has no power under this section (as amended) to prosecute appeal from order disbarring his decedent from practice of law. Metzger v. O'Donoghue (53 App. D. C. 107, 288 Fed. 461).

A collector of an estate for time being performs all duties and exercises all powers of an administrator. Buck v. Putnam, 1944 (146 F. 2d 662, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 295).

§ 20–404 [29: 154]. When powers to cease.

On the granting of letters testamentary or of administration the power of any such collector shall cease, and it shall be his duty to deliver, on demand, all the property and money of the decedent in his hands, except as before excepted, to the person obtaining such letters, and the executor or administrator may be permitted to prosecute any suit commenced by said collector as if the same had been begun by said executor or administrator, and may also defend any suit brought against said collector by any creditor of the deceased. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1238, ch. 854, § 307; Apr. 19, 1920, 41 Stat. 562, ch. 153.)

AMENDMENT

The 1920 amendment added the last phrase.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

SERVICES OF ATTORNEY

This section contemplates that the collector may bind the estate for the services of counsel. Brandenburg v. Dante (49 App. D. C. 141, 261 Fed. 1021).

VARIANCE BETWEEN DECREE AND ORDER

Where petitioner, seeking writ of habeas corpus, had been ordered to turn over concealed assets to collector of deceased's estate, whereas petitioner was held in contempt on petition of executor of estate for failing to deliver assets to the executor who had been appointed subsequent to the entry of the turn-over order, alleged variance between contempt decree and the turn-over order was not "fatal," since, upon the grant of letters to the executor, he was entitled to prosecute any suit commenced by the collector as if the suit had been begun by the executor. Watkins v. Rives, 1942 (125 F. 2d 33, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 109).

§ 20–405 [29: 155]. Liability of collector for refusing to deliver estate.

If the said collector shall neglect or refuse to deliver over the property and estate to the executor or administrator, the court may, by citation and attachment, compel him to do so, and the executor or administrator may also proceed, by civil action, to recover the value of the assets from him and his sureties by action on his bond. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1238, ch. 854, § 308; Apr. 19, 1920, 41 Stat. 562, ch. 153.)

AMENDMENT

The 1920 amendment deleted the following: "Such collector shall not be liable to an action by any creditor of the deceased."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

RIGHT TO SUE

Congress was careful to use words that in no way abridged the right to pursue such a remedy of one in whose favor the remedy was inferentially recognized in the preceding sections. Brandenburg v. Dante (49 App. D. C. 141, 261 Fed. 1021).

Chapter 5.—SUITS

Sec.

20–501. Suits by and against executors or administrators.
20–502 Judgments against executor or administrator—Amount of damages—When assessed.
20–503. Concealment of assets by strangers.
20–504. Concealment by executor or administrator.
20–505. Foreign executors and administrators—Suits by.
20–506. Suits on bonds against heirs.

§ 20–501 [29: 251]. Suits by and against executors or administrators.

Executors and administrators shall have full power and authority to commence and prosecute any personal action at law or in equity which the testator or intestate might have commenced and prosecuted: Provided, however, That in tort actions, the said right of action shall be limited to damages for personal injury except for pain and suffering resulting therefrom; and they shall also be liable to be sued in the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia in any action at law or in equity, except as aforesaid, which might have been maintained against the deceased; and they shall be entitled to or answerable for costs in the same manner as the deceased would have been, and shall be allowed for the same in their accounts, unless it shall appear that there were not probable grounds for instituting or defending the suits in which judgments or decrees shall have been given against them. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1241, ch. 854, § 327; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 529, ch. 1329; June 19, 1948, 62 Stat. 488, ch. 508, § 2).

AMENDMENTS

The 1902 amendment deleted the words "slander and for" and inserted after the word "person" the words "or to the reputation."

The 1948 amendment deleted the words "except actions for injuries to the person or to the reputation" and substituted the words: "Provided, however, In tort actions, the said right of action shall be limited to damages for personal injury except for pain and suffering resulting therefrom."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

ATTACHMENT OR GARNISHMENT

The District Court for District of Columbia has exclusive jurisdiction of suits against an executor on claims against the estate, but an attachment or garnishment directed to an executor, in connection with an action against a third party who claims an interest in the estate, is not a "suit against executor" within jurisdiction of district court. Frank v. Malone, 1942 (126 F. 2d 651, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 296).

COMPROMISE

Where executor reasonably believed that estate was entitled to claim Government bonds notwithstanding their registration in names of decedent or another person, and reasonably claimed an interest in savings account deposits which were made entirely from decedent's money, and when question of ownership of bonds and deposits was first raised, such other person might have made claim of complete ownership of both, the situation furnished the basis for a valid compromise and settlement of the respective claims. Magruder v. National Metropolitan Bank of Wash. (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 40 A. 2d 828).

CONSTRUCTION

While perhaps proviso excepting damages for pain and suffering is somewhat inartistically drawn, nevertheless it is not ambiguous and the legistlative history supports this conclusion. Phillips v. Lust (D. C. D. C. 1949, 82 F. Supp. 63).

JURISDICTION OF SUIT

"An executor or administrator cannot be sued in another jurisdiction than that which the administration of the estate is depending, for an accounting, or for acts involving the administration of the estate, or the assets thereof in his hands as such executor or administrator." Johns v. Herbert (2 App. D. C. 485).

If, however, he becomes a trustee of the property, after the estate should be closed, "he is amenable to suit in the courts of any jurisdiction within which he may be found." Johns v. Herbert (2 App. D. C. 485).

"An administrator or executor cannot sue or be sued in his representative capacity in any other jurisdiction than the one of his appointment, except where it is permitted by the laws of the jurisdiction in which the suit is sought to be maintained." Bryan v. Curtis (30 App. D. C. 234), citing Plumb v. Bateman (2 App. D. C. 156).

The right conferred by section 329 of the 1901 code (§ 20–505) does not imply "that suit can be maintained in the courts of the District against such administrator or executor." Bryan v. Curtis (30 App. D. C. 234, cited with approval in Ryan v. McAdoo, 46 App. D. C. 117).

Section 1 of the Municipal Court Act (41 Stat. 1310), this section, and section 328 of the 1901 code (§ 20–502) are in pari materia, and must be construed together. The municipal court has no jurisdiction over suits against executors or administrators. Sanford v. Sanford (52 App. D. C. 315, 286 Fed. 777).

PARTIES

Where mortgagor executed mortgage covering Pennsylvania realty and died resident of Pennsylvania, mortgagor's administrator was a "necessary party" to suit for an accounting against mortgagees by executrix of estate of mortgagor's mother who was the mortgagor's sole heir. Cain v. Hutson, 1942 (127 F. 2d 19, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 335, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 53, 317 U. S. 656, 87 L. Ed. 527).

RELIANCE ON STATUTE

In a prior case, § 20–501 of Code was construed as not only permitting but requiring the presence of an executor as a plaintiff in action of this nature, and as such case has not been changed or overruled, etc., executors were warranted in relying upon the Code provision, so construed, as direct statutory authority to institute action to avoid a deed. Ramsey v. Curtis (C. A. D. C. 1950, 182 F. 2d 687, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 386).

SALE BY EXECUTOR

When will directs the executor to sell the real estate of testator, the legal title vests in him and he has the power to convey, and also authority to enforce specific performance of contract for the sale. Griffith v. Stewart (31 App. D. C. 29, affd. 217 U. S. 323, 54 L. Ed. 782, 30 Sup. Ct. 528, 19 Ann. Cas. 639).

§ 20–502 [29:252]. Judgments against executor or administrator—Amount of damages—When assessed.

If the verdict of the jury in any suit against an executor or administrator be against such executor or administrator, or if he shall be willing to confess judgment, and the debt or damages which the deceased (if he or she were alive) ought to pay be ascertained by verdict, or confession, or otherwise, the court shall thereupon assess the sum which the executor or administrator ought to pay, regard being had to the amount of assets in his hands and the debts due to other persons; and if it shall appear to the court that there are assets to discharge all just claims against the deceased, the judgment shall be for the whole debt or damages found by the jury, or confessed, or otherwise ascertained, and costs; and if it shall appear to the court that there are not assets to discharge all such just claims, the judgment shall be for such sum only as bears a just proportion to the amount of the debt or damages and costs, regard being had to the amount of all the just claims and of the assets—that is to say, as the amount of all the said claims shall be to the assets, so shall the amount of the said debt or damages and costs be to the sum required, for which judgment is to be given.

And in no case shall the court proceed to assess as aforesaid and to pass such judgment against an executor or administrator until the time limited by law or by the court for the executor or administrator to pass his account shall have expired: Provided, That the said executor or administrator shall make oath (or affirmation, as the case may require) that he hath not assets to discharge all such just claims; and the account settled by the probate court, in which the debt or damages sued for ought to be stated, shall be evidence to show the amount of assets and claims; and the court shall have power, when the real debt or damages are ascertained, to refer the matter to an auditor to ascertain the sum for which judgment shall be given; and in case the judgment shall be for a sum inferior to the real debt or damage and costs, it shall go on and say "that the plaintiff be entitled to such further sum as the court shall hereafter assess on discovery of further assets in the hands of the defendant"; and the court, at any time afterwards, when applied to by the plaintiff, on three days' notice to the defendant or his attorney, may assess and give judgment for such further proportionable sum as the plaintiff shall appear entitled to, regard being had as aforesaid to the amount of the debt and other claims; and on any judgment passed as aforesaid a fieri facias may issue against the defendant, and either his own goods or the goods of the deceased may be thereupon taken and sold, and it shall be the duty of the executor or administrator to discharge said judgment or put it on a footing with other just claims, and on failure his administration bond may be put in suit by the plaintiff. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1242, ch. 854, § 328.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

ASSETS

"Assets" for purpose of determining sufficiency of "assets" to discharge just claims of estate means property, real or personal, tangible or intangible, legal or equitable, which can be made available for, or can be appropriated to, the payment of debts. Stoner v. National Metropolitan Bank of Washington (D. C., D. C. 1948, 77 F. Supp. 699).

DEFENSES

Executors sued for debt or damages and making oath under this section as to insufficiency of assets cannot successfully raise such defense by merely raising doubt as to sufficiency of assets or leaving matter vague, but must establish precisely the condition of estate so that court may not know exactly what part of claim should be allowed, and hence oath that "executors cannot determine that they will have sufficient assets to pay all claims" was insufficient. Stoner v. National Metropolitan Bank of Washington (D. C., D. C. 1948, 77 F. Supp. 699).

JUDGMENT—AMOUNT

In action against an executor on a demand, unless defense of insufficiency of assets is interposed, judgment may be entered for the full amount of demand sued on. Hawley v. Hawley, 1940 (114 F. 2d 745, 72 App. D. C. 376).

JUDGMENT—ENFORCEMENT

In action against an executor on a demand, a fieri facias may issue against the executor, and either his own goods or goods of deceased may be taken and sold. Hawley v. Hawley, 1940 (114 F. 2d 745, 72 App. D. C. 376).

JUDGMENT—ENTRY

Final judgment would not be entered against administratrix of one liable for accounting until plaintiff had complied with this section governing judgments against executor or administrator, and court would retain jurisdiction for purpose of enabling plaintiff to comply and of entering final judgment. Cafritz v. Corporation Audit Co. (D. C., D. C. 1945, 60 F. Supp. 627).

JURISDICTION OF SUIT

Section 1 of the Municipal Court Act (§ 11–703) and sections 327 and 328 of the 1901 Code (§§ 20–501, 20–502) are in pari materia, and must be construed together. Cases covered by said sections 327 and 328 are to be treated as exceptions to those coming within the purview of section 1. Sanford v. Sanford (52 App. D. C. 315, 286 Fed. 777).

PROCEDURE IN COLLECTION OF CLAIMS

Proceeding for collection of claims against estate is against executor in his official capacity to determine amount of demand sued on, the value of assets in hands of executor, and proration of the two. Hawley v. Hawley, 1940 (114 F. 2d 745, 72 App. D. C. 376).

§ 20–503 [29: 253]. Concealment of assets by strangers.

If an executor, administrator, or collector shall believe that any person conceals any part of his decedent's estate, he may file a petition in said court alleging such concealment, and the court may compel an answer thereto on oath; and if satisfied, upon an examination of the whole case, that the party charged has concealed any part of the estate of the deceased, the court may order the delivery thereof to the executor, administrator, or collector, and may enforce obedience to such order in the same manner in which orders of said court may be enforced. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1209, ch. 854, § 122.)

CROSS REFERENCE

NOTES TO DECISIONS

DETERMINATION OF OWNERSHIP

On petition of creditor, court is without jurisdiction to order fund in possession of third person (who claims an interest therein) paid into the registry of the court. Cook v. Speare (13 App. D. C. 446).

Purpose of section is to furnish prompt remedy for discovery of assets and their reduction to possession when discovered. "But we are unable to find a further intention to confer upon the probate court jurisdiction to determine the question of the actual ownership of such property" as between executor and rival claimant. Richardson v. Daggett (24 App. D. C. 440).

PROBATE COURT JURISDICTION

The probate court of the District of Columbia does not have jurisdiction to decide disputes concerning title or possession of property, as between representatives of an estate and strangers who claim adversely to the estate. Watkins v. Rives (App. D. C. 1941, 125 F. 2d 33).

Where petitioner had offered for probate a will in which he was named executor and he acted upon his testamentary authority and did not question jurisdiction of probate court of District of Columbia over him until after an earlier will had been admitted to probate, and rule had been sought by new executor to require the petitioner to show cause why he should not be adjudged in contempt for failure to comply with a turn-over order, the petitioner's conduct constituted a "waiver" of objection that he became a stranger to the estate from the moment that the will which he had offered for probate was declared invalid, and that therefore probate court was without jurisdiction to adjudge him in contempt. Watkins v. Rives, 1942 (125 F. 2d 33, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 109).

§ 20–504 [29: 254]. Concealment by executor or administrator.

If any person interested in any decedent's estate shall by petition allege that the executor, administrator, or collector has concealed or has in his hands and has omitted to return in the inventory or list of debts any part of his decedent's assets, and the court shall finally adjudge and decree in favor of the allegations of the petition, in whole or in part, it shall order an additional inventory or list of debts, as the case may be, to be returned by the executor, administrator, or collector, and appraisement to be made accordingly, to comprehend the assets omitted, and the court may compel obedience to said order, and, if the same is not complied with, revoke the letters testamentary or of administration or of collection and order the bond of the executor, administrator, or collector to be put in suit. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1210, ch. 854, § 124.)

CROSS REFERENCE

NOTES TO DECISIONS

JURISDICTION

Where an executor asserts title to assets adversely to the decedent's estate, the probate court of the District of Columbia has jurisdiction under statute to try the question of title thereby presented. Watkins v. Rives, 1942 (125 F. 2d 33, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 109).

RIGHT TO HEARING

Petition charging executor with concealing assets is a pleading only and not evidence; and executor is entitled to his day in court—in other words, to a trial upon the evidence. Brosnan v. Brosnan (53 App. D. C. 149, 289 Fed. 547, citing Williams v. Williams 24 App. D. C. 214); Guthrie v. Welch (24 App. D. C. 562).

§ 20–505 [29: 255]. Foreign executors and administrators—Suits by.

It shall be lawful for any person or persons to whom letters testamentary or of administration have been granted by the proper authority in any of the United States or the territories thereof to maintain any suit or action and to prosecute and recover any claim in the District in the same manner as if the letters testamentary or of administration had been granted to such person or persons by the proper authority in the said District; and the letters testamentary or of administration, or a copy thereof certified under the seal of the authority granting the same, shall be sufficient evidence to prove the granting thereof, and that the person or persons, as the case may be, hath or have administration: Provided, nevertheless, That the probate court of the District shall have the power, upon the petition of anyone interested, to require from such person or persons the security required by law in like cases from a resident administrator or executor, or the said court may grant auxiliary or ancillary letters, as the case may require, to the same or other persons. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1242, ch. 854, § 329.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

ANCILLARY LETTERS, PERSONS ENTITLED TO

Where testatrix, who was domiciled in Michigan and whose estate and beneficiaries were largely in Michigan but who had intangible property in District of Columbia, named resident of District of Columbia as sole executor, but Michigan court appointed Michigan resident as administrator with will annexed, because Michigan law forbids appointment of a nonresident executor, it was within discretion of District of Columbia court to appoint the Michigan executor as ancillary administrator. Purcell v. Cramton, 1944 (143 F. 2d 22, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 99).

The requirement of § 20–301, that when any will shall have been authenticated and admitted to probate letters testamentary thereon shall be issued to the executor named therein, if he is legally competent and will accept the trust, does not apply to ancillary letters. Purcell v. Cramton, 1944 (79 U. S. App. D. C. 99).

Ordinarily ancillary letters are granted to the domiciliary executor or administrator. Purcell v. Cramton, 1944 (143 F. 2d 22, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 99).

PARTIES IN SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE

Such an executor may maintain specific performance without joining heirs. Griffith v. Stewart (31 App. D. C. 29, affd. 217 U. S. 323, 54 L. Ed. 782, 30 Sup. Ct. 528, 19 Ann. Cas. 639).

WHAT LAW GOVERNS

"Letters of administration obtained in the jurisdiction of the domicil of the decedent prevail over letters of administration de bonis non granted in this District, and the statute confers upon such foreign administrator the right 'to recover from any individual within the District of Columbia effects or money belonging to the testator or intestate, and that letters testamentary or of administration obtained in either of the States or Territories of this Union give a right to the person having them to receive or give discharges for assets, without suit, which may be in the hands of any person in the District of Columbia.' Kane v. Paul (14 Pet. (39 U. S.) 33, 10 L. Ed. 341)." Southern R. Co. v. Hawkins (35 App. D. C. 313).

A suit filed by a Maryland executor for specific performance of a contract to buy realty located in Maryland must be governed by the law of that state. Griffith v. Stewart (31 App. D. C. 29, affd. 217 U. S. 323, 54 L. Ed. 782, 30 Sup. Ct. 528, 19 Ann. Cas. 639).

Local administrator, however, may maintain action for death by wrongful act over the objection of the defendant where "the foreign executor did not attempt to bring this suit, and is not here complaining because it was brought by appellee. In such a situation, we think, he may be presumed to have waived any right conferred upon him by the local statute, and that such waiver may be taken advantage of by the real party in interest." Southern R. Co. v. Hawkins (35 App. D. C. 313). See Western Union Tel. Co. v. Lipscomb (22 App. D. C. 104).

Under this section, the domiciliary administrator of a Michigan decedent's estate might have the estate in the District of Columbia administered by the probate court, or might apply for the appointment of an ancillary administrator. Wiggins v. Mayer (57 App. D. C. 293, 22 Fed. (2d) 869).

While authorizing a domiciliary administratrix to sue in the courts of the District of Columbia, this section limits the purposes of such suits and, by implication, limits exercise of the power to situations in which no ancillary administration has been granted in the District. Duehay v. Acacia Mut. Life Ins. Co. (70 App. D. C. 245, 105 Fed. (2d) 768).

Nothing contained in this section reveals an intention on the part of Congress to abandon the well-established principle of law which governs ancillary administrations. Duehay v. Acacia Mut. Life Ins. Co. (70 App. D. C. 245, 105 Fed. (2d) 768).

§ 20–506 [29: 256]. Suits on bonds against heirs.

No creditor by a bond which purports to bind the heirs of the obligor shall be entitled to sue the heirs at common law in respect of assets descended to them, but debts by specialty and by simple contract, without distinction, shall be payable primarily out of the personal estate, and, if that be insufficient, shall be payable equally and without preference out of the proceeds of the real estate. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1247, ch. 854, § 360.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

REAL ESTATE MORTGAGES

Debts by specialty and by simple contract, shall be payable primarily out of the personal estate. Mortgage on devised real estate must be paid out of the personal property. Tracy v. Atwell (58 App. D. C. 397, 32 Fed. (2d) 392).

Chapter 6.—ACCOUNTS

Sec.
20–601. First account within twelve months.
20–602. Subsequent accounts.
20–603. Failure to account.
20–604. Assets to be charged.
20–605. Disbursements and allowances.
20–606. Bequests to executors.
20–607. Executor of deceased executor or administrator to render account.
20–608. Accounts of deceased executrix or administratrix.
20–609. Lost property.
20–610. Executor or administrator of deceased executor or administrator entitled to commission—To render accounts.

§ 20–601 [29: 261]. First account within twelve months.

Every executor and administrator shall render to the probate court within the period of twelve months from the date of his letters the first account of his administration: Provided, That said account may be rendered six months from the date of his letters. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1247, ch. 854, § 361; June 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 268, ch. 242, § 7.)

AMENDMENTS

The act of June 24, 1949, cited to text, added the proviso.

CROSS REFERENCE

Jurisdiction, pleading and practice in probate court, §§ 11–501 to 11–520.

§ 20–602 [29: 262]. Subsequent accounts.

If the first account shall not show the estate which was on hand to be fully administered, other accounts shall be rendered from time to time until the estate is fully administered under such rules as the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia may establish. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1247, ch. 854, § 362; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 529, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The original act provided for the return of accounts every six months until estate be fully administered.

§ 20–603 [29: 263]. Failure to account.

If an executor or administrator shall fail to return an account within the time limited by law or fixed by the rules of court, or within such further time as the probate court shall allow, his letters, on application of any person interested, may be revoked and administration granted at the discretion of the court. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1247, ch. 854, § 363; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 529, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The 1901 act provided further that "the administrator to whom letters may be granted shall be entitled to put the delinquent's bond in suit" and provided for the recovery of damages; this was deleted by the 1902 amendatory act.

§ 20–604 [29: 264]. Assets to be charged.

In such account shall be stated, on one side, the assets which have come to his hands, according to the inventory or inventories returned to the court or received and appraised as herein directed, after the inventory or inventories returned, and the sales made under the court's direction—that is to say, the inventory or inventories are to show the articles of the estate, and the sales, the amount of their value, where they have been sold, and for articles so sold he shall be charged the price according to the return; and if any articles have been sold for credit and not yet paid for they shall be accounted for in a subsequent account, and all moneys received for debts due the decedent shall be included in said account. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1248, ch. 854, § 364.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

COUNSEL FEES

Counsel fees for defending will be charged against the estate. McIntire v. McIntire (192 U. S. 116, 48 L. Ed. 369, 24 Sup. Ct. 196, affg. 14 App. D. C. 337).

EFFECT OF SETTLEMENT

Settlement of administrator's first and final accounts held not to be given the effect of an adjudication of distributee's rights. Claudy v. Duvall (55 App. D. C. 319, 5 Fed. (2d) 381).

INCOME FROM SPECIFIC BEQUESTS

Dividends accruing after death of testatrix upon shares of stock specifically bequeathed are not subject to administrative costs until residuary bequests are exhausted. Nash v. Ober (2 App. D. C. 304).

INTEREST ON ASSETS

If executor mingles money belonging to estate with his own or is negligent in not paying it over or investing it to render it productive, he is chargeable with interest. Mades v. Miller (2 App. D. C. 455).

§ 20–605 [29: 265]. Disbursements and allowances.

On the other side shall be stated the disbursements by him made, namely: First. Funeral expenses, to be allowed at the discretion of the court, according to the condition and circumstances of the deceased, not exceeding three hundred dollars: Provided, That for special cause shown the court may make such additional allowance not exceeding three hundred dollars as such special circumstances may warrant. Second. The debts of the deceased proved or passed as herein directed, and paid or retained. Third. The allowance for things lost, or which have perished without the party's fault, which allowance shall be according to the appraisement. Fourth. His commissions, which shall be at the discretion of the court, not under one per centum nor exceeding ten per centum on the amount of the inventory or inventories, excluding what is lost or perished. Fifth. His allowance for costs, attorneys' fees, and extraordinary expenses which the court may think proper to allow. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1248, ch. 854, § 365; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 529, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The 1902 amendment changed the allowance from $600 to $300 and added from the proviso in the first sentence.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

AUTHORITY FOR PAYMENTS

An executor should not make payments to himself on account of commissions until he has been authorized by court to do so. Doherty v. Stoner (C. A., D. C., 1948, 169 F. 2d 965).

Where it was certain, because of size of inventory and provision of will fixing his compensation at 10% thereof, that executor would ultimately be entitled to commissions largely in excess of advances on commissions which he prematurely paid to himself, and that executor had substantially completed his work, unauthorized withdrawals by executor resulted in no harm to estate, and executor would not be charged with interest on commissions which he withdrew prematurely. Doherty v. Stoner (C. A., D. C. 1948, 169 F. 2d 965).

COMPENSATION OF EXECUTOR OR ADMINISTRATOR

This section "places a limitation beyond which the court may not go in allowing compensation for the services of an executor or administrator, or executors or administrators, in administering an entire estate." Brosnan v. Fox (52 App. D. C. 143, 284 Fed. 923).

"In the case of succession the court must make only such allowances * * * to the succeeding executors or administrators within the limitation fixed by the statute." Brosnan v. Fox (52 App. D. C. 143, 284 Fed. 923).

The court has power to compensate an executor for defending the validity of a contested will, which is finally adjudicated void. Brosnan v. Fox (52 App. D. C. 143, 284 Fed. 923, citing Hutchins v. Hutchins 48 App. D. C. 286).

COMPUTATION OF COMMISSIONS

Where executor sold testatrix' realty, executor was entitled to have his commission based on gross sale price rather than net sum received, notwithstanding that debts and charges were taken out of sale price by title insurance company which handled the settlement after sale and that only the net sum was turned over to executor. Doherty v. Stoner (C. A., D. C. 1948, 169 F. 2d 965).

Where testatrix on date of her death had on deposit in local bank the sum of $44,219.73, and bank held her note for $25,000, and on due date, which was before executor qualified, bank charged testatrix' account with principal of note and accrued interest, so that executor succeeded to a credit of only $19,053.06, entire deposit of $44,219.73 was properly a part of inventory upon which executor's commissions were to be calculated. Doherty v. Stoner (C. A., D. C. 1948, 169 F. 2d 965).

No case is made for payment to executor in operating decedent's business over and above the amount already permitted by the Code. Stoner v. Doherty (C. A. D. C. 1950, 182 F. 2d 673, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 368).

DISCRETION OF COURT

Provision in will directing that executor be allowed maximum compensation permitted by law nullified court's discretion under this section as to amount of executor's commissions. Doherty v. Stoner (C. A., D. C. 1948, 169 F. 2d 965).

EFFECT OF SETTLEMENT OF FINAL ACCOUNTS

Settlement of administrator's first and final accounts held not to be given the effect of an adjudication of distributee's rights. Claudy v. Duvall (55 App. D. C. 319, 5 Fed. (2d) 381).

FUNERAL EXPENSES

A child's guardian would be granted permission to pay funeral expenses of child's mother in a reasonable amount out of estate received by child and where such allowances out of a decedent's estate were limited by this section to a maximum of $600, payment would be authorized in that amount instead of the sum of $821 prayed for. In re Fitzwater's Guardianship (App. D. C. 1947, 69 F. Supp. 866).

This section placing a limit of $600 on disbursements by executor or administrator for funeral expenses means $600 for a funeral within the District of Columbia, so that where a body has been transported from the District of Columbia for burial elsewhere executor or administrator may disburse not more than $600 for expenses in the District of Columbia and not more than $600 for expenses outside of the District of Columbia. In re Tunison's Estate (D. C., D. C. 1948, 75 F. Supp. 573).

INVENTORY ITEMS

Disbursements for payroll, operating and miscellaneous expenses incurred in continuing a business until its sale are not inventory items within the meaning of the section authorizing commissions. Stoner v. Doherty (C. A. D. C. 1950, 182 F. 2d 673, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 368).

NO ALLOWANCE PRIOR TO FINAL SETTLEMENT

"An executor, prior to final settlement of the estate, or the termination of his services in connection with the estate, is not entitled to an allowance of commissions." Brosnan v. Fox (52 App. D. C. 143, 284 Fed. 923).

An executor is not entitled to commission prior to final settlement of estate or termination of his services, but such rule should not be applied in such a way as to create unnecessary hardship. Doherty v. Stoner (C. A., D. C. 1948, 169 F. 2d 965).

§ 20–606 [29: 266]. Bequests to executors.

If anything be bequeathed to an executor by way of compensation, no allowance of commission shall be made unless the said compensation shall appear to the court to be insufficient; and if so, it shall be reckoned in the commission to be allowed by the court. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1248, ch. 854, § 366.)

CROSS REFERENCE

See § 20–610 and annotations as to allowance of commission.

§ 20–607 [29: 267]. Executor of deceased executor or administrator to render account.

The executor or administrator of a deceased executor or administrator who shall die before an account of his administration hath been rendered shall render an account showing the amount of the assets received and the payments made by his decedent, and the account shall, if found by the court to be correct, be admitted to record as other administration accounts. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1249, ch. 854, § 370.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Other provisions concerning accounting for deceased executor or administrator, § 20–110.

§ 20–608 [29: 268]. Accounts of deceased executrix or administratrix.

The husband of an executrix or administratrix who shall die before a final account of her administration shall have been settled shall render such account, if required by the court, showing thereby the amount of money and property received and of payments and disbursements made by such executrix or administratrix, or that may have been received or paid by him, and not before accounted for with the court; and the account so rendered shall, if found by the court to be correct, be admitted to record as other administration accounts in cases where the executrix or administratrix rendered them in person; and in case of refusal of the husband to render such account, the court may proceed against him by attachment, and may commit him until he shall render such account. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1249, ch. 854, § 371.)

§ 20–609 [29: 269]. Lost property.

The probate court shall have power to make allowance to any executor, administrator, or collector for property of the decedent which hath perished or been lost without the fault of the party; and no profit shall be made and no loss sustained by an executor or administrator in the increase or decrease of the estate under his management; but he shall return an inventory and account for such increase, and may be allowed for such decrease on the settlement of the final or other account. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1249, ch. 854, § 372.)

§ 20–610 [29: 270]. Executor or administrator of deceased executor or administrator entitled to commission—To render accounts.

The executor or administrator of the deceased executor or administrator shall return, on oath, to the court, on or before the day named as provided in section 20–111, a list of the bonds, notes, accounts, and money provided in section 20–110, and shall be entitled to retain out of the money such commission as the court shall allow, not exceeding ten per centum on the principal inventory, and the personal estate and money turned over by him shall be assets in the hands of the administrator de bonis non, to be accounted for by him as such. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1237, ch. 854, § 303.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

AGREEMENTS AS TO COMPENSATION

"An executor or administrator may agree to serve for less than the compensation fixed in the statute, and if he does so the agreement will be enforced." Washington Loan & Trust Co. v. Convention of Protestant Episcopal Church (54 App. D. C. 14, 293 Fed. 833, 34 A. L. R. 913).

COMPENSATION FIXED BY WILL

Executor qualifying under will fixing commission at 3 per cent. can not subsequently claim a larger sum, although it acted on advice of counsel that the limitation was void and stated in its petition that it based its application on that advice. Washington Loan & Trust Co. v. Convention of Protestant Episcopal Church (54 App. D. C. 14, 293 Fed. 833, 34 A. L. R. 913, citing McIntire v. McIntire, 14 App. D. C. 337, affd. 192 U. S. 116, 48 L. Ed. 369, 24 Sup. Ct. 196). As to allowance of commission, see also Sinnott v. Kenaday (14 App. D. C. 1); Marfield v. McCurdy (25 App. D. C. 342); Howard v. Howard (38 App. D. C. 575); Brosnan v. Fox (52 App. D. C. 143, 284 Fed. 923).

TIME FOR PAYMENT

Generally, an executor's commissions should be withheld until final settlement of the estate or termination of his services, but this rule is one of caution and should not be applied so as to create unnecessary hardship. Maloney v. Foundry M. E. Church, 1944 (139 F. 2d 388, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 263).

Where the bulk of an estate had been collected and the balance appeared to be dependent on the results of long litigation, the executor, claiming a commission of 5 percent of the principal assets converted to cash, should be given an opportunity to show that postponement of payment would be an unreasonable hardship not necessary to protect the estate against his resignation or disqualification. Maloney v. Foundry M. E. Church, 1944 (139 F. 2d 388, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 263).

In its discretion, after hearing evidence, the court may allow advance payment of an executor's commissions if it finds that otherwise unavoidable delay in final settlement will cause an unreasonable hardship and there is no reasonable probability that the remaining amount will be insufficient to satisfy claims of a possible successor. Maloney v. Foundry M. E. Church, 1944 (139 F. 2d 388, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 263).

Chapter 7.—ESTATES OF ABSENTEES AND ABSCONDERS

Sec.
20–701. Petition for appointment of receiver, where absentees interested in property—United States Attorney necessary party.
20–702. Warrant to United States marshal—Fees of marshal.
20–703. Notice of hearing to absentee and interested parties.
20–704. Time of hearing—Publication and posting of notice.
20–705. Appointment of receiver—Bond—Finding of date of disappearance.
20–706. Transfer of property to receiver—Schedule of property.
20–707. Receiver may take possession of additional property of and debts due absentee—Appointment of receiver.
20–708. Procedure where absentee left only debts due him—Appointment of receiver.
20–709. Care, custody, sale of property.
20–710. Support of absentee's wife and minor children.
20–711. Receiver may adjust claims of or against estate.
20–712. Compensation of receiver—Interest of absentee in property to cease after fourteen years.
20–713. Distribution after fourteen years as if absentee had died intestate.
20–714. Time for distribution and accounting when receiver not appointed within thirteen years.
20–715. Sections 14–501, 14–502 not affected.

If a person entitled to or having an interest in property in the District of Columbia has disappeared or absconded from the District of Columbia, and it is not known where he is, or if such person, having a wife or minor child, dependent to any extent upon him for support, has disappeared or absconded without making sufficient provision for such support, and it is not known where he is, or if his whereabouts is known and he has been without the District of Columbia continuously for two years or longer, anyone who would under the law of the District of Columbia be entitled to administer upon the estate of such absentee if he were deceased, or if no one is known to be so entitled, any suitable person, or such wife, or someone in her or such minor's behalf, may file a petition under oath in the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia, sitting in equity, stating the name, age, occupation, and last known residence or address of such absentee, the date and circumstances of the disappearance or absconding, and the names and residence of other persons, whether members of such absentee's family or otherwise, of whom inquiry may be made, and containing a schedule of his property, real and personal, so far as known, within the District of Columbia, and praying that such property may be taken possession of and a receiver thereof appointed under the provisions of sections 20–701 to 20–715. The United States attorney in and for the District of Columbia shall be made a party to every such petition and shall be given due notice of all subsequent proceedings under said sections. (Apr. 8, 1935, 49 Stat. 111, ch. 46, § 1; June 25, 1936, 49 Stat. 1921, ch. 804.)

AMENDMENT

The 1936 act changed the name of the Supreme Court to the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

"WITHOUT THE DISTRICT" DEFINED

To be "without the District of Columbia continuously for two years or longer" must be held to mean to be uninterruptedly and physically beyond the confines of the District, and not merely to establish residence outside of the District. De Ruiz v. De Ruiz (66 App. D. C. 370, 88 Fed. (2d) 752).

§ 20–702 [29: 305]. Warrant to United States marshal—Fees of marshal.

The court may thereupon issue a warrant directed to the United States marshal in and for the District of Columbia, commanding him to take possession of the property named in said schedule and hold it subject to the order of the court and make return of said warrant as soon as may be, with a statement of his actions thereon and a schedule of the property so taken. The marshal shall post a copy of the warrant upon each parcel of land named in the schedule and cause so much of the warrant as relates to land to be recorded with the recorder of deeds of the District of Columbia. He shall receive such fees for serving the warrant as the court allows, but not more than those established by law for similar service upon a writ of attachment. If the petition is dismissed, said fees and the cost of publishing and serving the notice hereinafter provided shall be paid by the petitioner; but if a receiver is appointed, they shall be paid by the receiver and allowed in his account. (Apr. 8, 1935, 49 Stat. 111, ch. 46, § 2.)

§ 20–703 [29: 306]. Notice of hearing to absentee and interested parties.

Upon the return of such warrant, the court may issue a notice reciting the substance of the petition, the warrant, and the marshal's return, which shall be addressed to such absentee and to all persons who claim of record an interest in said property, or who are known to petitioner to claim an interest in said property, and to all whom it may concern, citing them to appear at a time and place named and show cause why a receiver of the property named in the marshal's schedule should not be appointed and said property held and disposed of under the provisions of sections 20–701 to 20–714. (Apr. 8, 1935, 49 Stat. 111, ch. 46, § 3.)

§ 20–704 [29: 307]. Time of hearing—Publication and posting of notice.

The return day of said notice shall be not less than thirty nor more than sixty days after its date unless otherwise ordered by the court. The court shall order said notice to be published not less than once in each of three successive weeks in one or more newspapers within the District of Columbia, and a copy to be posted in a conspicuous place and upon each parcel of land named in the marshal's schedule, and a copy to be mailed to the last known address of such absentee. The court may order other and further notice to be given within or without the District of Columbia. (Apr. 8, 1935, 49 Stat. 112, ch. 46, § 4.)

§ 20–705 [29: 308]. Appointment of receiver—Bond—Finding of date of disappearance.

The absentee or any person who claims an interest in any of the property may appear and show cause why the prayer of the petition should not be granted. The court may, after hearing, dismiss the petition and order the property in possession of the marshal to be returned to the person entitled thereto, or it may appoint a receiver of the property which is in the possession of the marshal and named in his schedule. If a receiver is appointed, the court shall find and record the date of the disappearance or absconding of the absentee; and such receiver shall give bond to said court in such sum and with such condition as the court orders, with a corporate surety thereon approved by the court. (Apr. 8, 1935, 49 Stat. 112, ch. 46, § 5.)

§ 20–706 [29: 309]. Transfer of property to receiver—Schedule of property.

After the approval of such bond the court may order the marshal to transfer and deliver to such receiver the possession of the property under the aforesaid warrant, and the receiver shall file in said court a schedule of the property received by him. (Apr. 8, 1935, 49 Stat. 112; ch. 46, § 6.)

§ 20–707 [29: 310]. Receiver may take possession of additional property of and debts due absentee—Appointment of receiver.

Such receiver upon petition filed by him may be authorized and directed by the court to take possession of any additional property within the District of Columbia which belongs to such absentee and to demand and collect all debts due such absentee from any person within the District of Columbia, and hold the same as if it had been transferred and delivered to him by the marshal. (Apr. 8, 1935, 49 Stat. 112, ch. 46, § 7.)

If such absentee has left no corporeal property within the District of Columbia, but there are debts and obligations due or owing to him from persons within the District of Columbia, a petition may be filed as provided in section 20–701, stating the nature and amount of such debts and obligations, so far as known, and praying that a receiver thereof may be appointed. The court may thereupon issue a notice as above provided, without issuing a warrant, and may, upon the return of said notice and after a summary hearing, dismiss the petition or appoint a receiver and authorize and direct him to demand and collect the debts and obligations specified in said petition. The receiver shall give bond as provided in section 20–705, and shall hold the proceeds of such debts and obligations and all property received by him, and distribute the same as hereinafter provided. The court may confer upon the receiver such further authority as may be conferred under section 20–707. (Apr. 8, 1935, 49 Stat. 112, ch. 46, § 8.)

§ 20–709 [29: 312]. Care, custody, sale of property.

The court may make orders for the care, custody, leasing, and investing of all property and its proceeds in the possession of the receiver. After the appointment of a receiver, upon his petition and after notice, the court may order all or part of said property, including the rights of the absentee in land, to be mortgaged, or sold at public or private sale, to supply money for payments authorized by sections 20–701 to 20–714 or for reinvestment approved by the court. (Apr. 8, 1935, 49 Stat. 112, ch. 46, § 9.)

§ 20–710 [29: 313]. Support of absentee's wife and minor children.

The court may order said property or its proceeds acquired by mortgage, lease, or sale to be applied in payment of charges incurred or that may be incurred in the support and maintenance of the absentee's wife and minor children, and to the discharge of such debts and claims for alimony as may be proved against said absentee. (Apr. 8, 1935, 49 Stat. 113, ch. 46, § 10.)

§ 20–711 [29: 314]. Receiver may adjust claims of or against estate.

The court may authorize the receiver to adjust by arbitration or compromise any demand in favor of or against the estate of such absentee. (Apr. 8, 1935, 49 Stat. 113, ch. 46, § 11.)

§ 20–712 [29: 315]. Compensation of receiver—Interest of absentee in property to cease after fourteen years.

The receiver shall be allowed such compensation and disbursements as the court orders, to be paid out of said property or proceeds. If within fourteen years after the date of the disappearance and absconding as found and recorded by the court, such absentee appears, or an administrator, executor, assignee in insolvency, or trustee in bankruptcy of such absentee is appointed, such receiver shall account for, deliver, and pay over to him the remainder of said property. If such absentee does not appear and claim said property within such fourteen years, all his right, title, and interest in said property, real or personal, or the proceeds thereof shall cease, and no action shall be brought by him on account thereof. (Apr. 8, 1935, 49 Stat. 113, ch. 46, § 12.)

§ 20–713 [29: 316]. Distribution after fourteen years as if absentee had died intestate.

If at the expiration of such fourteen years said property has not been accounted for, delivered, or paid over under the provisions of section 20–712, the court shall order the distribution of the remainder to the persons to whom, and in the shares and proportions in which, it would have been distributed if such absentee had died intestate within the District of Columbia on the day fourteen years after the date of the disappearance or absconding as found and recorded by the court. (Apr. 8, 1935, 49 Stat. 113, ch. 46, § 13.)

§ 20–714 [29: 317]. Time for distribution and accounting when receiver not appointed within 13 years.

If such receiver is not appointed within thirteen years after the date found by the court under section 20–705, the time limited for accounting for, or fixed for distributing, said property or its proceeds, or for barring actions relative thereto, shall be one year after the date of the appointment of the receiver instead of the fourteen years provided in sections 20–712, 20–713; except that the time limited for accounting for, or fixed for distributing, any additional property or its proceeds within the District of Columbia coming into the possession of such receiver during such one year period, or for barring actions relative thereto, shall be one year after the date possession is taken by such receiver. (Apr. 8, 1935, 49 Stat. 113, ch. 46, § 14.)

§ 20–715 [29: 318]. Sections 14–501, 14–502 not affected.

Nothing contained in sections 20–701 to 20–714 shall be construed as repealing or modifying sections 14–501 or 14–502. (Apr. 8, 1935, 49 Stat. 113, ch. 46, § 15.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CUSTODY OF CHILD

Custody of child awarded to mother notwithstanding that after divorce she committed adultery with the man she subsequently married, the father of child having died and left the child in the possession of grandfather. Sardo v. Villapiano (65 App. D C. 121, 81 Fed. (2d) 255).

It is established both by statute and common law that as between the grandfather and the mother the child should be entrusted to the mother, unless such a course is inconsistent with the child's welfare. Sardo v. Villapiano (65 App. D. C. 121, 81 Fed. (2d) 255).

A child of parties to divorce proceeding is a "ward of court" and the court has power to change the custody of the child, to enforce parental obligations to provide for maintenance, and if necessary to remove the child from the custody of both parents. Emrich v. McNeil, 1942 (126 F. 2d 841, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 307, 146 A. L. R. 1146).

A reservation in original divorce decree is not necessary for the exercise of court's continuing jurisdiction concerning custody and maintenance of minor child. Emrich v. McNeil, 1942 (126 F. 2d 841, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 307, 146 A. L. R. 1146).

Where husband established a separate domicile in the District of Columbia, the wife remaining in North Carolina with the minor children by agreement, in granting husband a divorce the District of Columbia court was without jurisdiction to make an award of custody of children, since their domicile remained in North Carolina. Oxley v. Oxley (App. D. C. 1946, 159 F. 2d 10).

§ 21–102 [15: 32]. Testamentary guardians.

Every father or mother, whether of full age or not, when the other parent does not survive, may, by last will and testament, appoint a guardian of the person to have the care, custody, and tuition of his or her infant child, not being a married female; and if the person so appointed shall refuse the trust, the probate court may appoint another person in his place. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1369, ch. 854, § 1124.)

§ 21–103 [15: 33]. Appointment by court—Limitation of number of wards.

If any infant shall have neither natural nor testamentary guardian, a guardian of the person may be appointed by the probate court in its own discretion or on the application of any next friend of such infant: Provided, however, That no person, except trust companies, shall act as guardian of the person for more than five infants at one and the same time, unless said infants be members of one family. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1369, ch. 854, § 1125; Mar. 3, 1927, 44 Stat. 1383, ch. 350.)

AMENDMENT

The 1927 act added the proviso.

The probate court shall have power to appoint guardians to indigent boys for the purpose of securing their enlistment in the naval or marine service of the United States, as provided by law, free of all costs on account of such proceeding. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1217, ch. 854, § 166.)

§ 21–105 [15: 34a]. Enlistment of indigent boys—Preparation of guardianship papers.

The register of wills shall prepare papers in connection with appointment of guardians to enable indigent boys to enlist in the United States Navy as provided by law, without making any charge therefor. (July 14, 1892, 27 Stat. 154, ch. 171.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

This section, omitted from the 1929 Code, appears to be still in force.

§ 21–106 [15: 35]. Bond required from parents of child entitled to property.

When any infant whose father or mother may be living shall, by gift, or otherwise, be entitled to any property, the probate court may require the father or mother, as guardian, to give bond and security to account for the property, and on his or her failure or refusal so to do may appoint another person guardian, who shall give bond as in other cases. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1215, ch. 854, § 152.)

§ 21–107 [15: 36]. Husband, parent, or testamentary guardian may be enjoined from interfering with minor's estate.

On application of any friend of an infant entitled to real or personal estate, or in the exercise of its own discretion, the court may enjoin any parent or husband or testamentary guardian of such infant from interfering with said infant's estate without being appointed and giving bond as guardian of such estate. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1369, ch. 854, § 1129.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

FELONIES

§ 21–108 [15: 37]. Appointment by deed or will for child inheriting property from parent.

In case of the death of either parent from whom his or her minor children shall inherit or take by devise or bequest, such parent may by deed or last will and testament appoint a guardian of the property of the children, subject to the approval of the proper court of the District of Columbia: And provided further, That nothing herein contained shall be held to limit or affect the power of a court of equity to appoint some other person guardian of such children when it shall be made to appear to said court that the welfare of said children requires it. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1369, ch. 854, § 1123.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

This section and section 21–101 were originally section 1123 of 1901 Code and probably should be read together.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

IN GENERAL

By this provision the power of equity to guard the welfare of the child is preserved. Church v. Church (50 App. D. C. 237, 270 Fed. 359).

§ 21–109 [15: 38]. Appointment by court of guardian for infant entitled to property.

The probate court shall have power to appoint a guardian or guardians to any infant orphan entitled to any property, real, personal, or mixed, within the District, or whose person and residence may be within the District, except where such orphan may have a testamentary guardian. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1215, ch. 854, § 150.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

LAW TO BE APPLIED

A guardian of the estate should be appointed "in accordance with the laws of the place in which the property is found." Lehmer v. Hardy (54 App. D. C. 51, 294 Fed. 407).

NONRESIDENT INFANTS

"The courts of the District of Columbia have no authority to appoint guardians of the persons of infants who do not reside and are not domiciled within their territorial jurisdiction." Lehmer v. Hardy (54 App. D. C. 51, 294 Fed. 407).

§ 21–110 [15: 39]. When guardian of estate is appointed by court.

Subject to the provisions of sections 21–101 to 21–103, 21–108, 21–129, whenever land shall descend or be devised to any infant under twenty-one years of age, or such infant shall be entitled to a distributive share of the personal estate of an intestate, or to a legacy or bequest under a last will, or shall acquire any real or personal property by gift or purchase, the probate court may appoint a guardian of said infant's estate; and if there shall be a guardian of the person of such infant the guardian of the estate so appointed may be the same or a different person: Provided, however, That no person, except trust companies, shall act as guardian of the estate of more than five infants at one and the same time unless the infants are entitled to shares of the same estate. The said appointment may be made at any time after the probate of the will or the grant of administration where the infant is entitled as a devisee, legatee, or next of kin. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1369, ch. 854, § 1127; Mar. 3, 1927, 44 Stat. 1383, ch. 350.)

AMENDMENT

The 1927 amendment changed "the said court" to "the probate court" and added the proviso to the first sentence.

§ 21–111 [15: 40]. Consent of infant.

When it shall be necessary to appoint a guardian, either of the person or the estate, of an infant, the infant shall, if practicable, be brought before the court, and, if over the age of fourteen years, shall be entitled to select and nominate his or her guardian; and if a guardian shall have been appointed before the infant has attained the age of fourteen years, the said infant, upon arriving at said age, may select a new guardian, notwithstanding the appointment before made: Provided, however, That the court shall, in all cases, approve the character and competency of the guardian selected by the infant, and such guardian shall be under the same obligations and discharge the same duties as if selected by the court; and whenever, after a guardian of the estate has been previously appointed, the infant shall select a new guardian upon arriving at the age of fourteen years, and said new selection is approved by the court, and the person so selected is duly appointed and qualified, the guardian previously appointed shall settle his final account and turn over his ward's estate to the newly appointed guardian. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1369, ch. 854, § 1130.)

§ 21–112 [15: 41]. Preferences in appointment of guardian.

Whenever it shall be necessary for the court to appoint a guardian of the infant's estate, as aforesaid, the father, if living, or, if he be dead, then the mother, if living, or, if the infant be a married female her husband, shall have the preference over other persons, unless the infant be over fourteen years of age, as hereinafter directed: Provided, That in the judgment of the court the parent or husband so entitled shall be a suitable person to have the management of the infant's estate. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1369, ch. 854, § 1128.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

The word "hereinafter" refers to the remainder of the sections of chapter 31 of the 1901 act, they being §§ 1129–1142. These sections appear in this code as §§ 21–107, 21–111, 21–114 to 21–116, 21–119, 21–120, 21–123 to 21–128, and 21–130.

§ 21–113 [15: 42]. Election of guardian by ward.

Every orphan or other infant to whom the probate court is authorized to appoint a guardian shall be entitled, on arriving at the age of fourteen years, notwithstanding any appointment of guardian before made by the court, to elect a guardian for himself; but such guardian must be approved by the court and shall be required to give bond as in other cases, and be subject to the control of the court as other guardians are. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1215, ch. 854, § 155.)

§ 21–114 [15: 43]. Husband as guardian.

Whenever any female infant, to whom a guardian of her estate has been appointed, shall marry she may select her husband as the guardian of her said estate, with the approval of the court, and after he is duly appointed and qualified by giving bond, as is required in other cases, the powers of the guardian previously appointed shall cease, and he shall settle his final account and turn over his ward's estate to her husband, agreeably to the order and directions of the court. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1371, ch. 854, § 1140.)

§ 21–115 [15: 44]. Ancillary guardian of nonresident infant or lunatic—Petition.

Whenever an infant or lunatic residing without the District is entitled to a property in the District or to maintain any action therein, a general guardian or committee of his estate, appointed by a court of competent jurisdiction in the state or territory where said infant or lunatic resides, or any person at the request of said guardian or committee, may apply to the court by petition for ancillary letters as such guardian or committee. Said petition must be under oath and be accompanied with duly certified copies of so much of the record and proceedings as shows the appointment of such guardian or committee and that he has given a sufficient bond to account for all property and money that may come into his hands by virtue of the authority hereby conferred. The court may thereupon issue to such guardian or committee ancillary letters as such guardian or committee, without citation, or may cite such persons as it may think proper to show cause why the said application should be refused; and the said court shall require from such person or persons the security required by law in like cases from a resident guardian or committee. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1371, ch. 854, § 1141; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 542, ch. 1329; Mar. 3, 1905, 33 Stat. 1006, ch. 1441.)

AMENDMENTS

Act of 1901 was amended by act of 1902 by adding to the caption the words "or lunatic" and by inserting after the word "copies" in the second sentence the words "of so much"; also by striking out the word "showing" in the second sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the words "as shows."

The 1905 amendment added the provisions as to committees, and added that part of the last sentence following the semicolon.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

VETERANS' LEGISLATION

Sections 44 and 45, D. C. 1929 (this section and § 21–116), are of local application and must give way to laws of Congress relating to veterans' affairs. First Nat. Bank v. United States ((D. C.-D. C.), 30 Fed. Supp. 730).

Colorado bank may sue in the courts of the District of Columbia, as conservator, for the recovery of monthly payments of a veteran's government insurance, and is not required to have an ancillary guardian appointed. First Nat. Bank v. United States ((D. C.-D. C.), 30 Fed. Supp. 730).

§ 21–116 [15: 45]. Suits by ancillary guardian.

Upon the granting of said ancillary letters the said guardian shall be entitled to institute and prosecute to judgment any action in the courts of the District, to take possession of all property of his said ward, and collect and receive all moneys belonging and due to him therein, to give full receipt and acquittances for debts and to release all claims, liens, and mortgages to him belonging, on property in said District, in the same manner as if his authority had been originally conferred by the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia: Provided, That said guardian shall be required to give security for the costs which may accrue in any action brought by him, in the same manner as other nonresidents bringing suit in the courts of said District. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1371, ch. 854, § 1142.)

C. Mun. App. 1944, 40 A. 2d 255).

§ 21–117 [15: 46]. Suits by next friend.

In every case whereas such as be within age may sue if such within age be eloined, so that they can not sue personally, their next friends shall be admitted to sue for them. (13 Edw. 1, ch. 15, § 1, 1285; Kilty's Rept., p. 212; Alex. Brit. Stat., p. 121; Comp. Stat. D. C., p. 446, § 31.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

This section sets forth a British statute continued in force by virtue of the act of March 3, 1901 (31 Stat. 1189, ch. 854, § 1). It was obviously impossible to modernize the language of this statute.

§ 21–118 [15: 47]. Bond.

The court shall require of guardians so appointed (as provided in section 21–109), and of testamentary guardians, unless it be otherwise directed by the will appointing them, bond, with sufficient security, conditioned for the due discharge of their duties. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1215, ch. 854, § 151.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Bonds required of trust companies, §§ 26–333, 26–334.

§ 21–119 [15: 48]. Bond of guardians.

Every guardian appointed by the court, except corporations authorized to act as guardians, before entering upon or taking possession of or interfering with the estate of the infant, shall execute a bond to the United States in such penalty and with such surety or sureties as the court shall approve, to be recorded and to be liable to be put in suit for the use of any person interested, with the following condition:

The condition of the above obligation is such that if the above bounden ———, as guardian to ———, shall faithfully account to the court, as required by law, for the management of the property and estate of the infant under his care, and shall also deliver up said property agreeably to the order of the court or the directions of law, and shall in all respects perform the duty of guardian to the said ——— according to law, then the above obligation shall cease; it shall otherwise remain in full force and virtue. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1370, ch. 854, § 1131.)

§ 21–120 [15: 49]. One bond for several wards.

Where the same person is guardian to any number of persons entitled to shares of the same estate the court may accept one bond instead of separate bonds for each ward, and said bond shall be liable to be put in suit for the use of all or either of the wards as fully as separate bonds might be. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1370, ch. 854, § 1132.)

§ 21–121 [15: 50]. Additional bond.

The court may at any time require any guardian to give bond or additional bond, when the interests of the infant require it, and on his failure or refusal so to do may revoke his appointment and appoint another guardian in his place, and require the estate of the infant to be forthwith delivered to the newly appointed guardian, and may direct him to bring suit upon the bond of his predecessor. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1215, ch. 854, § 153.)

§ 21–122 [15: 51]. Counter security—Petition by surety.

If any surety of a guardian shall by petition set forth that he apprehends himself to be in danger of loss in consequence of his suretyship, and shall pray the court that he may be relieved, the court, after summoning the guardian to answer said petition, may require him to give counter security to indemnify his original surety or to deliver his ward's estate into the hands of the surety or of some other person; in either of which cases the court shall require sufficient security to be given by the person into whose hands said estate shall be delivered, and make such other order as may seem just. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1215, ch. 854, § 154.)

§ 21–123 [15: 52]. Surety.

If any surety of a guardian, setting forth by petition that he apprehends himself to be in danger of suffering by said suretyship, shall pray to be relieved, the court, after service of a summons on the guardian to answer the petition, may order him to give counter security for the indemnity of the original surety, or to deliver the ward's estate into the hands of the surety or of some other person; in either of which cases the person into whose hands the ward's estate shall be delivered shall be required to give sufficient security for the proper management and application of the same, and such further order may be passed for the relief of the petitioner as may seem just. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1371, ch. 854, § 1138.)

§ 21–124 [15: 53]. Guardian to have possession of property.

On the execution of his bond, as required as aforesaid, the guardian shall be entitled to an order of the court directing the real and personal estate of the ward to be delivered into his possession, and all legacies and distributive shares to which the ward may be entitled to be paid or delivered to him whenever they shall be properly payable or distributable according to law. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1370, ch. 854, § 1133.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Voting at corporation meetings, § 29–221.

§ 21–125 [15: 54]. Inventory.

Every guardian, within three months after the execution and approval of his bond, shall return to the court, under oath, an inventory of the real and personal estate of his ward and of the probable annual income thereof, and the court may direct the said estate to be appraised and the annual income thereof to be ascertained by two competent persons, to be appointed by the court, who shall report their appraisement and finding under oath. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1370, ch. 854, § 1134.)

§ 21–126 [15: 55]. Accounts—Maintenance and education—Sales—Compensation.

It shall be the duty of the guardian to manage the estate for the best interests of the ward, and once in each year, or oftener if required, he shall settle an account of his trust under oath. He shall account for all profit and increase of his ward's estate and the annual value thereof, and shall be allowed credit for taxes, repairs, improvements, expenses, and commissions, and shall not be answerable for any loss or decrease sustained without his fault; and the court shall determine the amounts to be annually expended in the maintenance and education of the infant, regard being had to his future condition and prospects in life; and the court, if it shall deem it advantageous to the ward, may allow the guardian to exceed the income of the estate and to make use of the principal and sell the same or part thereof, under its order, as provided in sections 21–201 to 21–213; but no guardian shall sell any property of his ward without an order of the court previously had therefor. The court shall allow a reasonable compensation for services rendered by the guardian not exceeding a commission of five per centum of the amounts collected if and when disbursed. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1370, ch. 854, § 1135; Feb. 10, 1927, 44 Stat. 1067, ch. 101.)

COMPILER'S NOTES

The provision for exceeding the income of the estate and making use of the principal under certain circumstances is set out in §§ 21–201 to 21–213.

The original wording of this section in the 1901 act was "as provided in subchapter three of chapter one." This subchapter contained §§ 60–220 of the said 1901 edition of the Code, which sections are contained herein as follows: §§ 11–301, 11–307, 11–308, 11–311 to 11–322, 11–324 to 11–330, 11–401, 11–402, 11–501 to 11–505, 11–507, 11–509 to 11–520, 11–1001, 11–1002, 11–1101 to 11–1103, 11–1201 to 11–1208, 11–1301 to 11–1304, 11–1401 to 11–1420, 11–1505 to 11–1507, 11–1515, 13–104 to 13–113, 15–110, 16–1301 to 16–1305, 16–1501, 18–607 to 18–612, 19–301 to 19–313, 20–107, 20–109, 20–116, 20–504, 21–103 to 21–105, 21–109, 21–113, 21–118, 21–121, 21–122, 21–201 to 21–213, 21–301 to 21–305, 22–1414, 32–101 to 32–104, 36–103, and 45–616.

AMENDMENT

The 1927 act amended this section by striking out the words "not exceeding ten per centum of the principal of the personal estate and on the annual income of the estate" which followed the word "commissions" in the second sentence, and adding the last sentence.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

LIMITATION OF COMPENSATION

Limitation of compensation of committee of insane person to five per cent. of amount received and disbursed precludes allowance of additional fees. Hines v. Paregol (64 App. D. C. 306, 77 Fed. (2d) 953).

Committee who has wisely and judiciously preserved the estate of a lunatic should not be denied reasonable compensation merely because he had preserved the estate instead of expending it. In re Gallen ((D. C.-D. C.), 18 Fed. Supp. 683).

§ 21–127 [15: 56]. Allowances made before bond was given.

Any allowance which may be made to a guardian for the clothing, support, maintenance, education, or other expenses incurred for the ward or his estate, before said guardian shall have given bond or been appointed, shall have the same effect and operation in law as if the same had been made subsequently to the appointment of said guardian and his giving bond. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1371, ch. 854, § 1137.)

§ 21–128 [15: 57]. Sale of realty.

Whenever any guardian shall think that the interests of his ward will be promoted by a sale of his real estate for the purpose of reinvesting the proceeds in other property or securities, he may make application therefor to the probate court, and such proceedings shall be had thereupon as directed in sections 21–201 to 21–213. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1371, ch. 854, § 1136.)

§ 21–129 [15: 58]. When guardianship ceases.

The natural guardianship or the appointive guardianship of the person aforesaid shall cease, in the case of a male infant when he is twenty-one years of age, and in the case of a female infant when she is eighteen years of age or marries. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1369, ch. 854, § 1126.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

MAJORITY OF FEMALE INFANTS

There is no statute in force in the District of Columbia which clearly provides that female infants shall as a general rule attain their majority at the age of 18 years; exceptions to the common-law rule have been provided by statute, but these recognize the continued existence of the general rule of the common law. Jones v. Jones (63 App. D. C. 373, 72 Fed. (2d) 829, 95 A. L. R. 352).

MARRIAGE OF INFANT

A 13-year-old girl, legally married, was committed to the Board of Children's Guardians two years later as destitute and homeless, and later committed to the Reform School as incorrigible. The court held she was not entitled to release on habeas corpus, on the ground of her marriage. Richardson v. Browning (57 App. D. C. 186, 18 Fed. (2d) 1008).

§ 21–130 [15: 59]. Final account.

On the arrival of any ward at the age of twenty-one years the guardian shall exhibit a final account of his trust to the court, and shall deliver up, agreeably to the court's order, to the ward all the property of said ward in his hands, including bonds and other securities, and on his failure so to do his bond may be put in suit in the name of the United States for the use of the party interested, and he may be attached, as herein elsewhere provided. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1371, ch. 854, § 1139.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

The words "as herein elsewhere provided" presumably refer to chapter 31 of the 1901 act from which this section is derived. This chapter is contained in this code as §§ 21–101 to 21–103, 21–107, 21–108, 21–110 to 21–112, 21–114 to 21–116, 21–119, 21–120, 21–123 to 21–130.

Chapter 2.—PROPERTY OF INFANTS AND PERSONS NON COMPOS MENTIS

Sec.

21–201. Sale of infant's principal for maintenance or education.
21–202. Property of infants and persons non compos mentis subject to liens.
21–203. Property of infants and persons non compos mentis subject to executory contract.
21–204. Sale or exchange of infant's real estate.
21–205. Sale or exchange of infant's real estate—Parties.
21–206. Sale or exchange of infant's real estate—Proof.
21–207. Sale or exchange of infant's real estate—Decree of sale—Costs.
21–208. Sale or exchange of infant's real estate—Terms of sale—Disposition of proceeds.
21–209. Exchanges—Equality—Appointment of trustee.
21–210. Sale of particular estate or remainder—Death while infant—Conversion of proceeds.
21–211. Lease of infant's estate—Where consent necessary.
21–212. Mortgage of infant's estate.
21–213. Contract for sale by adult in behalf of himself and infant or non compos mentis.

§ 21–201 [15: 61]. Sale of infant's principal for maintenance or education.

Wherever it shall appear, upon the petition of the infant by next friend or of the guardian of an infant, and the appearance and answer of such infant by guardian to be appointed by the court, and proof by depositions of one or more disinterested witnesses, that a sale of the principal of the infant's estate, or of some part thereof, whether real or personal, is necessary for his maintenance or education, regard being had to his condition and prospects in life, the probate court may decree such sale on such terms as to it may seem proper. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1217, ch. 854, § 165.)

§ 21–203 [15: 63]. Property of infants and persons non compos mentis subject to executory contract.

Where an infant or person non compos mentis is entitled to any real or personal estate in the District bound by any executory contract entered into by the person or persons from whom said infant or person non compos mentis has derived title, or where an infant or person non compos mentis claims any right or interest in such property under and in virtue of any such contract, the court in either case shall have the same power to decree the execution of such contract or to pass any just and proper decree that the court would have if the parties were of full age and sound mind. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1203, ch. 854, § 92.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

HISTORICAL

Prior to enactment of the Code, orphan's court of the District had jurisdiction to decree sale of infant's real estate for his support or education. Thaw v. Ritchie (136 U. S. 519, 34 L. Ed. 531, 10 Sup. Ct. 1037).

SALE FOR REINVESTMENT

Decree of District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia for sale of infant's property for purpose of reinvestment is not subject to collateral attack. United States ex rel. Hine v. Morse (218 U. S. 493, 54 L. Ed. 1123, 31 Sup. Ct. 37, revg. 29 App. D. C. 433).

§ 21–205 [15: 65]. Sale or exchange of infant's real estate—Parties.

The infant, together with those who would succeed to the estate if he were dead, shall be made parties defendant; and it shall be the duty of the court to appoint some fit and disinterested person to be guardian ad litem for the infant, who shall answer the bill under oath. The infant also, if above the age of fourteen, shall answer the bill in proper person, under oath. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1216, ch. 854, § 157.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Guardians generally, see notes to § 21–101.

§ 21–206 [15: 66]. Sale or exchange of infant's real estate—Proof.

Every fact material to determine the propriety of such sale or exchange shall be clearly proved by disinterested witnesses, whose testimony shall be taken in writing in the presence of the guardian ad litem or upon interrogatories agreed upon by him. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1216, ch. 854, § 158.)

§ 21–207 [15: 67]. Sale or exchange of infant's real estate—Decree of sale—Costs.

If the court shall be satisfied from the evidence that the interests of the infant require a sale or exchange, as prayed, and the rights of others will not be violated thereby, such sale or exchange may be decreed, and the costs of the suit shall be paid out of the infant's estate; otherwise they shall be paid by the complainant. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1216, ch. 854, § 159.)

§ 21–208 [15: 68]. Sale or exchange of infant's real estate—Terms of sale—Disposition of proceeds.

Any such sale may be made upon such terms as to cash and credit as the court may direct, and a lien shall be retained on the property sold for the purchase money; and the proceeds of such sale shall be invested for the infant's benefit in other real estate or in such other manner as the court may direct; and if the infant, after any such sale, shall die intestate or under twenty-one years of age, the proceeds of such sale, or so much thereof as may remain at his death, if not reinvested in other real estate, shall be considered as real estate, and shall pass accordingly to such persons as would have been entitled to the estate if it had not been sold. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1216, ch. 854, § 160.)

§ 21–209 [15: 69]. Exchanges—Equality—Appointment of trustee.

In decreeing an exchange of the infant's estate for other property the court shall not be bound to require equality or sameness in the quantity or character of the estate or interest, and the court may appoint trustees to execute the deeds necessary to carry such exchange into effect. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1216, ch. 854, § 161.)

§ 21–210 [15: 70]. Sale of particular estate or remainder—Death while infant—Conversion of proceeds.

Where an infant is entitled to a particular estate, as for life or years, and another person is entitled to an estate in remainder or reversion or executory devise in the same property, or such other person is entitled to the particular estate and the infant is entitled in remainder or reversion or by way of executory devise, the court shall have the same power to decree a sale or exchange as aforesaid, having reference solely to the interests of the infant: Provided, The other person so interested will consent to such sale or exchange and execute the conveyances necessary to carry the same into effect. And the court shall direct the annual income from the fund or property acquired by such sale or exchange to be applied according to the interests of the respective parties. And in case of the death of said infant under twenty-one years of age the proceeds of any such sale not invested in real estate shall be deemed real estate and pass to those who would be entitled if the property had not been sold. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1216, ch. 854, § 162; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 527, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

Act of 1901 was amended by inserting after the word "reversion" in the first sentence the words "or executory devise."

§ 21–211 [15: 71]. Lease of infant's estate—Where consent necessary.

In cases where it shall appear to the court that it will be to the advantage of the infant that his real estate shall be demised, the said court shall have the power to decree that the same be so demised for a term of years not to exceed the minority of the infant, yielding such rents and on such terms and conditions as the court may direct: Provided, That where the infant is entitled to only a part of the estate as tenant in common, joint tenant, tenant of the particular estate, or remainderman, or otherwise, all the owners of the other interests assent to the passing of such decree. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1216, ch. 854, § 163; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 527, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The 1902 Act amended the 1901 Act by striking out after the word "court" in the first sentence the words "by proof taken in a similar proceeding to that provided for in the foregoing sections," and by inserting in the proviso the words "tenant in common, joint tenant."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

MORTGAGE OF MINOR'S REALTY

Orphans court had power to authorize sale of minor's realty for his support, and hence power to authorize a mortgage. Middleton v. Parke (3 App. D. C. 149).

§ 21–212 [15: 72]. Mortgage of infant's estate.

In cases where it shall appear to the court by proof that it would be for the benefit and advantage of the infant to raise money by mortgage for his maintenance or to improve his real property or to pay off charges, liens, or incumbrances thereon, the court may, on the application of the guardian or of the infant by next friend, decree a conveyance of said property, by mortgage or deed of trust, to be executed by the guardian, on such terms as may seem to the court expedient; and this section shall apply to cases where the infant holds jointly or in common with other persons of full age or holds a portion of the estate, as a particular estate, for life or years or in remainder or reversion: Provided, That the other owners interested, all being of full age, will consent to such decree and unite in said mortgage or deed of trust. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1216, ch. 854, § 164; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 527, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

Act of 1901 was amended by striking out the words "as provided in the foregoing section" and by inserting after the word "mortgage," the words "for his maintenance or."

§ 21–301 [16: 2]. Estates of lunatics — Accounting — Compensation—Dower.

The equity court shall have full power and authority to superintend and direct the affairs of persons non compos mentis, and to appoint a committee or trustees for such persons after hearing the nearest relatives of such person, or some of them if residing within the jurisdiction of the court, and to make such orders and decrees for the care of their persons and the management and preservation of their estates, including the collection, sale, exchange, and reinvestment of their personal estate, as to the court may seem proper. In the event that the person has no known relative residing within the jurisdiction of the court, then the court shall appoint some disinterested person to act as guardian ad litem for such person in the proceedings for the appointment of a committee or trustee. The committee or trustee shall account for all profit and increase of the estate of such person and the annual value thereof and shall be credited for taxes, repairs, improvements, expenses. The court shall allow a reasonable compensation for services rendered by the committee not exceeding a commission of 5 per centum of the amounts collected if and when disbursed. The court may, upon such terms as under the circumstances of the case it may deem proper, decree the conveyance and release of any right of dower of a person non compos mentis, whether the same be inchoate or otherwise. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 115b, as added June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 524, ch. 1329; Feb. 10, 1927, 44 Stat. 1067, ch. 100.)

Amendment

The 1927 amendment changed "the said court" in the first line of this section to "the equity court," and inserted the second, third, and fourth sentences.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Adjudication as Necessary

This section is not operative until a person has been adjudged non compos mentis except in case of application for an ancillary committee. Cooper v. Burton, 1942 (127 F. 2d 741, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 298).

A general or domiciliary committee for an allegedly insane person in New Jersey could not be appointed by District of Columbia courts without an adjudication of insanity, and there could not be an adjudication of insanity in absence of personal jurisdiction over the person. Cooper v. Burton, 1942 (127 F. 2d 741, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 298).

This section relates solely to appointment of committees or trustees for persons who have been adjudged non compos mentis, and it could not be relied on in support of a petition to obtain an adjudication to that effect. Cooper v. Burton, 1942 (127 F. 2d 741, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 298).

Costs and Maintenance of Ward Committed to Government Hospital

District of Columbia has an action against the committee of an insane person with homicidal tendencies, who has been committed to Government Hospital for the Insane, to recover from his estate for costs and maintenance. DePue v. District of Columbia (45 App. D. C. 54).

Lunatic's Suit for Annulment of Marriage

Lunatic may file suit for annulment of marriage, through next friend, but committee should be joined as party defendant. Mackey v. Peters (22 App. D. C. 341).

Property, Jurisdiction Over

District of Columbia courts have power to grant protection to property of insane persons wherever they may be at a particular time, if the property itself is located in the District. Cooper v. Burton, 1942 (127 F. 2d 741, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 298).

Reimbursement

Provision that the committee or trustee of insane person shall reimburse the District for care and expenses up to the time of the appointment of such committee or trustee was intended to relate back to the date of the passage of the act and no further. Baker v. District of Columbia (39 App. D. C. 42).

Residence

The United States District Court for the District of Columbia has no power to adjudicate the mental condition of a lunatic in New Jersey because she formerly lived in the District. Cooper v. Burton, 1942 (127 F. 2d 741, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 298).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

JURISDICTION OF COURT

Courts of equity have no inherent jurisdiction to decree sale of lunatic's property for better investment. Clark v. Mathewson (7 App. D. C. 382).

§ 21–304 [16: 5]. Sale of estate for maintenance or to pay judgment—Mortgage.

The said court may order any part of the estate of a person non compos mentis, for whom a committee, guardian, or trustee has been appointed, to be sold, when necessary for his maintenance, upon application of said committee, guardian, or trustee, and full proof of the necessity of such sale. Upon the application of any judgment creditor or mortgagee of a person non compos mentis the court may decree a sale of the real or personal estate of such non compos mentis, or such part thereof as may be necessary to pay the claim of such creditor, upon being satisfied that such claim is just and there are no other means of paying the same. § 21–306 [16: 18]. Proceedings to determine mental condition.

Proceedings instituted upon petition of the commissioners of the District of Columbia to determine the mental condition of alleged indigent insane persons and persons alleged to be insane, with homicidal or otherwise dangerous tendencies shall be instituted upon petition of the commissioners of the District of Columbia, shall be in the equity court of said District and shall be according to the provisions of section 21–310. (Mar. 3, 1903, 32 Stat. 1043, ch. 1006, § 1; Feb. 23, 1905, 33 Stat. 740, ch. 738, § 1.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

This section may be superseded by § 21–310.

AMENDMENT

The 1903 act provided that "hereafter proceedings by the commissioners of the District of Columbia to commit indigent insane persons, and insane persons having violent or dangerous tendencies, to the Government Hospital for the Insane shall be taken in the equity court of said District, and shall be in conformity with the law in force in said District on the thirtieth day of January, 1899."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

HABEAS CORPUS PROCEEDINGS

The trial judge may request the expert assistance of the commission on mental health in considering habeas corpus proceedings, if that course be thought desirable, but court is not required to do so. Overholser v. Boddie (C. A. D. C. 1950, 184 F. 2d 240).

NATURE OF PROCEEDING

The text of this section when considered with the title clearly indicates that a proceeding in equity is contemplated for determination of insanity and necessity of confinement. Habeas corpus in respect to lunacy is one of relief and not original adjudication. Barry v. Hall (68 App. D. C. 350, 98 Fed. (2d) 222).

In a lunacy proceeding, the court sits as a court of equity to determine whether a person is sane or insane and in doing so is, or should be, assisted by administrative officers and experts appropriate to such a court and to such a determination. Overholser v. Treibly, 1945 (147 F. 2d 705, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 389, certiorari denied 66 S. Ct. 38, 90 L. Ed. 434).

§ 21–307 [16: 19]. Jury in lunacy proceedings—Appointment of committee or trustee—Costs and expense of maintenance—Payment.

The jury to be used in case the commissioners of the District of Columbia are the petitioners shall be impaneled by the United States marshal for said District, upon order of the court, from the jurors in attendance upon the criminal courts of said District, who shall perform such services in addition to and as part of their duties in said criminal courts: Provided, That during such time as jurors are not in attendance upon said criminal courts the court may direct the said marshal to impanel the jurors in attendance upon the police court of said District, who shall perform such duties in addition to and as part of their duties in said police court; or the said court may direct a special jury to be summoned for such inquisitions. In case any such person adjudged to be of unsound mind has property, real or personal, the equity court of said District shall have full power in the same cause to appoint a committee or trustee of the person and estate of such person, according to the provisions of section 21–301, and such committee or trustee shall reimburse, out of the funds of the lunatic, the District of Columbia for all court costs expended or incurred by it and for all moneys by it expended or costs incurred in caring for and treating such insane person up to the time of such appointment. § 21–308 [16: 42]. Commission on Mental Health.

There is hereby established a Commission on Mental Health (hereinafter referred to as the commission), which shall examine alleged insane persons, inquire into the affairs of such persons, and the affairs of those persons legally liable as hereinafter provided for the support of said alleged insane persons, and make reports and recommendations to the court as to the necessity of treatment, the commitment, and payment of the expense of maintenance and treatment of such insane persons. The said commission shall be drawn from a panel of nine, who shall be appointed by the judges of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia.

Eight members of said panel shall be physicians who have been practicing medicine in the District of Columbia, and who have had not less than five years' experience in the diagnosis and treatment of mental diseases, none of whom is financially interested in the hospital in which the alleged insane person is to be confined, and the ninth member shall be a member of the bar of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia who has been engaged in the general active practice of law in the District of Columbia for a period of at least five years prior to his appointment. Each physician member of the panel shall be assigned by the Chief Justice of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia to active service on the commission for three months in each calendar year, and the Chief Justice may change such assignments at any time at his discretion. The two physician members on active service and the lawyer member shall constitute the commission for the purposes of this section. The members to whom any case is referred shall continue to act in respect to that case until its final disposition, unless the court shall otherwise order. Physician members of the commission may practice their profession during their tenure of office. The lawyer member of the commission shall be chairman thereof, and it shall be his duty, and he shall have authority to direct the proceedings and hearings in such a manner as to insure dependable ascertainment of the facts, by relevant, competent, and material evidence, and so as to insure a fair and lawful conduct and disposition of the case. The lawyer member shall devote his entire time to the work of the commission. The judges shall also appoint an alternate lawyer member of the commission, who shall have the same qualifications as that member, and who may be designated by the Chief Justice to act as a member of the commission in absence of the lawyer member; for such service the alternate shall receive for each day of actual service the same compensation as fixed in accordance with the provisions of the Classification Act of 1923, as amended (U. S. C., tit. 5, ch. 13), for the lawyer member of the commission. Original appointments of physicians shall be two each for one, two, three, and four years, respectively, the lawyer member to be appointed for four years. Thereafter appointments shall be for four years each. The salaries of the members of the commission and of employees shall be fixed in accordance with the provisions of the Classification Act of 1923, as amended (U. S. C., tit. 5, ch. 13).

The said commission shall act in all respects under the direction of the equity court. The court may compel, by subpena, the appearance of alleged insane persons before the commission for examination, and may compel the attendance of witnesses before the commission. If it shall appear to the satisfaction of the commission that the appearance before it of any alleged insane person is prevented by reason of the mental or physical condition of such person, the commission may, in its discretion, examine such person at the hospital in which such person may be confined, or, with the consent of the relatives, or of the person with whom such person may reside, at the residence of the alleged insane person.

The court may in its discretion appoint an attorney or guardian ad litem to represent the alleged insane person at any hearing before the commission or before the court, or before the court and jury, and shall allow the attorney or guardian ad litem so appointed a reasonable fee for his services. Such fees may be charged against the estate or property, if any, of the alleged insane person, or taxed as costs against the petitioner in the proceedings, or, in the case of an indigent person, charged against the funds of the commission, as the court, in its discretion may direct.

The office and records of the sanitary officer, District of Columbia, are hereby transferred from the Metropolitan Police Department to the commission and the sanitary officer shall be secretary of the commission. Suitable quarters shall be provided for the commission by the commissioners of the District of Columbia. (June 8, 1938, 52 Stat. 625, ch. 326, § 2; Aug. 9, 1939, 53 Stat. 1299, ch. 620, § 16; Aug. 2, 1949, 63 Stat. 889, ch. 383, § 8; Oct. 25, 1949, 63 Stat. ch. 710.)

AMENDMENTS

The act of Aug. 2, 1949, cited to text, amended the second paragraph by repealing the last sentence thereof which read: "The commissioners shall include in their annual estimates such amounts as may be required for the salaries and expenses herein authorized."

The act of Oct. 25, 1949, cited to text, amended the first paragraph by striking out, after the words "panel of nine" the words "bona fide residents of the District of Columbia who have resided in said District for a continuous period of three years immediately preceding their appointment" and changed "District Court of the United States" to "United States District Court."

The 1939 act amended this section by deleting the words "for such service the alternate shall receive $10 for each day of actual service" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "For such service the alternate shall receive, for each day of actual service, the same compensation as fixed in accordance with the provisions of the Classification Act of 1923, as amended, for the lawyer member of the Commission."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Habeas Corpus Proceeding

Where petitioner seeks writ of habeas corpus to obtain release from confinement in mental hospital on ground that his mental health is restored, and petitioner demands an examination by independent experts, or in a doubtful case, even in absence of such a demand, it is the right of court to seek assistance of Commission on Mental Health in determining sanity of petitioner. De Marcos v. Overholser, 1943 (137 F. 2d 698, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 131, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 157, 320 U. S. 785, 88 L. Ed. 472, rehearing denied 64 S. Ct. 204, 320 U. S. 813, 88 L. Ed. 491).

This section establishing the Commission of Mental Health vests a discretion in court to require the Commission's expert assistance in a habeas corpus proceeding in which by reason of his poverty petitioner is unable to secure the testimony of other professional witnesses. De Marcos v. Overholser, 1943 (137 F. 2d 698, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 131, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 157, 320 U. S. 785, 88 L. Ed. 472, rehearing denied 64 S. Ct. 204, 320 U. S. 813, 88 L. Ed. 491).

In habeas corpus proceeding where petitioner sought release from confinement on ground that his mental health was restored, and requested that court provide expert witnesses in petitioner's behalf, not members of Commission on Mental Health, court denying request should have offered petitioner an examination by the Commission, but defect was cured by petitioner's insistence in appellate court that such relief if offered would be refused. De Marcos v. Overholser, 1943 (137 F. 2d 698, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 131, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 157, 320 U. S. 785, 88 L. Ed. 472, rehearing denied 64 S. Ct. 204, 320 U. S. 813, 88 L. Ed. 491).

In habeas corpus proceeding by petitioner who had been duly committed to hospital for insane pursuant to this chapter, the record raised sufficient doubt as to petitioner's insanity at present time to require a re-examination of his mental condition by the Commission on Mental Health in accordance with this chapter, under which he was committed. Ex parte De Marcos (D. C., D. C. 1946, 65 F. Supp. 231).

Where evidence of petitioner seeking release from detention and of doctor-psychiatrist in charge of petitioner was insufficient to create doubt on judgment of those detaining petitioner as insane, trial judge did not abuse his discretion in failing to submit without request, question of petitioner's mental condition to the Commission on Mental Health. Appel v. Overholser (App. D. C. 1948, 164 F. 2d 511).

§ 21–309 [16: 42a]. Salary of executive secretary of commission.

The salary of the executive secretary of the Commission on Mental Health shall be at the rate of $3,000 per annum and the salary of each physician-member shall be at the rate of $3,800 per annum. (July 15, 1939, 53 Stat. 1007, ch. 281, § 1; June 12, 1940, 54 Stat. 307, ch. 333, § 1.)

§ 21–310 [16: 58]. Insanity proceedings — Application for writ de lunatico inquirendo, and for observation.

Any person with whom an alleged insane person may reside, or at whose house he may be, or the father or mother, husband or wife, brother or sister, or the child of lawful age of any such person, or the nearest relative or friend available, or the committee of such person, or an officer of any charitable institution, home, or hospital in which such person may be, or any duly accredited officer or agent of the Board of Public Welfare, or any officer authorized to make arrests in the District of Columbia who has arrested any alleged insane person under the provisions of sections 21–326 to 21–331, may apply for a writ de lunatico inquirendo and an order of commitment, or either thereof, for any alleged insane person in the District of Columbia, by filing in the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia a verified petition therefor, containing a statement of the facts upon which the allegation of insanity is based.

Any person believing he has, or is about to, become mentally ill may, upon his own written application, in the discretion of the chief psychiatrist of Gallinger Municipal Hospital, enter Gallinger Municipal Hospital for observation and place himself subject to examination and commitment as hereinafter provided. (Aug. 9, 1939, 53 Stat. 1293, ch. 620, § 1.)

Compiler's Note

Section 1 of title 16 of the 1929 code provided as follows: "All writs de lunatico inquirendo shall issue from the equity court, and a justice holding said court shall preside at all inquisitions of lunacy, and may impanel a jury from among the petit jurors in attendance in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia. (June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 524, ch. 1329, § 115a; Apr. 19, 1920, 41 Stat. 556, ch. 153.)"

It has been suggested that the following proviso to section 34 of the act of Congress of October 1, 1890, 26 Stat. 632, ch. 1246, remains in force: "The courts of the District of Columbia shall not have power to appoint any trustee, trustees, guardians, receivers, or other trustee of a fund or property located outside of the District of Columbia, or belonging to a corporation or person having a legal residence or location outside of said District."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Decision Under Former Law

The United States District Court is not shown to have lost jurisdiction over either the subject matter of the criminal prosecution or the person of petitioner, by reason of the proceedings to determine his sanity, or those connected therewith or consequent thereon (D. C. 1901 Edit. § 927 (§ 24–301 herein). Ormsby v. United States ((C. C. A. 6), 273 Fed. 977).

Construction

Where aunt was of unsound mind, she could not care for herself and her property, niece was interested in her welfare, and suitable committee had been appointed after proceedings in which all relatives took part and to which none objected, the description under this section of the person who may file petition for appointment of committee should be liberally construed. Duvall v. Humphrey (App. D. C. 1946, 153 F. 2d 798).

NEAREST RELATIVE AVAILABLE

Under this section authorizing "nearest relative available" to file petition for writ of de lunatico inquirendo and for appointment of committee, the quoted phrase is an elastic term, and is not intended to require an aged relative, who might make himself available, if no one else were available, to bear the burden of starting a proceeding, but it is intended to exclude officious intermeddling. Duvall v. Humphrey (App. D. C. 1946, 153 F. 2d 798).

Niece was "nearest relative available" entitled to file petition for writ of de lunatico inquirendo and for appointment of committee for aunt, where her 81-year-old brother and her 84-year-old sister joined with other relatives in requesting appointment of a committee. Duvall v. Humphrey (App. D. C. 1946, 153 F. 2d 798).

Upon the filing with the court of a verified petition as hereinabove provided, accompanied by the affidavits of two or more responsible residents of the District of Columbia setting forth that they believe the person therein named to be insane or of unsound mind, the length of time they have known such person, that they believe such person to be incapable of managing his own affairs, and that such person is not fit to be at large or go unrestrained, and that if such person be permitted to remain at liberty the rights of persons and property will be jeopardized or the preservation of public peace imperiled or the commission of crime rendered probable, and that such person is a fit subject for treatment by reason of his or her mental condition, the court, or any judge thereof in vacation, may, in its or his discretion, issue an attachment for the immediate apprehension and detention, for preliminary examination, of such person in Saint Elizabeths Hospital and, unless found by the staff of Saint Elizabeths Hospital to be of sound mind, therein for a period not exceeding thirty days. Any person so apprehended and detained shall be given an examination within five days of his admission into Saint Elizabeths Hospital by the staff of Saint Elizabeths Hospital. The Superintendent of Saint Elizabeths Hospital is hereby authorized to receive and detain such persons, at the expense of the District of Columbia.

If any person while a patient in Gallinger Municipal Hospital being observed for his or her mental condition can not be cared for or treated adequately in said hospital or if such person be in need of treatment which can not be given properly in said hospital, then the superintendent of Gallinger Municipal Hospital may effect the transfer and temporary commitment of such person to Saint Elizabeths Hospital by executing a petition as provided by section 21–310, accompanied by the certificate of the chief psychiatrist of Gallinger Municipal Hospital setting forth that said patient is of unsound mind, can not be cared for or treated adequately in Gallinger Municipal Hospital, should not be allowed to remain at liberty and go unrestrained, and that said patient is a fit subject for treatment in Saint Elizabeths Hospital on account of his mental condition. The superintendent of Saint Elizabeths Hospital is authorized to receive and detain any patient so transferred from Gallinger Municipal Hospital at the expense of the District of Columbia pending his formal commitment or other order of the court.

Persons arrested under the provisions of sections 21–326 to 21–331 shall be detained in Gallinger Municipal Hospital pending the filing of a petition as provided in section 21–310. Such petition shall be filed within forty-eight hours after such person shall have been admitted into Gallinger Municipal Hospital, or, if such forty-eight-hour period shall expire on a Sunday or legal holiday, then not later than noon of the next succeeding day which is not a Sunday or legal holiday. The court, or any judge thereof in vacation, may, upon being satisfied of the sufficiency of the petition, sign an order authorizing the continued detention of said person in Gallinger Municipal Hospital and, unless found by the staff of Gallinger Municipal Hospital to be of sound mind, in Saint Elizabeths Hospital for a period not exceeding thirty days from the time of his apprehension and detention. If such petition be not filed, and such order of court obtained within the aforementioned period, the person shall be discharged forthwith. If said staff shall find that such person is of unsound mind and suitable for treatment by reason of mental illness, the superintendent of said hospital may immediately transfer such person to Saint Elizabeths Hospital, and shall report the fact of such transfer to the Commission. The superintendent of Saint Elizabeths Hospital is hereby authorized to receive and detain persons so transferred, at the expense of the District of Columbia.

If as a result of examination, the staff of Gallinger Municipal Hospital or Saint Elizabeths Hospital shall find that any person detained in Gallinger Municipal Hospital or Saint Elizabeths Hospital pursuant to the provisions of this section is of sound mind, he shall be discharged forthwith by said Gallinger Municipal Hospital or Saint Elizabeths Hospital, and the petition, if any, shall be dismissed.

Any petition filed in the equity court for a writ de lunatico inquirendo or for an order of commitment of any alleged insane person, shall be referred by the court to the Commission for report and recommendation within such time as the court may designate, not exceeding seven days, which time may be extended by the court for good cause shown, and in such event the period of temporary commitment in Saint Elizabeths Hospital may be extended by the court for such additional time as the court shall deem necessary. The Commission shall examine the alleged insane person and any other person, including any suggested by the alleged insane person, his relatives, friends, or representatives, whose testimony may be relevant, competent, and material upon the issue of insanity; and the Commission shall afford opportunity for hearing to any alleged insane person, his relatives, friends, or representatives. At all hearings the alleged insane person shall have the right to be represented by counsel.

The Commission is hereby authorized to conduct its examination and hearings of cases elsewhere than at the offices of said Commission in its discretion, according to the circumstances of the case.

If in the determination of the Commission he be found not to be sane, then it shall be the duty of the Commission to apply to the court for a date for a hearing. In all cases before said hearing, the said Commission shall cause to be served personally upon the patient a written notice of the time and place of final hearing at least five days before the date fixed. Five days' notice of the time and place of the hearing shall in all cases be mailed to or served upon the applicant, but in case the applicant is not the husband, wife, or nearest relative, the notice shall be mailed to or served upon the husband, wife, or nearest relative, if possible. The notice shall contain a statement that if the patient desires to oppose the application for a final order of commitment, he may appear personally or by attorney at the time and place fixed for the hearing. Proof of service shall be made at the hearing. The court may in its discretion appoint an attorney or guardian ad litem to represent the alleged insane person at any hearing before the court, or before the court and jury, and shall allow the attorney or guardian ad litem so appointed a reasonable fee for his services. Such fees may be charged against the estate or property, if any, of the alleged insane person.

If a demand is made for a jury trial, the superintendent of Gallinger Municipal Hospital or Saint Elizabeths Hospital shall see that the patient has been given opportunity to appear personally or by attorney at the hearing and assist him in communicating with his friends, relatives, or attorney. If the superintendent shall certify that in his opinion it would be prejudicial to the health of the patient or unsafe to produce the patient at the inquiry, then such patient shall not be required to be produced.

Proof of service of the required notices shall be made at the hearing. (Aug. 9, 1939, 53 Stat. 1294, ch. 620, § 2; June 30, 1948, 62 Stat. 1195, ch. 774, §§ 1, 2.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

As enacted, the beginning of this section read: "Upon the filing with the court of a verified petition as provided in section 1 of the act approved June 8, 1938." It referred to D. C. Code, 1929 edit., Supp. V, title 16, § 41, which has now been superseded by § 1 of ch. 620 of the act of August 9, 1939 (53 Stat. 1293), which appears in this code as § 21–310.

AMENDMENTS

Section 1 of act June 30, 1948, amended first paragraph of this section, providing that any person so apprehended be examined by the staff of Saint Elizabeths Hospital rather than by the staff of Gallinger Municipal Hospital. Section 2 of act June 30, 1948, amended fourth paragraph, providing for the release of such person if found to be of sound mind.

CROSS REFERENCE

Other provisions concerning care and commitment of insane persons to St. Elizabeths Hospital, § 32–401 et seq.

§ 21–312 [16: 60]. Report to be served—Demand for jury trial—Trial.

Upon the receipt of the report and recommendation of the commission, a copy shall be served personally upon the alleged insane person, his guardian ad litem, or his attorney, if he has one, together with notice that he has five days within which to demand a jury trial. A demand for hearing by the court, or a demand for jury trial for the purpose of determining the sanity or insanity of the alleged insane person may be made by the said alleged insane person or by anyone in his behalf, or a jury trial may be ordered by the court upon its own motion. If demand be made for a jury trial, or such trial be ordered by the court on its own motion, the case shall be calendared for trial not more than ten days after demand for hearing by the court for a jury trial, unless the time is extended by the court. The commission, or any of the members thereof, shall be competent and compellable witnesses at any trial or hearing of an alleged insane person. In any case in which a commitment at public expense, in whole or in part, is sought, the corporation counsel or one of his assistants shall represent the petitioner unless said petitioner shall be represented by counsel of his or her own choice. (Aug. 9, 1939, 53 Stat. 1296, ch. 620, § 3.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CONFINEMENT WITHOUT TRIAL

Where petitioner, seeking writ of habeas corpus, was under indictment for an assault but court found that he was of unsound mind and dangerous, his confinement without criminal trial in ward of hospital which resembled a prison did not deprive him of constitutional rights, since confinement was not due to the indictment. Knighton v. Overholser, 1944 (145 F. 2d 860, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 294).

HABEAS CORPUS

Where question arose regarding whether procedure in lunacy proceedings was proper but order of adjudication and commitment was set aside and procedure thereafter adopted conformed to legal requirements and resulted in order of adjudication of insanity and of commitment, the allegedly insane person was not entitled to writ of habeas corpus. Wrobel v. Overholser, 1944 (145 F. 2d 859, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 293, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 712, 324 U. S. 854, 89 L. Ed. 1413).

PRESUMPTIONS

Adjudication of insanity, as long as not rescinded, creates rebuttable presumption that mental incapacity of person continues thereafter, and strength of such presumption is affected by character and causes of the mental disturbance, possibility of lucid intervals, and various other considerations. Life Ins. Co. of Virginia v. Herrmann (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 35 A. 2d 828).

§ 21–313 [16: 61]. Jury.

The jury to be used in lunacy inquisitions in those cases where a jury trial shall be demanded or ordered shall be empaneled, upon order of the court, from the jurors in attendance upon other branches of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia, who shall perform such services in addition to and as part of their duties in said court. (Aug. 9, 1939, 53 Stat. 1296, ch. 620, § 4.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

This section may supersede § 21–307, in part.

§ 21–314 [16: 62]. Procedure if no jury trial demanded.

If no demand be made for a jury trial, the judge holding court shall determine the sanity or insanity of said alleged insane person, but such judge may, in his discretion, require other proofs, in addition to the petition and report of the commission, or such judge may order the temporary commitment of said alleged insane person for observation or treatment for an additional period of not more than thirty days. The judge may, in his discretion, dismiss the petition notwithstanding the recommendation of the commission. If the judge be satisfied that the alleged insane person is of sound mind, he shall forthwith discharge such person and dismiss the petition. (Aug. 9, 1939, 53 Stat. 1296, ch. 620, § 5.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

In General

The statute as a whole makes clear that a proceeding in equity is contemplated for initial determination of insanity, and not the writ of habeas corpus. Barry v. Hall (68 App. D. C. 350, 98 Fed. (2d) 222).

§ 21–315 [16: 63]. Commitment after trial.

If the judge be satisfied that the alleged insane person is insane, or if a jury shall so find, the judge may commit the insane person as he in his discretion shall find to be for the best interests of the public and of the insane person. In case of a temporary commitment, the court may make additional temporary commitments upon further examination by, and recommendation of, the commission.

The judge may commit the insane person to the custody of the Veterans' Administration for care and treatment in a Veterans' Administration facility, if there has been filed with the court or the Commission on Mental Health, acting under the direction of the court, a certificate executed by the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs, or his duly authorized representative, showing said insane person to be entitled to such care and treatment, and that facilities therefor are available. (Aug. 9, 1939, 53 Stat. 1296, ch. 620, § 6.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Findings of Court

Appointment of committee was not invalid because of absence of finding that ward was dangerous, unfit to be at large, and in need of treatment, where ward was not arrested and detained pending trial. Duvall v. Humphrey (App. D. C. 1946, 153 F. 2d 798).

Habeas Corpus

The issue of sanity or insanity cannot be determined on merits on habeas corpus proceeding instituted by person confined in a hospital for insane, but, if petitioner makes a sufficient showing that he was committed improperly, the judge may enter an order providing for discharge of petitioner unless within a reasonable time a proper proceeding is initiated. Overholser v. Treibly, 1945 (147 F. 2d 705, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 389, certiorari denied 66 S. Ct. 38, 90 L. Ed. 434).

In habeas corpus proceeding by petitioner who had been duly committed to hospital for insane pursuant to statutory provisions therefor, the only question before court was whether record raised sufficient doubt as to petitioner's insanity at present time to justify reopening commitment proceeding. Ex parte De Marcos (D. C., D. C. 1946, 65 F. Supp. 231).

The trial court still has the authority which it has always had to order the immediate discharge of a patient if, after a hearing on habeas corpus proceeding, it be of the opinion that the patient is of sound mind. such remedy is expressly reserved to it by § 21–325. Prior cases to the contrary are overruled. Overholser v. Boddie (C. A. D. C. 1950, 184 F. 2d 240).

§ 21–316 [16: 64]. Recommendations of commission.

Recommendations of the commission must be made by the unanimous recommendation of the three members acting upon the case. If the three members of the commission be unable to agree upon the recommendation to be made in any case, they shall immediately file with the court a report setting forth the fact that they are unable to agree on the case, and in that event the court shall hear and determine the case, unless the alleged insane person, or someone in his behalf, shall demand a jury trial, in which event the case shall be heard and determined by the court and a jury.

If the commission shall agree upon a recommendation, it shall file with the court a report setting forth its findings of fact and conclusions of law and its recommendation based thereon which recommendation shall be in one of the following forms:

(A) That the person is of sound mind and should be discharged forthwith and the petition dismissed.

(B) That the mental condition of the alleged insane person is such that a definite diagnosis can not be made without further study, or that the mental incapacity of said person will probably be of short duration, and that said person should be further detained and committed in Saint Elizabeths Hospital as hereinbefore provided for, or in any other hospital in the District of Columbia as provided in sections 21–326 to 21–331, for further observation or treatment for such period of time as the court may determine, during which said time the commission shall from time to time examine said person and make a recommendation to the court as to the final disposition of the case.

(C) That the person is of unsound mind and (1) should be committed to Saint Elizabeths Hospital, or any other hospital provided by section 21–329, (a) at public expense, or (b) at the expense of those persons who are required by law, or who will agree to pay for the maintenance and treatment of said insane person, or (c) that the relatives of said insane person, mentioned in section 21–321 are able to pay a specified sum per month toward the support and maintenance of said insane person; (2) is harmless and may safely be committed to the care of his relatives or friends (naming them) who are willing to accept the custody, care, and maintenance of said insane person under conditions specified by the commission; (3) should be committed to the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs for care and treatment in a Veterans' Administration facility: Provided, That there shall be filed with the court or commission a certificate executed by said administrator or his duly authorized representative, showing said person is entitled to such care and treatment and that facilities therefor are available. (Aug. 9, 1939, 53 Stat. 1297, ch. 620, § 7.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Indigent Insane

In contemplation of the law, the public health service is a friend of the indigent insane. Barry v. Hall (68 App. D. C. 350, 98 Fed. (2d) 222).

§ 21–317 [16: 65]. Transfer of nonresident insane—Confinement of residents—Custody of harmless insane.

If an insane person be found by the commission, subject to the review of the court, not to be a resident of the District of Columbia, he may be committed by the court to Saint Elizabeths Hospital as a District of Columbia patient until such time as his residence shall have been ascertained. Upon the ascertainment of such insane person's residence in some other jurisdiction, he shall be transferred to the state of such residence. The expense of transferring such patient, including the traveling expenses of necessary attendants to insure his safe transfer, shall be borne by the District of Columbia only if the patient be indigent.

Any insane person found by the commission to have been a resident of the District of Columbia for more than one year prior to the filing of the petition, and any person found within the District of Columbia whose residence can not be ascertained, who is not in confinement on a criminal charge, may be committed by the court to, and confined in, said Saint Elizabeths Hospital, or any other hospital in said District, which, in the judgment of the commission of said District, is properly constructed and equipped for the reception and care of such persons, and the official in charge of which, for the time being, is willing to receive such persons.

"Resident of the District of Columbia," as used in this section, means a person who has maintained his principal place of abode in the District of Columbia for more than one year prior to the filing of the petition provided for in section 21–310.

If it appears that a person found to be insane is harmless and his or her relatives or committee of his or her person are willing and able properly to care for such insane person at some place or institution other than Saint Elizabeths Hospital, the judge may order that such insane person be placed in the care and custody of such relatives or such committee upon their entering into an undertaking to provide for such insane person as the court may direct. (Aug. 9, 1939, 53 Stat. 1297, ch. 620, § 8.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

GENERALLY

This section providing for commitment of an insane person found not to be a resident of the District of Columbia and for transfer to the state of his residence does not purport to confer the right of transfer on persons found to be resident in the District or whose residence cannot be ascertained, and the finding referred to is the one made in the commitment proceedings. Howard v. Overholser, 1942 (130 F. 2d 429, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 166).

This section providing for commitment of an insane person found not to be a resident of the District of Columbia and for transfer to the state of his residence does not contemplate that a committed insane person shall be transferred in any case to the state of his residence without regard to its willingness to receive him, and it is intended that the person shall be delivered into the hands of state officials charged with custody of insane residents. Howard v. Overholser, 1942 (130 F. 2d 429, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 166).

BURDEN OF PROOF

A committed insane person to establish and enforce his right to be transferred to Colorado as the state of his residence was required to show either that Colorado was willing to receive him into its custody or that there was means of enforcing his right to be received as against the state and its officials. Howard v. Overholser, 1942 (130 F. 2d 429, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 166).

COMMISSION'S REPORT

Where petitioner made no demand for a jury trial or a further hearing by the court under this section after Commission on Mental Health adjudged him of unsound mind and ordered his commitment, the District Court, in habeas corpus proceeding brought to effect petitioner's transfer to Colorado, was authorized to act on commission's report and recommendations without more, except to examine them and find them sufficient. Howard v. Overholser, 1942 (130 F. 2d 429, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 166).

EVIDENCE

In habeas corpus proceeding brought to effect transfer of petitioner, a committed insane person, to Colorado as the state of his residence, petitioner was not entitled to relief in absence of evidence that Colorado was willing to receive him as a legal resident entitled to admission into the custody of Colorado officials having charge of insane persons. Howard v. Overholser, 1942 (130 F. 2d 429, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 166).

Where an inmate of National Soldiers' Home in Togus, Maine, shot and killed one of the physicians of the home and was thereafter committed to St. Elizabeths Hospital in the District of Columbia on finding that he was insane, such person was not entitled to be transferred to Maine on ground that he was a citizen and resident of the State of Maine and not a resident of the District of Columbia in absence of proof that State of Maine was willing to receive and care for him, or to be discharged without proper provision for his care and restraint. Williams v. Overholser, 1943 (137 F. 2d 545, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 95).

JURISDICTION

In habeas corpus proceeding brought to effect transfer of committed insane person to Colorado as the state of his residence under this section, District of Columbia courts had no power or jurisdiction to enforce Colorado's obligation, even if section obligated Colorado to receive person on showing of residence made, where neither Colorado nor its officials were made parties to proceeding. Howard v. Overholser, 1942 (130 F. 2d 429, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 166).

PETITION, SUFFICIENCY OF

Where petition for writ of habeas corpus to effect transfer of petitioner, a committed insane person, to Colorado did not state a cause of action in that respect, petitioner was not prejudiced by inadequacy of hearing conducted by petitioner in his own behalf with regard to the admission of evidence and other action which competent counsel would have taken, except in a procedural sense, and that was not sufficient to require another hearing. Howard v. Overholser, 1942 (130 F. 2d 429, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 166).

WAIVER

Where committed insane person was ably represented on appeal from judgment dismissing habeas corpus petition by counsel who raised no issue concerning sanity and conceded at argument that a hearing on question of sanity could result only in remand to custody, and adequacy of hearing was questioned only in respect to alleged right of transfer of person to Colorado, counsel's action constituted a "waiver" of any right to further hearing on question of sanity. Howard v. Overholser, 1942 (130 F. 2d 429, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 166).

§ 21–318 [16: 66]. Liability of relatives for costs of maintenance and treatment.

The father, mother, husband, wife, and adult children of an insane person, if of sufficient ability, and the committee or guardian of his or her person and estate, if his or her estate is sufficient for the purpose, shall pay the cost to the District of Columbia of his or her maintenance, including treatment in Saint Elizabeths Hospital or in any other hospital to which the insane person may be committed. It shall be the further duty of said commission, to examine under oath, the father, mother, husband, wife, adult children, and committee, if any, of any alleged insane person whenever such relatives live within the District of Columbia, and to ascertain the ability of such relatives or committee, if any, to maintain or contribute toward the maintenance of such alleged insane person: Provided, That in no case shall said relatives or committee be required to pay more than the actual cost to the District of Columbia of maintenance of such alleged insane person.

If any person hereinabove made liable for the maintenance of an insane person shall fail so to provide or pay for such maintenance, the court shall issue to such person a citation to show cause why he should not be adjudged to pay a portion or all of the expenses of maintenance of such patient. The citation shall be served at least ten days before the hearing thereon. If, upon such hearing, it shall appear to the court that the insane person has not sufficient estate out of which his maintenance may properly be fully met and that he has relatives of the degrees hereinabove mentioned who are parties to the proceedings, and who are able to contribute thereto, the court may make an order requiring payment by such relatives of such sum or sums as it may find they are reasonably able to pay and as may be necessary to provide for the maintenance of such insane person. Said order shall require the payment of such sums to the Board of Public Welfare annually, semiannually, or quarterly as the court may direct. It shall be the duty of the board to collect the said sums due under this section, and to turn the same into the treasury of the United States to the credit of the District of Columbia. Any such order may be enforced against any property of the insane person or of the person liable or undertaking to maintain him in the same way as if it were an order for temporary alimony in a divorce case. (Aug. 9, 1939, 53 Stat. 1298, ch. 620, § 9.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

LIABILITY FOR EXPENSES OF INCOMPETENT

The question of a husband's liability for the maintenance of an insane wife in a public institution, "when it shall arise in the future, will be settled" under the act of June 8, 1938, ch. 326, since superseded by the above section insofar as this annotation is concerned. Fitzhugh v. District of Columbia (71 App. D. C. 290, 109 Fed. (2d) 837).

§ 21–319 [16: 15]. Insane persons having property—Inquiry by board—Charge for care.

Whenever it appears in the case of any insane person whose insanity commenced while he was a resident of the District of Columbia that he is able to defray a portion, but not the whole of the expenses of his support and treatment in Saint Elizabeths Hospital, the board of visitors of the hospital is authorized to inquire into the facts of the case; and if it appears to the board, upon such inquiry, that such insane person has property and no family, or has more property than is required for the support of his family, then, as a condition upon which such insane person, admitted or to be admitted upon the order of the Secretary of the Interior, shall receive or continue to receive the benefits of the hospital, there shall be paid to the superintendent from the income, property, or estate of such insane person such portion of his expenses in the hospital as a majority of the board shall determine to be just and reasonable, under all the circumstances. (R. S. § 4849; July 1, 1916, 39 Stat. 309, ch. 209, § 1.)

AMENDMENT

The 1916 act changed the name of the Government Hospital for the Insane to Saint Elizabeths Hospital.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

IN GENERAL

The effect of the 1905 act requiring the committee or trustee of an incompetent to reimburse the District for care and expenses up to time of appointment of committee was to prevent the running of the statute of limitations. Fitzhugh v. District of Columbia (71 App. D. C. 290, 109 Fed. (2d) 837).

§ 21–320 [16: 67]. Hearing to restore status of paroled person—Petition—Trial—Decision.

Any insane person who has been committed to Saint Elizabeths Hospital or any other hospital, and who shall have been released from such hospital as improved, or who shall have been paroled from such hospital (but who shall not have been discharged as cured), and who shall have been absent from the hospital on release or parole for a period of six months or longer, shall have the right to appear before the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia for a hearing to determine the sanity and right to restoration to the status of a person of sound mind of said insane person by filing a petition therefor with the court upon a form to be provided by the commission for that purpose. It shall be the duty of the commission to make an examination of the records of Saint Elizabeths Hospital of the insane person as may be necessary to determine such questions, and if necessary have the person examined by the members of the staff of Saint Elizabeths Hospital and to make a report and recommendation to the court. In the event the commission shall find from the records and examination that the said person is of sound mind and shall recommend to the court the restoration of said person to the status of a person of sound mind such recommendation shall be sufficient to authorize the court to enter an order declaring such person to be restored to his or her former legal status as a person of sound mind. In the event the commission shall find such person to be of unsound mind, it shall report that finding to the court. Upon the filing by the commission of a report finding such person to be of unsound mind, the insane person shall have the right to a hearing by the court or by the court and a jury. For the purpose of making the examination and observations required by this section, the commission shall have the right to examine the records and to interrogate the physicians and attendants at Saint Elizabeths Hospital or any other hospital in which such patient shall have been confined, who have had the insane person under their care, and the commission may recommend to the court the temporary recommitment of such person for said purpose. At such trial by the court or by the court and jury, an adjudication shall be made as to whether the person is of sound mind or is still of unsound mind. (Aug. 9, 1939, 53 Stat. 1298, ch. 620, § 10.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

COMMITMENT BY SECRETARY OF NAVY

Where retired officer in military service had been committed on order of Secretary of Navy to hospital for insane and statutes made no provision for reexamination of person committed on order of Secretary, or for initiation, by the person committed of a proceeeding to secure such reexamination, procedure of habeas corpus was available for the latter purpose. Overholser v. Treibly, 1945 (147 F. 2d 705, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 389, certiorari denied 66 S. Ct. 38, 90 L. Ed. 434).

HABEAS CORPUS PROCEEDINGS

Where a petition for writ of habeas corpus has been presented, legally sufficient on its face to start the court's machinery in motion, the judge should appoint either a guardian or counsel to represent the petitioner in the further stages of the proceeding. Overholser v. Treibly, 1945 (147 F. 2d 705, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 389, certiorari denied 66 S. Ct. 38, 90 L. Ed. 434).

§ 21–321 [16: 68]. Witness fees.

The same fees and mileage as are paid in the courts of the United States shall be paid in the case of witnesses subpenaed under the provisions of sections 21–310 to 21–318, 21–320 to 21–325. (Aug. 9, 1939, 53 Stat. 1299, ch. 620, § 11.)

§ 21–322 [16: 69]. Undertaking.

The court in its discretion may require the petitioner to file an undertaking with surety to be approved by the court in such amount as the court may deem proper, conditioned to save harmless the respondent by reason of costs incurred, including attorneys' fees, if any, and damages suffered by the respondent as a result of any such action. (Aug. 9, 1939, 53 Stat. 1299, ch. 620, § 12.)

§ 21–323 [16: 70]. Applications and certificates for commitment and confinement.

All applications and certificates for commitment and confinement of any patient to any hospital in the District of Columbia for the care and the treatment of the insane must be made on forms approved by the commission and furnished by it. (Aug. 9, 1939, 53 Stat. 1299, ch. 620, § 13.)

§ 21–324 [16: 71]. Penalty for false petition or affidavit.

Any person who executes a verified petition or affidavit as provided in sections 21–310 to 21–318, 21–320 to 21–325, by which he or she secures or attempts to secure the apprehension, detention, or restraint of any other person in the District of Columbia without probable cause for believing such person to be insane or of unsound mind, or any physician who knowingly makes any false certificate or affidavit as to the sanity or insanity of any other person, shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined not more than $500 or imprisoned not more than three years, or both. (Aug. 9, 1939, 53 Stat. 1299, ch. 620, § 14.)

§ 21–325 [16: 72]. Existing remedies preserved.

Nothing contained in sections 21–310 to 21–318, 21–320 to 21–325 shall deprive the alleged insane person of the benefit of existing remedies to secure his release or to prove his sanity, or of any other legal remedies he may have. (Aug. 9, 1939, 53 Stat. 1299, ch. 620, § 15.)

COMPILER'S NOTES

Section 16 of the act of August 9, 1939, appears as § 21–308 herein.

Sections 17 and 18 of the act of August 9, 1939, provided:

"All acts or parts of acts in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

"If any provision of this act or the application thereof to any person or circumstances is held invalid, such invalidity shall not affect other provisions or applications of the act which can be given effect without the invalid provision or application, and to this end the provisions of this act are declared to be severable."

§ 21–326 [16: 31]. Apprehension and detention by police, without warrant, of insane persons found in public places.

Any member of the Metropolitan police of the District of Columbia or any other officer in said District authorized to make arrests is authorized and empowered to apprehend and detain, without warrant, any insane person or person of unsound mind found on any street, avenue, alley, or other public highway, or found in any public building or other public place within the District of Columbia; and it shall be the duty of the policeman or officer so apprehending or detaining any such person to immediately file his affidavit with the major and superintendent of said Metropolitan police that he believes said person to be insane or of unsound mind, incapable of taking care of himself or herself or his or her property, and if permitted to remain at large or to go unrestrained in the District of Columbia the rights of persons and of property will be jeopardized or the preservation of public peace imperiled and the commission of crime rendered probable: Provided, however, That it shall be the duty of the major and superintendent of the said Metropolitan police to forthwith notify the husband or wife or some near relative or friend of the person so apprehended and detained whose address may be known to the said major and superintendent or whose address can by reasonable inquiry be ascertained by him. (Apr. 27, 1904, 33 Stat. 316, ch. 1618, § 1.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

ARREST

A policeman may not make, without the superintendent's order, an arrest which he may not make with such order. Jillson v. Caprio (C. A. D. C. 1950, 181 F. 2d 523, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 168).

FALSE IMPRISONMENT

Where the basis in action for false imprisonment was an arrest made at the request of appellee physician, the arrest was unlawful since such arrests of alleged insane persons have been permitted by Congress in only two sorts of circumstances, both absent here. Jillson v. Caprio (C. A. D. C. 1950, 181 F. 2d 523, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 168).

§ 21–327 [16: 32]. Arrest at other than public places.

The major and superintendent of said Metropolitan police is authorized to order the apprehension and detention, without warrant, of any indigent person alleged to be insane or of unsound mind or any alleged insane person of homicidal or otherwise dangerous tendencies found elsewhere in the District of Columbia than in the places mentioned in section 21–326 whenever two or more responsible residents of the District of Columbia shall make and file affidavits with said major and superintendent of the Metropolitan police setting forth that they believe the person therein named to be insane or of unsound mind, the length of time they have known such person, that they believe such person to be incapable of managing his or her own affairs, and that such person is not fit to be at large or to go unrestrained, and if such person is permitted to remain at liberty in the District of Columbia the rights of persons and of property will be jeopardized or the preservation of public peace imperiled and the commission of crime rendered probable, and that such person is a fit subject for treatment on account of his or her mental condition: Provided, however, That before the major and superintendent of the said Metropolitan police shall order the apprehension and detention of any person upon the affidavits of the aforesaid residents or in case of arrest as provided in section 21–326, he shall, in addition thereto, require the certificate of at least two physicians who shall certify that they have examined the person alleged to be insane or of unsound mind, and that such person should not be allowed to remain at liberty and go unrestrained, and that such person is a fit subject for treatment on account of his or her mental condition. (Apr. 27, 1904, 33 Stat. 317, ch. 1618, § 2.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

ARREST

A policeman may not make, without the superintendent's order, an arrest which he may not make with such order. Jillson v. Caprio (C. A. D. C. 1950, 181 F. 2d 523, 86 U. S. App. U. C. 168).

§ 21–328 [16: 33]. Temporary detention of alleged insane persons.

AMENDMENT

The 1916 act changed the name of the Government Hospital for the Insane to St. Elizabeths Hospital.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

DISCRETIONARY POWERS OF COMMISSIONERS

In sanity proceedings the Commissioners exercise a discretion which the law vests in them and they are not liable in damages even though they make a mistake. Brown v. Rudolph (58 App. D. C. 116, 25 Fed. (2d) 540).

§ 21–329 [16: 34]. Temporary commitment of persons to other hospital, or detention in police station—Discharge of person certified not insane.

The commissioners of the District of Columbia may authorize the temporary commitment of any of the insane persons or persons of unsound mind mentioned in sections 21–326 to 21–328, and apprehended and detained as provided in sections 21–326, 21–327 (for a period of time not exceeding thirty days) in any other hospital in said District which, in the judgment of the health officer of said District, is properly constructed and equipped for the reception and care of such persons, and the official in charge of which, for the time being, is willing to receive such persons pending the temporary commitment or the formal commitment of such persons, as provided by law, to Saint Elizabeths Hospital or to any other hospital or insane asylum; or any such alleged insane person or person of unsound mind apprehended under sections 21–326, 21–327 may be detained in any police station or house of detention in said District pending the completion of arrangements for his or her temporary detention in Saint Elizabeths Hospital or any other hospital or insane asylum; and such persons may be detained in any police station or house of detention in said District until formally committed to Saint Elizabeths Hospital or any other hospital or asylum, in the manner provided by law, in case he or she can not be provided for by the said Saint Elizabeths Hospital and no arrangement can be made for his or her temporary detention in any other hospital or asylum: Provided, however, That if, pending the formal commitment of such alleged insane person or person of unsound mind to Saint Elizabeths Hospital or to any other hospital or asylum, the superintendent of said Saint Elizabeths Hospital, in the case of the commitment of a person to said hospital under the provisions of sections 21–326 to 21–331, or if two or more physicians in regular attendance at any other hospital or asylum where any person is committed under the provisions of sections 21–326 to 21–331, or if two or more surgeons of the police and fire departments, in the case of any person detained at any police station house or house of detention under the provisions of sections 21–326 to 21–331, shall certify in writing to the commissioners of the District of Columbia that such person is not insane or that he or she has recovered his or her reason, the official in charge of Saint Elizabeths Hospital, or the hospital or asylum in which such person is confined, or the major and superintendent of said Metropolitan police, if such person be confined in a police station house or in a house of detention, shall discharge such alleged insane person or person of unsound mind forthwith and immediately report such action to the commissioners of the District of Columbia. (Apr. 27, 1904, 33 Stat. 317, ch. 1618, § 4; July 1, 1916, 39 Stat. 309, ch. 209.)

AMENDMENT

The 1916 act changed the name of the Government Hospital for the Insane to St. Elizabeths Hospital.

§ 21–330 [16: 35]. Certificate by physician as to sanity or insanity—Qualifications of physician.

For the purposes of sections 21–326 to 21–331, no certificate as to the sanity or the insanity of any person shall be valid which has been issued (a) by a physician who has not been regularly licensed to practice medicine in the District of Columbia, unless he be a commissioned surgeon of the United States Army, Navy, or Public Health Service; or (b) by a physician who is not a permanent resident of the District of Columbia; or (c) by a physician who has not been actively engaged in the practice of his profession for at least three years; or (d) by a physician who is related by blood or by marriage to the person whose mental condition is in question. Nor shall any certificate alleging the insanity of any person be valid which has been issued by a physician who is financially interested in the hospital or asylum in which the alleged insane person is to be confined, or who is professionally or officially connected therewith. (Apr. 27, 1904, 33 Stat. 318, ch. 1618, § 5; Aug. 14, 1912, 37 Stat. 309, ch. 288, § 1.)

AMENDMENT

Act of 1912 changed the name of the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service to the Public Health Service.

REPEALS

Act July 1, 1944, ch. 373, title VI, § 611, 58 Stat. 714, repealed the act of Aug. 14, 1912, cited to text, which changed the name Public Health and Marine Hospital Service to Public Health Service. Said act July 1, 1944, retained name as Public Health Service.

§ 21–331 [16: 36]. Making false affidavit or certificate—Penalty.

Any person who makes an affidavit, as required by sections 21–326 or 21–327, by which he or she secures or attempts to secure the apprehension, detention, or restraint of any other person in the District of Columbia without probable cause for believing such person to be insane or of unsound mind, or any physician who knowingly makes any false certificate as to the sanity or insanity of any other person shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined not more than $500 or imprisoned not more than three years, or both. (Apr. 27, 1904, 33 Stat. 318, ch. 1618, § 6.)

§ 21–332 [16: 37]. Discharge of patients on bond.

If any person will give bond with sufficient security, to be approved by the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia, or by any judge thereof in vacation, payable to the United States, with condition to restrain and take care of any independent or indigent insane person not charged with a breach of the peace, whether in the hospital or not, until the insane person is restored to sanity, such court or judge thereof may deliver such insane person to the party giving such bond. (R. S., § 4856.)

§ 21–333 [16: 38]. Insane persons not to be confined in jail.

No insane person not charged with any breach of the peace shall ever be confined in the United States jail in the District of Columbia. (R. S., § 4857.)

§ 21–401 [19: 141]. Appointment of committee—Petition—Petitioners—Determination—Jury—Bond—Powers—Duties—Discharge.

Whenever any person residing in said District, and owning any estate, real or personal, situate therein, is unfit from the habitual use of intoxicating liquors, or from the habitual use of opium, cocaine, or any similar substance, or any compound or derivative thereof, to properly manage or control the same, the equity court, on the petition of any creditor or relative of such person, or if there be no creditor or relative, upon the petition of any person living in said District, and upon summons being regularly served upon such person so alleged to be unfit to manage or control his property as aforesaid, commanding him to appear and answer such petition, may order a jury to be summoned to ascertain whether such person be an habitual drunkard or addicted to the habitual use of opium, cocaine, or any similar substance or any compound or derivative thereof and unfit from any of these causes to manage and control his property, and if the jury shall find that such person is an habitual drunkard or an habitual user of opium, cocaine, or any similar substance or any compound or derivative thereof and unfit to manage or control his property, such finding, when confirmed by the court, shall be entered of record in said cause, and it shall be the duty of the court thereupon to appoint some fit person to be committee of the person so declared unfit to manage or control his property as aforesaid.

Such committee before entering upon the discharge of his duties shall execute a bond, with surety, to be approved by the said court or one of the justices thereof, to the United States in a penalty equal to the amount of the personal property and the yearly rents to be derived from the real estate of such person, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties as such committee; and he shall have control of the said estate, real and personal, with power to collect all debts due said drunkard, and to adjust and settle all accounts owing by him, and to sue and be sued in his representative capacity. He shall apply the annual income of the estate of such habitual drunkard to the support of said person, and the maintenance of his family and education of his children; and shall in all other respects perform the same duties and have the same rights as pertain to committees of lunatics and idiots.

When any person for whom a committee has been appointed under the provisions of this section shall become competent to manage his property on account of reformation in his habits, he may apply to said court to have said committee discharged and the care and control of his property restored to him; and if it shall appear by the verdict of a jury summoned therefor, or by affidavits, or other evidence to the satisfaction of the court, that said applicant is a fit person to have the care or control of his property, an order shall be entered restoring such person to all the rights and privileges enjoyed before said committee was appointed. And as to the property of any person for whom a committee has been so appointed the court shall have the same powers that are herein given to it in respect of the property of infants. (June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 524, ch. 1329, § 115f.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

UNFITNESS TO MANAGE PROPERTY

Finding of unfitness to manage property in a proceeding under this section is conclusive of condition on date of rendition; "it is not so as of a date prior thereto, but at the same time it has the tendency to raise some inference that the helpless condition must have existed for some space of time." Knott v. Giles (27 App. D. C. 581).

22–109. Prosecutions.

§ 22–101 [6: 1]. "Writing" and "paper" defined.

Except where such a construction would be unreasonable, the words "writing" and "paper," wherever mentioned in this title, are to be taken to include instruments wholly in writing or wholly printed, or partly printed and partly in writing. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1336, ch. 854, § 904.)

§ 22–102 [6: 2]. "Anything of value" defined.

The words "anything of value," wherever they occur in this title, shall be held to include not only things possessing intrinsic value, but bank notes and other forms of paper money, and commercial paper and other writings which represent value. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1336, ch. 854, § 905.)

§ 22–103 [6: 3]. Attempts to commit crime.

Whoever shall attempt to commit any crime, which attempt is not otherwise made punishable by this title, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or by imprisonment for not more than one year, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1337, ch. 854, § 906.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

ASSAULT NOT ATTEMPT

One who assaults a female under 16 years of age, with intent to carnally know her, is punishable under 1901 Code, § 803 (§ 22–501) and not 1901 Code, § 906 (§ 22–103), Sanselo v. United States (44 App. D. C. 508).

§ 22–104 [6: 4]. Second conviction.

Every person upon his second conviction of any criminal offense punishable by fine or imprisonment or both may be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding fifty per centum greater, and to suffer imprisonment for a period not more than one half longer than the maximum fine and imprisonment for the first offense. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1337, ch. 854, § 907.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

ATTACK ON FORMER INDICTMENT

When defendant appeared and pleaded to an information for petit larceny, and was tried in the police court without objection, he admits the validity of the information, and, if convicted, can not afterwards, when indicted for petit larceny as a second offense, deny the legal sufficiency of the information as not being sworn to, or claim that his first arrest was illegal. Latney v. United States (18 App. D. C. 265).

§ 22–105 [6: 5]. Persons advising, inciting, or conniving at criminal offense to be charged as principals.

In prosecutions for any criminal offense all persons advising, inciting, or conniving at the offense, or aiding or abetting the principal offender, shall be charged as principals and not as accessories, the intent of this section being that as to all accessories before the fact the law heretofore applicable in cases of misdemeanor only shall apply to all crimes, whatever the punishment may be. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1337, ch. 854, § 908.)

CROSS REFERENCE

See note under § 22–2205 of this title. Weisberg v. United States (49 App. D. C. 28, 258 Fed. 284).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

ACCESSORY BEFORE THE FACT

Under this section a person shown to be an accessory before the fact is chargeable and criminally responsible as a principal. Williams v. United States (55 App. D. C. 239, 4 Fed. (2d) 432).

In prosecution of doctor and his wife for attempted bribery of witness in abortion case against the doctor, where there was sufficient evidence to justify the jury's conclusion that doctor was an accessory before the fact to the attempt at bribery by his wife, he was properly found guilty as a principal. Ladrey v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 155 F. 2d 417).

ACCOMPLICE

In cases of carnal knowledge, the prosecutrix is not an accomplice of the defendant. "An accomplice is one who is associated with another, or others, in the commission of a crime. Liability to indictment, under ordinary conditions, is a reasonable test of the legal relation of the party to the crime and its perpetrator." Yeager v. United States (16 App. D. C. 356).

Woman upon whom a miscarriage is produced in violation of 1901 Code, § 809 (§ 22–201) is not an accomplice of the person who produces it. Thompson v. United States (30 App. D. C. 352).

"Persons engaged in wagering contests are not accomplices." Paylor v. United States (42 App. D. C. 428, cert. den. 235 U. S. 704, 59 L. Ed. 434, 35 Sup. Ct. 209).

The giver of a bribe is an accomplice of the person bribed. Egan v. United States (52 App. D. C. 384, 287 Fed. 958).

"Anyone knowingly and voluntarily co-operating with, aiding, assisting, advising, or encouraging another in the commission of a crime is an accomplice; and this is true, regardless of the degree of his guilt." Egan v. United States (52 App. D. C. 384, 287 Fed. 958). Tomlinson v. United States (68 App. D. C. 106, 93 Fed. (2d) 652).

AID AND ABET

Without determining whether each of defendants was then displaying a placard in front of embassy, all are guilty under provisions of the local law making it an offense to aid and abet in a violation of a law. Frend v. United States (69 App. D. C. 281, 100 Fed. (2d) 691).

CHARGED AS PRINCIPAL

"One who procures, commands, advises, instigates, or incites the commission of an offense, though not personally present at its commission, is, by the common law, an accessory before the fact. * * * The section of the code above quoted (§ 22–105) makes all such persons principals. And it is not essential that any specific time or mode of committing the offense shall have been advised or commanded, or, if so, that it shall have been committed in the particular way instigated. * * * Nor is it necessary that there shall have been any direct communication between the actual perpetrator and the accessory, who, under the code, is now a principal." Maxey v. United States (30 App. D. C. 63).

Indictment charging that A, B, and C made an assault on X with a brick held in the hand of B is not defective as charging A and C with an impossible act. "The defendants were charged as principals. They were acting together and the act of one was the act of each. The question is set at rest by section 908 of the code (this section)." Polen v. United States (41 App. D. C. 4).

In an indictment charging defendants with engaging in unlawful prize fight, for which appellant charged an admission fee, the appellant was rightly indicted as a principal. Dane v. United States (57 App. D. C. 161, 18 Fed. (2d) 811).

One who procures, commands, advises, instigates or incites the commission of an offense, though not personally present at its commission is by the common law an accessory before the fact, and by this section all such persons are made principals. Ladrey v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 155 F. 2d 417, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 68, 329 U. S. 723, 91 L. Ed. 627).

Where tenant of premises, wherein gaming tables were kept, was an incorporated club, but there was evidence that defendants took part in carrying on its gambling activities, defendants were responsible as principals. Warde v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 158 F. 2d 651).

INSTRUCTIONS TO JURY

In action against two defendants for murder a requested instruction was properly refused which stated that "if no force of arms was contemplated, then defendant was not liable for the consequences of the shot by the codefendant," for the testimony and instruction must show that before the crime has been done he honestly and in good faith withdraws and tries to get away and does not take any part in the offense. Marcus v. United States (66 App. D. C. 298, 86 Fed. (2d) 854).

Fact that there was evidence that one of the three defendants jointly indicted on charge of murder in perpetration of robbery threw away the gun and bullets after the murder did not require an instruction that jury could find such defendant guilty as accessory after the fact, where such defendant's testimony and other circumstances stamped him as an accessory before the fact and therefore guilty as a principal. Hall v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1948, 168 F. 2d 161, certiorari denied 68 S. Ct. 1508, 334 U. S. 853, 92 L. Ed. 1775, rehearing denied 69 S. Ct. 9, 335 U. S. 839, 93 L. Ed. 391).

LENDER OF AUTOMOBILE

"If the owner of a dangerous instrumentality like an automobile knowingly puts that instrumentality in the immediate control of a careless and reckless driver, sits by his side, and permits him without protest so carelessly and negligently to operate the car as to cause the death of another, he is as much responsible as the man at the wheel." Story v. United States (57 App. D. C. 3, 16 Fed. (2d) 342, 53 A. L. R. 246).

PRESENCE AT COMMISSION

When defendant was not present when the actual conversion took place, he was a mere artificial principal and not an actual one; that is, he was subject to the same punishment as though he actually had assisted in the final act of larceny. But that does not prevent his prosecution for the distinct offense of receiving stolen goods. Weisberg v. United States (49 App. D. C. 28, 258 Fed. 284).

TESTIMONY OF ACCOMPLICE

There may be a conviction on the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice, "provided the jury is admonished by the court that the testimony of an accomplice 'ought to be received with suspicion, and with the very greatest care and caution.'" Egan v. United States (52 App. D. C. 384, 287 Fed. 958).

§ 22–106 [6: 6]. Accessories after the fact.

Whoever shall be convicted of being an accessory after the fact to any crime punishable by death shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than twenty years. Whoever shall be convicted of being accessory after the fact to any crime punishable by imprisonment shall be punished by a fine or imprisonment, or both, as the case may be, not more than one-half the maximum fine or imprisonment, or both, to which the principal offender may be subjected. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1337, ch. 854, § 909.)

CROSS REFERENCE

See notes to § 22–105.

§ 22–107 [6: 7]. Punishment for offenses not covered by provisions of code.

Whoever shall be convicted of any criminal offense not covered by the provisions of any section of this code, or of any general law of the United States not locally inapplicable in the District of Columbia, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or by imprisonment for not more than five years, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1337, ch. 854, § 910.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

In General

"This section obviously was enacted to cover offenses not embraced in any other section of the District Code or of any general law of the United States not locally inapplicable. It was enacted out of abundant caution, and to cover any offense for which no other provision had been made. * * * A prosecution under this section, when the facts show that the offense is covered by some specific statute, is clearly unauthorized. In other words, this section was intended to supplement, and not supersede or modify, specific statutory provisions." Fletcher v. United States (42 App. D. C. 53).

Conspiracy

Defendant convicted of common-law conspiracy was properly sentenced under this section. No overt act being charged, the indictment was not under § 37 of the federal penal code, and the rule that there are no common-law offenses against the United States is not applicable in the District of Columbia. Harrison v. Moyer ((D. C.-Ga.), 224 Fed. 224).

Disorderly House

Offense of keeping a disorderly house being punishable under this section of the Code by imprisonment, its prosecution is exclusively within jurisdiction of the District Court, and a conviction therefor in the police court is void. Palmer v. Lenovitz (35 App. D. C. 303).

Negligent Escape

Under this section prescribing fine not exceeding $1,000 or imprisonment for not more than five years or both as punishment for any offense not specifically covered by statute, conviction of negligent escape, punishment for which is not specifically prescribed, invokes the punishment of a felony, although it was apparently classified as a misdemeanor at common law. U. S. v. Davis (App. D. C. 1948, 167 F. 2d 228).

§ 22–108 [6: 8]. Offenses committed beyond District of Columbia.

Any person who by the commission outside of the District of Columbia of any act which, if committed within the District of Columbia, would be a criminal offense under the laws of said District, thereby obtains any property or other thing of value, and is afterwards found with any such property or other such thing of value in his possession in said District, or who brings any such property or other such thing of value into said District, shall, upon conviction, be punished in the same manner as if said act had been committed wholly within said District. (Dec. 21, 1911, 37 Stat. 45, ch. 2, § 836a.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Stolen Goods

District Court for the District of Columbia has jurisdiction of case involving conspiracy to bring stolen stock into the District, as such court is a District Court of the United States. Arnstein v. United States (54 App. D. C. 199, 296 Fed. 946).

§ 22–109 [6: 296]. Prosecutions.

All prosecutions for violations of any of the provisions of sections 22–1107 to 22–1110, 22–1112 to 22–1114, 22–1117, 22–1118, 22–2701, 22–3110 to 22–3113, 22–3301 shall be conducted in the name of and for the benefit of the District of Columbia, and in the same manner as provided by law for the prosecution of offenses against the laws and ordinances of the said District. Any person convicted of any violation of any of the provisions of sections 22–1107 to 22–1110, 22–1112 to 22–1114, 22–1117, 22–1118, 22–2701, 22–3110 to 22–3113, 22–3301, and who shall fail to pay the fine or penalty imposed, or to give security where the same is required, shall be committed to the workhouse of the District of Columbia for a term not exceeding six months for each and every offense. (July 29, 1892, 27 Stat. 325, ch. 320, § 18.)

Chapter 2.—ABORTION

Sec.
22–201. Definition and penalty.

§ 22–201 [6: 33]. Definition and penalty.

Whoever, with intent to procure the miscarriage of any woman, prescribes or administers to her any medicine, drug, or substance whatever, or with like intent uses any instrument or means, unless when necessary to preserve her life or health and under the direction of a competent licensed practitioner of medicine, shall be imprisoned for not more than five years; or if the woman or her child dies in consequence of such act, by imprisonment for not less than three nor more than twenty years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1322, ch. 854, § 809.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Attempt Sufficient

Crime as denounced by the statute and charged by the indictment does not necessarily contemplate an actual miscarriage by the woman, but is complete when an attempt to procure a miscarriage by such means is made, regardless of whether it results in an actual miscarriage of the pregnant woman or not. Crichton v. United States (67 App. D. C. 300, 92 Fed. (2d) 224).

Evidence

It was not error to admit evidence concerning three treatments by defendant when only one was charged in the indictment, as the three treatments, taken together, and their joint result, constituted the crime with which the defendant was charged. Harrod v. United States (58 App. D. C. 254, 29 Fed. (2d) 454).

Evidence held sufficient to sustain conviction. Harrod v. United States (58 App. D. C. 254, 29 Fed. (2d) 454); Hart v. United States (70 App. D. C. 269, 105 Fed. (2d) 792)

Evidence supported conviction of criminal abortion as against defendant's claim that there was no evidence that the crime had been committed in the District of Columbia. Miller v. U. S. (C. A., D. C. 1948, 169 F. 2d 967).

SENTENCE

Where defendant was indicted on two charges and plead guilty to both, and the court inadvertently pronounced the sentences to run concurrently, the court had power to amend the sentences to run consecutively where defendant was still in the custody of the officers of the court. Rowley v. Welch (72 App. D. C. 351, 114 Fed. (2d) 499).

WOMAN NOT ACCOMPLICE

"This section applies to the person or persons committing the act which produces the miscarriage, and not to the person upon whom it is committed, notwithstanding it may be done with her knowledge and consent. Not being liable to indictment thereunder, she is not an accomplice in the legal sense." Maxey v. United States (30 App. D. C. 63); Thompson v. United States (30 App. D. C. 352).

Chapter 3.—ADULTERY

Sec.
22–301. Definition and penalty.

§ 22–301 [6: 175]. Definition and penalty.

Whoever commits adultery in the District shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both; and when the act is committed between a married woman and a man who is unmarried both parties to such act shall be deemed guilty of adultery; and when such act is committed between a married man and a woman who is unmarried, the man only shall be deemed guilty of adultery. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1332, ch. 854, § 874.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

BURDEN OF PROOF

In abortion prosecution brought under this section and containing exception in case abortion is performed to preserve life or health, the burden of proving that act was justified on therapeutic grounds was on defendants and the prosecution was not required as part of its case to negative application of the exception. Williams v. U. S., 1943 (138 F. 2d 81, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 147, 153 A. L. R. 1213).

CREDIBILITY OF TESTIMONY

Where two women who later became witnesses for prosecution first told police sergeant they knew nothing about the case and gave unsworn statements to that effect but later each gave a second statement in which full story was told, after which sergeant destroyed first statements in belief that they had become valueless, officer's act in destroying first statement did not afford basis for instruction that jury might disregard all or any portion of officer's testimony. Miller v. U. S. (C. A., D. C. 1948, 169 F. 2d 967).

Where two women who testified as witnesses for prosecution did not admit having falsified as to any issue but merely stated that they had first refrained from giving any information because they did not want to become publicly involved in a scandalous situation, defendant was not entitled to an instruction requiring jury to give careful scrutiny to testimony of the two women on ground that they had admitted swearing falsely. Miller v. U. S. (C. A., D. C. 1948, 169 F. 2d 967).

INDICTMENT

Two charges of adultery with the same person may be joined under R. S., § 1024 (U. S. C., title 18, § 557). Kleindienst v. United States (48 App. D. C. 190).

LAW APPLICABLE

One convicted of adultery should be sentenced under this section and not under section 316 of the Penal Code (U. S. C., title 18, § 516). Kleindienst v. United States (48 App. D. C. 190).

On an indictment for adultery, which under the District Code is a misdemeanor and under the Federal Penal Code a felony, the accused on his conviction should be sentenced under the former and not the latter. O'Brien v. United States (69 App. D. C. 135, 99 Fed. (2d) 368).

PROOF

When indictment charges two specific acts of adultery, and the proof shows "repeated offenses of adultery" extending over a period of more than a year, it is error to refuse to require the government to specify, at the close of its case, the specific acts for which the government asks a conviction. Kleindienst v. United States (48 App. D. C. 190).

SENTENCE

To same effect as original annotation, see Rowley v. Welch, 1940 (114 F. 2d 499, 72 App. D. C. 351).

UNMARRIED WOMAN

If committed by her while unmarried, the act would not have been indictable; but such act would have been indictable if committed by her while married. O'Neil v. O'Neil (55 App. D. C. 40, 299 Fed. 914).

Chapter 4.—ARSON

Sec.
22–401. Definition and penalty.
22–402. Burning one's own property with intent to defraud or injure another.
22–403. Malicious burning, destruction or injury of another's movable property.
22–404. Malicious burning of fences, woods, crops.

§ 22–401 [6: 51]. Definition and penalty.

Whoever shall maliciously burn or attempt to burn any dwelling, or house, barn, or stable adjoining thereto, or any store, barn, or outhouse, or any shop, office, stable, store, warehouse, or any other building, or any steamboat, vessel, canal boat, or other watercraft, or any railroad car, the property, in whole or in part, of another person, or any church, meetinghouse, schoolhouse, or any of the public buildings in the District, belonging to the United States or to the District of Columbia, shall suffer imprisonment for not less than one year nor more than ten years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1323, ch. 854, § 820.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

INDICTMENT

Counts are properly joined in the same indictment which charge defendant with setting fire to his own property and with attempt to burn another person's property. Posey v. United States (26 App. D. C. 302).

ON APPEAL

Errors in trial of charge of arson require reversal. Parlton v. United States (64 App. D. C. 169, 75 Fed. (2d) 772).

PART OWNER

One burning a dwelling-house occupied in part by him and in part by another, with intent to defraud an insurance company, is guilty of arson. Posey v. United States (26 App. D. C. 302).

TENANT

"It is not to be presumed that Congress intended to exempt from liability a tenant who should maliciously burn, or attempt to burn, a building belonging to another, though temporarily occupied by him." Posey v. United States (26 App. D. C. 302).

§ 22–402 [6: 52]. Burning one's own property with intent to defraud or injure another.

Whoever maliciously burns or sets fire to any dwelling, shop, barn, stable, store, or warehouse or other building, or any steamboat, vessel, canal boat, or other watercraft, or any goods, wares, or merchandise, the same being his own property, in whole or in part, with intent to defraud or injure any other person, shall be imprisoned for not more than fifteen years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1323, ch. 854, § 821.)

§ 22–403 [6: 53]. Malicious burning, destruction, or injury of another's movable property.

Whoever maliciously injures or destroys, or attempts to injure or destroy, by fire or otherwise, any movable property not his own, of the value of $50 or more, shall be imprisoned for not less than one year and not more than ten years, and if the value of the property be less than $50 by a fine not exceeding $200 or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1327, ch. 854, § 848; Aug. 12, 1937, 50 Stat. 629, ch. 599.)

AMENDMENT

The act of 1937 substituted $50 for $35 where it occurs.

CROSS REFERENCE

NOTES TO DECISIONS

INDICTMENT

Quaere: Whether prosecution can be in the name of the District of Columbia, if value of property is more than $35, not decided by appellate court, but it did say, it is very doubtful under Code of 1929, title 6, § 351 (§ 23–101) which provides that prosecutions of "all penal regulations, where the maximum punishment is a fine only or imprisonment not exceeding one year, shall be conducted in the name of the District of Columbia, and by the city solicitor or his assistants." Nation v. District of Columbia (34 App. D. C. 453).

Indictment or information must allege value of property injured. Nation v. District of Columbia (34 App. D. C. 453).

SUPERSEDENCE

Insofar as § 22–3112 may have applied to movable property, it has been superseded by this section. Nation v. District of Columbia (34 App. D. C. 453).

§ 22–404 [6: 54]. Malicious burning of fences, woods, crops.

Whoever shall maliciously burn or set fire to any fences, woods, stacks of hay, grain, or straw, or growing crops, the property, in whole or in part, of another, shall be imprisoned for not more than thirty days or be fined not more than five hundred dollars, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1323, ch. 854, § 822.)

Chapter 5.—ASSAULT — MAYHEM — THREAT OF BODILY HARM

Sec.
22–501. Assault with intent to kill, rob, rape, or poison.
22–502. Assault with intent to commit mayhem or with dangerous weapon.
22–503. Assault with intent to commit any other offense.
22–504. Assault or threatened assault in a menacing manner.
22–505. Assault on member of police force.
22–506. Mayhem or maliciously disfiguring.
22–507. Threats to do bodily harm.

§ 22–501 [6: 26]. Assault with intent to kill, rob, rape, or poison.

Every person convicted of any assault with intent to kill or to commit rape, or to commit robbery, or mingling poison with food, drink, or medicine with intent to kill, or wilfully poisoning any well, spring, or cistern of water, shall be sentenced to imprisonment for not more than fifteen years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1321, ch. 854, § 803.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

ADMISSIBILITY OF EVIDENCE

Conviction for assault may be based upon uncorroborated statement of victim, a child too young to qualify as a witness. Brown v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 40 A. 2d 832).

In prosecution for assault upon a girl three years and eight months of age, the mother's testimony recounting the child's statements made three or more hours after the occurrence was admissible, since the reasonable presumption was that the child's statement was spontaneous utterance of thoughts prompted solely by unusual act and that it was not influenced by reflection, premeditation or design. Brown v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 40 A. 2d 832).

In prosecution for assault on a girl three years and eight months of age, the mother's testimony repeating the child's story to mother more than three hours after the alleged occurrence was hearsay and was not within doctrine of spontaneous statements. Brown v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1945, 152 F. 2d 138).

In prosecution for assault on a girl three years and eight months of age, testimony of police officers regarding what the child had said a day or two after the alleged assault and an officer's belief as to what defendant had done was inadmissible. Brown v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1945, 152 F. 2d 138).

EVIDENCE

In prosecution for assault with intent to commit rape, evidence was sufficient for jury. Robinson v. U. S., 1943 (136 F. 2d 283, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 63).

The evidence must show beyond reasonable doubt an assault, an intent to have carnal knowledge of a female. and a purpose to carry out the intent with force and against the will of the female, to make out a case of "assault with intent to commit rape". Robinson v. U. S., 1943 (136 F. 2d 283, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 63).

To make out a case of "assault with intent to commit rape," the evidence must show beyond a reasonable doubt an assault, and an intent to have carnal knowledge of the female and a purpose to carry into effect the intent with force and against the consent of the female. Hammond v. U. S., 1942 (127 F. 2d 752, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 397).

Evidence that defendant went to the home of his mother-in-law, with whom his wife and baby were living, went to the bedroom of his 17-year-old sister-in-law, pulled off the covers and touched her private parts with his hand, that she awakened and screamed, and that defendant ran from the house was insufficient to sustain conviction for "assault with intent to commit rape." Hammond v. U. S., 1942 (127 F. 2d 752, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 397).

INDICTMENT

In an indictment for assault with intent to kill "it is not required that in the indictment it should be alleged and set forth with what means or instrument the killing was attempted to be perpetrated." Davis v. United States (16 App. D. C. 442). Otherwise, if attempt was by poisoning or drowning. Coratola v. United States (24 App. D. C. 229).

INSTRUCTIONS

Crimes of a revolting nature, especially where victim is a young child, arouse a strong feeling of disgust and hostility toward an accused, requiring court to exercise utmost care in giving its instructions to the end that justice may not miscarry. Brown v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 40 A. 2d 832).

INTENT TO RAPE

Assault on a female under the age of 16 years, with intent to carnally know her, is punishable under this section as an assault with intent to rape. Sanselo v. United States (44 App. D. C. 508).

ON APPEAL

The rule in criminal as in civil cases is that a basis for an assignment of error must be laid in the trial court, but the court will sometimes in the exercise of a sound discretion notice error in a criminal case where the question was not properly raised at the trial. Miller v. United States (57 App. D. C. 228, 19 Fed. (2d) 702).

PRESUMPTIONS

In prosecution for assault with intent to commit rape a legal presumption exists that defendant was innocent until proved guilty beyond a reasonable doubt. Hammond v. U. S., 1942 (127 F. 2d 752, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 397).

SUBMISSION OR RESISTANCE

An assault may be committed upon a child irrespective of whether there is submission or resistance thereto. Beausoliel v. United States (71 App. D. C. 111, 107 Fed. (2d) 292).

§ 22–502 [6: 27]. Assault with intent to commit mayhem or with dangerous weapon.

Every person convicted of an assault with intent to commit mayhem, or of an assault with a dangerous weapon, shall be sentenced to imprisonment for not more than ten years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1321, ch. 854, § 804.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

ARGUMENT OF COUNSEL

In prosecution for assault with a dangerous weapon, district attorney's argument to jury that "from the testimony of the doctor, the wound was a serious one and if it had been an inch lower the defendant might be here for murder" was permissible on question whether the weapon, a razor blade, was a dangerous one and whether it was likely to produce death or great bodily harm. Josey v. U. S., 1943 (135 F. 2d 809, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 321).

"DANGEROUS WEAPON"

Lye is a "dangerous weapon" within meaning of statute. Tatum v. United States (71 App. D. C. 393, 110 Fed. (2d) 555).

EVIDENCE

In prosecution for assault with a dangerous weapon, permitting district attorney to cross-examine defendant as to why defendant didn't run into house to avoid trouble if she believed complaining witness was going to do defendant some harm was proper, since the cross-examination was calculated to search for nature of defendent's belief and was proper to determine whether defendant went further than she was justified in doing. Josey v. U. S., 1943 (135 F. 2d 809, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 321).

INJURY SUFFERED

Threat or danger of physical suffering or injury in the ordinary sense is not necessary. The injury suffered by the innocent victim may be the fear, shame, humiliation, and mental anguish caused by the assault. Neither is it necessary that such a victim should be aware of the nature of the act or of the danger. Beausoliel v. United States (71 App. D. C. 111, 107 Fed. (2d) 292).

INSTRUCTIONS

In prosecution for assault with a dangerous weapon, requested instruction that if defendant had reasonable grounds to believe that complaining witness was about to inflict violence on her and was coming at her with a knife in a menacing manner, defendant was justified in defending herself and didn't have to retreat was fatally defective and was properly refused. Josey v. U. S., 1943 (135 F. 2d 809, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 321).

SENTENCES

Consecutive penitentiary sentences on four counts, and concurrent sentence on fifth count does not violate the Indeterminate Sentence law. United States ex rel. Bracey v. Hill ((C. C. A. 3), 77 Fed. (2d) 970).

As maximum sentence imposed on each count was ten years and as none exceeded the maximum of ten years fixed by the statute, and as the minimum sentence on each count was two years and none exceeded one-fifth of the maximum of ten years fixed by the statute, the sentences are, therefore, in accord with the Indeterminate Sentence and Parole Act. Bracey v. Zerbst ((C. C. A. 10), 93 Fed. (2d) 8).

§ 22–503 [6: 28]. Assault with intent to commit any other offense.

Whoever assaults another with intent to commit any other offense which may be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary shall be imprisoned not more than five years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1322, ch. 854, § 805.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

BURDEN OF PROOF

In prosecution for unlawfully assaulting 15-year-old girl, burden was on the government to prove not only the touching, but that such touching was unlawful, or, in other words that the touching was not accidental or innocent. Davenport v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 60 A. 2d 226).

EVIDENCE

In prosecution for assault of an indecent nature on a ten-year-old boy, evidence of what occurred between boy and defendant in defendant's apartment on date preceding and day after date charged in the information was admissible as an exception to general rule. Posey v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 41 A. 2d 300).

In prosecution for assault of an indecent nature on a ten-year-old boy, where record showed that what transpired between defendant and the boy on three consecutive days in defendant's apartment was so closely connected as to constitute composite parts of a single picture, evidence of what occurred on day preceding and day after the date charged in the information was relevant even though it revealed separate offenses on those days. Posey v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 41 A. 2d 300).

INDICTMENT

"It is not necessary to the charge of a joint assault by several persons that they be specifically charged as acting 'together and with each other.'" Polen v. United States (41 App. D. C. 4).

INDIRECT FORCE

Application of force, or threat of application thereof, in an assault may be made indirectly as well as directly. Beausoliel v. United States (71 App. D. C. 111, 107 Fed. (2d) 292).

INSTRUCTIONS

In prosecution for assaulting a 15-year-old girl, defendant was entitled to an instruction that, if jury had any reasonable doubt about any material point or question in the case, they must resolve such doubt in favor of defendant, and an instruction that, if jury had any reasonable doubt finally after considering evidence both for and against defendant as to defendant's guilt, jury must bring verdict of not guilty, was error. Davenport v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 60 A. 2d 226).

SENTENCES

When sentences imposed were ten years and eight years, respectively, on the first two indictments, and five years on the assault charge, the sentences to run consecutively in the order named, but since the first sentence of ten years has not expired, the application for habeas corpus was premature, as validity of other two sentences is not properly raised. Johnson v. Aderhold ((C. C. A. 5), 73 Fed. (2d) 102).

§ 22–504 [6: 29]. Assault or threatened assault in a menacing manner.

Whoever unlawfully assaults, or threatens another in a menacing manner, shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars or be imprisoned not more than twelve months, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1322, ch. 854, § 806.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

ARRESTING OFFICER'S LIABILITY

If the officer has reason to believe that the person he is about to arrest is a desperate character and acts accordingly, the officer is not to be convicted of assault because it subsequently develops that he was mistaken. Barrett v. United States (62 App. D. C. 25, 64 Fed. (2d) 148).

EVIDENCE

In prosecution for assault, where government witness admitted on cross-examination that she had waited two weeks after the incident before reporting it to police, testimony on redirect examination that she had not intended to report the incident but later saw defendant commit a similar assault upon another woman and then reported her experience to the police was competent to rebut the issue of delay raised by defendant. Stitely v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 61 A. 2d 491).

INDIRECT FORCE

Application of force, or threat of application thereof, in an assault may be made indirectly as well as directly. Beausoliel v. United States (71 App. D. C. 111, 107 Fed. (2d) 292).

INJURY SUFFERED

Threat or danger of physical suffering in the ordinary sense is not necessary; the injury suffered by the innocent victim may be the fear, shame, humiliation, and mental anguish caused by the assault. Beausoliel v. United States (71 App. D. C. 111, 107 Fed. (2d) 292).

INSTRUCTIONS

In prosecution for an assault committed upon a woman in a street car, where woman involved explained her delay in complaining to police by stating that she had not intended to complain until she saw defendant commit the same act upon another woman two weeks later, defendant was entitled, upon a timely request, to have jury instructed that testimony in explanation of delay was to be considered only in respect to delay in making complaint and not as evidence that offense charged was committed but where he failed to do so, no complaint could be made. Stitely v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 61 A. 2d 491).

REVERSIBLE ERROR

In prosecution for simple assault where defendant, a policeman, testified concerning incidents of his patrol, and where government cross-examined and brought on rebuttal evidence of other assaults under the theory of impeachment, and where upon appeal that theory was abandoned and that of identification substituted and both theories were of tenuous application upon the facts, thus affording the trial court no opportunity to rule upon admissibility under the new theory nor to give proper limiting instruction under it, there was reversible error. Martin v. U. S., 1942 (127 F. 2d 865, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 399).

Where in a prosecution for assault, defendant's counsel was deprived of the opportunity of examining defendant again on redirect examination and of the opportunity to call additional defense witnesses who had been sworn at the beginning of the trial, it constitutes reversible error, notwithstanding the absence of objection and exception taken at the trial court. Varrella v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 64 A. 2d 310).

RIGHT TO COUNSEL

Where appellant was asked if he wished counsel and each time he stated he did not and was advised of the seriousness of the charge against him but steadfastly retained his position that counsel was not desired, he was not deprived of his constitutional right, since in the exercise of a free and intelligent choice and with the considered approval of the court, a defendant may competently and intelligently waive the right to counsel. Humphries v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 68 A. 2d 803).

§ 22–505 [6: 30]. Assault on member of police force.

If any person, without justifiable and excusable cause, shall use personal violence upon any member of the police force, when in the discharge of his duty, such person shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punishable by imprisonment in the District jail or penitentiary not exceeding two years, or by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars. Possession of firearm, additional penalty, §§ 22–3201, 22–3202.

Chapter 6.—BIGAMY

Sec.
22–601 Definition and penalty.

§ 22–601 [6: 171]. Definition and penalty.

Whoever, having a husband or wife living, marries another shall be deemed guilty of bigamy, and on conviction thereof shall suffer imprisonment for not less than two nor more than seven years: Provided, That this section shall not apply to any person whose husband or wife has been continually absent for five successive years next before such marriage without being known to such person to be living within that time, or whose marriage to said living husband or wife shall have been dissolved by a valid decree of a competent court, or shall have been pronounced void by a valid decree of a competent court on the ground of the nullity of the marriage contract. Stat. 346, ch. 428, § 101.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Conclusions of Defendant

There must be some honest and effective effort made to ascertain truth before it can be claimed that conclusion of defendant, charged with bigamy, that first wife had obtained divorce had been reached in good faith. Alexander v. U. S., 1943 (136 F. 2d 783, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 34).

Evidence

Testimony of police officer in bigamy prosecution concerning admissions made to him by defendant was admissible although defendant was not advised that anything he said might be used against him and that he need not make a statement. Matz v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 158 F. 2d 190).

In prosecution for bigamy, court did not err in compelling the second wife to testify where the certificate of the prior marriage was in evidence, together with testimony as to defendant's admissions directed toward that certificate, and other testimony that defendant and first wife had lived together as husband and wife. Matz v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 158 F. 2d 190).

Instructions to Jury

Where defendant, charged with bigamy, testified that he received letter stating that first wife had obtained divorce, but defendant made no effort to ascertain true facts, refusing instruction that defendant must be acquitted if he believed at time of second marriage that his first wife had procured a divorce and giving instruction that if jury believed beyond reasonable doubt that at time of second marriage first wife was living and that marriage had not been dissolved by valid decree jury should find defendant guilty was not prejudicial error. Alexander v. U. S., 1943 (136 F. 2d 783, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 34).

Plea of Guilty

The fact that defendant entered a plea of guilty to charge of bigamy without advice of counsel and that not until some time later in the day was counsel, at his request, appointed for him, was not fatal under circumstances. Alexander v. U. S., 1943 (136 F. 2d 783, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 34).

Chapter 7.—BRIBERY—OBSTRUCTING JUSTICE

Sec.
22–701. Definition and penalty.
22–702. Offering or receiving money, property, or valuable consideration to procure office or promotion from District of Columbia Commissioners.
22–703. Obstructing justice.
22–704. Corrupt influence—Officials.

§ 22–701 [6: 134]. Definition and penalty.

Whoever promises, offers, or gives, or causes or procures to be promised, offered, or given, any money or other thing of value, or makes or tenders any contract, undertaking, obligation, credit, or security for the payment of money, or for the delivery or conveyance of anything of value, to any executive, judicial, or other officer, or to any person acting in any official function, or to any juror or witness, with intent to influence the decision, action, verdict, or evidence of any such person on any question, matter, cause, or proceeding or with intent to influence him to commit or aid in committing, or to collude in or allow any fraud, or make any opportunity for the commission of any fraud, shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars, or be imprisoned not more than three years, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1330, ch. 854, § 861.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Accessory Before the Fact

In prosecution of doctor and his wife for attempted bribery of witness in abortion case against the doctor, where there was sufficient evidence to justify the jury's conclusion that doctor was an accessory before the fact to the attempt at bribery by his wife, he was properly found guilty as a principal. Ladrey v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 155 F. 2d 417, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 68, 329 U. S. 723, 91 L. Ed. 627).

Admissibility of Evidence

In prosecution for attempted bribery of witness in abortion case, admission of evidence tending to show that witness was a material witness in the abortion case, consisting of her testimony that she was the person upon whom the operation had been performed, and statement showing the nature of the operation was proper. Ladrey v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 155 F. 2d 417, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 68, 329, U. S. 823, 91 L. Ed. 627).

In prosecution of doctor and his wife for attempted bribery of witness in abortion case against the doctor, where facts, other than the statements and acts of wife, were shown from which it could be concluded that a conspiracy between doctor and his wife in fact existed, the evidence of witness and police sergeant concerning the declarations of wife, including the offer of the bribe, was admissible against the doctor, though the declarations were made out of the doctor's presence. Ladrey v. U. S. (App. D. C., 1946, 155 F. 2d 417, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 68, 329 U. S. 723, 91 L. Ed. 627).

Indictment

Although the act of asking, accepting, or receiving, in violation of § 117 of the Criminal Code may each constitute a separate offense, it is not duplicitous to charge them all in a single count. Egan v. United States (52 App. D. C. 384, 287 Fed. 958).

In prosecution of doctor and his wife for attempted bribery of witness in abortion case against the doctor, evidence that doctor took his wife to a point near the scene of her attempt at bribery, that after her arrest he was found with his automobile parked at a nearby corner, that he made a statement so incredible as to be prima facie false, as well as conflicting statements, together with fact that doctor had a strong motive to eliminate the witness, tended to show a secret combination or conspiracy between doctor and his wife, notwithstanding that indictment did not specifically charge that they had conspired. Ladrey v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 155 F. 2d 417, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 68, 329 U. S. 723, 91 L. Ed. 627).

Jail Guard

Affirmance of conviction of bribery of jail guard to falsify records to establish alibi. Siegal v. United States (61 App. D. C. 282, 61 Fed. (2d) 923, cert. den. 288 U. S. 602, 77 L. Ed. 978, 53 Sup. Ct. 386).

Defendant was a person acting in an official function, exercising by delegation a part of the official authority possessed by the superintendent of the jail. If he had corruptly accepted the money, he would have been guilty of accepting a bribe to influence his official conduct. Siegal v. United States (61 App. D. C. 282, 61 Fed. (2d) 923, cert. den. 288 U. S. 602, 77 L. Ed. 978, 53 Sup. Ct. 386).

Official Act

"There can be no bribery of any official to do a particular act, unless the law requires or imposes upon him the duty of acting." Thomson v. United States (37 App. D. C. 461), citing Benson v. United States (27 App. D. C. 331).

§ 22–702 [6: 135]. Offering or receiving money, property, or valuable consideration to procure office or promotion from District of Columbia Commissioners.

Every person who directly or indirectly takes, receives, or agrees to receive any money, property, or other valuable consideration whatever from any person for giving, procuring, or aiding to give or procure any office, place, or promotion in office from the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, or from any officer under them, and every person who, directly or indirectly, offers to give, or gives any money, property, or other valuable consideration whatever for the procuring or aiding to procure any such office, place, or promotion in office shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof in the police court shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or imprisonment in the jail for not more than twelve months, or both, in the discretion of the court. (July 1, 1902, 32 Stat. 591, ch. 1352.)

§ 22–703 [6: 136]. Obstructing justice.

Whoever corruptly, by threats or force, endeavors to influence, intimidate, or impede any juror, witness, or officer in any court in the District in the discharge of his duties, or, by threats or force, in any other way obstructs or impedes or endeavors to obstruct or impede the due administration of justice therein, shall be fined not more than two hundred dollars or imprisoned not more than three years, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1330, ch. 854, § 862.)

§ 22–704 [6: 138]. Corrupt influence—Officials.

Whosoever corruptly, directly or indirectly, gives any money, or other bribe, present, reward, promise, contract, obligation, or security for the payment of any money, present, reward, or thing of value to any ministerial, administrative, executive, or judicial officer of the District of Columbia or any employee or other person acting in any capacity for the District of Columbia, or any agency thereof, either before or after he is qualified, with intent to influence his action on any matter which is then pending, or may by law come or be brought before him in his official capacity, or to cause him to execute any of the powers in him vested, or to perform any duties of him required, with partiality or favor, or otherwise than is required by law, or in consideration that such officer being authorized in the line of his duty to contract for any advertising or for the furnishing of any labor or material, shall directly or indirectly arrange to receive or shall receive, or shall withhold from the parties so contracted with, any portion of the contract price, whether that price be fixed by law or by agreement, or in consideration that such officer has nominated or appointed any person to any office or exercised any power in him vested, or performed any duty of him required, with partiality or favor, or otherwise contrary to law; and whosoever, being such an officer, shall receive any such money, bribe, present, or reward, promise, contract, obligation, or security, with intent or for the purpose or consideration aforesaid shall be deemed guilty of bribery and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by imprisonment for a term not less than six months nor more than five years.

Whosoever corrupts or attempts, directly or indirectly, to corrupt any special master, auditor, juror, arbitrator, umpire, or referee, by giving, offering, or promising any gift or gratuity whatever, with intent to bias the opinion, or influence the decision of such officer, in relation to any matter pending in the court, or before an inquest, or for the decision of which such arbitrator, umpire, or referee has been chosen or appointed, and every official who receives, or offers or agrees to receive, a bribe in any of the cases above mentioned shall be guilty of bribery and upon conviction thereof shall be punished as hereinbefore provided. (Feb. 26, 1936, 49 Stat. 1143, ch. 87.)

Chapter 8.—CRUELTY TO ANIMALS

Sec.
22–801. Definition and penalty.
22–802. Other cruelties to animals.
22–803. Transportation of animals by railroad companies—Rest—Water—Feeding by railroad company—Cost—Penalty.
22–804. Arrests without warrant authorized—Notice to owner.
22–805. Issuance of search warrants.
22–806. Prosecution of offenders—Disposition of fines.
22–807. Impounded animals to be supplied with food and water.
22–808. Relief of impounded animals.
22–809. Keeping or using place for purpose of fighting or baiting of fowls or animals—Arrest without warrant.
22–810. Penalty for engaging in cockfighting—Animal fighting.
22–811. Neglect of sick or disabled animals.
22–812. Abandonment of maimed or diseased animal—Destruction of diseased animals—Disposition of animal or vehicle on arrest of driver—Scientific experiments.
22–813. Definitions.
22–814. Docking tails of horses.

§ 22–801 [6: 275]. Definition and penalty.

Whoever overdrives, overloads, drives when overloaded, overworks, tortures, torments, deprives of necessary sustenance, cruelly beats, mutilates, or cruelly kills, or causes or procures to be so overdriven, overloaded, driven when overloaded, overworked, tortured, tormented, deprived of necessary sustenance, cruelly beaten, mutilated, or cruelly killed any animal, and whoever, having the charge or custody of any animal, either as owner or otherwise, inflicts unnecessary cruelty upon the same, or unnecessarily fails to provide the same with proper food, drink, shelter, or protection from the weather, shall for every such offense be punished by imprisonment in jail not exceeding one year, or by fine not exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars, or by both such fine and imprisonment. (Leg. Assem., Aug. 23, 1871, p. 135, ch. 106, § 1.)

§ 22–802 [6: 276]. Other cruelties to animals.

Every owner, possessor, or person having the charge or custody of any animal, who cruelly drives or works the same when unfit for labor, or cruelly abandons the same, or who carries the same, or causes the same to be carried, in or upon any vehicle, or otherwise, in an unnecessarily cruel or inhuman manner, or knowingly and wilfully authorizes or permits the same to be subjected to unnecessary torture, suffering, or cruelty of any kind, shall be punished for every such offense in the manner provided in section 22–801. (Leg. Assem., Aug. 23, 1871, p. 135, ch. 106, § 2.)

§ 22–803 [6: 277]. Transportation of animals by railroad companies—Rest—Water—Feeding by railroad company—Cost—Penalty.

No railroad company, in the carrying or transportation of animals, shall permit the same to be confined in cars for a longer period than twenty-four hours, without unloading the same, for rest, water, and feeding, for a period of at least five consecutive hours, unless prevented from so unloading by storm or other accidental causes. In estimating such confinement the time during which such animals have been confined without such rest on connecting roads from which they are received shall be included; it being the intent of this section to prohibit their continuous confinement beyond the period of twenty-four hours, except upon contingencies hereinbefore stated. Animals so unloaded shall be properly fed, watered, and sheltered during such rest by the owner or person having the custody thereof, or in case of his default in so doing, then by the railroad company transporting the same, at the expense of said owner or persons in custody thereof. And said company shall, in such case, have a lien upon such animals for food, care, and custody furnished, and shall not be liable for any detention of such animals authorized by this section. Any company, owner, or custodian of such animals who fails to comply with the provisions of this section shall, for each and every such offense, be liable for and forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than one or more than five hundred dollars: Provided, however, That when animals shall be carried in cars in which they can and do have proper food, water, space, and opportunity for rest, the foregoing provisions in regard to their being unloaded shall not apply. (Leg. Assem., Aug. 23, 1871, p. 135, ch. 106, § 3.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

This section is probably superseded in part by U. S. C., title 45, § 71–74.

§ 22–804 [6: 278]. Arrests without warrant authorized—Notice to owner.

Any person found violating the laws in relation to cruelty to animals may be arrested and held without a warrant, in the manner provided by section 32–205, and the person making an arrest, with or without a warrant, shall use reasonable diligence to give notice thereof to the owner of animals found in the charge or custody of the person arrested, and shall properly care and provide for such animals until the owner thereof shall take charge of the same: Provided, The owner shall take charge of the same within twenty days from the date of said notice. And the person making such arrest shall have a lien on said animals for the expense of such care and provisions. (Leg. Assem., Aug. 23, 1871, p. 136, ch. 106, § 4.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

Section 32–205 is § 5 of the "Charter of the Association for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, granted by an Act of Congress, approved June 21, 1870 (16 Stat. 158, ch. 135)." The quoted words are contained in the original text of this section.

§ 22–805 [6: 279]. Issuance of search warrants.

When complaint is made by any member of the Washington Humane Society on oath or affirmation, to any magistrate authorized to issue warrants in criminal cases, that the complainant believes, and has reasonable cause to believe, that the laws in relation to cruelty to animals have been or are being violated in any particular building or place, such magistrate, if satisfied that there is reasonable cause for such belief, shall issue a search warrant, authorizing any marshal, deputy marshal, police officer, or any member of the Washington Humane Society to search such building or place. (Leg. Assem., Aug. 23, 1871, p. 136, ch. 106, § 5; Feb. 13, 1885, 23 Stat. 302, ch. 58, § 1; Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1195, ch. 854, § 41.)

AMENDMENT

Act of 1901 abolished the office of constable, and all process issued by a justice of the peace shall be served by the United States marshal for the District of Columbia, or, if he is disqualified, by the coroner.

§ 22–806 [6: 280]. Prosecution of offenders—Disposition of fines.

It shall be the duty of all marshals, deputy marshals, police officers, or any member of the Washington Humane Society, to prosecute all violations of the provisions of sections 22–801 to 22–809 and sections 22–811, 22–813, and 22–814, which shall come to their notice or knowledge, and fines and forfeitures collected upon or resulting from the complaint or information of any member of the Washington Humane Society under sections 22–801 to 22–809 and sections 22–811, 22–813, and 22–814 shall inure and be paid over to said association, in aid of the benevolent objects for which it was incorporated. (Leg. Assem., Aug. 23, 1871, p. 137, ch. 106, § 6; Feb. 13, 1885, 23 Stat. 302, ch. 58, § 1; Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1195, ch. 854, § 41.)

§ 22–807 [6: 281]. Impounded animals to be supplied with food and water.

Any person who shall impound, or cause to be impounded in any pound, any creature, shall supply the same, during such confinement, with a sufficient quantity of good and wholesome food and water; and in default thereof shall, upon conviction, be punished for every such offense in the same manner provided in section 22–801. (Leg. Assem., Aug. 23, 1871, p. 137, ch. 106, § 7.)

§ 22–808 [6: 282]. Relief of impounded animals.

In case any creature shall be at any time impounded as aforesaid, and shall continue to be without necessary food and water for more than twelve successive hours, it shall be lawful for any officer of the Washington Humane Society, from time to time, and as often as it shall be necessary, to enter into and upon any pound in which such creature shall be so confined, and supply it with necessary food and water so long as it shall remain so confined; such person shall not be liable to any action for such entry, and the reasonable cost for such food and water may be collected of the owner of such creature, and the said creature shall not be exempt from levy and sale upon execution issued upon a judgment thereof. (Leg. Assem., Aug. 23, 1871, p. 137, ch. 106, § 8; Feb. 13, 1885, 23 Stat. 302, ch. 58, § 1.)

§ 22–809 [6: 283]. Keeping or using place for purpose of fighting or baiting of fowls or animals—Arrest without warrant.

Any person or persons who shall keep or use, or in any way be connected with or interested in the management of, or shall receive money for the admission of any person to any place kept or used for the purpose of fighting or baiting of fowls or animals, may be arrested without a warrant, as provided in section 32–205, and for every such offense be punished in the same manner provided in section 22–801. (Leg. Assem., Aug. 23, 1871, p. 137, ch. 106, § 9.)

§ 22–810 [6: 284]. Penalty for engaging in cockfighting—Animal fighting.

Any person who sets on foot, instigates, promotes, carries on, or does any act, as assistant, umpire, or principal, or attends or in any way engages in the furtherance of any fight between cocks, fowls, or other birds, or dogs, bulls, bears, or other animals, premeditated by any persons owning or having custody of such birds or animals, is guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of not more than two hundred and fifty dollars or by imprisonment in jail not more than one year, or both. (June 25, 1892, 27 Stat. 61, ch. 135, § 6.)

§ 22–811 [6: 285]. Neglect of sick or disabled animals.

If any maimed, sick, infirm, or disabled animal shall fail to receive proper food or shelter from said owner or person in charge of the same for more than five consecutive hours, such person shall, for every such offense, be punished in the same manner provided in section 22–801. (Leg. Assem., Aug. 23, 1871, p. 138, ch. 106, § 10; June 25, 1892, 27 Stat. 60, ch. 135, § 4.)

§ 22–812 [6: 286]. Abandonment of maimed or diseased animal—Destruction of diseased animals—Disposition of animal or vehicle on arrest of driver—Scientific experiments.

A person being the owner or possessor or having charge or custody of a maimed, diseased, disabled, or infirm animal who abandons such animal, or leaves it to lie in the street or road, or public place, more than three hours after he receives notice that it is left disabled, is guilty of a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than two hundred and fifty dollars, or by imprisonment in jail not more than one year, or both. Any agent or officer of the Washington Humane Society may lawfully destroy, or cause to be destroyed, any animal found abandoned and not properly cared for, appearing, in the judgment of two reputable citizens called by him to view the same in his presence, to be glandered, injured, or diseased past recovery for any useful purpose. When any person arrested is, at the time of such arrest, in charge of any animal, or of any vehicle drawn by any animal, or containing any animal, any agent of said society may take charge of such animal and such vehicle and its contents and deposit the same in a place of safe custody or deliver the same into the possession of the police authorities, who shall assume the custody thereof; and all necessary expenses incurred in taking charge of such property shall be a lien thereon.

Nothing contained in sections 22–801 to 22–809, inclusive, and sections 22–811, 22–1109 shall be construed to prohibit or interfere with any properly conducted scientific experiments or investigations, which experiments shall be performed only under the authority of the faculty of some regularly incorporated medical college, university, or scientific society. (Leg. Assem., Aug. 23, 1871, p. 138, ch. 106, § 11; June 25, 1892, 27 Stat. 60, ch. 135, § 4.)

§ 22–813 [6: 287]. Definitions.

In sections 22–801 to 22–809, inclusive, and section 22–811, the word "animals" or "animal" shall be held to include all living and sentient creatures (human beings excepted), and the words "owner," "persons," and "whoever" shall be held to include corporations and incorporated companies as well as individuals. (Leg. Assem., Aug. 23, 1871, p. 138, ch. 106, § 12; June 25, 1892, 27 Stat. 60, ch. 135, § 3.)

§ 22–814 [6: 288]. Docking tails of horses.

Whoever cuts the solid part of the tail of any horse in the operation known as docking, and whoever shall cause the same to be done or assist in doing such cutting (unless the same is proved to be of benefit to the horse), shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by imprisonment in the Washington Asylum and jail not exceeding one year or fine of not less than one hundred nor more than two hundred and fifty dollars. (June 25, 1892, 27 Stat. 61, ch. 135, § 5.)

Chapter 9.—DOMESTIC RELATIONS

Sec.
22–901. Cruelty to children.
22–902. Refusal or neglect of guardian to provide for child under 14 years of age.
22–903. Wilful neglect or refusal to support wife or minor child—Punishment—Order of allowance — Recognizance — Trial under original charge.
22–904. Evidence of marriage—Competency of witnesses—Proof of wilful desertion.
22–905. Weekly payments by superintendent of workhouse for each day's confinement.
22–906. Collections by clerk of court to be deposited with collector of taxes and covered into Treasury.

§ 22–901 [6: 37]. Cruelty to children.

Any person who shall torture, cruelly beat, abuse, or otherwise wilfully maltreat any child under the age of eighteen years; or any person, having the custody and possession of a child under the age of fourteen years, who shall expose, or aid and abet in exposing, such child in any highway, street, field, house, outhouse, or other place, with intent to abandon it; or any person, having in his custody or control a child under the age of fourteen years, who shall in any way dispose of it with a view to its being employed as an acrobat, or a gymnast, or a contortionist, or a circus rider, or a rope-walker, or in any exhibition of like dangerous character, or as a beggar, or mendicant, or pauper, or street singer, or street musician; or any person who shall take, receive, hire, employ, use, exhibit, or have in custody any child of the age last named for any of the purposes last enumerated, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, when convicted thereof, shall be subject to punishment by a fine of not more than two hundred and fifty dollars, or by imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, or both. (Feb. 13, 1885, 23 Stat. 303, ch. 58, § 3; Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1322, ch. 854, § 814.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CHILD AS AGENCY FOR COMMISSION OF CRIME

One may be guilty of a crime where the prohibited act is committed through the agency of mechanical or chemical means, as by instruments, poison or powder, or by an animal, a child, or other innocent agent acting under the direction and compulsion of the accused. Beausoliel v. United States (71 App. D. C. 111, 107 Fed. (2d) 292).

COMMON LAW

Offense prescribed while not expressed in terms of assault, comes within the common-law concept of that offense. Beausoliel v. United States (71 App. D. C. 111, 107 Fed. (2d) 292).

§ 22–902 [6: 270]. Refusal or neglect of guardian to provide for child under 14 years of age.

Any person within the District of Columbia, of sufficient financial ability, who shall refuse or neglect to provide for any child under the age of fourteen years, of which he or she shall be the parent or guardian, such food, clothing, and shelter as will prevent the suffering and secure the safety of such child, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be subject to punishment by a fine of not more than one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the workhouse of the District of Columbia for not more than three months, or both such fine and imprisonment. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1095, ch. 847, § 4.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

This section may have been partly superseded by sections 22–903 to 22–906.

§ 22–903 [6: 271]. Wilful neglect or refusal to support wife or minor child—Punishment—Order of allowance — Recognizance — Trial under original charge.

Any person in the District of Columbia who shall, without just cause, desert or wilfully neglect or refuse to provide for the support and maintenance of his wife in destitute or necessitous circumstances, or any person who shall, without just excuse, desert or wilfully neglect or refuse to provide for the support and maintenance of his or her minor children under the age of sixteen years in destitute or necessitous circumstances, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not more than $500 or by imprisonment in the workhouse of the District of Columbia for not more than twelve months, or by both such fine and imprisonment; and should a fine be imposed it may be directed by the court to be paid in whole or in part to the wife or to the guardian or custodian of the minor child or children: Provided, That before the trial, with the consent of the defendant, or after conviction, instead of imposing the punishment hereinbefore provided, or in addition thereto, the court in its discretion, having regard to the circumstances and to the financial ability or earning capacity of the defendant, shall have the power to make an order, which shall be subject to change by it from time to time as circumstances may require, directing the defendant to pay a certain sum weekly for the space of one year to the wife, or to the guardian or custodian of the minor child or children, or to an organization or individual approved by the court as trustee, and to release the defendant from custody on probation for the space of one year upon his or her entering into a recognizance, with or without sureties, in such sum as the court may direct. The condition of the recognizance shall be such that if the defendant shall make his or her personal appearance in court whenever ordered to do so within the year, and shall further comply with the terms of the order and of any subsequent modification thereof, then the recognizance shall be void, otherwise of full force and effect.

If the court be satisfied by information and due proof, under oath, that at any time during the year the defendant has violated the terms of such order, it may forthwith proceed with the trial of the defendant under the original charge, or sentence him under the original conviction, or enforce the original sentence, as the case may be. In case of forfeiture of a recognizance and enforcement thereof by execution, the sum recovered may, in the discretion of the court, be paid in whole or in part to the wife, or to the guardian or custodian of the minor child or children. The juvenile court is hereby given concurrent jurisdiction with the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia in all cases arising under this section. (Mar. 23, 1906, 34 Stat. 86, ch. 1131, § 1; June 18, 1912, 37 Stat. 136, ch. 171, § 8; June 10, 1926, 44 Stat. 716, ch. 528.)

AMENDMENTS

The 1912 act added the last sentence.

The act of 1926 deleted the words "at hard labor" following the words "workhouse of the District of Columbia."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CONSTITUTIONALITY

The provisions for punishment under the act not being severable, the act is unconstitutional. United States v. Moreland (258 U. S. 433, 66 L. Ed. 700, 42 Sup. Ct. 368, 24 A. L. R. 992).

DOMICILE

Under this statute a husband domiciled in another state is not chargeable under this act with refusal to support child. United States ex rel. Smith v. Mathues ((D. C.-Pa.), 284 Fed. 368).

In proceeding against person indicted under this statute, and who is found in another district, technical objections to indictment are for the court where the indictment is lodged. In re Parker ((D. C.-Cal.), 299 Fed. 1006).

Person indicted under this statute may be removed from another district, since a violation of the act is in fact a crime against the United States. Parker v. United States ((C. C. A. 9), 3 Fed. (2d) 903).

Where husband was not in the District of Columbia at time he allegedly failed to support his children, as charged in indictment, he did not violate this section, and court would deny petition for husband's removal to the District. U. S. v. Johnson (D. C. Or. 1945, 63 F. Supp. 615).

A resident of the District of Columbia who had not failed to provide support for wife while within the District, and who left the District for Oregon where he was employed for about two years until he first failed to furnish support, did not violate this section. U. S. v. Johnson (D. C. Or. 1945, 63 F. Supp. 615).

JURISDICTION

Since the jurisdiction conferred upon the juvenile court for the District of Columbia relates only to cases involving children arising under § 11–902 et seq., the juvenile court exceeded its jurisdiction in attempting to hold defendant for nonsupport of his wife only; the welfare of no children being involved. In re Wilson (D. C., D. C. 1948, 79 F. Supp. 816).

NONRESIDENT

Where indictment did not describe the accused as a "person in the District of Columbia," and evidence showed he was not a resident of District of Columbia, denial of a motion for warrant of removal to District of Columbia was proper. United States ex rel. Smith v. Mathues ((D. C.-Pa.), 284 Fed. 368).

PRESENTMENT OR INDICTMENT

Fact that prisoner receives maximum sentence under this statute, without having been presented or indicted by grand jury, does not of itself render said sentence void. United States v. Moreland (258 U. S. 433, 66 L. Ed. 700, 42 Sup. Ct. 368, 24 A. L. R. 992).

RIGHT TO COUNSEL

Where petitioner was convicted in the juvenile court upon a plea of guilty of refusing to provide for the support of his minor child, and at the time of his arraignment he was not told that he was waiving his right to counsel and was not represented by counsel and was not advised of his "right to counsel," he did not under these circumstances "waive" his right to counsel. Therefore his constitutional rights to the assistance of counsel were violated with consequent loss of jurisdiction in the juvenile court to convict and sentence him, and he was entitled to discharge on writ of habeas corpus. Evans v. Rives, 1942 (126 F. 2d 633, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 242).

SENTENCE

The test of infamy is not the sentence imposed but rather that which may be imposed under the statute. United States v. Moreland (258 U. S. 433, 66 L. Ed. 700, 42 Sup. Ct. 368, 24 A. L. R. 992).

Court has no jurisdiction to impose a sentence involving hard labor where there has been no indictment or presentment by a grand jury. Moreland v. United States (51 App. D. C. 118, 276 Fed. 640, affd. 258 U. S. 433, 66 L. Ed. 700, 42 Sup. Ct. 368, 24 A. L. R. 992).

WITNESS

Wife is competent witness in proceedings for removal under R. S., § 1014. Parker v. United States ((C. C. A. 9), 3 Fed. (2d) 903, affg. 299 Fed. 1006).

§ 22–904 [6: 272]. Evidence of marriage—Competency of witnesses—Proof of wilful desertion.

No other evidence shall be required to prove marriage of such husband and wife, or that such person is the lawful father or mother of such child or children, than is or shall be required to prove such facts in a civil action. In all prosecutions under sections 22–903 to 22–905, any provisions of law in force on March 23, 1906, prohibiting the disclosure of confidential communications between husband and wife shall not apply, and both husband and wife shall be competent and compellable witnesses to testify to any and all relevant matters, including the fact of such marriage and the parentage of such child or children. Proof of the desertion of such wife, child, or children in destitute or necessitous circumstances, or of neglect to furnish such wife, child, or children necessary and proper food, clothing, or shelter is prima facie evidence that such desertion or neglect is wilful. (Mar. 23, 1906, 34 Stat. 87, ch. 1131, § 2.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

WITNESS

State rule as to competency of witnesses does not apply in view of this section. In re Parker ((D. C.-Cal.), 299 Fed. 1006, affd. 3 Fed. (2d) 903).

§ 22–905 [6: 273]. Weekly payments by superintendent of workhouse for each day's confinement.

It shall be the duty of the superintendent in charge of the workhouse of the District of Columbia in which any person is confined on account of a sentence under sections 22–903 to 22–905 to pay, out of any funds available, over to the wife, or to the guardian or custodian of his or her minor child or children, or to an organization or individual approved by the court as trustee, at the end of each week, for the support of such wife, child, or children, a sum equal to 50 cents for each day of the sentence served by said person so confined. (Mar. 23, 1906, 34 Stat. 87, ch. 1131, § 3; June 10, 1926, 44 Stat. 716, ch. 528.)

AMENDMENT

The act of 1926 amended the last sentence by substituting the words "each day of the sentence served" for the words "each day's hard labor performed."

§ 22–906 [6: 274]. Collections by clerk of court to be deposited with collector of taxes and covered into Treasury.

All moneys paid by order of the juvenile court under sections 22–903 to 22–905 which are collected and disbursed by the clerk of said court, shall be deposited weekly by said clerk with the collector of taxes of the District of Columbia and covered into the Treasury to the credit of the appropriated trust fund account denominated Miscellaneous Trust Fund Deposits, District of Columbia, and all expenditures therefrom shall be made and accounted for in the manner required by law for other expenditures of the government of the District of Columbia, and the said expenditures shall be made weekly on pay-rolls approved and certified by the juvenile court. (May 18, 1910, 36 Stat. 403, ch. 248.)

Chapter 10.—FORNICATION

Sec.
22–1001. Repealed.

§ 22–1001 [6:176a]. Repealed June 25, 1948, effective September 1, 1948, 62 Stat. 864, ch. 645, § 21.

Section, based on Act Mar. 3, 1887, 24 Stat. 636, Ch. 397, § 5, was made applicable to the District of Columbia by Act Mar. 4, 1909, 35 Stat. 1149, Ch. 321, § 318, and was repealed by the revision of Title 18, U. S. Code.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

JURISDICTION

The offense here denounced does not fall within the category of those offenses defined as within the admiralty and maritime jurisdiction of the United States, and a single act committed between an unmarried man and an unmarried woman, aboard a ship en route to a foreign country, does not bring such act within the punishment of the courts of the United States. Ex parte Isojoki ((D. C.-Cal.), 222 Fed. 151).

Chapter 11.—DISORDERLY CONDUCT

Sec.
22–1101. Affrays.
22–1102. Duelling—Challenges.
22–1103. Assault for refusal to accept challenge.
22–1104. Leaving the District to give or receive challenge.

Sec.
22–1105. Prize fights and bull fights.
22–1106. "Pugilistic encounter" defined.
22–1107. Unlawful assembly—Profane and indecent language.
22–1108. Playing games in streets.
22–1109. Throwing stones or other missiles forbidden.
22–1110. Urging dogs to fight—Create disorder.
22–1111. Penalty for allowing fierce and dangerous dogs to go at large.
22–1112. Indecent exposure.
22–1113. Kindling bonfires.
22–1114. Disturbing religious congregation.
22–1115. Interference with foreign diplomatic and consular offices, officers, and property.
22–1116. Penalties for interference with foreign diplomatic and consular offices, officers, and property.
22–1117. Flying kites, balloons, or parachutes forbidden.
22–1118. Driving or riding on footways in public grounds.
22–1119. False alarm of fire—Prosecution.
22–1120. Sale of tobacco to minors under 16 years of age.

§ 22–1101 [6: 43]. Affrays.

Any person convicted of an affray shall be punished by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars or imprisonment not exceeding one year or both. (July 16, 1912, 37 Stat. 192, ch. 235, § 1.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Assaults because of gaming losses, § 16–705.

§ 22–1102 [6: 111]. Duelling—Challenges.

If any person shall in the District challenge another to fight a duel, or send or deliver any written or verbal message purporting or intended to be such challenge, or shall accept any such challenge or message, or shall knowingly carry or deliver an acceptance of such challenge or message to fight a duel in or out of the District, he shall be punished by imprisonment for a term not exceeding ten years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1328, ch. 854, § 852.)

§ 22–1103 [6: 112]. Assault for refusal to accept challenge.

If any person shall assault, beat, or wound, or cause to be assaulted, beaten, or wounded, any person in the District for refusing to accept such challenge, or cause him to be published or posted as a coward, or use other opprobrious language in such publication tending to degrade and disgrace him for so declining or refusing such challenge, he shall be punished by imprisonment for a term not exceeding three years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1328, ch. 854, § 853.)

§ 22–1104 [6: 113]. Leaving the District to give or receive challenge.

If any person, for the purpose of evading the provisions aforesaid, shall leave the District, by previous arrangement or concert within the same, with intent to give or receive any such challenge without the District, and shall give or receive the same accordingly, the person or persons so offending shall be punished in the same manner as if said challenge had been given and received within the District. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1328, ch. 854, § 854.)

§ 22–1105. Prize fights and bull fights.

Whoever shall voluntarily engage in a pugilistic encounter between man and man or a fight between a man and a bull or any other animal, for money or for other thing of value, or for any championship, or upon the result of which any money or anything of value is bet or wagered, or to see which any admission fee is directly or indirectly charged, shall be imprisoned not more than five years. The provisions of this section shall apply only within the territories of the United States and the District of Columbia. (Feb. 7, 1896, 29 Stat. 5, ch. 12, § 1; Mar. 4, 1909, 35 Stat. 1150, ch. 321, § 320.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

The 1909 act does not repeal the 1896 act either directly or as being inconsistent. The 1896 act contained the words "shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and upon conviction" after the words "indirectly charged."

Act of April 24, 1934, 48 Stat. 608, ch. 161, §§ 2–1201 to 2–1208 herein, authorized boxing in the District of Columbia.

Sections 22–1105 and 22–1106 are applicable to the District of Columbia. Dane v. United States (57 App. D. C. 161, 18 Fed. (2d) 811, cert. den. 275 U. S. 538, 72 L. Ed. 413, 48 Sup. Ct. 35).

INDICTMENT

Indictment charging promoter of fight between others with "engaging" in fight was not insufficient. Dane v United States (57 App. D. C. 161, 18 Fed. (2d) 811, cert den. 275 U. S. 538, 72 L. Ed. 413, 48 Sup. Ct. 35).

Acquittal of fighters was not inconsistent with conviction of promoter. Dane v. United States (57 App. D. C. 161, 18 Fed. (2d) 811, cert. den. 275 U. S. 538, 72 L. Ed. 413, 48 Sup. Ct. 35).

§ 22–1106. "Pugilistic encounter" defined.

By the term "pugilistic encounter," as used in the section 22–1105, is meant any voluntary fight by blows by means of fists or otherwise, whether with or without gloves, between two or more men, for money or for a prize of any character, or for any other thing of value, or for any championship, or upon the result of which any money or anything of value is bet or wagered, or to see which any admission fee is directly or indirectly charged. (Feb. 7, 1896, 29 Stat. 5, ch. 12, § 2; Mar. 4, 1909, 35 Stat. 1150, ch. 321, § 321; Feb. 8, 1929, 45 Stat. 1156, ch. 163.)

AMENDMENTS

Language of acts 1896 and 1909 are substantially the same.

Act of 1929 amends act of 1909 by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: "Nothing in this section or in the preceding section shall be held to prohibit any pugilistic encounter in the Territory of Hawaii or the Territory of Alaska, in conformity with the laws of the respective territories."

§ 22–1107 [6: 117]. Unlawful assembly—Profane and indecent language.

It shall not be lawful for any person or persons within the District of Columbia to congregate and assemble in any street, avenue, alley, road, or highway, or in or around any public building or inclosure, or any park or reservation, or at the entrance of any private building or inclosure, and engage in loud and boisterous talking or other disorderly conduct, or to insult or make rude or obscene gestures or comments or observations on persons passing by, or in their hearing, or to crowd, obstruct, or incommode, the free use of any such street, avenue, alley, road, highway, or any of the foot pavements thereof, or the free entrance into any public or private building or inclosure; it shall not be lawful for any person or persons to curse, swear, or make use of any profane language or indecent or obscene words, or engage in any disorderly conduct in any street, avenue, alley, road, highway, public park or inclosure, public building, church, or assembly room, or in any other public place, or in any place wherefrom the same may be heard in any street, avenue, alley, road, highway, public park or inclosure, or other building, or in any premises other than those where the offense was committed, under a penalty of not more than twenty-five dollars for each and every such offense. (July 29, 1892, 27 Stat. 323, ch. 320, § 6; July 8, 1898, 30 Stat. 723, ch. 638.)

AMENDMENT

Act of 1892 was substantially the same as this later act but in addition specifically set out names of public buildings as Capitol and Executive Mansion.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

EVIDENCE

Evidence that taxicab driver made certain suggestions to female passenger and repeated the suggestions both en route and on reaching their destination justified finding that such remarks were "indecent" and "obscene" within this section. Morris v. District of Columbia (D. C. 1943, 31 A. 2d 652).

MATTERS CONSIDERED

In determining whether defendant's remarks were within prohibition of this section, the trial judge was entitled to consider all surrounding circumstances, time of occurrence and manner in which it occurred, repetition of the remarks, as well as lack of previous acquaintance. Morris v. District of Columbia (D. C. 1943, 31 A. 2d 652).

PRESENCE OF OTHER PERSONS

Under this section making it unlawful for any person to use indecent or obscene language in any public place, the presence of others than offender and person addressed is not necessary to complete the offense. Morris v. District of Columbia (D. C. 1943, 31 A. 2d 652).

PUBLIC PLACE

A public vehicle, such as a taxicab, plying its business on a public street, is a "public place" within this section making it unlawful for any person to use indecent or obscene words in any public place. Morris v. District of Columbia (D. C. 1943, 31 A. 2d 652).

§ 22–1108 [6: 295]. Playing games in streets.

It shall not be lawful for any person or persons to play the game of football, or any other game with a ball, in any of the streets, avenues, or alleys in the city of Washington; nor shall it be lawful for any person or persons to play the game of bandy, shindy, or any other game by which a ball, stone, or other substance is struck or propelled by any stick, cane, or other substance in any street, avenue, or alley in the city of Washington, under a penalty of not more than five dollars for each and every such offense. (July 29, 1892, 27 Stat. 325, ch. 320, § 17; Feb. 11, 1895, 28 Stat. 650, ch. 79.)

AMENDMENT

The word "Georgetown" was deleted by the act of 1895.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CIVIL LIABILITY OF PARENT

In absence of evidence that either of two minor boys had previously played with a football on sidewalk in violation of this section or that their conduct had been such that their parents, with closer supervision, would have been aware that boys were engaging in conduct which was unlawful or which might inflict injury upon others, parents of boys were not chargeable with liability for injuries sustained by pedestrian with whom one of the boys collided while attempting to catch football. Bateman v. Crim (D. C. Mun. App. 1943, 34 A. 2d 257).

§ 22–1109 [6: 289]. Throwing stones or other missiles forbidden.

It shall not be lawful for any person or persons within the District of Columbia to throw any stone or other missile in any street, avenue, alley, road, or highway, or open space, or public square, or inclosure, or to throw any stone or other missile from any place into any street, avenue, road, or highway, alley, open space, public square, or inclosure, under a penalty of not more than five dollars for every such offense. § 22–1111 [6: 318]. Penalty for allowing fierce and dangerous dogs to go at large.

If any owner or possessor of a fierce or dangerous dog shall permit the same to go at large, knowing said dog to be fierce or dangerous, to the danger or annoyance of the inhabitants, he shall upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars; and if such animal shall attack or bite any person, the owner or possessor thereof shall, on conviction, be punished by a fine not exceeding fifty dollars, and in addition to such punishment the court shall adjudge and order that such animal be forthwith delivered to the poundmaster, and said poundmaster is hereby authorized and directed to kill such animal so delivered to him.

If any owner or possessor of a female dog shall permit her to go at large in the District of Columbia while in heat he shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding twenty dollars. (June 19, 1878, 20 Stat. 174, ch. 323, § 9; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 547, ch. 1332.)

AMENDMENT

Act of 1878 read as follows: "If any owner or possessor of a fierce or dangerous dog permit the same to go at large in the District of Columbia, to the danger or annoyance of the inhabitants, he shall forfeit and pay, for the first offense, ten dollars; for the second, a sum not exceeding twenty dollars; and upon a third conviction for the same offense, the commissioners shall immediately cause the dog, upon account of which the condition takes place, to be slain and buried."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

KNOWLEDGE OF OWNER

Amendment of 1902 did not modify judicial interpretation of earlier act that owner was not liable for conduct of dog unless he had or was charged with knowledge of its vicious propensities. Bardwell v. Petty (52 App. D. C. 310, 286 Fed. 772).

§ 22–1112 [6: 292]. Indecent exposure.

(a) It shall not be lawful for any person or persons to make any obscene or indecent exposure of his or her person or their persons in any street, avenue, alley, road or highway, open space, public square, or other public place or inclosure, in the District of Columbia, or to make any such obscene or indecent exposure of person in any dwelling or other building or other place wherefrom the same may be seen in any street, avenue, alley, road or highway, open space, public square, or public or private building or inclosure, under penalty of imprisonment for not more than ninety days, or a fine of not more than $250, for each and every such offense.

§ 22–1115 [6: 120]. Interference with foreign diplomatic and consular offices, officers, and property.

It shall be unlawful to display any flag, banner, placard, or device designed or adapted to intimidate, coerce, or bring into public odium any foreign government, party, or organization, or any officer or officers thereof, or to bring into public disrepute political, social, or economic acts, views, or purposes of any foreign government, party, or organization, or to intimidate, coerce, harass, or bring into public disrepute any officer or officers or diplomatic or consular representatives of any foreign government, or to interfere with the free and safe pursuit of the duties of any diplomatic or consular representatives of any foreign government, within five hundred feet of any building or premises within the District of Columbia used or occupied by any foreign government or its representative or representatives as an embassy, legation, consulate, or for other official purposes, except by, and in accordance with, a permit issued by the superintendent of police of the said District; or to congregate within five hundred feet of any such building or premises, and refuse to disperse after having been ordered so to do by the police authorities of the said District. (Feb. 15, 1938, 52 Stat. 30, ch. 29, § 1.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CONSTITUTIONALITY

Congress, in executing power to define and punish offenses against foreign nations, was authorized to prohibit the display, within 500 feet of an embassy, legation, or consulate in District of Columbia, of any flag, banner, placard, or device designed to bring any foreign government into public odium, or to harass any diplomatic or consular representatives. Frend v. U. S., 1938 (100 F. 2d 691, 69 App. D. C. 281, certiorari denied 59 S. Ct. 488, 306 U. S. 640, 83 L. Ed. 1040).

The power of Congress to define and punish offenses against law of nations and to exercise police power of a state in District of Columbia authorized it, in seeking to protect foreign embassies from disturbances, to determine how and to whom it would distribute authority to make detailed regulations, and to delegate that power to superintendent of police of District. Id.

This section did not violate due process clause of Constitution. Id.

This section did not constitute an invalid delegation of authority to superintendent of police to grant permit without establishment of any standard or guide to govern granting of permit. Id.

This section did not violate constitutional provision relating to free speech and free assemblage since no restriction was placed upon speech or assembly except to extent that they might constitute offensive public demonstrations immediately adjacent to buildings used for official purposes by foreign government. Id.

OFFENSES

Where defendants were part of a congregation of people who paraded in streets in front of Austrian or German embassy with banners or placards pursuant to plan to bring German government into contempt, defendants, under provisions of local law making it an offense to aid and abet in violation of the law, were guilty of violation of this section, regardless of whether each of defendants was then displaying one of placards. Frend v. U. S., 1938 (100 F. 2d 691, 69 App. D. C. 281, certiorari denied 59 S. Ct. 488, 306 U. S. 640, 83 L. Ed. 1040).

§ 22–1116 [6: 121]. Penalties for interference with foreign diplomatic and consular offices, officers, and property.

The police court of the District of Columbia shall have jurisdiction of offenses committed in violation of sections 22–1115, 22–1116; and any person convicted of violating any of the provisions of said section shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $100 or by imprisonment not exceeding sixty days, or both: Provided, however, That nothing contained in said section shall be construed to prohibit picketing, as a result of bona fide labor disputes regarding the alteration, repair, or construction of either buildings or premises occupied, for business purposes, wholly or in part, by representatives of foreign governments. (Feb. 15, 1938, 52 Stat. 30, ch. 29, § 2.)

§ 22–1117 [6: 290]. Flying kites, balloons, or parachutes forbidden.

It shall not be lawful for any person or persons to set up or fly any kite, or set up or fly any fire balloon or parachute in or upon or over any street, avenue, alley, open space, public enclosure, or square within the limits of the city of Washington, under a penalty of not more than ten dollars for each and every such offense. (July 29, 1892, 27 Stat. 322, ch. 320, § 4; Feb. 11, 1895, 28 Stat. 650, ch. 79.)

§ 22–1119 [6: 299]. False alarm of fire—Prosecution.

It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to wilfully or knowingly give a false alarm of fire within the District of Columbia, and any person or persons violating the provisions of this section shall, upon conviction, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars or by imprisonment for not more than six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment. Prosecutions for violation of the provisions of this section shall be on information filed in the police court by the corporation counsel of the District of Columbia or by any of his assistants. (June 8, 1906, 34 Stat. 220, ch. 3055.)

§ 22–1120 [6: 301]. Sale of tobacco to minors under 16 years of age.

No person shall sell, give, or furnish any cigar, cigarette, or tobacco in any of its forms to any minor under sixteen years of age; and for each and every violation of this section the offender shall, on conviction, be fined not less than two dollars nor more than ten dollars or be imprisoned for not less than five days nor more than twenty days. (Feb. 7, 1891, 26 Stat. 736, ch. 117.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

REVERSAL

Where a majority of the court did not agree on a specific ground for reversing judgment, conviction of storekeeper for selling cigarettes to minor under 16 years of age was reversed. Campbell v. District of Columbia (D. C. 1943, 32 A. 2d 394).

Chapter 12.—EMBEZZLEMENT

Sec.

22–1201 Embezzlement of property of District of Columbia.
22–1202. Embezzlement by agent, attorney, clerk, servant, or agent of a corporation.
22–1203. Embezzlement of note not delivered.
22–1204. Receiving embezzled property.
22–1205. Embezzlement by carriers and innkeepers.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

AGENCY

An agent who converts funds delivered to him on the false representation that they are needed in the principal's business is guilty of embezzlement. Woodward v. United States (38 App. D. C. 323).

"It is immaterial whether he receives possession of the property from a third person or from his master; for in either case the property is under his care, and if he converts it he is guilty of embezzlement." Henry v. United States (50 App. D. C. 366, 273 Fed. 330, cert. den. 257 U. S. 640, 66 L. Ed. 411, 42 Sup. Ct. 51).

Preexisting agency was not necessary. "If the agency came into existence contemporaneously with the delivery of the certificates, that would be enough." Henry v. United States (50 App. D. C. 366, 273 Fed. 330, cert. den. 257 U. S. 640, 66 L. Ed. 411, 42 Sup. Ct. 51).

ATTORNEY

Assignment of claim to an attorney for the purpose of collection, and to cover his fee for collection does not create the relation of debtor and creditor, so as to defeat a charge of embezzlement. Patterson v. United States (39 App. D. C. 84, cert. den. 226 U. S. 609, 57 L. Ed. 380, 33 Sup. Ct. 114).

BROKER

Broker who converts stock certificates delivered to him for sale is guilty of embezzlement. Henry v. United States (50 App. D. C. 366, 273 Fed. 330), cert. den. 257 U. S. 640, 66 L. Ed. 411, 42 Sup. Ct. 51).

CLASSES OF ACTS

This section "describes two classes of acts, either one of which constitutes embezzlement: The first being the wrongful conversion to his own use, by the accused, of property which has come into his possession by virtue of his employment, and the second being the fraudulent taking, making way with, or secreting with intent to convert, such property to his own use." Gassenheimer v. United States (26 App. D. C. 432).

Offense of embezzlement is single, which the statute says may be committed by either of two methods or ways, and count which charges that the embezzlement was committed by means of both methods is not bad for duplicity. Proof of either means in the commission of the offense will sustain a conviction. O'Brien v. United States (27 App. D. C. 263).

DEFINITION

"Generally speaking, it (embezzlement) may be defined as the fraudulent conversion of another's property by one to whom it has been intrusted, with the intent of depriving the owner thereof." Ambrose v. United States (45 App. D. C. 112), citing Masters v. United States (42 App. D. C. 350), Fulton v. United States (45 App. D. C. 27).

DEMAND AS NECESSARY

In embezzlement prosecution, the test as to necessity for demand is not whether the funds were acquired voluntarily, but rather, whether there is either a fixed time for accounting, at which time accused defaulted, or some other convincing proof to uphold the charge of wrongful conversion. Dobbins v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 157 F. 2d 257, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 99, 329 U. S. 734, 91 L. Ed. 634).

Where funds are voluntarily turned over to accused, a demand and refusal to pay over may be strong evidence going to make out crime of embezzlement, but such a showing is not fundamentally necessary where there is other convincing proof to support conviction for embezzlement. Dobbins v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 157 F. 2d 257, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 99, 329 U. S. 734, 91 L. Ed 634).

DIRECTED VERDICT

Where indictment sufficiently charged embezzlement and opening statement on behalf of Government set out in considerable detail nature of evidence on which prosecution would rely, prosecutor's failure to state that Government would prove a "wrongful conversion" or "fraudulent taking" did not entitle defendant to a directed verdict at close of Government's opening statement. Dobbins v.

U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 157 F. 2d 257, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 99, 329 U. S. 734, 91 L. Ed. 634).

Election of Offenses

Where indictment charged embezzlement, false pretense, and larceny after trust, any confusion which might have existed as a result of the prosecution being allowed to put in its case before making an election was dispelled by election at end of Government's case and by instructions to jury. Dobbins v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 157 F. 2d 257, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 99, 329 U. S. 734, 91 L. Ed. 634).

Where indictment charged embezzlement, false pretense, and larceny after trust, defendant's motion that Government be required to elect to place its case on one of the three crimes charged before putting in evidence was addressed to discretion of trial court and its denial of motion was not an abuse of discretion. Dobbins v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 157 F. 2d 257, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 99, 329 U. S. 734, 91 L. Ed. 634).

Evidence

Defendant's reputation for honesty and integrity is admissible. Masters v. United States (42 App. D. C. 350).

Evidence by defendant of his financial standing is incompetent. Masters v. United States (42 App. D. C. 350).

It is competent for the government to prove the financial condition of the guardian at or immediately prior to an alleged offense, but evidence of other similar offenses is inadmissible unless there is some connection between the acts shown and one which accused is charged. Ambrose v. United States (45 App. D. C. 112).

The fact that defendant hypothecated stock and received $4,000 therefor is not proof that the stock was worth more than $35. Henry v. United States (49 App. D. C. 207, 263 Fed. 459).

Actual value of stock may be proved by the testimony of persons familiar with the affairs of the company, its assets, and the dividend-earning capacity of the stock, and by individual sales of stock at or near the date when the conversion occurred. Actual value thus established furnishes a proper basis upon which the jury may make a finding. Henry v. United States (49 App. D. C. 207, 263 Fed. 459).

"Evidence of an intent at the time of the conversion to restore the embezzled money is not admissible. Henry v. United States (50 App. D. C. 366, 273 Fed. 330, cert. den. 257 U. S. 640, 66 L. Ed. 411, 42 Sup. Ct. 51).

In prosecution for embezzlement, evidence that unpaid bills were found in defendant's possession 38 days after alleged commission of offense was admissible, and its weight regarding defendant's financial condition at time of the offense was for jury. Lee v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 40 A. 2d 250).

False Pretenses

Indictment charging that accused had procured a check from woman to invest money with him upon false representation that he had contract with third party, and when such relationship was that of borrower and lender and not principal and agent it sufficiently charged the crime of obtaining value by false pretenses and not embezzlement. Davis v. United States (37 App. D. C. 126).

Financial Condition

In embezzlement prosecution, the prosecution may show defendant's straitened financial condition only at or immediately prior to the commission of the offense. Lee v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 40 A. 2d 250).

Admission of testimony regarding defendant's financial condition reasonably related to dates charged in embezzlement indictment was not error. Dobbins v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 157 F. 2d 257, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 99, 329 U. S. 734, 91 L. Ed. 634).

Forgery

An employee, who, without authority, indorses his employer's name on a check payable to the latter's order, and cashes it, is guilty of forgery and not embezzlement. Dowling v. United States (41 App. D. C. 11).

When defendant acting as bookkeeper, salesman, and collector and authorized to indorse the name of the company on the checks, he is guilty of forgery and not embezzlement when he indorsed his own name and appropriated the money. Yeager v. United States (59 App. D. C. 11, 32 Fed. (2d) 402).

Indictment

It is not necessary to allege the "particular way or means by which the conversion was effected." Gassenheimer v. United States (26 App. D. C. 432).

A general verdict of guilty on an indictment charging embezzlement and false pretenses will be set aside as inconsistent. Davis v. United States (37 App. D. C. 126)

In an indictment for wrongful conversion, it is not necessary to allege an intent to defraud. Patterson v. United States (39 App. D. C. 84, cert. den. 226 U. S. 609. 57 L. Ed. 380, 33 Sup. Ct. 114), citing Gassenheimer v. United States (26 App. D. C. 432), O'Brien v. United States (27 App. D. C. 263)

"The stealing or conversion of property belonging to different persons at the same time and place constitutes but a single offense and should be prosecuted as such." Henry v. United States (49 App. D. C. 207, 263 Fed. 459)

Under this section which describes two classes of acts, either one of which constitutes embezzlement, an indictment charging the commission of both of such acts is not bad for duplicity, and a conviction is warranted upon proof of the commission of either of the acts. Turner v. United States (57 App. D. C. 39, 16 Fed. (2d) 535)

Intent

To wrongfully convert money is an act in its nature evil, and the statement of the act itself imports the evil intent. O'Brien v. United States (27 App. D. C. 263)

An agent converting funds of his principal delivered to him in the District of Columbia cannot be convicted of embezzlement if he formed the intent to convert outside of the District. Woodward v. United States (38 App. D. C. 323)

"The principle is that where a statute prohibits an act under certain circumstances, and a person commits the act not under a mistake of fact, a criminal intention is conclusively presumed." Patterson v. United States (39 App. D. C. 84, cert. den. 226 U. S. 609, 57 L. Ed. 380, 33 Sup. Ct. 114). Compare Masters v. United States (42 App. D. C. 350).

"Before there can be a conversion of the property of another there must be an intent on the part of the doer of the act to convert the property to his own use without the consent of the owner. But a wrongful conversion implies a conversion by the doer of the act without color of right, and with the evil intent of converting the property to his own use. The intent to wrongfully convert the property of another implies more than the intent to merely convert. It implies a mind at fault, an evil mind, capable of intentionally committing the offense here defined by the statute." Fulton v. United States (45 App. D. C. 27), quoting from Masters v. United States (42 App. D. C. 350)

Larceny

Principal difference between larceny and embezzlement lies in the manner in which possession of the property is acquired. In larceny there is a trespass, accompanied by an intent to steal, while in embezzlement there is a fraudulent conversion of property the possession of which was lawfully acquired. In either case, except under special statutes, evil intent must be shown. Ambrose v. United States (45 App. D. C. 112).

To sustain a conviction of grand larceny "it must be alleged and proved that the value of the property embezzled is over $35.00." Henry v. United States (49 App. D. C. 207, 263 Fed. 459).

Bookkeeper of hotel is mere employee and when he absconded with envelopes it constituted larceny, and not embezzlement. Chanock v. United States (50 App. D. C. 54, 267 Fed. 612, 11 A. L. R. 799).

Promissory Note

A promissory note may be the subject of embezzlement. Reeves v. United States (56 App. D. C., 376, 15 Fed. (2d) 734).

RAILROAD CONDUCTOR

A railroad conductor who collects and subsequently sells tickets is guilty of embezzlement. Gassenheimer v. United States (26 App. D. C. 432).

REPAYMENT

Where there has been wrongful conversion, repayment will not serve to clear defendant of charge of embezzlement Dobbins v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 157 F. 2d 257, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 99, 329 U. S. 734, 91 L. Ed. 634).

SUFFICIENCY OF EVIDENCE

Evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction for embezzlement. Dobbins v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 157 F. 2d 257, certorari denied 67 S. Ct. 99, 329 U. S. 734, 91 L. Ed. 634).

"UNDER HIS CARE"

Phrase "under his care" will cover property merely in his custody, and therefore, under such a statute, it is immaterial whether he receives possession of the property from a third person or from his master; for in either case the property is under his care and if he converts it he is guilty of embezzlement. Henry v. United States (50 App. D. C. 366, 273 Fed. 330).

WRONGFUL CONVERSION

Prosecution must demonstrate beyond reasonable doubt that there was a wrongful conversion by defendant to establish crime of embezzlement, and a mere conversion will not suffice. Dobbins v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 157 F. 2d 257, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 99, 329 U. S. 734, 91 L. Ed. 634).

§ 22–1203 [6: 77]. Embezzlement of note not delivered.

Every embezzlement of any evidence of debt negotiable by delivery only, actually executed by the master or employer of any such clerk, attorney, agent, officer, or servant, but not delivered or issued as a valid instrument, shall be deemed an offense within the meaning of section 22–1202. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1325, ch. 854, § 835.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

PROPERTY EMBEZZLED

Quaere: Whether this section embraces "the receipt of property that may have been embezzled in another jurisdiction, as embezzlement is defined in our Code, or is limited to that which may have been embezzled in the District of Columbia." Gassenheimer v. United States (26 App. D. C. 432).

SUFFICIENCY OF PROOF

"To convict the defendant, it was necessary to prove, first, that the property had been embezzled by Barnes in the District of Columbia * * * and second, that the defendant had bought, or in any way received, it from Barnes, 'knowing the same to have been embezzled, etc.,' as provided in section 836" (this section). Gassenheimer v. United States (26 App. D. C. 432).

§ 22–1205 [6: 79]. Embezzlement by carriers and innkeepers.

Any person intrusted with anything of value, to be carried for hire, or being an innkeeper and intrusted by his guest with anything of value for safe-keeping, who fraudulently converts the same to his own use, shall be deemed guilty of embezzlement and punished as provided in section 22–1202. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1325, ch. 854, § 837.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

"INNKEEPER"

Bookkeeper and clerk in hotel is not an "innkeeper" as defined in this section. Chanock v. United States (50 App. D. C. 54, 267 Fed. 612, 11 A. L. R. 799).

"INNKEEPER AND GUEST"

One who is merely a customer at a bar, restaurant, barbershop, or newsstand operated by hotel does not thereby establish relationship of "innkeeper and guest". Wallace v. Shoreham Hotel Corp. (D. C. Mun. App. 1946, 49 A. 2d 81).

§ 22–1206 [6: 80]. Embezzlement by warehouseman, factor, storage, forwarding, or commission merchant.

Any warehouseman, factor, storage, forwarding, or commission merchant, or his clerk, agent, or employee, who, with intent to defraud the owner thereof, sells, disposes of, or applies or converts to his own use any property intrusted or consigned to him, or the proceeds or profits of any sale of such property, shall be deemed guilty of embezzlement, and shall suffer imprisonment for not more than ten years: Provided, however, That where the thing, evidence of debt, property, proceeds or profits, be of the value of not more than thirty-five dollars the punishment shall be by imprisonment for not more than one year or a fine of not more than five hundred dollars, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1325, ch. 854, § 838; Mar. 3, 1913, 37 Stat. 727, ch. 107, § 851a.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

"FACTOR OR COMMISSION MERCHANT"

One who receives and takes possession of produce as the agent of the owner to sell for them is a factor or commission merchant within the meaning of this section. And this is so, although defendant had no store and was engaged in the brokerage business. Green v. United States (25 App. D. C. 549).

§ 22–1207 [6: 99]. Punishment for violations of sections 22–1202 to 22–1206.

Whoever shall be guilty of any offense defined in sections 22–1202 to 22–1206, shall, where the thing, evidence of debt, property, proceeds, or profits be of the value of less than fifty dollars, be punished by imprisonment for not more than one year or a fine of not more than $200 or both. (Mar. 3, 1913, 37 Stat. 727, ch. 107; Aug. 12, 1937, 50 Stat. 629, ch. 599.)

AMENDMENT

The act of 1937 amended the section as enacted by the act of 1913 by striking it out and inserting in lieu thereof the above.

§ 22–1208 [6: 81]. Conversion by commission merchant, consignee, person selling goods on commission—Auctioneers.

If any factor, commission merchant, consignee, or any person selling goods on commission, or the agent, clerk, or servant of such person, shall convert to his own use in the District of Columbia any provisions, fruits, flour, meat, butter, cheese, or any other goods, merchandise, or property, or the proceeds of the same, and shall fail to pay over the avails or proceeds, less his proper charges, within five days after receiving the money or its equivalent from the purchaser or purchasers of said goods or produce, and after demand made therefor by the person entitled to receive the same, or his or her duly-authorized agent, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon information and conviction in the police court of the District of Columbia shall be fined not more than one thousand dollars or be imprisoned not exceeding six months, or both, in the discretion of the court. The provisions of this section shall be applicable to all licensed auctioneers, their agents and employees. (Mar. 21, 1892, 27 Stat. 10, ch. 19; July 1, 1902, 32 Stat. 623, ch. 1352, § 7, par. 8.)

AMENDMENT

The act of 1902 provided that the act of 1892 should hereafter be applicable to licensed auctioneers, their agents and employees.

(Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1326, ch. 854, § 841.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

"AT LABOR"

A sentence under this section containing the words "at labor" will be modified by striking out such words as surplusage. Fields v. United States (27 App. D. C. 433, cert. den. 205 U. S. 292, 51 L. Ed. 807, 27 Sup. Ct. 543).

COMMINGLING

Mere commingling of trust funds with personal funds "affords no sufficient basis for a presumption of evil intent." Ambrose v. United States (45 App. D. C. 112).

EVIDENCE

In proving such intent "it is competent for the government to prove the financial condition of the accused at or immediately prior to the alleged offense." Ambrose v. United States (45 App. D. C. 112).

Evidence of similar offenses is admissible to show a course of conduct or a general scheme, but there must be some possible connection between the acts shown and the one on account of which the defendant is being tried. Ambrose v. United States (45 App. D. C. 112).

INDICTMENT

Indictment is sufficient which charges with precision and certainty that the defendant was appointed a receiver by order of court; that by virtue of said appointment he came into possession of a certain sum of money, alleged to be the property of the association and that on a certain date, he unlawfully and fraudulently converted and appropriated the same to his own use, and did then and there embezzle the same. Fields v. United States (27 App. D. C. 433, cert. den. 205 U. S. 292, 51 L. Ed. 807, 27 Sup. Ct. 543).

INTENT TO DEFRAUD

"Intent to defraud is an essential element of the crime denounced by section 841 (this section)." Ambrose v. United States (45 App. D. C. 112).

RECEIVER APPOINTED PRIOR TO EFFECTIVE DATE

This section "comprehends property that may have passed into the defendant's possession as receiver before the time that it went into effect, when embezzled thereafter." Fields v. United States (27 App. D. C. 433, cert. den. 205 U. S. 292, 51 L. Ed. 807, 27 Sup. Ct. 543).

§ 22–1211 [6: 84]. Taking property without right.

The taking and carrying away of the property of another in the District of Columbia without right to do so shall be a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine not to exceed one hundred dollars, or imprisonment for a term not to exceed six months, or both. (Apr. 21, 1906, 34 Stat. 127, ch. 1647.)

Chapter 13.—FALSE PRETENSES—FALSE PERSONATION

Sec.

22–1301. False pretenses.
22–1302. Recordation of deed, contract, or conveyance with intent to extort money.
22–1303. False personation before court, officers, notaries.
22–1304. Falsely impersonating public officer or minister.
22–1305. False personation of inspector of departments of District of Columbia.
22–1306. False personation of police officer.
22–1307. Wearing or using insignia of certain organizations.
22–1308. False certificate of acknowledgment.

§ 22–1301 [6: 85]. False pretenses.

Whoever, by any false pretense, with intent to defraud, obtains from any person anything of value, or procures the execution and delivery of any instrument of writing or conveyance of real or personal property, or the signature of any person, as maker, indorser, or guarantor, to or upon any bond, bill, receipt, promissory note, draft, or check, or any other evidence of indebtedness, and whoever fraudulently sells, barters, or disposes of any bond, bill, receipt, promissory note, draft, or check, or other evidence of indebtedness, for value, knowing the same to be worthless, or knowing the signature of the maker, indorser, or guarantor thereof to have been obtained by any false pretense, shall, if the value of the property or the sum or value of the money or property so obtained, procured, sold, bartered, or disposed of is $50 or upward, be imprisoned not less than one year nor more than three years; or, if less than that sum, shall be fined not more than $200 or imprisoned for not more than one year, or both. Any person who obtains any lodging, food, or accommodation at an inn, boarding-house, or lodging-house, without paying therefor, with intent to defraud the proprietor or manager thereof, or who obtains credit at such an inn, boarding-house, or lodging-house by the use of any false pretense, or who, after obtaining credit or accommodation at such an inn, boarding-house, or lodging-house, absconds or surreptitiously removes his baggage therefrom without paying for his food, accommodation, or lodging, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof in the police court of the District of Columbia be fined not more than $100 or imprisoned not more than six months, or both, in the discretion of said court. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1326, ch. 854, § 842; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 535, ch. 1329; Aug. 12, 1937, 50 Stat. 628, ch. 599.)

AMENDMENTS

Act of 1902 amended act of 1901 by changing penalty from six months to one year.

Act of 1937 is re-enactment with amendatory changes as given above.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

IN GENERAL

"The elements of the offense are a false pretense or false representation by the defendant or some one acting for and instigated by him, knowledge by the defendant as to the falsity, reliance on the pretense or representation by the person defrauded, intent to defraud, and an actual defrauding." Robinson v. United States (42 App. D. C. 186).

AMENDMENT

This section was intended to repeal those provisions of existing acts requiring the imposition of a definite, as distinguished from an indeterminate, sentence, and possibly also to effect pro tanto repeal of the minimum penalty provisions of such existing acts as themselves stipulate a minimum penalty in excess of one-fifth of a stipulated maximum penalty. Anderson v. Rives (66 App. D. C. 174, 85 Fed. (2d) 673).

"ANYTHING OF VALUE"

A promissory note is a thing of value within the meaning of the statute. It is not necessary that false pretense should be the sole inducement for parting with the property; it is sufficient "if it had a preponderating influence sufficient to turn the scale, although other considerations operated upon the mind of the party." Partridge v. United States (39 App. D. C. 571, Ann. Cas. 1917D, 622).

Cited to the point that this section made the obtaining of anything of value by means of false pretenses a crime. Biddle v. United States ((C. C. A. 9), 156 Fed. 759).

CRIME AGAINST UNITED STATES

False pretense is a crime against the United States, and persons conspiring to commit it may be punished under U. S. R. S. § 5440 (U. S. C., title 18, § 88). Geist v. United States (26 App. D. C. 594).

ELECTION OF OFFENSES

Where indictment charged embezzlement, false pretense, and larceny after trust, any confusion which might have existed as a result of the prosecution being allowed to put in its case before making an election was dispelled by election at end of Government's case and by instructions to jury. Dobbins v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 157 F. 2d 257, certorari denied 67 S. Ct. 99, 329 U. S. 734, 91 L. Ed. 634).

Where indictment charged embezzlement, false pretense, and larceny after trust, defendant's motion that Government be required to elect to place its case on one of the three crimes charged before putting in evidence was addressed to discretion of trial court and its denial of motion was not an abuse of discretion. Dobbins v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 157 F. 2d 257, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 99, 329 U. S. 734, 91 L. Ed. 634).

EMBEZZLEMENT

"Verdict under embezzlement counts negatives one essential fact in the crime of procuring money by false pretenses, namely, the divesting of the title originally." Davis v. United States (37 App. D. C. 126).

EVIDENCE

Where the question is one of guilty knowledge, or fraudulent intent "it has always been deemed allowable, as well in criminal as in civil cases, to introduce evidence of other acts and doings of the party, of a kindred character, in order to illustrate or establish his intent or motive in the particular act directly in judgment." Partridge v. United States (39 App. D. C. 571, Ann. Cas. 1917D, 622).

"It is for the jury to determine whether each of those elements has been established by the evidence, and the court is not authorized to invade the province of the jury by telling them that if certain facts are proved the intent to defraud is made out." Robinson v. United States (42 App. D. C. 186).

In prosecution for false pretenses involving sales to two complaining witnesses by means of fraudulent representation of warehouse receipts and for embezzlement involving conversion by defendant of money which one complaining witness turned over to defendant in connection with such sales, error in permitting introduction of testimony of another witness that about two years before acts charged defendant had sold witness similar warehouse receipts and had made to her similar representations was not cured by instruction directing jury to disregard such testimony. Boyer v. U. S., 1942 (132 F. 2d 12, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 397).

FACT REPRESENTED FALSELY

In order to constitute the crime of obtaining money under false pretenses, the alleged false representation must be of some past or existing fact. Biddle v. United States ((C. C. A. 9), 156 Fed. 759).

INDICTMENT

Abusive words conveying the meaning that plaintiff had, by trick or artifice, obtained entrance into a theater, do not charge the indictable offense of false pretenses. Friedlander v. Rapley (38 App. D. C. 208).

An indictment charging defendant in one count with forgery and in second count with uttering same forged letter was not demurrable on ground that it was "repugnant". U. S. v. Briggs (D. C., D. C. 1944, 54 F. Supp. 731).

INTENT TO DEFRAUD

Jury may impute an intent to defraud, where the evidence shows that one has obtained something of value from another by means of false representations, knowingly made with intent to induce the action taken by the other, by introducing evidence tending to show that he believed the other was receiving something of substantial value. Robinson v. United States (42 App. D. C. 186).

When indictment plainly describes numerous false representations of present and past facts, and it charges that their falsity was known to defendant, that they were made with the intention of defrauding and that one believed them and acted upon them by paying money, it adequately charged a public offense. Randle v. United States (72 App. D. C. 368, 113 Fed. (2d) 945).

MERE OPINION OR EXPECTATION

"False pretense or representation * * * must relate to some subsisting fact, past or present. A statement as to the future by way of opinion or expectation as to what can be accomplished does not constitute false pretense." Engle v. United States (48 App. D. C. 466).

ON APPEAL

Conviction of obtaining money by false pretenses affirmed. Moffatt v. United States (60 App. D. C. 35, 46 Fed. (2d) 616); Howe v. United States (61 App. D. C. 8, 56 Fed. (2d) 305).

PRESENT OR PAST FACTS

That false representations of present or past facts become effective only by being coupled with a false promise does not take a case out of the operation of the statute. Randle v. United States (72 App. D. C. 368, 113 Fed. (2d) 945).

In indictment for obtaining money by false pretenses, the misrepresentations must relate to present or past facts, as distinguished from something to take place in the future. Randle v. United States (72 App. D. C. 368, 113 Fed. (2d) 945).

A false pretense, under this section, must relate to a past event or existing fact, and any representation with regard to a future transaction is excluded. Chaplin v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 157 F. 2d 697).

A liquor dealer who borrowed money on representations that he would use it to purchase liquor tax stamps, and that he would repay the money, but who used only a small portion to purchase stamps and failed to return the money so advanced, was not guilty under this section of obtaining money by "false pretenses", since the representations did not relate to a present or past existing fact. Chaplin v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 157 F. 2d 697).

PREVIOUS CONVICTIONS

In prosecution for obtaining money by false pretenses, where government brought out on cross-examination that defendant had been previously convicted of bad check charges and of embezzlement, and defendant was permitted to explain all bad check convictions, refusal to permit defendant to explain the conviction of embezzlement, although technically wrong, did not justify a reversal. U. S. v. Boyer (App. D. C. 1945, 150 F. 2d 595, 80 U. S. App. D. C. 202).

RELIANCE ON PRETENSE

Statement by defendant that prosecuting witness should not rely on representations but should satisfy himself by observation and inquiry, is not sufficient to relieve of criminal liability for false representation theretofore made unless it appears that prosecuting witness accepted withdrawal of representations and assumed to act entirely on his own judgment. Partridge v. United States (39 App. D. C. 571, Ann. Cas. 1917D, 622).

REPRESENTATION—TO WHOM MADE

False representation must be made to the person defrauded. Foster v. Goldsoll (48 App. D. C. 505).

SCHEMES TO DEFRAUD

In prosecution for obtaining money under false pretenses, when evidence plainly shows a planned fraud, there was no error in the use of the phrase "schemes to defraud." Randle v. United States (72 App. D. C. 368, 113 Fed. (2d) 945).

While the word scheme does not itself occur in the statute, the language of the statute is broad enough to cover a scheme to defraud. Randle v. United States (72 App. D. C. 368, 113 Fed. (2d) 945).

WORTHLESS CHECK

It is no defense in fraudulent check cases that defendant subsequently reimbursed the prosecuting witness, nor that defendant at time of transaction intended to repay the money. Clagett v. United States (53 App. D. C. 134, 289 Fed. 532).

It is a violation of the statute and no defense for the defendant to obtain money from the prosecuting witness upon the faith of the worthless check, whether the check was to serve as security for a concurrent loan or was to be presented to the bank for payment in ordinary course. Clagett v. United States (53 App. D. C. 134, 289 Fed. 532).

§ 22–1302 [6: 89]. Recordation of deed, contract, or conveyance with intent to extort money.

Whoever having no title or color of title to the land affected shall maliciously cause to be recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds of the District of Columbia any deed, contract, or other instrument purporting to convey or to relate to any land in said District with intent to extort money or anything of value from any person owning such land, or having any interest therein, shall be fined not less than five hundred dollars or imprisoned not more than two years, or both. (June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 535, ch. 1329, § 845a.)

§ 22–1303 [6: 132]. False personation before court, officers, notaries.

Whoever falsely personates another person before any court of record or judge thereof, or clerk of court, or any officer in the District authorized to administer oaths or take the acknowledgment of deeds or other instruments or to grant marriage licenses, with intent to defraud, shall be imprisoned for not less than one year nor more than five years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1330, ch. 854, § 859; Feb. 17, 1909, 35 Stat. 623, ch. 134; Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. 1310, ch. 125, § 2.)

AMENDMENTS

Under act of 1909, the court known as "justice of the peace" was changed to "the municipal court of the District of Columbia."

Act of 1921 authorized the municipal court as court of record.

§ 22–1304 [6: 133]. Falsely impersonating public officer or minister.

Whoever falsely represents himself to be a judge of the municipal court, notary public, police officer, or other public officer, or a minister qualified to celebrate marriage, and attempts to perform the duty or exercise the authority pertaining to any such office or character, or having been duly appointed to any of such offices shall knowingly attempt to act as any such officers after his appointment or commission has expired or he has been dismissed from such office, shall suffer imprisonment in the penitentiary for not less than one year nor more than three years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1330, ch. 854, § 860; Feb. 17, 1909, 35 Stat. 623, ch. 134.)

AMENDMENT

The act of 1909 changed "justice of the peace" to "judge of the municipal court."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

BURDEN OF PROOF

In prosecution for falsely impersonating a police officer of the United States, burden is upon government to prove crime charged beyond a reasonable doubt though where defendant is charged with falsely pretending to be an officer and fails to produce evidence showing he was such officer, presumption arises that evidence if produced would have been unfavorable to defendant. Taylor v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1948, 167 F. 2d 752).

EVIDENCE

In prosecution for falsely impersonating a police officer of the United States, while it must in some manner appear that accused is not a federal officer, proposition is fairly inferable from character of proof much less direct and formal than might be required to affirmatively establish official capacity, and any facts which to average mind would fairly tend to indicate that accused was not a federal officer would be sufficient to warrant the jury in reaching such conclusion. Taylor v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1948, 167 F. 2d 752).

Evidence that accused was not a federal officer was sufficient to sustain conviction for false impersonation of a police officer of the United States notwithstanding government failed to offer direct proof that defendant was not such officer by reference to official police rolls. Taylor v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1948, 167 F. 2d 752).

PROTECTION OF CITIZENRY

This section penalizing false representation of a person as police officer of District of Columbia is a protection of the citizenry against exercise of excess jurisdiction by an impostor as well as impersonation in the genuine jurisdiction which might have been exercised by a legitimate officer. Taylor v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1948, 167 F. 2d 752).

VARIANCE

In prosecution for falsely pretending to be a member of District of Columbia Metropolitan Police, fact that scene of impersonation was in park subject to jurisdiction of United States Park Police did not establish a fatal variance under §§ 4–120, 4–201, granting Metropolitan Police and Park Police concurrent jurisdiction over United States Parks within District of Columbia. Taylor v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1948, 167 F. 2d 752).

§ 22–1305 [6: 302]. False personation of inspector of departments of District of Columbia.

It shall be unlawful for any person in the District of Columbia to falsely represent himself or herself as being an inspector of the health department of said District, or an inspector of any department of the District government; and any person so offending shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction in the police court of said District shall be punished by a fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than fifty dollars for the first offense, and for each subsequent offense by a fine of not less than fifty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars, or imprisonment in the jail of the District not exceeding six months, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Mar. 2, 1897, 29 Stat. 619, ch. 364.)

§ 22–1306 [6: 303]. False personation of police officer.

It shall be a misdemeanor, punishable by imprisonment in the District jail or penitentiary not exceeding two years, or by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, for any person, not a member of the police force, to falsely represent himself as being such member, with a fraudulent design. (R. S., D. C., § 433.)

§ 22–1307 [6: 300]. Wearing or using insignia of certain organizations.

Whoever, in the District of Columbia, not being a member of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States, or the Grand Army of the Republic, of the Sons of Veterans, of the Woman's Relief Corps, of the Union Veteran's Union, of the Union Veteran Legion, of the United Spanish War Veterans, of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and not entitled under the rules of the order to wear the same, wilfully wears or uses the insignia, distinctive ribbon, or badge of membership, rosette, or button thereof, or who uses or wears the same to obtain aid or assistance thereby, shall be punished by a fine of not more than twenty dollars or by imprisonment for not more than thirty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment. (Mar. 15, 1906, 34 Stat. 62, ch. 949.)

§ 22–1308 [6: 88]. False certificate of acknowledgment.

Any officer authorized to take the proof or acknowledgment of an instrument which, by law, may be recorded, who wilfully certifies falsely that the instrument was acknowledged by any party thereto, or who wilfully certifies falsely as to any other material matter in such acknowledgment, shall be imprisoned for not less than one year nor more than ten years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1327, ch. 854, § 845.)

Chapter 14.—FORGERY—FRAUDS

Sec.
22–1401. Forgery.
22–1402. Forging or imitating brands or packaging of goods.
22–1403. Stealing, destroying, mutilating, secreting, or withholding will.
22–1404. Secreting or converting property, documents, or assets of decedent's estate.
22–1405. Taking away or concealing writings.
22–1406. Sale or concealment by conditional vendee, with intent to defraud.
22–1407. Fraud by operation of coin-controlled mechanism by use of slugs.
22–1408. Manufacture, sale, offer for sale, possession of slugs or device to operate coin-controlled mechanism.
22–1409. "Person" defined.
22–1410. Making, drawing, or uttering check, draft, or order with intent to defraud—Proof of intent—"Credit" defined.
22–1411. Fraudulent advertising.
22–1412. Prosecution under section 22–1411.
22–1413. Penalty under section 22–1411.
22–1414. Fraudulently tampering with jury box or contents—Collusion in drawing jurors.

§ 22–1401 [6: 86]. Forgery.

Whoever, with intent to defraud or injure another, falsely makes or alters any writing of a public or private nature, which might operate to the prejudice of another, or passes, utters, or publishes, or attempts to pass, utter, or publish as true and genuine, any paper so falsely made or altered, knowing the same to be false or forged, with the intent to defraud or prejudice the right of another, shall be imprisoned for not less than one year nor more than ten years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1326, ch. 854, § 843.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

AGENT

The use by an agent of the signature of his principal for an unauthorized purpose constitutes forgery. Yeager v. United States (59 App. D. C. 11, 32 Fed. (2d) 402).

ALTERATION

Question for the jury is not merely whether defendant honestly believed he had authority to alter notes, but whether he had reasonable grounds for so believing. Towles v. United States (19 App. D. C. 471).

COMMON LAW

Forgery, at common law, is the false making or materially altering with intent to defraud, of any writing which, if genuine, might apparently be of legal efficacy or the foundation of a legal liability. Milton v. United States (71 App. D. C. 394, 110 Fed. (2d) 556).

At common law, forgery and uttering were different substantive crimes. Reid v. Aderhold ((C. C. A. 5), 65 Fed. (2d) 110).

To same effect as first paragraph of original annotation, see U. S. v. Briggs (D. C., D. C. 1944, 54 F. Supp. 731).

ELEMENTS OF OFFENSE

To constitute "forgery" under this section, there must be a false making or other alteration of some instrument in writing, there must be fraudulent intent, and instrument must be apparently capable of effecting a fraud. U. S. v. Briggs (D. C., D. C. 1944, 54 F. Supp. 731).

EMBEZZLEMENT

Where one employed as bookkeeper, salesman, and collector of an electric company, with authority to indorse checks in the name of the company and deposit them in the bank, cashed the checks instead and appropriated the money to his own use, the offense of which he was guilty was forgery, and conviction for embezzlement must be reversed. Yeager v. United States (59 App. D. C. 11, 32 Fed. (2d) 402).

HABEAS CORPUS

Habeas corpus for release of one convicted of forgery. Reid v. Aderhold ((C. C. A. 5), 65 Fed. (2d) 110, cert. den. 290 U. S. 676, 78 L. Ed. 584, 54 Sup. Ct. 104).

INDICTMENT

"It matters not that at common law the charge of falsely making an instrument was held to include the offense of falsely altering it, since they are disjunctively named in the statute as distinct ways in which the crime of forging may be committed. Forgery is a statutory, not a common-law crime in this District, and the offense must be charged as defined in the statute, irrespective of common-law rules of pleading." Frisby v. United States (38 App. D. C. 22, 37 L. R. A. (N. S.) 96). See, however, Read v. United States (55 App. D. C. 43, 299 Fed. 918) wherein it is said, "The offense thus denounced is complete even though the instrument never is uttered. When it is uttered, another and distinct offense is committed, and a second uttering, of course, constitutes still another offense. In Frisby v. United States (38 App. D. C. 22, 37 L. R. A. (N. S.) 96) the question was not directly involved and the Burton case (202 U. S. 344, 50 L. Ed. 1057, 26 Sup. Ct. 688) was not brought to our attention."

"The statute defines two distinct criminal acts, either of which constitutes the crime of forgery. The making of a false instrument with intent to defraud is forgery. The uttering of a forged instrument with intent to defraud is forgery. But where the instrument is both forged and uttered by the same person, * * * there is only the single crime of forgery committed." Frisby v. United States (38 App. D. C. 22, 37 L. R. A. (N. S.) 96). See Frisby v. United States (35 App. D. C. 513). See also Simon v. United States (37 App. D. C. 280) holding that both acts may be charged in the indictment, or the pleader may elect to charge but one.

Indictment for uttering need not set forth the particular acts claimed to constitute such uttering. Fuller v. United States (53 App. D. C. 88, 288 Fed. 442).

Indictment charging defendant with possession and knowingly uttering and publishing a forged security, states a single offense. Price v. United States (53 App. D. C. 164, 289 Fed. 562).

Indictment need not allege the persons or corporations intended to be defrauded, but requires nothing more than a general intent to defraud. Read v. United States (55 App. D. C. 43, 299 Fed. 918).

An indictment charging defendant with having forged name of another individual to a letter and procuring of money for such letter from still another party with intent to defraud was sufficient to charge crimes of forgery and uttering, as against contention that instrument was not capable of effecting a fraud. U. S. v. Briggs (D. C., D. C. 1944, 54 F. Supp. 731).

An indictment charging defendant in one count with forgery and in second count with uttering same forged letter was not demurrable on ground that it was "repugnant". U. S. v. Briggs (D. C., D. C. 1944, 54 F. Supp. 731).

Counts in indictment charging defendant with uttering forged documents in interference proceeding in United States Patent Office "with intent to defraud and injure" were not required to name persons whom defendant intended to defraud and injure. Mas v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1945, 151 F. 2d 32, 80 U. S. App. D. C. 223, certiorari denied 66 S. Ct. 267).

INTENT

Elements of offense: "There must be a false making or other alteration of some instrument in writing; there must be a fraudulent intent; and the instrument must be apparently capable of effecting a fraud * * *. Intent in forgery will not be presumed from the mere making of a false instrument. It must be gathered from some affirmative act, or from the existence of circumstances from which criminal intent may be inferred." Dowling v. United States (41 App. D. C. 11), quoting from Frisby v. United States (38 App. D. C. 22, 37 L. R. A. (N. S.) 96). See § 22–1202.

It is not essential that "anyone shall be actually defrauded, or that the accused shall have the intent to defraud any particular person. All that is required in that respect is that there be an intent to defraud someone." Easterday v. United States (53 App. D. C. 387, 292 Fed. 664); Read v. United States (55 App. D. C. 43, 299 Fed. 918); Milton v. United States (71 App. D. C. 394, 110 Fed. (2d) 556).

INSTRUMENT

It is enough if the forged instrument be apparently sufficient to support a legal claim and thus to effect a fraud. Milton v. United States (71 App. D. C. 394, 110 Fed. (2d) 556).

§ 22–1402 [6: 298]. Forging or imitating brands or packaging of goods.

Whoever wilfully forges or counterfeits or makes use of any imitation calculated to deceive the public, though with colorable difference or deviation therefrom, of the private brand, wrapper, label, trademark, bottle, or package usually affixed or used by any person to or with the goods, wares, merchandise, preparation, or mixture of such person, with intent to pass off any work, goods, manufacture, compound, preparation, or mixture as the manufacture or production of such person which is not really such, shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars or imprisoned not more than one year, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1333, ch. 854, § 879.)

§ 22–1403 [6: 68]. Stealing, destroying, mutilating, secreting, or withholding will.

Whoever, during the life of a testator or after his death, shall, for a fraudulent purpose, take and carry away a will, codicil, or other testamentary instrument, or destroy, mutilate, or secrete the same, whether it relates to personal or real property, shall suffer imprisonment for not more than five years.

If any person in whose possession or custody a will or codicil shall be after the death of a testator or testatrix shall wilfully neglect to deliver the same to the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia, holding a special term as a probate court, or to the register of wills, or to some executor named in the will, for the space of three calendar months after the death of testator or testatrix shall be known to him, the person thus offending shall be punished by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1324, ch. 854, § 830; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 535, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The act of 1902 added the second paragraph.

TIME IN WHICH TO PROBATE

"While the statutes regulating the probate of wills provides no time within which probate shall be applied for, yet they contemplate that this shall be speedily done," citing 1901 Code, §§ 830, 1635a (this section and § 19–111), McGowan v. Elroy (28 App. D. C. 188).

§ 22–1404 [6: 69]. Secreting or converting property, documents, or assets of decedent's estate.

Whosoever wilfully and fraudulently makes away with, secretes, or converts to his own use any property, documents, or assets of any kind or nature belonging to the estate of a deceased person shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $2,000 or imprisonment for not more than two years, or both. (Apr. 19, 1920, 41 Stat. 567, ch. 153, § 830a.)

§ 22–1405 [6: 70]. Taking away or concealing writings.

Whoever, with intent to defraud or injure another person, shall take away or conceal any writing whereby the estate or right of such other person shall or may be defeated, injured, or altered shall suffer imprisonment for not more than seven years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1326, ch. 854, § 840.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

INDICTMENT

Averments of indictment were sufficient when they clearly set forth the defendant's relation to the building association; that certain books of record were required to be kept, and that six carefully described books of record were kept; and that the defendant, on a day named, "unlawfully, wilfully, and with an intent to defraud and injure the said association, and the said stockholders and members thereof, did take away and conceal said books hereinbefore in this indictment particularly described, said books then and there being the writing, records, and property of said association, stockholders, and members." Miller v. United States (41 App. D. C. 52, cert. den. .291 U. S. 755, 58 L. Ed. 468, 34 Sup. Ct. 323).

"WRITING"

The words "whereby the estate, etc.," do not modify the word "writing," but the section is to be read as though there were a comma after the latter word. Miller v. United States (41 App. D. C. 52, cert. den. 231 U. S. 755, 58 L. Ed. 468, 34 Sup. Ct. 323).

§ 22–1406 [6: 71]. Sale or concealment by conditional vendee, with intent to defraud.

Whoever, being in possession of personal property received upon a written and conditional contract of sale, with intent to defraud, sells, conveys, conceals, or aids in concealing the same, or removes the same from the District of Columbia without the consent of the vendor, before performance of the conditions precedent to acquiring the title thereto, shall be punished by a fine of not more than $100, or by imprisonment for not more than ninety days. (Apr. 28, 1904, 33 Stat. 554, ch. 1808, § 833a; May 27, 1921, 42 Stat. 9, ch. 13.)

AMENDMENT

The 1921 amendment inserted the word "not" in the last phrase.

§ 22–1410 [6: 264]. Making, drawing, or uttering check, draft, or order with intent to defraud—Proof of intent—"Credit" defined.

Any person within the District of Columbia who, with intent to defraud, shall make, draw, utter, or deliver any check, draft, or order for the payment of money upon any bank or other depository, knowing at the time of such making, drawing, uttering, or delivering that the maker or drawer has not sufficient funds in or credit with such bank or other depository for the payment of such check, draft, or order in full upon its presentation, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punishable by imprisonment for not more than one year, or be fined not more than $1,000, or both. As against the maker or drawer thereof the making, drawing, uttering, or delivering by such maker or drawer of a check, draft, or order, payment of which is refused by the drawee because of insufficient funds of the maker or drawer in its possession or control, shall be prima facie evidence of the intent to defraud and of knowledge of insufficient funds in or credit with such bank or other depository, provided such maker or drawer shall not have paid the holder thereof the amount due thereon, together with the amount of protest fees, if any, within five days after receiving notice in person, or writing, that such draft or order has not been paid. The word "credit," as used herein, shall be construed to mean arrangement or understanding, express or implied, with the bank or other depository for the payment of such check, draft, or order. (July 1, 1922, 42 Stat. 820, ch. 273.)

Prosecution under section 22–1411 shall be in the police court of the District of Columbia upon information filed by the United States District Attorney for the District of Columbia, or one of his assistants. (May 29, 1916, 39 Stat. 165, ch. 130, § 2.)

§ 22–1413 [6: 267]. Penalty under section 22–1411.

Any person, firm, or association violating any of the provisions of section 22–1411 shall upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not more than $500 or by imprisonment of not more than sixty days, or by both fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court. A corporation convicted of an offense under the provisions of section 22–1411 shall be fined not more than $500, and its president or such other officials as may be responsible for the conduct and management thereof shall be imprisoned not more than sixty days, in the discretion of the court. (May 29, 1916, 39 Stat. 165, ch. 130, § 3.)

§ 22–1414 [6: 297]. Fraudulently tampering with jury box or contents—Collusion in drawing jurors.

If any person shall fraudulently tamper with any box used or intended by the jury commission for the names of prospective jurors, or of prospective condemnation jurors or commissioners, or shall fraudulently tamper with the contents of any such box, or with any jury list, or be guilty of any fraud or collusion with respect to the drawing of jurors or condemnation jurors or commissioners, or if any jury commissioner shall put in or leave out of any such box the name of any person at the request of such person, or at the request of any other person, or if any jury commissioner shall wilfully draw from any such box a greater number of names than is required by the court, any such person or jury commissioner so offending shall for each offense be punished by a fine of not more than $500 or imprisonment in the District jail or workhouse for not more than one year, or both. 22–1513. Corrupt influence in connection with athletic contests.

§ 22–1501 [6: 151]. Lotteries—Promotion—Sale or possession of tickets.

If any person shall within the District keep, set up, or promote, or be concerned as owner, agent, or clerk, or in any other manner, in managing, carrying on, promoting, or advertising, directly or indirectly, any policy lottery, policy shop, or any lottery, or shall sell or transfer any chance, right, or interest, tangible or intangible, in any policy lottery, or any lottery or shall sell or transfer any ticket, certificate, bill, token, or other device, purporting or intended to guarantee or assure to any person or entitle him to a chance of drawing or obtaining a prize to be drawn in any lottery, or in a game or device commonly known as policy lottery or policy or shall, for himself or another person, sell or transfer, or have in his possession for the purpose of sale or transfer, a chance or ticket in or share of a ticket in any lottery or any such bill, certificate, token, or other device, he shall be fined upon conviction of each said offense not more than $1,000 or be imprisoned not more than three years, or both. The possession of any copy or record of any such chance, right, or interest, or of any such ticket, certificate, bill, token, or other device shall be prima-facie evidence that the possessor of such copy or record did, at the time and place of such possession, keep, set up, or promote, or was at such time and place concerned as owner, agent, or clerk, or otherwise in managing, carrying on, promoting, or advertising a policy lottery, policy shop, or lottery. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1330, ch. 854, § 863; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 535, ch. 1329; Apr. 5, 1938, 52 Stat. 198, ch. 72, § 1.)

AMENDMENTS

The act of 1902 struck out the words "one year" and inserted in lieu thereof the words "three years."

The act of 1938 changed penalty from $500 to $1,000 and added the last sentence.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

ARREST AND SEARCH

Evidence sustained conclusion of existence of sufficient cause to believe that the offense of conducting a "numbers game" had been committed and that defendant had participated therein to justify arrest and search without warrant. Newyahr v. U. S. (C. A. D. C. 1949, 177 F. 2d 658, 85 US App. D. C. 348, certiorari denied, 70 S. Ct. 350, 338 US 936, 94 L. Ed. 257).

DISTRIBUTION OF PRIZES

One of the essential elements of a lottery is the awarding of a prize by chance, but the exact method adopted for the application of chance to the distribution of prizes is immaterial. Forte v. United States (65 App. D. C. 355, 83 Fed. (2d) 612, 105 A. L. R. 300).

EVIDENCE

In prosecution under this section, the credibility of the testimony of officers as to evidences of guilt found in defendant's automobile, is for the judge and the trial court's finding in disputed evidence will be upheld. Coupe v. United States (72 App. D. C. 86, 113 Fed. (2d) 145).

In prosecution under this section a page from a notebook found on the person of the accused was properly admitted in evidence, over the objection of the accused that it was a memorandum of a bet on a horse race, although it may tend, incidentally, to prove another distinct offense. Shettel v. United States (72 App. D. C. 250, 113 Fed. (2d) 34).

Intercepted interstate and local messages pertaining to gambling are not admissible when received by person not authorized by the sender. United States v. Plisco ((D. C.-D. C.), 22 Fed. Supp. 242).

INDICTMENT

Where an indictment under this section contains two counts, one for misdemeanor and one for felony, defendant's objection that the conviction on the misdemeanor count was invalid is immaterial in view of the fact that the sentences for each were to be served concurrently and the longer sentence was based on a valid count. Coupe v. United States (72 App. D. C. 86, 113 Fed. (2d) 145).

INSTRUCTIONS

Where the trial court instructed the jury, "Do I believe from the evidence I have heard in this trial that the defendants have committed this crime? If you answer the question yes, you must find the defendants guilty. If your answer is no, then you must find them not guilty," it is error. This statement is not the law, for the law is that if the jury believes beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant has committed the alleged offense, it should find a verdict of guilty, but if there be a reasonable doubt in the minds of the jurors, they must acquit. Billeci v. United States (C. A. D. C. 1950, 184 F. 2d 394).

If the intonations and gestures of a trial judge, when instructing the jury, are erroneously detrimental to a defendant in a criminal case, it is the duty of counsel to report fully and accurately, at the time and on the record, although not in the hearing of the jury, what has transpired. Billeci v. United States (C. A. D. C. 1950, 184 F. 2d 394).

When a federal judge comments upon evidence by expressing his opinion upon phases of it, he is treading close to the line which divides proper judicial action from the field which is exclusively the jury's. Therefore, he must make it unequivocally clear to the jury that conclusions upon such matters are theirs, not his, to make, and he must do so in such manner and in such time that the jury will not be left in doubt. Billeci v. United States (C. A., D. C. 1950, 184 F. 2d 394).

NUMBERS GAME

"Numbers game" is lottery when the player merely guesses that the result of mathematical calculations, based upon the prices paid at a certain track, will be a certain number. Forte v. United States (65 App. D. C. 355, 83 Fed. (2d) 612, 105 A. L. R. 300).

Conviction of violating and of conspiracy to violate the lottery law was sustained where evidence showed that defendants had been engaged in operation of the "numbers" game. Smith v. United States (72 App. D. C. 187, 112 Fed. (2d) 217).

SEARCH AND SEIZURE

Where defendant had been indicted for carrying on a lottery known as the numbers game, in violation of the District Code, evidence obtained by police officers through an illegal search and arrest is inadmissible and the conviction must be reversed. MacDonald v. United States, 1948 (69 S. Ct. 191, 335 U. S. 451, 93 L. Ed. 53).

SUFFICIENCY OF EVIDENCE

Evidence justified submitting to jury prosecution for operating a lottery and possessing materials therefor. Kenney v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 157 F. 2d 442, 81 U. S. App. D. C. 259).

UNLAWFUL SEARCH

Where there is no claim in the case that the officers advised the suspect of the cause of their demand before they broke down the door, upon that ground alone, the breaking of the door was unlawful, presence of arresting officers was unlawful, the arrest was unlawful, the search unlawful and the evidence thus procured should have been suppressed. A new trial on the indictment must be ordered. Accarino v. United States (C. A. D. C. 1949, 179 F. 2d 456, 85 U. S. App. D. C. 394).

§ 22–1502 [6: 151a]. Possession of lottery or policy tickets.

If any person shall within the District have in his possession, knowingly, any ticket, certificate, bill, slip, token, paper, writing, or other device used, or to be used, or adapted, devised, or designed for the purpose of playing, carrying on, or conducting any lottery, or the game or device commonly known as policy lottery or policy, he shall be fined upon conviction of each said offense not more than $500 or be imprisoned for not more than six months, or both. (Apr. 5, 1938, 52 Stat. 198, ch. 72, § 2.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Search warrant, destruction of property, severability of provisions, §§ 23–301, 23–304, 23–305.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

MOTION TO SUPPRESS

Where numbers slips taken from defendant were admitted without objection on trial which commenced three days after his arrest, motion to suppress made for first time when trial resumed following a continuance was not timely, and denial of the motion was not error. Harris v. U. S. (D. C. 1943, 32 A. 2d 101, certiorari denied 69 S. Ct. 161, 335 U. S. 873, 93 L. Ed. 417).

SEARCH AND SEIZURE

Where defendant had been indicted for carrying on a lottery known as the numbers game, in violation of the District Code, evidence obtained by police officers through an illegal search and arrest is inadmissible and the conviction must be reversed. MacDonald v. United States, 1948 (69 S. Ct. 191, 335 U. S. 451, 93 L. Ed. 53).

SUFFICIENCY OF EVIDENCE

Evidence justified submitting to jury prosecution for operating a lottery and possessing materials therefor. Kenney v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 157 F. 2d 442, 81 U. S. App. D. C. 259).

Evidence was insufficient to sustain conviction of defendant for knowingly having in his possession "numbers slips" in violation of this section. Fletcher v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1946, 49 A. 2d 88).

UNLAWFUL SEARCH

Where there is no claim in the case involved that the officers advised the suspect of the cause of their demand before they broke down the door, upon that ground alone, the breaking of the door was unlawful, presence of arresting officers was unlawful, the arrest was unlawful, the search unlawful and the evidence thus procured should have been suppressed. A new trial on the indictment must be ordered. Accarino v. United States (C. A., D. C. 1949, 179 F. 2d 456, 85 U. S. App. D. C. 394).

§ 22–1503 [6: 152]. Permitting sale of lottery tickets on premises.

If any person shall knowingly permit, on any premises under his control in the District, the sale of any chance or ticket in or share of a ticket in any lottery or policy lottery, or shall knowingly permit any lottery or policy lottery, or policy shop on such premises, he shall be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, or be imprisoned not more than one year, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1330, ch. 854, § 864.)

CROSS REFERENCE

§ 22–1504 [6: 153]. Gaming—Setting up gaming table—Inducing play.

Whoever shall in the District set up or keep any gaming table, or any house, vessel, or place, on land or water, for the purpose of gaming, or gambling device commonly called A B C, faro bank, E O, roulette, equality, keno, thimbles, or little joker, or any kind of gaming table or gambling device adapted, devised, and designed for the purpose of playing any game of chance for money or property, or shall induce, entice, and permit any person to bet or play at or upon any such gaming table or gambling device, or on the side of or against the keeper thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment for a term of not more than five years. NOTES TO DECISIONS

IN GENERAL

Nelson v. United States (28 App. D. C. 32); Swan v. United States (54 App. D. C. 100, 295 Fed. 921); citing Miller v. United States (6 App. D. C. 6), wherein it is said: "Any games, devices, or contrivances set up or kept for the purpose of gaming, or any gambling device, so set up and kept, adapted, devised, and designed for the purpose of playing any game of chance for money or property, and to which the public may resort to bid or wager money, is a gaming table within the meaning of the statute. The definition of a gaming table under the statute does not involve the ordinary mechanical definition of a table, but depends for its statutory meaning upon the means or contrivances adopted for playing the game."

"Two offenses are created by section 865 (§ 22–1504). One is the setting up or keeping of a gaming table or device; the other is the keeping of a house, vessel, or place for the purpose of gaming." Wade v. United States (33 App. D. C. 29, 20 L. R. A. (N. S.) 347, 17 Ann. Cas. 707).

Claw Machine

"Claw machine" used for the purpose of obtaining articles, by mere chance, was a "gambling device." Boosalis v. Crawford (69 App. D. C. 141, 99 Fed. (2d) 374).

Elements of Offensive

The gravamen of offense of setting up and keeping a gaming place is furnishing the facilities for gaming activities and it is immaterial that betting actually took place or that money actually passed. Sesso v. U. S., 1942 (133 F. 2d 381, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 35).

Evidence

In prosecution for setting up and keeping a gaming place, evidence necessary to show a gaming place need not be direct, and the intent with which the act was done may be gathered from all the circumstances shown in evidence. Sesso v. U. S., 1942 (133 F. 2d 381, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 35).

In prosecution for setting up and keeping a gaming place for purpose of betting on result of horse races, where prima facie evidence of corpus delecti was made out, damaging admissions made by defendant were admissable in evidence. Sesso v. U. S., 1942 (133 F. 2d 381, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 35).

In prosecution for setting up and keeping a gaming place for purpose of betting on result of horse races, evidence authorized inference that defendant was in control and possession of the premises when the offense occurred. Sesso v. U. S., 1942 (133 F. 2d 381, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 35).

Evidence sustained conviction of setting up and keeping a gaming place for purpose of betting upon result of horse races. Sesso v. U. S., 1942 (133 F. 2d 381, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 35).

In prosecution for setting up and keeping a gaming place for purpose of betting upon result of horse races, evidence sustained finding that a gaming place was illegally set up and maintained. Sesso v. U. S., 1942 (133 F. 2d 381, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 35).

In prosecution for keeping gambling tables, testimony of a defendant at a previous trial, together with a bank statement to which it related, were properly admitted, where the testimony had some tendency to establish such defendant's guilt. Warde v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 158 F. 2d 651).

Evidence of gambling on one occasion is sufficient to sustain conviction for keeping gambling tables. Warde v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 158 F. 2d 651).

Gambling Device

Where player of pinball amusement machine achieving certain minimum score would receive a "free play" or another "try" without an additional coin but nothing more, the machine was not a "gambling device" designed for purpose of playing game of chance for "property" within this section. Washington Coin Mach. Ass'n v. Callahan, 1944 (142 F. 2d 97, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 41).

To "gamble" is to risk one's money or other property on an event, chance, or contingency in the hope of the realization of gain, and the test as to whether a particular machine combination constitutes a "gambling device" is whether it is adapted, devised, and designed for purpose of playing any game of chance for money or property. Washington Coin Mach. Ass'n v. Callahan, 1944 (142 F. 2d 97, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 41).

Gaming Table

Section 865 of the code (this section) made it a crime to set up or keep any gaming table, or any house, vessel, or place, on land or water, for the purpose of gaming or gambling, under the penalty of imprisonment for a term of not more than five years. Kelleher v. United States (59 App. D. C. 107, 35 Fed. (2d) 877).

Indictments charge that appellants set up and kept a gambling table for the purpose of betting and wagering on the results of horse races, contrary to this section. This charges an offense against the laws of the United States. Nuckols v. United States (69 App. D. C. 120, 99 Fed. (2d) 353).

Indictment

Indictment in either case of maintaining table or place in which gaming was done need not allege proof of passing money; but if it is drawn in almost the language of the statute, and charges both the place and table defendants were conducting, that is sufficient. Beard v. United States (65 App. D. C. 231, 82 Fed. (2d) 837).

Offense a Felony

This section, by prescribing a maximum penalty of five years' imprisonment, made the offense a felony. No warrant for arrest was necessary where defendant was apprehended in the act of violating the statute. Zerega v. United States (59 App. D. C. 67, 32 Fed. (2d) 963).

On Appeal

Conviction on five counts of keeping gaming table and a place for gambling on horse races was affirmed. Brown v. United States (59 App. D. C. 57, 32 Fed. (2d) 953).

When one was convicted for operating gaming table he could not afterwards dispute the verdict, for a question of fact or of law distinctly put in issue and directly determined by a court of competent jurisdiction cannot afterwards be disputed between the same parties. Beard v. Sanford ((C. C. A. 5), 99 Fed. (2d) 750).

When appellant was convicted on two counts, first, by setting up gaming table, and, second, keeping a place for gaming, but as he did not raise the question of double jeopardy on the trial or on the appeal from conviction, effect of his failure to do so was to waive the question for all time. Beard v. Sanford ((C. C. A. 5), 105 Fed. (2d) 141).

Place for Gaming

It is not necessary that one charged with the crime of maintaining a gambling place should have been in permanent possession of the place or a lessee or keeper, but that it is sufficient if he is in charge of the place at the time the offense occurs. Donald v. United States (70 App. D. C. 14, 102 Fed. (2d) 618).

In prosecution for setting up and keeping a gaming place for purpose of betting upon result of horse races, it is not necessary that defendant should have been in permanent possession of the premises or that he should have been a lessee or even a keeper. Sesso v. U. S., 1942 (133 F. 2d 381, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 35).

In prosecution for setting up and keeping a gaming place for purpose of betting upon result of horse races, it was only incumbent upon the Government to show that defendant was in charge, possession or control of the place when the offense occurred. Sesso v. U. S., 1942 (133 F. 2d 381, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 35).

Property

The term "property" as used in this section includes goods, chattels, effects, evidences of rights in action, and all written instruments by which any pecuniary obligation, or money or right or title to property, real or personal, is created or transferred but none of such terms should be expanded to include a free amusement feature such as privilege of playing an additional free game if certain score is made. Washington Coin Mach. Ass'n v. Callahan, 1944 (142 F. 2d 97, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 41).

Purpose

The purpose of Congress in enacting this section was to make criminal the use of all contrivances by which money or property is bet or wagered or risked on the chance of some material reward. Washington Coin Mach. Ass'n v. Callahan, 1944 (142 F. 2d 97, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 41).

SEARCHES AND SEIZURE

Where defendant had been indicted for carrying on a lottery known as the numbers game in violation of the District Code, evidence obtained by police officers through an illegal search and arrest is inadmissible and the conviction must be reversed. MacDonald v. United States, 1948 (69 S. Ct. 191, 335 U. S. 451, 93 L. Ed. 53).

Where there is no claim in the case involved that the officers advised the suspect of the cause of their demand before they broke down the door, upon that ground alone, the breaking of the door was unlawful, presence of arresting officers was unlawful, the arrest was unlawful, the search unlawful and the evidence thus procured should have been suppressed. A new trial on the indictment must be ordered. Accarino v. United States (C. A. D. C. 1949, 179 F. 2d 456, 85 U. S. App. D. C. 394).

SEPARATE TRIAL

Where four defendants were indicted for keeping a gaming table, and one was also charged with assault, a motion of the three to be tried separately from the fourth, who had been charged with assault, will not be granted since their guilt of the only crime of which they were accused was so clear that no defense was attempted and none would have been attempted if they had been tried separately. The court's refusal to try them separately was not prejudicial. Scheve v. United States (C. A., D. C. 1950, 184 F. 2d 695).

§ 22–1505 [6: 154]. Permitting gaming table or device to be set up.

Whoever in the District knowingly permits any gaming table, bank, or device to be set up or used for the purpose of gaming in any house, building, vessel, shed, booth, shelter, lot, or other premises to him belonging or by him occupied, or of which at the time he has possession or control, shall be punished by imprisonment in the jail for not more than one year or by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1331, ch. 854, § 866.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

IN GENERAL

This section provided that whoever knowingly permitted any gaming table, bank, or device to be set up or used for the purpose of gaming in any house, building, vessel, shed, booth, shelter, lot, or other premises belonging to or occupied by him, or under his possession or control, should be punished by imprisonment in the jail for not more than one year or by a fine not exceeding $500, or both. Kelleher v. United States (59 App. D. C. 107, 35 Fed. (2d) 877).

PROOF

An indictment charging an offense under this section cannot be sustained by proof of a violation of section 865 (§ 22–1504). "In order to warrant a conviction under section 866 (this section) it is necessary that a defendant shall knowingly permit a gambling device to be set up or used for the purpose of gaming upon premises owned or occupied by him, or of which at the time of the commission of the offense he had possession or control." Nelson v. United States (28 App. D. C. 32).

§ 22–1506 [6: 155]. Three-card monte and confidence games.

Whoever shall in the District deal, play, or practice, or be in any manner accessory to the dealing or practicing, of the confidence game or swindle known as three-card monte, or of any such game, play, or practice, or any other confidence game, play, or practice, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars and by imprisonment for not more than five years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1331, ch. 854, § 867.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

INDICTMENT

Indictment is sufficient which alleges a setting up of gaming table and keeping a gaming table for the purpose of betting on the results of horse races. Swan v. United States (54 App. D. C. 100, 295 Fed. 921).

§ 22–1508 [6: 157]. Gambling pools and book making.

It shall be unlawful for any person or association of persons to bet, gamble, or make books or pools on the result of any trotting or running race of horses, or boat race, or race of any kind, or on any election, or any contest of any kind, or game of baseball. Any person or association of persons violating the provisions of this section shall be fined not exceeding five hundred dollars or be imprisoned not more than ninety days, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1331, ch. 854, § 869; May 16, 1908, 35 Stat. 164, ch. 172, § 3.)

AMENDMENT

The act of 1908 struck out after the word "persons" in the first sentence the following words "in city of Washington and Georgetown in District of Columbia within one mile of boundaries of said District."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

IN GENERAL

This section made it unlawful for any person to bet, gamble, or make books or pools on the result of any trotting or running race of horses, or boat race, or race of any kind, and prescribed a punishment for violation of the provisions of the section of a fine not exceeding $500 or imprisonment not exceeding 90 days, or both. Kelleher v. United States (59 App. D. C. 107, 35 Fed. (2d) 877).

ACCOMPLICES

Persons engaging in wagering contests are not accomplices. Paylor v. United States (42 App. D. C. 428, L. R. A. 1915D, 682, cert. den. 235 U. S. 704, 59 L. Ed. 434, 35 Sup. Ct. 209).

DEFAMATORY WORDS

When words are not libelous per se, as laying bets on horse races, it is for the jury to determine the defamatory meaning. Baker v. Warner (231 U. S. 588, 58 L. Ed. 384, 34 Sup. Ct. 175).

EVIDENCE

Where evidence justified conviction on counts under 1901 code § 865 (§ 22–1504), counts under this section need not be considered. Zerega v. United States (59 App. D. C. 67, 32 Fed. (2d) 963).

PROHIBITION—GEOGRAPHICAL

This section only prohibited betting on horse races and bookmaking within one mile of the boundaries of the cities of Washington and Georgetown. Baker v. Warner (231 U. S. 588, 58 L. Ed. 384, 34 Sup. Ct. 175).

§ 22–1509 [6: 158]. Bucketing, and bucket-shopping and bucket-shops—Definitions.

The following words and phrases used in sections 22–1509 to 22–1512 shall, unless a different meaning is plainly required by the context, have the following meanings:

"Person" shall mean an individual, partnership, corporation, or association, whether acting in his or their own right or as the officer, agent, servant, correspondent, or representative of another.

"Contract" shall mean any agreement, trade, or transaction.

"Securities" shall mean all evidences of debt or property and options for the purchase and sale thereof, shares in any corporation or association, bonds, coupons, scrip, rights, choses in action, and other evidences of debt or property and options for the purchase or sale thereof.

"Commodities" shall mean anything movable that is bought and sold.

"Bucket-shop" shall mean any room, office, store, building, or other place where any contract prohibited by sections 22–1509 to 22–1512 is made or offered to be made.

"Keeper" shall mean any person owning, keeping, managing, operating, or promoting a bucket-shop, or assisting to keep, manage, operate, or promote a bucket-shop.

"Bucketing" or "bucket-shopping" shall mean: (a) The making of or offering to make any contract respecting the purchase or sale, either upon credit or upon margin, of any securities or commodities wherein both parties thereto intend, or such keeper intends, that such contract shall be, or may be, terminated, closed, or settled according to or upon the basis of the public market quotations of prices made on any board of trade or exchange upon which said securities or commodities are dealt in and without a bona fide purchase or sale of the same; or (b) the making of or offering to make any contract respecting the purchase or sale, either upon credit or upon margin, of any securities or commodities, wherein both parties intend, or such keeper intends, that such contract shall be, or may be, deemed terminated, closed, or settled when such public market quotations of prices for the securities or commodities named in such contract shall reach a certain figure without a bona fide purchase or sale of the same; or (c) the making of or offering to make any contract respecting the purchase or sale, either upon credit or upon margin, of any securities or commodities wherein both parties do not intend, or such keeper does not intend, the actual or bona fide receipt or delivery of such securities or commodities, but do intend, or such keeper does intend, a settlement of such contract based upon the differences in such public market quotations of prices at which said securities or commodities are or are asserted to be bought and sold. (Mar. 1, 1909, 35 Stat. 670, ch. 233, § 869a.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

"ANY CONTRACT"

The words "any contract defined in the preceding section," as used in section 869b (§ 22–1510) "were intended to refer, and did in fact refer, to bucketing and bucket-shopping contracts, or to 'agreements, trades, or transactions' relating thereto." United States v. Cella (37 App. D. C. 423, cert. den. 223 U. S. 728, 56 L. Ed. 633, 32 Sup. Ct. 526).

CONSPIRACY

Conspiracy to violate the "bucket-shop" law of the District of Columbia (act of March 1, 1909, 35 Stat. 670, ch. 233 (§§ 22–1509 to 22–1512)) held an offense against the United States within the meaning of R. S. §§ 1014, 5440 (U. S. Comp. St. 1901, pp. 716, 3678). United States v. Cella (37 App. D. C. 423, cert. den. 223 U. S. 728, 56 L. Ed. 633, 32 Sup. Ct. 526); United States v. Campbell ((D. C.-Pa.), 179 Fed. 762).

Where indictment was for conspiracy to violate this section, the proceeding was removable under R. S. § 1014. United States ex rel. Vause v. McCarthy ((D. C.-N. Y.), 250 Fed. 800).

CONSTITUTIONALITY

As to constitutionality of act, see United States v. Cella (37 App. D. C. 423, cert. den. 223 U. S. 728, 56 L. Ed. 633, 32 Sup. Ct. 526).

PROSECUTIONS

Prosecutions under this section should be in the name of the United States. United States v. Cella (37 App. D. C. 423, cert. den. 223 U. S. 728, 56 L. Ed. 633, 32 Sup. Ct. 526)

§ 22–1510 [6: 159]. Penalty for bucketing or keeping bucket-shop.

Any person who makes or offers to make any contract defined in section 23–1509, or who is the keeper of any bucket-shop, shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or by imprisonment for not more than one year. Any person who shall be convicted of a second offense shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than five years. The continuing of the keeping of a bucket-shop by any person after the first conviction therefor shall be deemed a second offense under sections 22–1509 to 22–1512. If a domestic corporation shall be convicted of a second offense, the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia shall have jurisdiction, upon an information in equity in the name of the United States district attorney for the District of Columbia, on the relation of the commissioners of the District of Columbia, to dissolve the corporation; and if a foreign corporation shall be convicted of a second offense, the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia shall have jurisdiction, in the same manner, to restrain the corporation from doing business in the District of Columbia. (Mar. 1, 1909, 35 Stat. 671, ch. 233, § 869b.)

CROSS REFERENCE

See notes to § 22–1509

§ 22–1511 [6: 160]. Penalty for communicating, receiving, exhibiting, or displaying quotations of prices.

Any person who shall communicate, receive, exhibit, or display in any manner any statement of quotations of prices of any securities or commodities with an intent to make, or offer to make, or to aid in making, or offering to make any contract prohibited by sections 22–1509 to 22–1512, upon conviction thereof shall be subject to the penalties provided in section 22–1510. (Mar. 1, 1909, 35 Stat. 671, ch. 233, § 869c.)

CROSS REFERENCE

See notes to § 22–1509.

§ 22–1512 [6: 161]. Bucketing—Written statement to be furnished—Contents.

Every person shall furnish, upon demand, to any customer or principal for whom such person has executed any order for the actual purchase or sale of any securities or commodities, either for immediate or future delivery, a written statement, containing the names of the persons from whom such property was bought or to whom it has been sold, as the fact may be, the time when, place where, and the price at which the same was either bought or sold; and if such person shall refuse or neglect to furnish such statement within twenty-four hours after such demand such refusal or neglect shall be prima facie evidence that such purchase or sale was bucketing or bucket-shopping within the terms of sections 22–1509 to 22–1512. (Mar. 1, 1909, 35 Stat. 671, ch. 233, § 869d.)

CROSS REFERENCE

§ 22–1513. Corrupt influence in connection with athletic contests.

(a) It shall be unlawful to pay or give, or to agree to pay or give, or to promise or offer, any valuable thing to any individual—

(1) with intent to influence such individual to lose or cause to be lost, or to attempt to lose or cause to be lost, or to limit or attempt to limit his or his team's margin of victory or score in, any professional or amateur athletic contest in which such individual is or may be a contestant or participant; or

(2) with intent to influence such individual, in the case of any professional or amateur athletic contest in connection with which such individual (as a manager, coach, owner, second, jockey, trainer, handler, groom, or otherwise) has or will have any duty or responsibility with respect to a contestant, participant, or team who or which is engaging or may engage therein, to cause or attempt to cause (A) the loss of such athletic contest by such contestant, participant, or team; or (B) the margin of victory or score of such contestant, participant, or team to be limited; or

(3) with intent to influence such individual, in the case of any professional or amateur athletic contest in connection with which such individual is to be or may be a referee, judge, umpire, linesman, starter, timekeeper, or other similar official, to cause or attempt to cause (A) the loss of such athletic contest by any contestant, participant, or team who or which is engaging or may engage therein; or (B) the margin of victory or score of any such contestant, participant, or team to be limited.

(b) It shall be unlawful for any individual to solicit or accept, or to agree to accept, any valuable thing or a promise or offer of any valuable thing—

(1) to influence such individual to lose or cause to be lost, or to attempt to lose or cause to be lost, or to limit or attempt to limit his or his team's margin of victory or score in, any professional or amateur athletic contest in which such individual is or may be a contestant or participant; or

(3) to influence such individual, in the case of any professional or amateur athletic contest in connection with which such individual is to be or may be a referee, judge, umpire, linesman, starter, timekeeper, or other similar official, to cause or attempt to cause (A) the loss of such athletic contest by any contestant, participant, or team who or which is engaging or may engage therein; or (B) the margin of victory or score of any such contestant, participant, or team to be limited.

(c) Whoever violates any provision of subsection (a) of this section shall be guilty of a felony, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment for not less than one year nor more than five years and by a fine of not more than $10,000.

(d) Whoever violates any provision of subsection (b) of this section shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by imprisonment for not more than one year and by a fine of not more than $5,000.

(e) As used in this section, the term "athletic contest" means any of the following, wherever held or to be held: A football, baseball, softball, basketball, hockey, or polo game, or a tennis or wrestling match, or a prize fight or boxing match, or a horse race or any other athletic or sporting event or contest. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 869e, as added July 11, 1947, 61 Stat. 313, ch. 230).

(Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1335, ch. 854, § 896.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

HISTORICAL

Compact of 1785 between Maryland and Virginia providing for the right of fishing in the Potomac River was never in force in the District of Columbia. Evans v. United States (31 App. D. C. 544).

Respective rights of Virginia and Maryland in waters of Potomac River. Marine R. & Coal Co. v. United States (257 U. S. 47, 66 L. Ed. 124, 42 Sup. Ct. 32); Herald v. United States (52 App. D. C. 147, 284 Fed. 927).

§ 22–1602 [6: 202]. Bass—Restrictions on catching and killing.

No person shall catch or kill in the waters of the Potomac River or its tributaries within the District of Columbia any black bass (otherwise known as green bass and chub), crappie (otherwise known as calico bass and strawberry bass), between the 1st day of April and the 29th of May of each year, nor have in possession or expose for sale any of said species of fish at any other time during the year except by angling, nor catch nor kill any of the aforesaid species by what are known as out lines or trot lines, having a succession of hooks or devices. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1336, ch. 854, § 897; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 536, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

Act of 1901 was amended by substituting month "May" for that of "June" and a slight rewording of the act.

§ 22–1603 [6: 203]. Sale of bass—"Person" defined.

The word "person" when used in this section shall include any company, partnership, corporation, or association. It shall be unlawful for any person to offer for sale or to sell within the District of Columbia, either large-mouth or small-mouth black bass. Any person violating the provisions of this section shall, upon conviction thereon, be punished by a fine not exceeding $100, or by imprisonment for a term of not more than three months, or by both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court. This section shall be effective from March 3, 1927. (Mar. 3, 1927, 44 Stat. 1379, ch. 343, §§ 1–4.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

This section supersedes the provisions of § 22–1605 concerning black bass.

§ 22–1604 [6: 204]. Possession or sale of shad or herring.

It shall be unlawful for any person to have in possession or expose for sale in the District of Columbia, between the 10th day of June and the 30th day of November, both inclusive, in any year, any fresh fish of the shad or herring species. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1336, ch. 854, § 898; Feb. 26, 1944, 58 Stat. 105, ch. 67.)

AMENDMENTS

The act of Feb. 26, 1944, cited to text, amended section by changing "after the 10th day of June" to read "between the 10th day of June and the 30th day of November, both inclusive,".

§ 22–1605. Small striped bass.

It shall be unlawful for any person, prior to July 1, 1947, to offer for sale, to expose for sale, or to sell, in the District of Columbia, at any time during the year, any striped bass, locally called rockfish, which is less than eleven inches in length (measured from the tip of the nose to the tip of the tail), and it shall be unlawful for any person, on or after July 1, 1947, to offer for sale, to expose for sale, or to sell, in the District of Columbia, at any time during the year, any striped bass, locally called rockfish, which is less than twelve inches in length (measured from the tip of the nose to the tip of the tail). (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1336, ch. 854, § 899; Nov. 30, 1945, 59 Stat. 588, ch. 498.)

AMENDMENTS

The act of Nov. 30, 1945, cited to text, amended section generally increasing restrictions on size of fish to be sold.

§ 22–1606 [6: 206]. Use of explosives, drugs, or poisons in fishing.

It shall be unlawful for any person to catch or kill in the waters of the Potomac River or its tributaries within the District of Columbia any fish by means of explosives, drugs, or poisons. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1336, ch. 854, § 900.)

§ 22–1607 [6: 207]. Penalties for violation of sections 22–1601, 22–1602, 22–1604 to 22–1606.

Any person who shall violate any of the provisions of sections 22–1601, 22–1602, 22–1604 to 22–1606 shall be fined for each and every such offense not less than ten dollars nor more than one hundred dollars, and in default of payment of fine shall be imprisoned for a period not exceeding six months; and any officer or other person securing such conviction shall be entitled to and receive one-half of any fine or fines imposed upon and paid by the party or parties adjudged guilty. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1336, ch. 854, § 902.)

§ 22–1608 [6: 208]. Nets, boats, and contrivances forfeited on conviction.

All nets, boats, or other contrivances, the property of any person or persons convicted under the provisions of sections 22–1601, 22–1602, 22–1604 to 22–1606 shall be confiscated to the District of Columbia, and the same shall be sold at public auction to the highest bidder, by the property clerk of said District, and the proceeds therefrom be deposited with the collector of taxes, as are other District revenues. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1336, ch. 854, § 903; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 536, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

Act of 1901 read as follows: "All nets, boats, or other contrivances the property of any person convicted under the provisions of the preceding sections shall be returned to the property clerk of the Metropolitan Police Department, to be delivered to the owner upon the order of the court, and if not called for within six months by the claimant the same shall be treated as other abandoned property coming into the hands of the police."

§ 22–1613 [6: 213]. Exposing for sale or possession of deer meat.

No person shall expose for sale or have in his or her possession any deer meat or venison, between the first day of January and the first day of September, under a penalty of ten dollars for such exposure for sale or having in possession, and the forfeiture of all such deer meat or venison to the officer making the arrest, who shall destroy the same; and, in default of fine, to be imprisoned in the workhouse for a period not exceeding sixty days. (Mar. 3, 1899, 30 Stat. 1012, ch. 417, § 2.)

§ 22–1614 [6: 214]. Catching, exposing for sale, or possession of wild birds—Robbing or destroying nests—Permit for collection for scientific purposes of birds and eggs.

No person shall catch, expose for sale, or have in his or her possession, living or dead, any wild bird other than a game bird, English sparrow, crow, Cooper's hawk, sharpshinned hawk, or great horned owl; nor rob the nest of any such wild bird of eggs or young; nor destroy such nest except in the clearing of land of trees or brush, under a penalty of five dollars for every such bird killed, caught, exposed for sale, or had in his or her possession, either dead or alive, and for each nest destroyed, and in default thereof to be imprisoned in the workhouse for a period not exceeding thirty days: Provided, That this section shall not apply to birds or eggs collected for scientific purposes under permits issued by the superintendent of police of the District of Columbia in accordance with such instructions as the secretary of the Smithsonian Institution may prescribe, such permits to be in force for one year from date of issue and nontransferable. (Mar. 3, 1899, 30 Stat. 1012, ch. 417, § 3; Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1092, ch. 844.)

§ 22–1616 [6: 216]. Inspection of premises and other places to detect violation of game laws.

To carry out the provisions of sections 22–1609 to 22–1620, any police officer, game warden having police authority, or health officer, in the District of Columbia, with sworn information presented to such officer or warden, is authorized and empowered to thoroughly inspect any house, boat, market-box, stall, cold storage, or other place of whatever character or kind, where he may believe game, meats, or birds, as heretofore mentioned in said sections, may be stored or kept; and any proprietor, agent, employee, or other person refusing to permit such inspection shall be deemed guilty of interference with the police, and, upon conviction therefor, be fined not more than one hundred dollars nor less than twenty-five dollars, and, in default of such payment, to be imprisoned in the United States jail not exceeding six months. (Mar. 3, 1899, 30 Stat. 1013, ch. 417, § 5.)

§ 22–1617 [6: 217]. Trespassing for purpose of shooting or hunting—Notice to be posted by landowner—Defacing.

Any person who shall knowingly trespass on the lands of another for the purpose of shooting or hunting thereon, after due notice by the owner or occupant of lands, shall be liable to such owner or occupant in exemplary damages to an amount not exceeding one hundred dollars. That notice shall be given by erecting and maintaining signboards, at least eight by twelve inches in dimensions, on the borders of the premises, and at least two such signs for every fifty acres; and any person who shall maliciously tear down or in any manner deface or injure any of such signboards shall be liable to a penalty of not less than five dollars for each and every signboard so torn down, defaced, or injured; and, in default, to be imprisoned for a period not exceeding thirty days in the workhouse. (Mar. 3, 1899, 30 Stat. 1013, ch. 417, § 6.)

§ 22–1618 [6: 218]. Shooting or possessing implements therefor on Sunday.

There shall be no shooting, or having in possession in the open air the implements for shooting, on the first day of the week, called Sunday, except to transport said implements within or without the District of Columbia; and any person violating the provisions of this section shall be liable to a penalty of not more than twenty dollars for each offense. (Mar. 3, 1899, 30 Stat. 1013, ch. 417, § 7.)

§ 22–1619 [6: 219]. Killing or capturing game beyond District of Columbia no defense.

Wherever in sections 22–1609 to 22–1620, possession of any birds, fowls, or meats is prohibited, the fact that the said birds, fowls, or meat were killed or captured outside the District of Columbia shall constitute no defense for such possession. (Mar. 3, 1899, 30 Stat. 1013, ch. 417, § 8.)

§ 22–1620 [6: 220]. Person securing conviction of violator of game laws to receive one-half of fine.

Any officer or other person securing the conviction of any violator of any of the provisions of sections 22–1609 to 22–1620, in the police court or other court of the District of Columbia, shall receive one-half of any fine which may be imposed and paid for such violation, and prosecution shall be brought in the name of the District of Columbia. (Mar. 3, 1899, 30 Stat. 1013, ch. 417, § 9.)

§ 22–1621 [6: 221]. Killing or attempting to kill game or wild birds—Permits.

No person shall at any time or at any place in the District of Columbia kill, or attempt to kill, any game bird or any other wild bird whatever, except the English sparrow, under a penalty of five dollars or imprisonment in the workhouse for not more than six months, or both, for each bird killed or for each attempt as aforesaid: Provided, That landowners or tenants may, under special written permit from the superintendent of the Metropolitan police, shoot or kill crows, Cooper hawks, sharp-shinned hawks, and great horned owls found destroying crops or poultry on their premises. (June 30, 1906, 34 Stat. 808, ch. 3932, § 1.)

§ 22–1622 [6: 222]. Squirrels, chipmunks, and rabbits.

No person shall at any time or at any place in the District of Columbia trap, catch, kill, injure, pursue, or attempt to trap, catch, kill, injure, or pursue any squirrel or any chipmunk, or shall shoot or hunt with a gun any rabbit or other wild animal without a special written permit so to do from such officer as the commissioners of the District of Columbia may, by regulation or order, from time to time charge with that duty, under a penalty of five dollars or imprisonment in the workhouse for not more than thirty days, or both, for each squirrel or chipmunk trapped, caught, killed, injured, or pursued, or for each rabbit or other animal killed as aforesaid: Provided, That any wild animal may be killed when suffering from injury or disease. (June 30, 1906, 34 Stat. 808, ch. 3932, § 2.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Open season, § 22–1610.

§ 22–1623 [6: 223]. English sparrow and wild animal suffering from disease or injury to be shot only after permit.

No person in the District of Columbia shall kill any English sparrow or any wild animal suffering from injury or disease, by means of any gun, air gun, rifle, air rifle, parlor rifle, pistol, revolver, or other firearms, without a special written permit so to do from such official as the commissioners of the District of Columbia may, by regulation or order, from time to time charge with that duty, under a penalty of five dollars or imprisonment in the workhouse for not more than thirty days, or both, for each sparrow or animal so killed. (June 30, 1906, 34 Stat. 809, ch. 3932, § 3.)

§ 22–1624 [6: 224]. Hunting or disturbing ducks, geese, and waterfowl.

No person in the District of Columbia shall at any time hunt, pursue, or needlessly disturb any wild duck, goose, or other waterfowl, in any of the waters of the District of Columbia, under penalty of $10 or imprisonment in the workhouse for not more than thirty days, or both, for each offense. (June 30, 1906, 34 Stat. 809, ch. 3932, § 5; July 14, 1932, 47 Stat. 660, ch. 478, § 1.)

AMENDMENT

The act of 1932 omitted the words "with any boat propelled by any means other than oars," after the words "waters of the District of Columbia."

§ 22–1625 [6: 226]. Purchase, sale, and possession of certain birds prohibited.

It shall be unlawful, within the District of Columbia, for any person at any time to buy, sell, or expose for sale, or to have in possession for the purpose of selling, any heath hen, sage hen, any kind of quail, bob white, grouse, partridge, ptarmigan, prairie chicken, pheasant, wild turkey, Hungarian partridge, English, ring-necked, Mongolian or Chinese pheasant, or marsh blackbird. (Dec. 18, 1919, 41 Stat. 368, ch. 10, § 1.)

§ 22–1626 [6: 227]. License may issue for scientific purposes—Penalty under section 22–1625.

Nothing contained in section 22–1625 shall prevent the right of any person to take or kill any game birds therein defined when the same shall be so taken or killed by virtue of the authority of a license duly issued by the proper authorities of said District of Columbia for scientific purposes.

That any person who shall violate any of the provisions of sections 22–1625 to 22–1627 shall be fined not more than $100, or be imprisoned for not more than one month, or both so fined and imprisoned: Provided, That each bird mentioned in said sections so had in possession, bought, sold, exposed for sale, or had in possession for the purpose of sale shall constitute a separate offense. (Dec. 18, 1919, 41 Stat. 368, ch. 10, § 2.)

§ 22–1627 [6: 228]. Sale of birds raised in captivity or for propagation.

Nothing in sections 22–1625 to 22–1627 shall prevent the sale at any time of Hungarian partridges, English, ring-necked, Mongolian or Chinese pheasants, when the same shall have been raised in captivity, or the sale of birds mentioned in said sections alive, for propagating purposes, under such regulations and requirements as shall be prescribed by the commissioners of the District of Columbia. (Dec. 18, 1919, 41 Stat. 368, ch. 10, § 3.)

Chapter 17.—HARBOR REGULATIONS

Sec.
22–1701. Harbor regulations—Authority vested in commissioners to make—Federal approval if affecting navigable waters—Parks and water-front—Penalty.
22–1702. Throwing or depositing matter in Potomac River.
22–1703. Deposits of deleterious matter in Rock Creek or Potomac River.

§ 22–1701 [6: 304]. Harbor regulations—Authority vested in Commissioners to make—Federal approval if affecting navigable waters—Parks and water-front—Penalty.

Every vessel coming to anchor in the Potomac River between the junction of the Washington and Georgetown Channels of said river and the extension of the south line of P Street southwest, in the city of Washington, shall anchor as near the flats in said river as possible, so that the channel of said river will not be obstructed; and if such vessel is to remain over twelve hours it shall be moored with both anchors, so as to give room for passing vessels and so as not to swing and obstruct said channel.

Every vessel coming to anchor in any other portion of the navigable waters in the District of Columbia shall also be so moored under the direction of the harbor master, or the pilot of the police boat acting in the harbor master's absence, as not to obstruct the channel, and be secured with an anchor at bow and stern as to keep the long axis of the vessel parallel with that of the channel and prevent it from swinging so as to obstruct the free passage of the channel by other vessels.

No vessel shall be permitted to anchor in the Washington Channel of the Potomac River between a point one thousand feet south of the south line of P Street and the north line of K Street south extended, each point to be designated by a white buoy; and all vessels coming to anchor above the north line of K Street south aforesaid shall come to anchor as near the flats as possible and so that the channel will not be obstructed; and all vessels coming to anchor shall be so moored by the use of both anchors as to prevent obstruction of the channel within four hundred feet of the nearest wharf, the said anchorage to continue only twenty-four hours unless otherwise ordered or directed by the harbor master.

The captain or owner of any sunken vessel or other structure in any dock or at the end of any wharf in the District of Columbia, shall raise and remove the same in five days. Any vessel at the end of wharves or in docks shall, when required by the harbor master, haul either way to accommodate vessels going in or coming out from such wharves or docks. They shall not occupy regular steamers' or sailing packets' berths without permission from the recognized occupants of such wharves and dock, and they are required to rig in all fore-and-aft spars, have boats hoisted up under the bow, and davits turned up, as the harbor master may direct. Vessels when not engaged in loading or discharging cargo shall give place to such vessels as are ready to receive or deliver freights; and if the captain or person in charge of any vessel refuse to move said vessel when notified by the occupant of the wharf at which she is lying, the harbor master shall order him to haul to some other berth or into the stream. The powers and authority herein conferred upon the harbor master may, in his absence or temporary disability, be exercised by the pilot of the harbor police boat. Any person refusing to obey the instructions of the harbor master, or, in case of his absence or temporary disability, the said pilot of the harbor police boat, or any person failing to comply with any of the provisions of this section, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars or by imprisonment not exceeding six months, or both.

The commissioners of the District of Columbia are hereby vested with authority to make harbor regulations for the entire water-front of the city within the District of Columbia, to alter and amend the same from time to time as they may find necessary: Provided, That whenever these regulations affect navigable waters, channels, and anchorage areas or other interests of the United States, such regulations shall be subject to the approval of the Secretary of War: And provided further, That whenever said regulations affect the water-front within the District of Columbia under the jurisdiction of the Director of the National Park Service, or affect the interests and rights of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, such regulations shall be subject to prior approval of the respective agencies. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1335, ch. 854, § 895; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 535, ch. 1329; Feb. 8, 1904, 33 Stat. 11, ch. 152; June 15, 1934, 48 Stat. 963, ch. 536.)

AMENDMENTS

The first sentence of this section has not been changed by subsequent amendments. The remainder of the section is a composite of the credits cited in the history line.

The 1904 act added the second sentence of the first paragraph, and provided that the provision in the third paragraph requiring "any captain or owner of or anyone in charge of any barge, sand scow, or any vessel that may sink in said canals, shall raise and remove the same in five days" shall be applicable to the captain or owner of any sunken vessel or other structure in any dock or at the end of any wharf in the District of Columbia.

The 1934 act vested the Commissioners of the District of Columbia with authority to make harbor regulations for the entire water-front of the city within the District, subject to the approval of the Secretary of War whenever they affect navigable waters, channels, anchorage areas, or other interests of the United States, and when the regulations affect the water-front within the District which is under the jurisdiction of the National Park Service or the National Park and Planning Commission, they shall be subject to approval of those agencies.

§ 22–1702 [6: 305]. Throwing or depositing matter in Potomac River.

(a) It shall be unlawful for any owner or occupant of any wharf or dock, any master or captain of any vessel, or any person or persons to cast, throw, drop, or deposit any stone, gravel, sand, ballast, dirt, oyster shells, or ashes in the water in any part of the Potomac River or its tributaries in the District of Columbia, or on the shores of said river below high-water mark, unless for the purpose of making a wharf, after permission has been obtained from the commissioners of the District of Columbia for that purpose, which wharf shall be sufficiently inclosed and secured so as to prevent injury to navigation.

(b) It shall be unlawful for any owner or occupant of any wharf or dock, any captain or master of any vessel, or any other person or persons to cast, throw, deposit, or drop in any dock or in the waters of the Potomac River or its tributaries in the District of Columbia any dead fish, fish offal, dead animals of any kind, condemned oysters in the shell, watermelons, cantaloupes, vegetables, fruits, shavings, hay, straw, or filth of any kind whatsoever.

(c) Nothing in this section contained shall be construed to interfere with the work of improvement in or along the said river and harbor under the supervision of the United States Government.

(d) Any person or persons violating any of the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment not exceeding six months, or both, in the discretion of the court. § 22–1703 [6: 306]. Deposits of deleterious matter in Rock Creek or Potomac River.

No person shall allow any tar, oil, ammoniacal liquor, or other waste products of any gas works or works engaged in using such products, or any waste product whatever of any mechanical, chemical, manufacturing, or refining establishment to flow into or be deposited in Rock Creek or the Potomac River or any of its tributaries within the District of Columbia or into any pipe or conduit leading to the same. Any person who shall violate any of the provisions of this section shall be fined for each and every such offense not less than ten dollars nor more than one hundred dollars and in default of payment of fine shall be imprisoned for a period not exceeding six months; and any officer or other person securing such conviction shall be entitled to and receive one-half of any fine or fines imposed upon and paid by the party or parties adjudged guilty. NOTES TO DECISIONS

APPLICATION

The prohibition of this section is "general and unqualified, and applies to all alike," and prevents the discharge of any such waste products. Holden v. United States (24 App. D. C. 318, cert. den. 196 U. S. 639, 49 L. Ed. 631, 25 Sup. Ct. 796).

NEGLIGENCE

When construction company places tanks on banks of navigable stream within limits of the city and if substance from the tanks escapes into the river and interferes with public use, it is liable irrespective of the question of negligence. Brennan Constr. Co. v. Cumberland (29 App. D. C. 554, 15 L. R. A. (N. S.) 535, 10 Ann. Cas. 865).

Chapter 18.—HOUSEBREAKING

Sec.
22–1801. Definition and penalty.

§ 22–1801 [6: 55]. Definition and penalty.

Whoever shall, either in the night or in the daytime, break and enter, or enter without breaking, any dwelling, bank, store, warehouse, shop, stable, or other building, or any apartment or room, whether at the time occupied or not, or any steamboat, canal boat, vessel, or other watercraft, or railroad car, or any yard where any lumber, coal, or other goods or chattels are deposited and kept for the purpose of trade, with intent to break and carry away any part thereof or any fixture or other thing attached to or connected with the same, or to commit any criminal offense, shall be imprisoned for not more than fifteen years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1323, ch. 854, § 823.)

CROSS REFERENCE

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CONFESSION

Where written confession of housebreaking and larceny was inadmissible because result of illegal detention and lengthy questioning of accused, subsequent oral admissions of accused, while still in custody immediately following first confession, and while demonstrating how premises were entered, were likewise inadmissible. Akowskey v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 158 F. 2d 649, 81 U. S. App. D. C. 353).

EVIDENCE

In prosecution for housebreaking and larceny, evidence was sufficient to establish corporate character of occupant of property entered and owner of property stolen. Bord v. U. S., 1942 (133 F. 2d 313, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 205, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 77, 78 (2 cases), 317 U. S. 671, 87 L. Ed. 539).

In prosecution for housebreaking and larceny, evidence was sufficient to sustain determination that defendant was one of men who entered building and committed larceny. Bord v. U. S., 1942 (133 F. 2d 313, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 205, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 77, 78 (2 cases), 317 U. S. 671, 87 L. Ed. 539).

In prosecution for housebreaking and larceny, record supported Government's theory that, while witness had made conflicting statements regarding whether he would testify, prosecutor reasonably believed that he would testify, and therefore action of prosecutor in calling witness who identified certain tools, but then relied on his privilege and refused to connect himself or defendant with the crime, was not objectionable on ground that defendant was deprived of a fair trial, where court instructed the jury to disregard witness' testimony and the tools which he identified. Bord v. U. S., 1942 (133 F. 2d 313, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 205, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 77, 78 (2 cases), 317 U. S. 671, 87 L. Ed. 539).

Where jury could find beyond a reasonable doubt that both defendant and his companion entered a room with intent to steal and that either defendant or his companion stole watch, defendant's conviction of larceny of a watch and of entering a room with intent to commit larceny was authorized, notwithstanding that defendant's part in the crimes may have been only to stand guard. Fretz v. U. S., 1944 (140 F. 2d 468, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 290).

Where evidence showed that crimes of housebreaking and larceny were committed in store building by two men, defendant was found in unexplained association with another who later confessed participation in crimes and each was in possession of some of the stolen property, evidence was sufficient to justify conviction. Edwards v. U. S., 1944 (139 F. 2d 365, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 226, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 523, 321 U. S. 769, 88 L. Ed. 1064).

Housebreaking, robbery and burglary are merely aggravated forms of larceny and evidence competent in one case is competent, also, in the others. Edwards v. U. S., 1944 (139 F. 2d 365, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 226, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 523, 321 U. S. 769, 88 L. Ed. 1064).

Evidence sustained a conviction for housebreaking. Henderson v. United States (C. A. D. C. 1949, 172 F. 2d 289, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 295).

INDETERMINATE SENTENCE ACT

Under the Indeterminate Sentence Act the trial court could impose a term of imprisonment of 15 years, or less, as a maximum, i. e., not more than one-fifth of the 15 years. Anderson v. Rives (66 App. D. C. 174, 85 Fed. (2d) 673).

INDICTMENT

There is no variance where the indictment alleges that building entered was occupied by A and the proof shows occupancy by B, with the consent of A. Cady v. United States (54 App. D. C. 10, 293 Fed. 829).

The attempt to identify particular room in indictment charging larceny of watch and entering a room with intent to commit larceny was harmless surplusage. Fretz v. U. S., 1944 (140 F. 2d 468, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 290).

The purpose of the law in requiring the name of the person who occupied and used building entered to be stated in indictment is to negative the defendant's right to break and enter and to protect him from a second prosecution for the same offense. Bord v. U. S., 1942 (133 F. 2d 213, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 205, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 77, 78 (2 cases), 317 U. S. 671, 87 L. Ed. 539).

INSTRUCTIONS

In prosecution for housebreaking and larceny, where after jury had been out several hours the court recalled jury and stated that a juror should ask himself whether his view is reasonable or unreasonable, that he should not be bullheaded, that he should not be stubborn, and that if he found himself in a small minority he should ask himself "would I be shocking my conscience or reason if I yielded", use of the words "bullheaded" and "stubborn" did not coerce the jury, in view of additional parts of the instruction. Bord v. U. S., 1942 (133 F. 2d 313, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 205, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 77, 78 (2 cases), 317 U. S. 671, 87 L. Ed. 539).

INTENT

Unlawful entry with intent to commit an offense constitutes the crime, hence, the actual commission of the other offense is not necessary. Lee v. United States (37 App. D. C. 442).

Evidence, that lock on garage had been pulled, that defendants were in the garage that morning and when questioned by a witness at that time refused to make a response and drove away, was sufficient to sustain conviction of feloniously entering with intent to commit larceny. Cady v. United States (54 App. D. C. 10, 293 Fed. 829).

JOINDER

Counts of housebreaking and of larceny committed after the entry may be joined, and the court does not err in refusing to require the government to elect between them. Lee v. United States (37 App. D. C. 442).

Chapter 19.—INCEST

Sec.
22–1901. Definition and penalty.

§ 22–1901 [6: 176]. Definition and penalty.

If any person in the District related to another person within and not including the fourth degree of consanguinity, computed according to the rules of the Roman or civil law, shall marry or cohabit with or have sexual intercourse with such other so-related person, knowing him or her to be within said degree of relationship, the person so offending shall be deemed guilty of incest, and, on conviction thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than twelve years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1332, ch. 854, § 875.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

§ 317 of the act of Mar. 4, 1909, 35 Stat. 1149, ch. 321 (U. S. C., title 18, § 517) provides for a penalty of 15 years for the same offense. § 311 thereof makes the section applicable when the offense is "committed within any Territory or District, or within or upon any place within the exclusive jurisdiction of the United States."

CROSS REFERENCE

Assault with intent to commit crime, possession of firearm, additional penalty, §§ 22–3201, 22–3202.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

INSTRUCTIONS

In prosecution for incest, refusal to give a prayer requested by defendant concerning reputation was not error where the subject had been adequately covered in an instruction given. Hodge v. U. S., 1942 (126 F. 2d 849, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 332).

VIEW OF PREMISES

In prosecution for incest, refusal to grant defendant's motion for view of premises was not an abuse of discretion. Hodge v. U. S., 1942 (126 F. 2d 849, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 332).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CONSTITUTIONALITY

No merit exists in defendant's contention that the statute, as construed and interpreted by the trial court, countervenes the first and fifth amendments. Benjamin v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1950, 74 A. 2d 64).

GUILTY KNOWLEDGE

Guilty knowledge must be alleged and proved. Moens v. United States (50 App. D. C. 15, 267 Fed. 317).

INTENT IMPLIED

"If the indictment had charged knowledge of the character of the pictures in the possession of the accused, the criminal intent in exhibiting them would be implied from the guilty knowledge of their nature." Moens v. United States (50 App. D. C. 15, 267 Fed. 317).

SUFFICIENCY OF EVIDENCE

Without attempting to describe the pictures, court was of opinion that they were of such a nature as to sustain a finding of guilty by any recognized standard. Benjamin v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1950, 74 A. 2d 64).

Chapter 21.—KIDNAPING

Sec.
22–2101. Definition.

§ 22–2101 [6: 36]. Definition.

Whoever shall be guilty of, or of aiding or abetting in, seizing, confining, inveigling, enticing, decoying, kidnaping, abducting, concealing, or carrying away any individual by any means whatsoever, and holding or detaining, or with the intent to hold or detain, such individual for ransom or reward, shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by imprisonment for life or for such term as the court in its discretion may determine. This section shall be held to have been violated if either the seizing, confining, inveigling, enticing, decoying, kidnaping, abducting, concealing, carrying away, holding, or detaining occurs in the District of Columbia. If two or more individuals enter into any agreement or conspiracy to do any act or acts which would constitute a violation of the provisions of this section, and one or more of such individuals do any act to effect the object of such agreement or conspiracy, each such individual shall be deemed to have violated the provisions of this section. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1322, ch. 854, § 812; Feb. 18, 1933, 47 Stat. 858, ch. 103.)

AMENDMENT

The act of 1933 enlarges the venue of the crime, includes and defines a conspiracy to commit the crime, and omits the penalties.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

PARENT

"In no case, in the absence of an express provision of statute, can a parent be guilty of kidnaping his or her own minor child, unless the forcible taking is from the custody established by the decree of a competent court." Hard v. Splain (45 App. D. C. 1).

Chapter 22.—LARCENY—RECEIVING STOLEN GOODS

Sec.
22–2201. Grand larceny.
22–2202. Petit larceny—Order of restitution.
22–2203. Larceny after trust.
22–2204. Unauthorized use of vehicles.
22–2204a. Theft from vehicles.
22–2205. Receiving stolen goods.
22–2206. Stealing property of District of Columbia.
22–2207. Receiving property stolen from the District of Columbia.
22–2208. Destroying stolen property.

§ 22–2201 [6: 60]. Grand larceny.

Whoever shall feloniously take and carry away anything of value of the amount or value of $50 or upward, including things savoring of the realty, shall suffer imprisonment for not less than one nor more than ten years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1324, ch. 854, § 826; Aug. 12, 1937, 50 Stat. 628, ch. 599.)

AMENDMENT

The act of 1937 increased the value to $50.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

COMPARING EMBEZZLEMENT

To constitute larceny the property must be unlawfully taken from the possession of another, with the fraudulent intent to convert the same to his own use. He who takes without the consent of the owner commits a trespass. The offense of embezzlement consists in the wrongful conversion of the property which has been entrusted to the possession of another. He commits no trespass or wrong in acquiring the possession, but a breach of trust in converting the property to his own use. Rohde v. United States (34 App. D. C. 249).

Treasurer of unincorporated association who converts funds coming into his possession as such treasurer is guilty of embezzlement and not larceny. Rohde v. United States (34 App. D. C. 249).

Embezzlement is where any agent, attorney, clerk, or servant wrongfully converts to his own use anything of value which shall come into his possession or under his care by virtue of his employment, but his possession for a special limited purpose may not destroy legal possession of the owner, and therefore his subsequent conversion of the article would be larceny. Talbert v. United States (42 App. D. C. 1).

Driver of transfer truck who converts property while hauling it from a freight depot is guilty of larceny and not embezzlement. Weisberg v. United States (49 App. D. C. 28, 258 Fed. 284), citing Talbert v. United States (42 App. D. C. 1).

A bookkeeper and clerk in a hotel, to whom a guest delivers property for safe-keeping, and who subsequently abstracts them from the hotel safe, is guilty of larceny and not embezzlement. Chanock v. United States (50 App. D. C. 54, 267 Fed. 612, 11 A. L. R. 799).

EVIDENCE

In prosecution for housebreaking and larceny, evidence was sufficient to establish corporate character of occupant of property entered and owner of property stolen. Bord v. U. S., 1942 (133 F. 2d 313, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 205, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 77, 78 (2 cases), 317 U. S. 671, 87 L. Ed. 539).

In prosecution for housebreaking and larceny, evidence was sufficient to sustain determination that defendant was one of men who entered building and committed larceny. Bord v. U. S., 1942 (133 F. 2d 313, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 205, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 77, 78 (2 cases), 317 U. S. 671, 87 L. Ed. 539).

In prosecution for housebreaking and larceny, record supported Government's theory that, while witness had made conflicting statements regarding whether he would testify, prosecutor reasonably believed that he would testify, and therefore action of prosecutor in calling witness who identified certain tools, but then relied on his privilege and refused to connect himself or defendant with the crime, was not objectionable on ground that defendant was deprived of a fair trial, where court instructed the jury to disregard witness' testimony and the tools which he identified. Bord v. U. S., 1942 (133 F. 2d 313, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 205, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 77, 78 (2 cases), 317 U. S. 671, 87 L. Ed. 539).

Evidence that another person had stolen bag containing surgical instruments and placed bag on wheelbarrow used by such person and defendant in collecting junk and stated to defendant that bag had been found among garbage cans and that when contents of bag were discovered defendant made unsuccessful effort to return bag and instruments to owner, and later delivered bag and contents to policeman, was insufficient to convict defendant of grand larceny. Williams v. U. S., 1944 (140 F. 2d 351, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 322).

FORCE AND VIOLENCE

Larceny consists in "a wrongful and fraudulent taking" and it does not exclude the idea of force and violence, or of fraud accompanied by force, nor does it imply that the taking must be secret. Williams v. United States (3 App. D. C. 335).

HABEAS CORPUS

Where petitioners were arrested in Pennsylvania, charged with committing certain crimes in the District of Columbia, habeas corpus proceedings would be proper to raise jurisdictional questions respecting their removal to the District. U. S. v. Reing (D. C., E. D. Pa. 1948, 81 F. Supp. 367).

INDETERMINATE SENTENCE ACT

Person having been sentenced for two to four years for grand larceny, served 25 months and was then resentenced to serve 15 months on grounds that the prior sentences were void because the Indeterminate Sentence Act did not apply to such actions; held, however, that sentence does not run as of date of the original sentences. De Benque v. United States (66 App. D. C. 36, 85 Fed. (2d) 202, 106 A. L. R 839).

INDICTMENT

It is sufficient in the indictment to describe the property by the generic name of the class to which it belongs. Nordlinger v. United States (24 App. D. C. 406, 70 L. R. A. 227).

INFERENCES

Where theater was entered and money and property stolen therefrom and on same night adjoining flower shop was entered and money stolen therefrom, it could reasonably be inferred that the man who stole from the theater also stole from the flower shop. Bord v. U. S., 1942 (133 F. 2d 313, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 205, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 77, 78 (2 cases), 317 U. S. 671, 87 L. Ed. 539).

Where defendant was charged with entering and stealing from theater and with entering and stealing from adjoining flower shop on same night, instruction that, if jury found defendant guilty of entering and stealing from theater, they might but need not draw the inference that it was he who entered and stole from the flower shop, was proper. Bord v. U. S., 1942 (133 F. 2d 313, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 205, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 77, 78 (2 cases), 317 U. S. 671, 87 L. Ed. 539).

Where evidence showed that crimes of housebreaking and larceny were committed in store building by two men, defendant was found in unexplained association with another who later confessed participation in crimes and each was in possession of some of the stolen property, evidence was sufficient to justify conviction. Edwards v. U. S., 1944 (139 F. 2d 365, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 226, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 523, 321 U. S. 769, 88 L. Ed. 1064).

INSTRUCTIONS

In prosecution for housebreaking and larceny, where after jury had been out several hours the court recalled jury and stated that a juror should ask himself whether his view is reasonable or unreasonable, that he should not be bullheaded, that he should not be stubborn, and that if he found himself in a small minority he should ask himself "would I be shocking my conscience or reason if I yielded", use of the words "bullheaded" and "stubborn," did not coerce the jury, in view of additional parts of the instruction. Bord v. U. S., 1942 (133 F. 2d 313, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 205, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 77, 78 (2 cases), 317 U. S. 671, 87 L. Ed. 539).

INTENT

Unlawful taking is not sufficient, it must be coupled with the intent to steal. Ryan v. United States (26 App. D. C. 74, 6 Ann. Cas. 633).

Drunkenness no defense unless "so drunk as to be incapable of forming the intent to steal; that is to say, incapable of consciousness that he is committing a crime, incapable of discriminating between right and wrong." Ryan v. United States (26 App. D. C. 74, 6 Ann. Cas. 633).

Where possession is secured by fraud, trick, or artifice the criminal intent must exist at the time the article is received. Talbert v. United States (42 App. D. C. 1). See also Woodward v. United States (38 App. D. C. 323); Miller v. United States (41 App. D. C. 52, cert. den. 231 U. S. 755, 58 L. Ed. 468, 34 Sup. Ct. 323).

Where possession of jewelry is secured by a salesman for the purpose of exhibiting the same to a prospective purchaser, and he subsequently converts it to his own use, the offense is larceny, and it is immaterial when the intent to convert was formed. Talbert v. United States (42 App. D. C. 1).

INTOXICATION AS DEFENSE

One who steals while intoxicated may nevertheless be convicted if he converts the property after complete return to consciousness. Ryan v. United States (26 App. D. C. 74, 6 Ann. Cas. 633).

LIABILITY OF ARRESTING OFFICER

Arrest of one without warrant on strong suspicion of stealing a pocketbook containing $30, precluded maintenance of action for false arrest, since the officers could not know the amount of money it contained. Maghan v. Jerome (67 App. D. C. 9, 88 Fed. (2d) 1001).

LOCUS OF CONVERSION

The fact that one who, while intoxicated, stole an automobile and converted the same beyond the District of Columbia does not prevent a prosecution here, when the original taking was in the District. Ryan v. United States (26 App. D. C. 74, 6 Ann. Cas. 633).

Indictment for larceny will not lie against one who steals property in another state and brings it into the District. Brown v. United States (35 App. D. C. 548, Ann. Cas. 1912A, 388), citing Davis v. United States (18 App. D. C. 468).

PRIOR ACQUITTAL—TEST

On plea of prior acquittal, the test of the identity of offenses that has commonly been applied in such cases is whether the facts necessary to conviction under the second indictment would have been sufficient, if proved, to warrant a conviction under the first. Nordlinger v. United States (24 App. D. C. 406, 70 L. R. A. 227).

PROOF

Where indictment alleges ownership in A B R, and the proof shows A P R, the variance is not prejudicial. Jones v. United States (53 App. D. C. 138, 289 Fed. 536). See also Williams v. United States (3 App. D. C. 335).

The corporate character of the owner or occupant of property stolen or entered may be proved by "reputation"; that is, by evidence tending to show that the corporation was de facto organized and acting as such. Bord v. U. S., 1942 (133 F. 2d 313, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 205, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 77, 78 (2 cases), 317 U. S. 671, 87 L. Ed. 539).

UNEXPLAINED POSSESSION OF STOLEN PROPERTY

"The unexplained exclusive possession of stolen property, shortly after the commission of a larceny, may satisfy the jury and warrant a verdict of guilty" of larceny. Tractenberg v. United States (53 App. D. C. 396, 293 Fed. 476).

Possession of recently stolen property, unexplained, is sufficient to support conviction for larceny. Edwards v. U. S., 1944 (139 F. 2d 365, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 226, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 523, 321 U. S. 769, 88 L. Ed. 1064).

§ 22–2202 [6: 61]. Petit larceny—Order of restitution.

Whoever shall feloniously take and carry away any property of value of less than $50, including things savoring of the realty, shall be fined not more than $200 or be imprisoned for not more than one year, or both. And in all convictions for larceny, either grand or petit, the trial justice may, in his sound discretion, order restitution to be made of the value of the money or property shown to have been stolen by the defendant and made way with or otherwise disposed of and not recovered. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1324, ch. 854, § 827; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 535, ch. 1329; Aug. 12, 1937, 50 Stat. 628, ch. 599.)

AMENDMENTS

The 1902 amendment added the second sentence to this section.

The 1937 act changed the value of the property taken from $35 to $50.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CONTINUANCE

Where the trial court had said a doctor's certificate would be required before the case could be continued on account of appellant's illness, and appellant was produced in court, and the trial continued without further objection, the question of granting the continuance was in the judicial discretion of the trial court. Campbell v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 65 A. 2d 191).

CONVERSION

One who is handed a bill or coin for the purpose of making change receives only custody of the money, and if he returns less than the correct change, with the felonious intent of converting the remainder to his own use, he is guilty of larceny. Rice v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 64 A. 2d 567).

EVIDENCE

Where jury could find beyond a reasonable doubt that both defendant and his companion entered a room with intent to steal and that either defendant or his companion stole watch, defendant's conviction of larceny of a watch and of entering a room with intent to commit larceny was authorized, notwithstanding that defendant's part in the crimes may have been only to stand guard. Fretz v. U. S., 1944 (140 F. 2d 468, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 290).

In prosecution for petit larceny, which if committed was complete before fight ensued, admission of testimony concerning fight and nature of prosecuting witness' wounds was prejudicial error. Furr v. U. S. (D. C. 1943, 32 A. 2d 111).

In prosecution for petit larceny, admission of evidence regarding subsequent fight and nature of wounds received by prosecuting witness was so plainly prejudicial that appellate court had right to notice and correct the error even if it had not been properly saved for review. Furr v. U. S. (D. C. 1943, 32 A 2d 111).

Where after defendant left the store, he was arrested for petty larceny by the store detective who was the prosecuting witness and whose testimony was accepted as true by the jury, as it obviously was, the guilt of appellant was established beyond a reasonable doubt. Campbell v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 65 A. 2d 191).

Defendant's assignment of error that there was insufficient evidence to justify conviction, where the testimony of complaining witness was uncorroborated, is unsound since it has been repeatedly held that generally testimony of a single witness may legally suffice as evidence upon which a jury may found the verdict. Rice v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 64 A. 2d 567).

Where defendant was convicted of petty larceny upon evidence obtained during an unlawful search and seizure, it must be reversed. The search of her desk was an invasion upon her privacy so as to constitute a violation of the Fourth Amendment. Blok v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 70 A. 2d 55).

Indictment

The attempt to identify particular room in indictment charging larceny of watch and entering a room with intent to commit larceny was harmless surplusage. Fretz v. U. S., 1944 (140 F. 2d 468, U. S. App. D. C. 290).

Instructions

Trial judge did not violate the rule of singling out and declaring the effect of certain facts, without consideration of other modifying facts, where by instructing the jury, he outlined the issues, and said among other things that "it was a question of fact for the jury to determine whether the cash register receipts had been obtained by defendant before, at the time of, or after his appearance at the store from which defendant was convicted of petty larceny of an item from the store." Campbell v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 65 A. 2d 191).

Offense is Misdemeanor

Stealing of less than $35 is a misdemeanor and an officer may not arrest for a misdemeanor without a warrant unless it is committed in his presence or within his view. Maghan v. Jerome (67 App. D. C. 9, 88 Fed. (2d) 1001).

Probation Conditioned on Restitution

The Municipal Court of the District of Columbia may in its discretion order restitution or reparation as a condition of probation. Basile v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 38 A. 2d 620).

§ 22–2203 [6: 98]. Larceny after trust.

That if any person entrusted with the possession of anything of value, including things savoring of the realty, for the purpose of applying the same for the use and benefit of the owner or person, so delivering it, shall fraudulently convert the same to his own use he shall, where the value of the thing so converted is $50 or more, be punished by imprisonment for not less than one nor more than ten years, or by a fine of not more than $1,000, or both; and where the value of the thing so converted is less than $50 he shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than one year or by a fine of not more than $500 or both: Provided, That nothing contained in this section shall be construed to alter or repeal any section contained in this chapter. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 851b, as added Mar. 3, 1913, 37 Stat. 727, ch. 108; Aug. 12, 1937, 50 Stat. 629, ch. 599.)

Amendment

The act of 1937 struck out § 851b as it was added to the 1901 code and inserted a new section in lieu thereof, changing the value from $35 to $50.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Comparing Embezzlement

Taking held to be embezzlement and not larceny after trust. Talbert v. United States (42 App. D. C. 1); Henry v. United States (50 App. D. C. 366, 273 Fed. 330, cert. den. 257 U. S. 640, 66 L. Ed. 411, 42 Sup. Ct. 51).

Election of Offenses

Where indictment charged embezzlement, false pretense, and larceny after trust, any confusion which might have existed as a result of the prosecution being allowed to put in its case before making an election was dispelled by election at end of Government's case and by instructions to jury. Dobbins v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 157 F. 2d 257, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 99, 329 U. S. 734, 91 L. Ed. 634).

Where indictment charged embezzlement, false pretense, and larceny after trust, defendant's motion that Government be required to elect to place its case on one of the three crimes charged before putting in evidence was addressed to discretion of trial court and its denial of motion was not an abuse of discretion. Dobbins v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 157 F. 2d 257, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 99, 329, U. S. 734, 91 L. Ed. 634).

Fraud or Trick

This section has no bearing on larceny by fraud or trick. Talbert v. United States (42 App. D. C. 1).

Use and Benefit

"Under the provisions of this section, the possession of property must be intrusted 'for the purpose of applying the same for the use and benefit' of the person so intrusting it; that is, the person to whom intrusted must be clothed with some actual dominion and control over the property for the purpose named. Otherwise, he is a mere temporary custodian, and, if he wrongfully appropriates the property he is guilty of larceny, and not of the crime denounced by this section." Atkinson v. United States (53 App. D. C. 277, 289 Fed. 935).

§ 22–2204 [6: 62]. Unauthorized use of vehicles.

Any person who, without the consent of the owner, shall take, use, operate, or remove, or cause to be taken, used, operated, or removed from a garage, stable, or other building, or from any place or locality on a public or private highway, park, parkway, street, lot, field, inclosure, or space, an automobile or motor vehicle, and operate or drive or cause the same to be operated or driven for his own profit, use, or purpose shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or imprisonment not exceeding five years, or both such fine and imprisonment. (Feb. 3, 1913, 37 Stat. 656, ch. 23, § 826b, as added Feb. 3, 1913, 37 Stat. 656, ch. 23, § 1.

Cross Reference

Possession of firearm, additional penalty, §§ 22–3201, 22–3202.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Defense

Voluntary drunkenness does not constitute a defense to a charge of unauthorized use of a vehicle. Specific intent or knowledge is not an element of the offense since the statute involves only a "general criminal intent" which may be presumed from doing the prohibited act. Proctor v. U. S. (C. A., D. C. 1949, 177 F. 2d 656, 85 US App D. C. 341).

PRIMA FACIE RULE

In prosecution for unlawfully taking, using, operating, and removing a certain automobile truck from a certain street without owner's consent, the jury were entitled to apply the prima facie rule applicable to unexplained possession of recently stolen property. Epps v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 157 F. 2d 11).

QUESTIONS FOR JURY

In prosecution for unlawfully taking, using, operating, and removing a certain automobile truck without the consent of the owner, whether defendant was guilty was for jury. Epps v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 157 F. 2d 11).

VARIANCE

Where indictment charged defendant with unlawfully taking, using, operating, and removing certain automobile truck from a certain street without owner's consent and proof showed that such truck was parked right on such street, there was no variance. Epps v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 157 F. 2d 11).

§ 22–2204a. Theft from vehicles.

Whoever, after March 7, 1942, and in any period during which any restrictions on the sale or use of any of the articles hereinafter referred to are in effect pursuant to any law of the United States, shall feloniously take and carry away any oil or gasoline, or any other lubricant or fuel; or any antifreeze mixture, compound, or solution; or any tire, tire casing, inner tube, or rim; or any wheel, tire chain, battery, or other part, equipment, or accessory, of the value of less than $50, being then and there in, on, part of, or attached to any vehicle in the District of Columbia, shall suffer imprisonment for not more than three years: Provided, That nothing contained in this section shall be construed to affect the offense of grand larceny as defined by existing law. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 826c, as added Mar. 7, 1942, 56 Stat. 143, ch. 165.)

§ 22–2205 [6: 64]. Receiving stolen goods.

Any person who shall receive or buy anything of value which shall have been stolen or obtained by robbery, knowing the same to be so stolen or so obtained by robbery, with intent to defraud the owner thereof, if the thing or things received or bought shall be of the value of thirty-five dollars or upward, shall suffer imprisonment for not less than one year nor more than ten years; or if the value of the thing or things so received or bought be less than thirty-five dollars, shall suffer imprisonment for not more than two years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1324, ch. 854, § 829.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

ACCOMPLICE IN LARCENY

Hence one who advises, incites, or connives at the offense of larceny but is not present at the taking (although chargeable as a principal under 1901 code, § 908 [§ 22–105]) may be convicted of receiving stolen property when he subsequently purchases it from the thief. Weisberg v. United States (49 App. D. C. 28, 258 Fed. 284).

COMPARING LARCENY

"Under the prevailing modern rule the crime of receiving stolen goods is a substantive offense, separate and distinct from the larceny itself." Weisberg v. United States (49 App. D. C. 28, 258 Fed. 284).

EVIDENCE

Admissibility of evidence of other offenses is not subject to the qualification that the goods must have been received by the accused from the same person. Witters v. United States (70 App. D. C. 316, 106 Fed. (2d) 837).

KNOWLEDGE

Jury were properly instructed that defendant's knowledge that goods were stolen must be proved as a separate substantive fact. Baer v. United States (54 App. D. C. 24, 293 Fed. 843).

§ 22–2206 [6: 65]. Stealing property of District of Columbia.

Whoever shall embezzle, steal, or purloin any money, property, or writing, the property of the District of Columbia, shall suffer imprisonment for not exceeding five years, or be fined not more than five thousand dollars, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1324, ch. 854, § 831.)

Chapter 23.—LIBEL—BLACKMAIL

Sec.
22–2301. Libel.
22–2302. Libel—Publication—Sufficiency.
22–2303. Libel—Justification.
22–2304. False charges of unchastity.
22–2305. Blackmail.

§ 22–2301 [6: 38]. Libel.

Whoever publishes a libel shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or imprisonment for a term not exceeding five years, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1323, ch. 854, § 815.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

COMMON LAW

This section provides the punishment for libel, defining publication and justification but not libel itself. Common-law libel is thus meant. Ormsby v. United States ((C. C. A. 6), 273 Fed. 977).

PRIVILEGED COMMUNICATION

A scurrilous letter, addressed to the District Commissioners, charging certain of their subordinate officers with malfeasance in office, copies of which were sent to such officials, is not privileged, especially when no foundation for the charge appears. Raymond v. United States (25 App. D. C. 555, cert. den. 200 U. S. 619, 50 L. Ed. 623, 26 Sup. Ct. 755).

SENTENCE

One convicted under this section, and sentenced to 5 years' imprisonment at hard labor is not thereby subjected to "cruel or unusual punishment." Raymond v. United States (25 App. D. C. 555, cert. den. 200 U. S. 619, 50 L. Ed. 623, 26 Sup. Ct. 755).

§ 22–2302 [6: 39]. Libel—Publication—Sufficiency.

To knowingly send or deliver any libelous communication to the party libeled is a sufficient publication to subject the person sending or delivering the same to punishment as provided in section 22–2301. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1323, ch. 854, § 816.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

INDICTMENT

Indictment is clearly inconsistent with an inference that the asserted libel was a privileged communication or an act done in the performance of a legal duty, because of the allegation in the indictment that the libelous words charged were not only false, scandalous, malicious, and defamatory, but were uttered with the unlawful and malicious intention to vilify, defame, scandalize, and disgrace the subject of the publication. Ormsby v. United States ((C. C. A. 6), 273 Fed. 977).

§ 22–2303 [6: 40]. Libel—Justification.

Any publication of a libel shall be justified if it appear that the matter charged as libelous was true and was published with good motives and for justifiable ends. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1323, ch. 854, § 817.)

§ 22–2304 [6: 41]. False charges of unchastity.

Whoever wrongfully accuses any woman of unchastity shall be punished by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both, and shall also be liable to a civil action for damages by the party injured. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1323, ch. 854, § 818.)

CROSS REFERENCE

See note to § 22–2301. Ormsby v. United States ((C. C. A. 6), 273 Fed. 977).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CONSPIRACY

In action for damages under this section, an alleged conspiracy or combination is not one of the elements of the cause of action, as it is not created by the conspiracy, but by the wrongful acts done by the defendants to the injury of the plaintiff. Ewald v. Lane (70 App. D. C. 89, 104 Fed. (2d) 222).

CRIME AGAINST UNITED STATES

One who "wrongfully accuses a woman of unchastity commits a crime against the United States. And * * * an indictment for a conspiracy to commit * * * such an offense" charges an offense under said section 37 of the Federal Penal Code. Fletcher v. United States (42 App. D. C. 53, cert. den. 235 U. S. 706, 59 L. Ed. 434, 35 Sup. Ct. 283) (conspiracy to falsely accuse a woman of adultery in a divorce proceeding).

PRIVILEGED COMMUNICATION

Statement by physician to unmarried woman in the presence of a third party (who is there at the latter's request) that she is pregnant is privileged, in the absence of malice. Brice v. Curtis (38 App. D. C. 304).

§ 22–2305 [6: 42]. Blackmail.

Whoever verbally or in writing accuses or threatens to accuse any person of a crime or of any conduct which, if true, would tend to disgrace such other person, or in any way subject him to the ridicule or contempt of society, or threatens to expose or publish any of his infirmities or failings, with intent to extort from such other person anything of value or any pecuniary advantage whatever, or to compel the person accused or threatened to do or to refrain from doing any act, and whoever with such intent publishes any such accusation against any other person shall be imprisoned for not more than five years or be fined not more than one thousand dollars, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1323, ch. 854, § 819.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

AFFIDAVIT—PROBABLE CAUSE

When creditor, with intent to extort money, had accused debtor with conduct which, if true, would tend to subject him to the contempt of society, said debtor had probable cause for swearing out the affidavit under § 819 of the code (this section). Slater v. Taylor (31 App. D. C. 100, 18 L. R. A. (N. S.) 77).

COLLECTION AGENCY

No recovery can be had against a collection agency when they alleged that person's credit standing would be jeopardized if debt were not paid, as this does not violate the blackmail statute. Clark v. Associated Retail Credit Men (70 App. D. C. 183, 105 Fed. (2d) 62).

Chapter 24.—MURDER—MANSLAUGHTER

Sec.

22–2401. Murder in first degree—Purposeful killing—Killing while perpetrating certain crimes.
22–2402. Murder in first degree—Placing obstructions upon or displacement of railroad.
22–2403. Murder in second degree.
22–2404. Punishment for murder in first and second degrees.
22–2405. Punishment for manslaughter.

§ 22–2401 [6: 21]. Murder in the first degree—Purposeful killing—Killing while perpetrating certain crimes.

Whoever, being of sound memory and discretion, kills another purposely, either of deliberate and premeditated malice or by means of poison, or in perpetrating or attempting to perpetrate any offense punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary, or without purpose so to do kills another in perpetrating or in attempting to perpetrate any arson, as defined in section 22–401 or 22–402 of this Code, rape, mayhem, robbery, or kidnapping, or in perpetrating or in attempting to perpetrate any housebreaking while armed with or using a dangerous weapon, is guilty of murder in the first degree. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1321, ch. 854, § 798; June 12, 1940, 54 Stat. 347, ch. 339, § 1.)

AMENDMENT

The act of 1940 enlarged the crime of murder in the first degree by adding those provisions commencing "or without purpose so to do."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

AFTER ASSAULT

"A conviction for an assault and battery is no bar to a subsequent indictment for manslaughter, or murder, in case the person assaulted dies within a year and a day." Hopkins v. United States (4 App. D. C. 430).

Failure of deceased to secure proper medical attention after assault no defense to charge of homicide. Hopkins v. United States (4 App. D. C. 430).

ARRAIGNMENT

Arraignment consists of three parts: (1) Calling the defendant by name and commanding him to hold up his hand, that his identification may be certain; (2) reading to him the indictment; (3) taking his plea. Johnson v. United States (38 App. D. C. 347, affd. 225 U. S. 405, 56 L. Ed. 1142, 32 Sup. Ct. 748).

COMPARING COMMON LAW

"The definition of murder in section 798 of the 1901 code (this section) is the common-law definition of the crime." Hamilton v. United States (26 App. D. C. 382); Bishop v. United States (71 App. D. C. 132, 107 Fed. (2d) 297).

CONFESSIONS

The drunken condition of accused when making a confession, unless such drunkenness goes to the extent of mania, does not affect the admissibility of such confession in evidence. Bell v. United States (60 App. D. C. 76, 47 Fed. (2d) 438, 74 A. L. R. 1098).

While it is the general rule that a confession to be admissible must relate to the offense charged, it is equally true that it may include other offenses when there can be no separation of the relevant and irrelevant parts. Robinson v. United States (61 App. D. C. 370, 63 Fed. (2d) 147, cert. den. 289 U. S. 749, 77 L. Ed. 1494, 53 Sup. Ct. 697).

Where the evidence showed that one charged with murder in the first degree had made confession of his crime after being in custody but eleven hours, without fear or compulsion, the voluntariness of his confession was for the jury. McAffee v. United States (72 App. D. C. 60, 111 Fed. (2d) 199).

In prosecution for murder, where neither of defendants made any attack upon the voluntariness of their confessions, either on direct examination or cross-examination, and not until on redirect examination did they intimate that confessions were obtained by threats of police to hold relatives of defendants until confessions were made, admitting confessions was not error. Hawkins v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 158 F. 2d 652, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 1347, 331 U. S. 830, 91 L. Ed. 1844, rehearing denied 67 S. Ct. 1728, 331 U. S. 869, 91 L. Ed. 1872).

Error, if any, in permitting defendant's written confession to be received in evidence on ground that it clearly appeared that statement had been obtained through force, coercion and intimidation was rendered harmless by fact that defendant took stand in his own behalf and of his own accord gave testimony which was in all essential respects similar to statements in confession. Wheeler v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1948, 165 F. 2d 225, certiorari denied 68 S. Ct. 448, 339 U. S. 829, 92 L. Ed. 1155; see also 175 F. 2d 829, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 180).

CONVICTION OF LESSER OFFENSE

Where defendant is guilty of murder or nothing, it is not error to refuse to charge as to manslaughter. Horton v. United States (15 App. D. C. 310).

When, in homicide case, the only defense is insanity, but there is no evidence to reduce the crime from murder to manslaughter, it was not error for the trial court to state to the jury that the evidence will not justify a verdict of manslaughter. Horton v. United States (15 App. D. C. 310).

Where several strong men join in a criminal attack upon a defenseless man, knock him down, and, when he attempts to escape, pursue him and then with augmented numbers continue the assault, and one of the conspirators, while his confederates are beating their victim, plunges a knife into him, they should all be charged with manslaughter, even though they did not contemplate the use of the knife, for the conspirators must be presumed to know that great force and violence probably will result Patten v. United States (42 App. D. C. 239).

To reduce homicide from murder to manslaughter, defendant must not only show that he acted under the influence of passion but "in addition that there was a sufficient cause of provocation for his passion." Jackson v. United States (48 App. D. C. 272).

Law presumes that defendant, while attempting to perpetuate a robbery, foresaw and intended whatever consequences might naturally result from such an encounter. and the law, not as a matter of fact, but as a conclusion of legal reasoning and experience, considers this state of mind to be implied malice, the homicide would not be manslaughter which is an unlawful killing without malice, but murder either in first or second degree. Marcus v. United States (66 App. D. C. 298, 86 Fed. (2d) 854).

DELIBERATION

Evidence that defendant first struck his victim because she had complained about his work, that he went to floor above, obtained a stick from a fireplace, returned downstairs and killed her, that in the killing he used the stick and also choked her, and that to insure her death he used a knife, was sufficient to permit jury to find deliberation. Fisher v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1945, 149 F. 2d 28, certiorari granted 66 S. Ct. 27, 90 L. Ed. 416, rehearing denied 67 S. Ct. 24, 329 U. S. 818, 91 L. Ed. 697).

ELEMENTS OF CRIME

Premeditation and deliberation are necessary elements of first degree murder. Mergner v. U. S., 1945 (147 F. 2d 572, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 373, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1085, 89 L. Ed. 1971).

Murder first degree is defined by statute as a purposeful killing done either with premeditated malice or in committing or attempting to commit a felony. The statute also characterizes as such a killing one in the perpetration or attempted perpetration of any one of the enumerated felonies although there was no purpose to kill. Goodall v. U. S. (C. A., D. C. 1950, 180 F. 2d 397, cert. den. 70 S. Ct. 1009, 339 U. S. 987, 94 L. Ed. 924).

Since the indictment did not charge defendant with purposely killing another, but only with killing him while attempting to rob him, it was necessarily found under the second segment of the statute providing that the intent to kill is not an ingredient of the crime and need not be alleged or proved. Goodall v. U. S. (C. A., D. C. 1950, 180 F. 2d 397, cert. den. 70 S. Ct. 1009, 339 U. S. 987, 94 L. Ed. 924).

Murder first degree defined in statute as a purposeful killing done either with premeditated motive, or in committing or attempting to commit a felony, but also characterizes as such a killing done in the perpetration or attempted perpetration of any one of the five enumerated felonies, although there was no purpose to kill. Goodall v. U. S. (C. A., D. C. 1950, 180 F. 2d 397, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 148, certiorari denied, 70 S. Ct. 1009, 339 U. S. 987, 94 L. Ed. 924).

EVIDENCE

To make one criminal act evidence of another, there must be a connection to show that he who committed the one must have done the other, and the admissibility of such evidence is a judicial question. Burge v. United States (26 App. D. C. 524).

Evidence received tending to show defendant and wife quarreled and fought, sufficiently established the corpus delicti to justify receiving testimony of defendant's statements. Murray v. United States (53 App. D. C. 119, 288 Fed. 1008).

Evidence sustained conviction for murder committed while attempting to perpetrate robbery. Mumforde v. U. S., 1942 (130 F. 2d 411, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 107, certiorari denied, 1943, 63 S. Ct. 53, 317 U. S. 656, 87 L. Ed. 527).

In prosecution for murder committed while attempting to perpetrate robbery, admitting evidence that defendant entered plea of not guilty at preliminary hearing before committing magistrate, and that when defendant was asked to plead he answered that he was guilty of robbing and shooting, but that it was not premeditated or that he had not committed premeditated murder, was not prejudicial error where the evidence added nothing prejudicial either to confession or to evidence given by defendant at trial. Mumforde v. U. S., 1942 (130 F. 2d 411, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 107, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 53, 317 U. S. 656, 87 L. Ed. 527).

Under an indictment in the common-law form for murder in the first degree, the prosecution may prove facts to bring the case within any of the provisions of this section defining murder in the first degree. Burton v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1945, 151 F. 2d 17).

In murder prosecution, evidence of uncommunicated complaint which victim of defendant had made about his work prior to the offense was properly excluded, where the complaint was not a threat, and there was no claim of self-defense. Fisher v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1945, 149 F. 2d 28, certiorari granted 66 S. Ct. 27, 326 U. S. 705, 90 L. Ed. 416, rehearing denied 67 S. Ct. 24, 329 U. S. 818, 91 L. Ed. 697).

Evidence of premeditation and deliberation was sufficient to sustain conviction for first degree murder. Mergner v. U. S., 1945 (147 F. 2d 572, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 373, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1085, 89 L. Ed. 1971).

In first degree murder prosecution, evidence that defendant deliberately pursued and shot deceased's sister immediately after defendant shot deceased was admissible as tending to show that defendant's shooting of deceased was not an accident in an attempt at self-defense against deceased's husband, but was done with deliberate intent to kill. Copeland v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1945, 152 F. 2d 769, 80 U. S. App. D. C. 308, certiorari denied, 66 S. Ct. 1010, 328 U. S. 841, 90 L. Ed.).

Evidence that defendant found deceased with a woman with whom defendant was friendly, that some discussion ensued, and that later all went outside, where an altercation occurred and defendant cut deceased with a knife resulting in death, was sufficient evidence of deliberation and premeditation to go to jury upon charge of first-degree murder. Thomas v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 158 F. 2d 97, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 1303, 331 U. S. 822, 91 L. Ed. 1838).

Evidence supported conviction of codefendant who participated in robbery but who did not do the shooting or killing of another in perpetrating a robbery. Wheeler v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1948, 165 F. 2d 225).

In prosecution of three defendants jointly indicted on charge of murder in perpetration of robbery, where defendants suggested possibility that victim died of heart attack, exhibiting victim's clothing to jury and showing bullet hole in back of victim's coat was not improper. Hall v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1948, 168 F. 2d 161, certiorari denied 68 S. Ct. 1500, 334 U. S. 853, 92 L. Ed. 1775, rehearing denied 69 S. Ct. 9, 335, U. S. 839, 93 L. Ed. 391).

In murder prosecution, receiving evidence that revolver with which victim was shot had been stolen from house of certain person was not error on ground that it constituted evidence of offense other than that for which defendants were on trial, in absence of any evidence showing that any of the defendants had stolen the revolver or had received it knowing it to have been stolen. Hall v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1948, 168 F. 2d 161, certiorari denied 68 S. Ct. 1500, 334 U. S. 853, 92 L. Ed. 1775, rehearing denied 69 S. Ct. 9, 335, U. S. 839, 93 L. Ed. 391).

An examination of murder weapon by ballistics expert during trial was not part of the trial, and the fact that such examination was made in the absence of the defendant does not render inadmissible evidence concerning it. degree, indictment must stand. Goodall v. U. S. (C. A., D. C. 148, certiorari denied, 70 S. Ct. 1009, 339 U. S. 987, 94 L. Ed. 924).

Indictment

Statute of 1 Hen. V, ch. 5 (1413), requiring indictment to set forth "estate, or degree, or mystery of defendant and the town or county, etc., of which he was conversant," is not in force in this District. Lanckton v. United States (18 App. D. C. 348).

An indictment charging the commission of murder in a house situated in the District is not defective because it does not particularly describe the location of the house Lanckton v. United States (18 App. D. C. 348).

It is not necessary to charge in the indictment that accused was of sound mind and discretion. Hill v. United States (22 App. D. C. 395).

Indictment for murder is not defective for want of an express allegation of an intent to kill. Hamilton v. United States (26 App. D. C. 382), citing Hill v. United States (22 App. D. C. 395).

An indictment for murder which alleges that defendant did "choke, suffocate and strangle" of which the person died, is sufficient even though there is no allegation that the choking was "mortal." Hamilton v. United States (26 App. D. C. 382).

Requirement of copy of indictment and list of jurors and witnesses is mandatory. Aldridge v. United States (60 App. D. C. 45, 47 Fed. (2d) 407, revd. on other grounds 283 U. S. 308, 75 L. Ed. 1054, 51 Sup. Ct. 470, 73 A. L. R 1203).

Where indictment informed defendent in the plainest sort of language that he was charged with killing while attempting robbery, i. e., accused of murder in the first degree, indictment must stand. Goodall v. U. S. (C. A., D. C. 1950, 180 F. 2d 397, cert. den. 70 S. Ct. 1009, 339 U. S. 987, 94 L. Ed. 924).

Instructions to Jury

Charge to jury was proper which stated that the defendant might be found guilty of murder or manslaughter, or acquitted altogether if he killed deceased in the reasonable apprehension of danger to his own life, and it was not error for the trial court to exclude testimony to show vicious and dangerous character of deceased. Travers v United States (6 App. D. C. 450).

Instructions, that insanity was induced by operation of strong drink upon a mind rendered unsound by an injury, or that he was incapable of forming a specific intent to kill so as to reduce the crime to manslaughter, are not sufficient when the evidence does not support such instructions and where the jury is informed by other instructions that they must find that he had sufficient mental capacity to distinguish right from wrong at time of act, beyond a reasonable doubt. Snell v. United States (16 App. D. C 501).

A requested instruction of self-defense is defective which fails to state what the defendant was in imminent danger of. Jackson v. United States (48 App. D. C. 272).

Where instruction regarding second-degree murder and manslaughter was given at request of defendant's counsel, if the instruction was subject to criticism on ground that it was confusing because it opened up a matter not properly for jury's consideration, it was favorable to defendant, and he could not complain. Mumforde v. U. S., 1942 (130 F. 2d 411, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 107, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 53, 317 U. S. 656, 87 L. Ed. 527).

Where defendant testified that he entered store with definite purpose of committing robbery, but that a moment later he changed his mind and drew pistol from pocket hoping to quiet woman in charge, and thus to escape detection and arrest, but in excitement pistol was unintentionally discharged, instruction that, if defendant voluntarily abandoned his plan to rob before fatal shot was fired, defendant would not be guilty of murder in first degree, fully protected defendant's legal rights. Mumforde v. U. S., 1942 (130 F. 2d 411, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 107, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 53, 317 U. S. 656, 87 L. Ed. 527).

The perpetration of a robbery, during which act a homicide is committed, legally takes the place of that premeditation to kill which is necessary for murder in the first degree, and it was not error to give such instruction merely because the indictment for murder tendered no such issue as robbery. Burton v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1945, 151 F. 2d 17).

Instruction that defendant had a vital interest in outcome of case, and in testing truth and weighing force of defendant's testimony jury might do so in light of that interest as well as in light which might be shed by all other evidence in case, was not objectionable. Fisher v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1945, 149 F. 2d 28, certiorari granted 66 S. Ct. 27, 326 U. S. 705, 90 L. Ed. 416, rehearing denied 67 S. Ct. 24, 329 U. S. 818, 91 L. Ed. 697).

Instruction that in considering questions of intent, premeditation and deliberation, jury should consider entire personality of defendant, his mental, nervous, emotional and physical characteristics as developed by evidence was properly refused because it confused issue of insanity with question whether psychopathic characteristics of defendant prevented him from forming deliberate intent necessary to constitute first degree murder. Fisher v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1945, 149 F. 2d 28, certiorari granted 66 S. Ct. 27, 326 U. S. 705, 90 L. Ed. 416, rehearing denied 67 S. Ct. 24, 329 U. S. 818, 91 L. Ed. 697).

Failure to volunteer an instruction on question whether defendants were exhausted by hours of questioning when they confessed to murder charge was not error, where there was hardly sufficient evidence to warrant such an instruction and none was requested. Hawkins v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 158 F. 2d 652).

In prosecution for murder resulting in conviction of second-degree murder, the court's charge covering premeditation, malice, and self-defense was not erroneous. Thomas v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 158 F. 2d 97, certiorari denied 331 U. S. 332, 91 L. Ed. 1838).

Where robbery of fountain cash register at front of drug store by one of codefendants jointly indicted on charge of killing another in perpetrating robbery was a part of general holdup of store in perpetration of which other defendant killed proprietor while obtaining money in cash register in rear of store, defendant who did not do the shooting was not entitled to an instruction that two separate robberies had been committed, that such defendant could be convicted only of being accessory after the fact or that such defendant could be convicted only of offense of robbery. Wheeler v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1948, 165 F. 2d 225, certiorari denied 68 S. Ct. 448, 339 U. S. 329, 92 L. Ed. 1155; see also 175 F. 2d 829, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 180).

Fact that there was evidence that one of the three defendants jointly indicted on charge of murder in perpetration of robbery threw away the gun and bullets after the murder did not require an instruction that jury could find such defendant guilty as accessory after the fact, where such defendant's testimony and other circumstances stamped him as an accessory before the fact and therefore guilty as a principal. Hall v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1948, 168 F. 2d 161, certiorari denied 68 S. Ct. 1508, 334 U. S. 853, 92 L. Ed. 1775, rehearing denied 69 S. Ct. 9 335 U. S. 839, 93 L. Ed 391).

Court's comments concerning alibi as a defense were proper and not prejudicial where it was said that such defense should be given such weight and consideration to which it is entitled to under all facts and circumstances. Goodall v. U. S. (C. A. D. C. 1950, 180 F. 2d 397, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 148; certiorari denied, 70 S. Ct. 1009, 339 U. S. 987, 94 L. Ed. 924).

Appellant's claim that Court failed to charge that if jury believed him guilty of killing but if any reasonable doubt existed as to whether he committed murder first or murder second, it should be resolved in favor of the lesser crime, is without merit since such an instruction is necessary only when from the evidence as a whole the jury might reasonably find the dependent guilty in either degree and must decide which degree. Goodall v. U. S. (C. A., D. C. 1950, 180 F. 2d 397, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 148, certiorari denied, 70 S. Ct. 1009, 339 U. S. 987, 94 L. Ed. 924).

Instructions

Court's comments concerning alibi as a defense were proper and not prejudicial, where it was said that such defense should be given such weight and consideration to which it is entitled to under all facts and circumstances. Goodall v. U. S. (C. A. D. C. 1950, 180 F. 2d 397, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 148; certiorari denied, 70 S. Ct. 1009, 339 U. S. 987, 94 L. Ed. 924).

Intent

Defendant is guilty of murder if the deceased, in seeking to escape the violent assault of accused had a well-grounded belief that he would take her life or inflict serious injury, and so believing inadvertently fell into a canal and was drowned, and it is not necessary to show by the prosecution nor that the jury shall believe that the defendant had the malicious intent to do bodily harm. Norman v. United States (20 App. D. C. 494).

"A deliberate intent to take life is declared to be an essential element of murder in the first degree, and this, of course, must be shown as a fact." Sabens v. United States (40 App. D. C. 440); Jordon v. United States (66 App. D. C. 309, 87 Fed. (2d) 64).

Under this section defining "murder in first degree" as the killing of another while armed with or using a dangerous weapon in the perpetration or attempted perpetration of a robbery, it is not necessary to show that the killing was done purposely to raise the offense to first degree murder. Mumforde v. U. S., 1942 (130 F. 2d 411, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 107, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 53, 317 U. S. 656, 87 L. Ed. 527).

In prosecution for homicide, the recurrence of other acts of the sort tends to negative inadvertence, defensive purpose, or any form of innocent intent. Copeland v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1945, 152 F. 2d 769, 80 U. S. App. D. C. 308, certiorari denied 66 S. Ct. 1010, 328 U. S. 841, 90 L. Ed. —).

Intoxication

"Voluntary intoxication is neither an excuse nor a palliation for crime." Lanckton v. United States (18 App. D. C. 348).

Although defendant forms a deliberate and premeditated intent to kill while sober, and then voluntarily becomes drunk, he cannot be convicted of murder in the first degree, if at the time of the commission of the offense he was too drunk to deliberate and premeditate. Sabens v. United States (40 App. D. C. 440).

A charge given by the court of its own motion was proper to the effect that voluntary intoxication was generally not a justification for crime and that it is only considered when evidence tends to show condition of mind which rendered him incapable of forming an intent. Smith v. United States (50 App. D. C. 208, 269 Fed. 860).

Under this section, evidence of intoxication may be shown for purpose of proving lack of capacity to deliberate or premeditate; and under conflicting evidence, the question is for the jury. McAffee v. United States (72 App. D. C. 60, 111 Fed. (2d) 199).

Jury

What is reasonable adequate provocation is generally for the jury. Jackson v. United States (48 App. D. C. 272). See on provocation, Grant v. United States (28 App. D. C. 169).

"It is in the discretion of the court to permit the jury to separate in a homicide case, and his action in that respect will not be reviewed unless it appear affirmatively that prejudice resulted to the defendant." McHenry v. United States (51 App. D. C. 119, 276 Fed. 761, 34 A. L. R. 1109).

In prosecution of three defendants jointly indicted on charge of murder in perpetration of robbery, where two of three defendants testified that written statements given by them to officers were extorted by physical mistreatment, and officers denied having mistreated defendants, question as to whether written statements were voluntary and admissible was for jury. Hall v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1948, 168 F. 2d 161, certiorari denied, 68 S. Ct. 1508, 334 U. S. 853, 92 L. Ed. 1775, rehearing denied 69 S. Ct. 9, 335 U. S. 839, 93 L. Ed. 391).

Malice

However sudden the killing may be, if the means used, or the manner of doing it, or other external circumstances attending it, indicate a sedate and deliberate mind and formed design to kill, it will be upon express malice. Travers v. United States (6 App. D. C. 450).

"Implied malice constitutes murder in the second degree." Sabens v. United States (40 App. D. C. 440).

A heavy paling, with sharp, protruding nails, is a deadly weapon, from the use of which malice must be presumed. Patten v. United States (42 App. D. C. 239), citing Hopkins v. United States (4 App. D. C. 430 [use of brickbat]).

A homicide committed purposely and with deliberate and premeditated malice is murder in the first degree. "Malice aforethought" may be shown expressly, or may be "implied" from the commission of the act itself. Bishop v. United States (71 App. D. C. 132, 107 Fed. (2d) 297).

Means of Commission

"The proof of the means of commission of a homicide need not conform strictly to the averment of such means in the indictment. If the means of death proved agree in substance with that charged, it is sufficient." Hamilton v. United States (26 App. D. C. 382).

Mental Capacity

Mental dullness, weakness, or incapacity does not excuse from the consequences of crime, unless the evidence proves that defendant was at the time of the commission of the act so mentally impaired that he could not distinguish between right and wrong. Travers v. United States (6 App. D. C. 450).

Law does not recognize the doctrine of emotional insanity. Taylor v. United States (7 App. D. C. 27).

Refusal of the trial justice to admit in evidence an exemplification of the record of the Georgia State Sanitarium, showing the mental condition, treatment, and incarceration of certain relatives of the defendant, was proper. Snell v. United States (16 App. D. C. 501).

Where jury were fully informed that before they could find the accused guilty of the crime charged, insanity or unsoundness of mind being set up as a defense, they were required to find that the accused had sufficient capacity to distinguish between right and wrong, at the time of and with respect to the act which was the subject of inquiry, beyond a reasonable doubt. Snell v. United States (16 App. D. C. 501).

Motive

Government is not required to prove motive, but jury may consider absence of such proof as a circumstance in defendant's favor. Lanckton v. United States (18 App. D. C. 348).

Motive may be proved, because it "may be very important in determining whether or not the accused was actuated by deliberate, premeditated malice." McHenry v. United States (51 App. D. C. 119, 276 Fed. 761, 34 A. L. R. 1109). See also Lomax v. United States (37 App. D. C. 414), following McUin v. United States (17 App. D. C. 323).

On Appeal

In a homicidal case "it is the duty of an appellate court to correct any error prejudicial to the defendant, even though not properly raised in the trial court." Patten v. United States (42 App. D. C. 239). See Burge v. United States (26 App. D. C. 524).

Prejudicial Error

In prosecution for murder, where a police officer testified that defendant had failed to make a report to the police because of his record and defendant's counsel brought out the fact that the record referred to was failure to settle hotel bills, the net effect was not prejudicial to defendant. Burton v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1945, 151 F. 2d 17).

In murder prosecution, where a nurse who made a written statement to the police took the stand and her testimony was substantially the same as the written statement, any error in permitting statement to be introduced in evidence was not prejudicial. Burton v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1945, 151 F. 2d 17).

Accused in murder prosecution was required to plead and prove his own case and was responsible for the production in court of witnesses necessary to do so, and failure of the government to produce certain witnesses could not be regarded as prejudicial. Thomas v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 158 F. 2d 97, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 1303, 331 U. S. 322, 91 L. Ed. 1834).

Punishable by Imprisonment in the Penitentiary

"The words 'punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary' do not mean an offense that can be punished only by such imprisonment, but include such as may be so punished." United States v. Evans (28 App. D. C. 264).

Purposely

Quaere: Whether it is necessary to charge in indictment for first-degree murder that the killing was "purposely" done. As to this point the court did not decide but stated that, it is a safe rule, in criminal pleading, to follow the language of the statute, where there is any uncertainty in respect of its meaning. United States v. Evans (28 App. D. C. 269).

Proof of purpose in murder prosecution need not be direct; it may be inferred from the circumstances attending the killing. Jordon v. United States (66 App. D. C. 309, 87 Fed (2d) 64).

Prosecution required to show purpose to kill in murder prosecution. Jordon v. United States (66 App. D. C. 309, 87 Fed. (2d) 64).

Questions Withheld From Jury

Under all the facts and circumstances, the question whether there had been only second degree murder because of the killer's intoxication should not have been submitted to the jury. Goodall v. U. S. (C. A., D. C. 1950, 180 F. 2d 397; 86 U. S. App. D. C. 148, certiorari denied, 70 S. Ct. 1009, 339 U. S. 987, 94 L. Ed. 924).

Self-Defense

To justify application of the law of self-defense, the defendant must show clearly that he was attacked, and that he had good reason to believe that he was in imminent peril of his life or of great bodily harm. Hopkins v. United States (4 App. D. C. 430).

Accidental homicide and homicide in self-defense are wholly irreconcilable. Fearson v. United States (10 App. D. C. 536).

Court properly charged the jury that they should consider the words and acts of the deceased and any threats against the accused at the time of the killing. Wallace v. United States (18 App. D. C. 152).

Stabbing of a woman is not justifiable as self-defense in absence of anything to show that defendant suffered pain, or was apprehensive of bodily harm so serious as to suggest the use of a deadly weapon. Grant v. United States (28 App. D. C. 169).

Before one can be permitted to take life under the apprehension that he is in danger of life or serious bodily harm from the violence of another, it must appear that he had a reasonable right to believe, from all the facts and circumstances presented to his mind, that he was in such danger. Sacrini v. United States (38 App. D. C. 371).

In homicidal cases, where the defense is self-defense, the majority of the courts hold "that it is proper to give incidents or specific acts of violence within the knowledge of the witness or coming under his observation." From this view Shepherd, C. J., dissents, holding testimony should be confined to reputation of deceased for cruelty and violence. Marshall v. United States (45 App. D. C. 373). See on threats by accused, Lomax v. United States (37 App. D. C. 414).

A charge to the jury that it must appear that there was no reasonable occasion for the defendant to escape from the conflict was error, as the true test is whether circumstances presented to the mind of the defendant were such that would have produced upon the mind of any reasonable, prudent person, the reasonable belief that the deceased was about to kill him or do him serious bodily harm. Marshall v. United States (45 App. D. C. 373).

A charge is sufficient which states that "if a man reasonably believes that he is in immediate danger of death or grievous bodily harm from his assailant, he may stand his ground, and if he kills him he has not exceeded the bounds of lawful self-defense." Price v. United States (51 App. D. C. 106, 276 Fed. 628).

Severance

Refusal of motion of one of two defendants jointly indicted on charge of killing another in perpetrating a robbery for a severance on ground that such defendant could not obtain a fair and impartial trial because codefendant had made admissions and confessions out of his presence and hearing was not an abuse of discretion, where codefendant's testimony from witness stand was substantially to same effect as his former extrajudicial statement implicating moving defendant. Wheeler v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1948, 165 F. 2d 225, certiorari denied 68 S. Ct. 448, 339 U. S. 829, 92 L. Ed. 1155; see also 175 F. 2d 829, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 180).

Refusal to grant three defendants jointly indicted on charge of murder in perpetration of robbery separate trials was not an abuse of discretion, where trial court duly limited effect of evidence introduced which was competent against one defendant and incompetent as to others. Hall v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1948, 168 F. 2d 161, certiorari denied 68 S. Ct. 1508, 334 U. S. 853, 92 L. Ed. 1775, rehearing denied 69 S. Ct. 9, 335 U. S. 839, 93 L. Ed. 391).

SUMMATION OF EVIDENCE

Fact that trial court, when summarizing the evidence, took longer to summarize evidence of the prosecution did not establish that it had placed undue emphasis on evidence of prosecution and had minimized evidence of defendant, where more time was taken to summarize evidence of prosecution because it was more voluminous than that of defendant, and it was not claimed by defendant that certain facts were "singled out" without consideration of other modifying facts. Wheeler v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1948, 165 F. 2d 225 certiorari denied 68 S. Ct. 448, 339 U. S. 829, 92 L. Ed. 1155; see also 175 F. 2d 829, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 180).

TIME

Some appreciable time must elapse in order that reflection and consideration amounting to the deliberation and premeditation required for first-degree murder may occur. Bullock v. U. S., 1941 (122 F. 2d 213, 74 App. D. C. 220, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 39, 317 U. S. 627, 87 L. Ed. 507).

TRIAL PROCEEDINGS

An examination of murder weapon by ballistics expert during trial was not part of the trial. The fact that such examination was made in the absence of the defendant does not render inadmissible the evidence concerning it. Goodall v. U. S. (C. A., D. C. 1950, 180 F. 2d 397, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 148, certiorari denied, 70 S. Ct. 1009, 339 U. S. 987, 94 L. Ed. 924).

VERDICT

In District of Columbia a jury may not qualify a verdict of murder in the first degree by adding thereto "without capital punishment." Johnson v. United States (38 App. D. C. 347, affd. 225 U. S. 405, 56 L. Ed. 1142, 32 Sup. Ct 748).

Where the evidence was sufficient for jury on charge of first-degree murder and jury was properly instructed, court's refusal to direct a verdict on first-degree murder charge could not be held to have erroneously influenced jury in reaching its verdict of second-degree murder. Thomas v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 158 F. 2d 97, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 1303, 331 U. S. 822, 91 L. Ed. 1838).

WHILE ATTEMPTING ROBBERY

Homicide committed while attempting robbery is first-degree murder. United States v. Evans (28 App. D. C. 264).

Evidence supported conviction of murder while perpetrating robbery. Medley v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 155 F. 2d 857, 81 U. S. App. D. C. 85, certiorari denied 66 S. Ct. 1377, 328 U. S. 873, 90 L. Ed. 1642, rehearing denied 67 S. Ct. 35, 929 U. S. 822, 91 L. Ed. 680).

One who kills as he robs is charged by this section with having that degree of malice which is indispensable to murder in the first degree. Wheeler v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1948, 165 F. 2d 225, certiorari denied 68 S. Ct. 448, 339 U. S. 829, 92 L. Ed. 1155; see also 175 F. 2d 829, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 180).

WHILE HOUSE BREAKING

This section defined murder in the first degree as purposely killing a human being either with deliberate or premeditated malice, or by poison, or in perpetrating or attempting to perpetrate any offense punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary. Housebreaking being so punishable, one who commits a homicide while engaged in that offense may be charged with first degree murder. Monroe v. United States (56 App. D. C. 80, 10 Fed (2d) 645).

§ 22–2402 [6: 22]. Murder in first degree—Placing obstructions upon or displacement of railroad.

Whoever maliciously places an obstruction upon a railroad or street railroad, or displaces or injures anything appertaining thereto, or does any other act with intent to endanger the passage of any locomotive or car, and thereby occasions the death of another, is guilty of murder in the first degree. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1321, ch. 854, § 799.)

§ 22–2403 [6: 23]. Murder in second degree.

Whoever with malice aforethought, except as provided in sections 22–2401, 22–2402, kills another, is guilty of murder in the second degree. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1321, ch. 854, § 800; June 12, 1940, 54 Stat. 347, ch. 339.)

AMENDMENT

This section was re-enacted in the act of 1940.

CROSS REFERENCE

See notes to § 22–2401.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

ACCIDENT—PURPOSE LACKING

If defendant did not have purpose to kill or if pistol went off accidentally, he would be guilty of murder in the second degree. Marcus v. United States (66 App D. C. 298. 86 Fed. (2d) 854).

Instruction to jury was correct to the effect that if in perpetrating the crime the killing was not done purposely but by accident or otherwise, appellant was not guilty of murder in the first degree. Jordon v. United States (66 App. D. C. 309, 87 Fed. (2d) 64).

ADMISSIBILITY OF EVIDENCE

In murder prosecution, where preceding witnesses had testified that defendant stabbed deceased with a knife, testimony that immediately after the stabbing deceased exclaimed "I've been stuck" was admissible as part of the res gestae, although the witness so testifying did not also testify that the attack had taken place. U. S. v. Edmonds (D. C., D. C. 1946, 63 F. Supp. 968).

In prosecution for murder of husband, forged letter written by accused to a friend of husband and purporting to be a confession of murder by fictitious person was admissible, though letter was postmarked and delivered several months after crime was committed. Harris v. U. S. (C. A., D. C. 1948, 169 F. 2d 887, certiorari denied 69 S. Ct. 161, 335 U. S. 873, 93 L. Ed. 417).

EXAMINATION OF WITNESSES

In murder prosecution, where defense counsel had elicited from defendant on direct examination the fact that he had been in jail continuously from time of his arrest, court properly permitted government counsel on cross-examination to inquire of defendant whether it was not a fact that the court had set bail at $1,500 and that defendant therefore had an opportunity to obtain release while awaiting trial if he had been able to secure bond. U. S. v. Edmonds (D. C., D. C. 1946, 63 F. Supp. 968).

In murder prosecution, permitting government counsel on cross-examination to inquire of defendant whether it was not a fact that the court had set bail at $1,500 and that defendant could have obtained his release while awaiting trial if he had been able to secure bond, after defendant's counsel had brought out the fact that defendant had been in jail continuously from time of his arrest, did not affect the course of the trial so as to be ground for new trial. U. S. v. Edmonds (D. C., D. C. 1946, 63 F. Supp. 968).

Defendant was not prejudiced by trial court's propounding questions to him when he was testifying as a witness, where defendant by the interchange was enabled to make a logical answer explaining his conduct, entirely consistent with his theory of self-defense. Griffin v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1947, 164 F. 2d 903).

INDETERMINATE SENTENCE ACT

Indeterminate Sentence Act is inapplicable to second degree murder and the existing statute providing a penalty of imprisonment for life or for not less than 20 years remains in effect, and definite term of 20 years is a valid sentence. Anderson v. Rives (66 App. D. C. 174, 85 Fed. (2d) 673).

INSTRUCTIONS TO JURY

In prosecution for murder, court properly instructed that, if defendant did flee from the scene, jury had right to consider that fact as a consciousness of guilt, if jury deemed it proper to do so. U. S. v. Edmonds (D. C., D. C. 1946, 63 F. Supp. 968).

In murder prosecution, where court called jury's attention to defendant's denial that he fled from the scene, and permitted jury to determine that question before they could consider flight as a consciousness of guilt, court did not err in refusing to elaborate by giving an additional charge to the effect that defendant claimed that he ran from the scene not for the purpose of avoiding arrest but because of fear of attack by decedent's companion. U. S. v. Edmonds (D. C., D. C. 1946, 63 F. Supp. 968).

Although the indictment charged murder in first degree, appellant could have been found guilty of murder second degree had the evidence warranted it, since a defendant may be found guilty of any offense necessarily included in the crime charged in the indictment. Goodall v. U. S. (C. A., D. C. 1950, 180 F. 2d 397, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 148, certiorari denied, 70 S. Ct. 1009, 339 U. S. 987, 94 L. Ed. 924).

Appellant's claim that Court failed to charge that if jury believed him guilty of killing but if any reasonable doubt existed as to whether he committed murder first or murder second, it should be resolved in favor of the lesser crime, is without merit, since such an instruction is neccessary only when from the evidence as a whole the jury might reasonably find guilty in either degree and must decide which degree. Goodall v. U. S. (C. A., D. C. 1950, 180 F. 2d 397, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 148, certiorari denied, 70 S. Ct. 1009, 339 U. S. 987, 94 L. Ed. 924).

MALICE

Where a homicide directly resulted from excessive speed of the driver of an automobile carrying contraband liquor, after being told to stop by arresting officers, the illegal transportation was an offense punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary, and constitutes the malice essential to murder in the second degree. Lee v. United States (72 App. D. C. 147, 112 Fed. (2d) 46).

A defendant's voluntary intoxication does not of itself negative the malice required to constitute second-degree murder and thereby reduce second-degree murder to voluntary manslaughter. Nestlerode v. U. S., 1941 (122 F. 2d 56, 74 App. D. C. 276).

"Legal malice" does not necessarily mean a malicious or malevolent purpose or personal hatred or hostility toward deceased, but a state of mind which shows a heart unmindful of social duty and fatally bent on mischief, or which prompts a person to do an injurious act willfully to the injury of another. U. S. v. Edmonds (D. C., D. C. 1946, 63 F. Supp. 968).

A killing under the influence of passion, induced by insufficient provocation, may be "murder in the second degree," and an accidental or unintentional killing constitutes murder in the second degree if it is accompanied by malice. U. S. v. Edmonds (D. C., D. C. 1946, 63 F. Supp. 968).

QUESTIONS WITHHELD FROM JURY

Under all the facts and circumstances, the question whether there had been only second degree murder because of the killer's intoxication should not have been submitted to the jury. Goodall v. U. S. (C. A., D. C. 1950, 180 F. 2d 397, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 148, certiorari denied, 70 S. Ct. 1009, 339 U. S. 987, 94 L. Ed. 924).

REDUCTION TO MANSLAUGHTER

If the killing is committed in a sudden heat of passion, caused by adequate provocation, the crime may be reduced from murder to manslaughter, but a trivial or slight assault is not sufficient provocation for that purpose. U. S. v. Edmonds (D. C., D. C. 1946, 63 F. Supp. 968).

Jury was warranted in concluding that conduct of deceased in kicking defendant was not adequate provocation for the fatal stabbing of deceased, so as to reduce the killing to manslaughter. U. S. v. Edmonds (D. C., D. C. 1946, 63 F. Supp. 968).

SUFFICIENCY OF EVIDENCE

Evidence that defendant approached deceased and others with a knife in his hand and wantonly stabbed deceased during an altercation, resulting in death, warranted conviction of murder in the second degree. U. S. v. Edmonds (D. C., D. C. 1946, 63 F. Supp. 968).

Evidence that defendant found deceased with a woman with whom defendant was friendly, that some discussion ensued, followed by an altercation during which defendant cut deceased with a knife resulting in death, justified a finding that defendant acted with the malice aforethought essential to crime of second degree murder. Thomas v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 158 F. 2d 97).

Evidence sustained conviction of second degree murder as against contention that fatal wound was inflicted in self-defense. Parker v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1947, 158 F. 2d 185, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 861, 330 U. S. 829, 91 L. Ed. 1278).

§ 22–2404 [6: 24]. Punishment for murder in first and second degrees.

The punishment of murder in the first degree shall be death by electrocution. The punishment of murder in the second degree shall be imprisonment for life, or for not less than twenty years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1321, ch. 854, § 801; Jan. 30, 1925, 43 Stat. 798, ch. 115, § 1.)

AMENDMENT

The act of 1925 changes punishment of murder in first degree, from hanging to electrocution.

CROSS REFERENCE

NOTES TO DECISIONS

ACCIDENT—PURPOSE LACKING

If defendant did not have purpose to kill or if pistol went off accidentally, he would then be guilty of murder in the second degree and punishable by imprisonment for life, or for not less than 20 years. Marcus v. United States (66 App. D. C. 298, 86 Fed. (2d) 854).

INDETERMINATE SENTENCE ACT

Indeterminate Sentence Act is inapplicable to second degree murder and the existing penalty of imprisonment for life or for not less than 20 years remains in effect. Anderson v. Rives (66 App. D. C. 174, 85 Fed. (2d) 673).

PROSECUTION OF SECOND-DEGREE MURDER

Prosecution in District of Columbia for second-degree murder was properly conducted in name of the United States rather than in name of District of Columbia. Morton v. Welch (C. C. A. Va. 1947, 162 F. 2d 840, certiorari denied 68 S. Ct. 44, 332 U. S. 779, 92 L. Ed. 363, 68 S. Ct. 1498, 334 U. S. 848, 92 L. Ed. 1771).

SUPERSEDENCE

Provisions of the Criminal Code as to murder and manslaughter do not supersede or repeal the Code of the District of Columbia. Johnson v. United States (225 U. S. 405, 56 L. Ed. 1142, 32 Sup. Ct. 748, affg. 38 App. D. C. 347).

§ 22–2405 [6: 25]. Punishment for manslaughter.

Whoever commits manslaughter shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment not exceeding fifteen years, or by both such fine and imprisonment. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1321, ch. 854, § 802.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

INDICTMENT

Crime must be charged with reasonable particularity of time, place, and circumstances. United States v. Geare (54 App. D. C. 30, 293 Fed. 997, Knickerbocker Theater disaster).

INDICTMENT, SUFFICIENCY

Where manslaughter indictment against landlord, its vice president, and tenant, who operated rooming house, charged acts of negligence which were not violations of common law duties jointly owed by defendants, and indictment was uncertain concerning statutory and regulatory requirements with which defendants allegedly failed to comply, the indictment was bad on demurrer. U. S. v. Interstate Properties (App. D. C. 1946, 153 F. 2d 469, 80 U. S. App. D. C. 392).

If regulation is pleaded which requires notice from an official to person who owns or controls building that a specific condition must be remedied within a certain period of time, fact should be stated concerning the giving of such notice and allegations of manslaughter indictment that findings and directives were made known to defendants were insufficient, but nature of findings and directives and when and how they were made known to defendants should have been made to appear. U. S. v. Interstate Properties (App. D. C. 1946, 153 F. 2d 469, 80 U. S. App. D. C. 392).

Where manslaughter indictment charged landlord, its vice president, and tenant, who operated rooming house, with negligently failing to have a dumb-waiter shaft constructed of fire-resistive materials and negligently failing to provide a front fire escape, and that defendants were under duty to roomers to comply with all orders, rules, regulations, and ordinances relating to use, occupancy and safety of buildings, and particularly building code and elevator code of District of Columbia, and that regulations required dumb-waiter shaft to be of fire-resistive construction, the indictment did not sufficiently plead existence of applicable regulations requiring use of fire-resistive materials in dumb-waiter shafts and installation of front fire escape. U. S. v. Interstate Properties (App. D. C. 1946, 153 F. 2d 469, 80 U. S. App. D. C. 392).

INVOLUNTARY MANSLAUGHTER

Conviction on charge of involuntary manslaughter affirmed, upon evidence that defendant operated an automobile while drinking and in a criminally careless manner, and ran over and caused the death of a man whom he knew to be so intoxicated he could hardly stand. Story v. United States (57 App. D. C. 3, 16 Fed. (2d) 342, 53 A. L. R. 246).

JOINDER OF DEFENDANTS

Where manslaughter indictment charged landlord, its vice president, and tenant, who operated rooming house, with violation of alleged joint duty to use reasonable care to maintain premises in a reasonably safe condition, that defendants negligently failed to have a dumb-waiter shaft constructed of fire-resistive materials, that they negligently failed to forbid use of shaft as a receptacle for waste, and that they negligently failed to provide a front fire escape, the acts of negligence charged were not violations of common-law duties jointly owed by the defendants, and there was a misjoinder of defendants under common law principles. U. S. v. Interstate Properties (App. D. C. 1946, 153 F. 2d 469, 80 App. D. C. 392).

JURY

Deliberations of the jury should be confined to the charge in the indictment, and if defendant was not charged generally with negligence but with specific acts of negligence, namely, unlawful speeding and reckless driving, and if the death was not caused by those acts or one of them, he was entitled to a verdict of not guilty. Sinclair v. United States (49 App. D. C. 351, 265 Fed. 991).

MANSLAUGHTER, DEFINITION

"Manslaughter" is the unlawful killing of a human being without malice aforethought. U. S. v. Edmonds (D. C., D. C. 1946, 63 F. Supp. 968).

Chapter 25.—PERJURY

Sec.
22–2501. Perjury—Subornation of perjury.

§ 22–2501 [6: 131]. Perjury—Subornation of perjury.

Every person who, having taken an oath or affirmation before a competent tribunal, officer, or person, in any case in which the law authorized such oath or affirmation to be administered, that he will testify, declare, depose, or certify truly, or that any written testimony, declaration, deposition, or certificate by him subscribed is true, wilfully and contrary to such oath or affirmation states or subscribes any material matter which he does not believe to be true, shall be guilty of perjury; and any person convicted of perjury or subornation of perjury shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary for not less than two nor more than ten years. Any such false testimony, declaration, deposition, or certificate given in the District of Columbia, but intended to be used in a judicial proceeding elsewhere, shall also be perjury within the meaning of this section. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1329, ch. 854, § 858.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS

This section is broad enough to cover false testimony given under oath before any tribunal or any officer or person authorized to administer oaths. U. S. v. Meyers (D. C., D. C. 1948, 75 F. Supp. 486, affirmed 171 F. 2d 800, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 101, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 602, 336 U. S. 912, 93 L. Ed. 1076).

A United States senator as chairman of a subcommittee was an "officer or person authorized to administer oaths" within meaning of this section. U. S. v. Meyers (D. C., D. C. 1948, 75 F. Supp. 486, affirmed 171 F. 2d 800, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 101, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 602, 336 U. S. 912, 93 L. Ed. 1076).

ADMISSIBILITY OF EVIDENCE

In prosecution for perjury, teletype message sent by F. B. I. in Washington to Texas agent containing accusations that defendant had been guilty of fornication in District of Columbia was improperly received because of charge of another criminal offense. Pyle v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 156 F. 2d 852, 81 U. S. App. D. C. 209).

In perjury prosecution based on testimony of defendant in rape prosecution denying that signature on statement introduced in evidence was his, where no signatures were obtained from defendant during the perjury trial, signatures which were part of record from rape case were admissible and were not objectionable as requiring defendant to give testimony. Buckner v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 154 F. 2d 317, 81 U. S. App. D. C. 38).

Authorized by Law

An oath to portion of application for duplicate certificate of title for a motor vehicle, requiring a statement of reason for the application, was not "authorized by law" within meaning of this section. Shelton v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1948, 165 F. 2d 241).

Information called for by regulations under Traffic Act § 40–601 et seq., in an application for certificate of title is not required to be under oath so as to constitute a false statement perjury, though lien statement which Motor Vehicle Lien Law, § 40–701 et seq., requires that application contain, must be under oath. Shelton v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1948, 165 F. 2d 241).

Circumstantial Evidence

Falsity of sworn statement and that the accused actually remembered the facts which he had formerly sworn to may be proved by circumstantial evidence and the only issue in such a case is whether it meets the test of proof beyond a reasonable doubt. Behrle v. United States (69 App. D. C. 304, 100 Fed. (2d) 714).

Civil Service

Under civil-service regulations, false statements as to whether one had previously been employed by the Government, and whether he resigned or was discharged, was perjury within section R. S. § 5392 (U. S. C., title 18, § 231). Johnson v. United States (26 App. D. C. 128).

Conspiracy—Divorce

Crime of conspiracy to commit perjury under § 37 United States Penal Code of March 4, 1909 (35 Stat. 1088, ch. 321, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1588), relating to offenses against United States, and D. C. 1901, § 858 (this section) (31 Stat. 1329, ch. 854), denouncing perjury offenses, is charged by indictment alleging pending divorce suit in Supreme Court of District of Columbia, but such indictment does not come within meaning of the Code of 1901, § 910 (§ 22–107) which provides for punishment of offenses not covered by District Code or any law inapplicable to District of Columbia by United States. Fletcher v. United States (42 App. D. C. 53, cert. den. 235 U. S. 706, 59 L. Ed. 434, 35 Sup. Ct. 283).

Crime Against United States

A crime against United States is committed by any person who violates either § 818 (§ 22–2304) or this section of the District Code. Arnstein v. United States (54 App. D. C. 199, 296 Fed. 946).

Defense

A defense to a charge of perjury may not be established by the device of lifting a statement of the accused out of its immediate context and thereby giving it a meaning wholly different from that which its context clearly shows. Meyers v. United States (C. A. D. C. 1948, 171 F. 2d 800, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 101, 181 F. 2d 802, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 320, certiorari denied 70 S. Ct. 1030, 339 U. S. 983, 94 L. Ed. 923).

Federal Penal Code

Had Congress intended that the perjury statute in the Federal Penal Code should have effect in the District of Columbia, it would have said so in clear language. Carpenter v. United States (69 App. D. C. 306, 100 Fed. (2d) 716).

Habeas Corpus

If it be assumed, arguendo, that the Court erred in its trial of a perjury committed before Congress in holding that three Senators (admittedly present) of a Congressional subcommittee were qualified, at most it was a mere error of law not subject to attack by habeas corpus. Habeas corpus does not lie to correct mere errors in law. Proper remedy is by appeal. Meyers v. U. S. (C. A. D. C. 1950, 181 F. 2d 802, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 320, certiorari denied, 70 S. Ct. 1030, 339 U. S. 983, 94 L. Ed. 923).

Instructions

In perjury prosecution, instructions charging jury on matter of corroboration were proper. Buckner v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 154 F. 2d 317, 81 U. S. App. D. C. 38).

Issue

Question is not whether appellant made the statement voluntarily or involuntarily or whether the statement made was true or false, for it was not the truth or falsity of what he said which was involved, but simply the fact of his having said it. O'Brien v. United States (69 App. D. C. 135, 99 Fed. (2d) 368).

Marriage License

Under the statute defining perjury, generally, or by requirements of the statute which defines it in terms of false swearing by an applicant for a marriage license, the ultimate test of materialness in either case is whether such statements have a natural tendency to influence the clerk in his investigation of the facts, in the exercise of his official discretion, and in the administration of the law. Robinson v. United States (72 App. D. C. 254, 114 Fed. (2d) 475).

Materiality of Evidence

Perjury is committed when one states, contrary to his oath, any material matter which he does not believe to be true. Pyle v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 156 F. 2d 852, 81 U. S. App. D. C. 209).

Although perjury must relate to a matter which was material to the issue, the materiality need not be immediate, but it is sufficient if the false testimony gives weight to or detracts from testimony as to material facts in issue. Pyle v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 156 F. 2d 852, 81 U. S. App. D. C. 209).

Where defendant's testimony in prosecution of another for unlawful transportation of a girl for immoral purposes did not vary on issue of transportation from defendant's prior written statement, variations between statement and testimony on question of whether statement was given voluntarily, as to who paid rent on her apartment and other details, related to immaterial matters and furnished no basis for perjury charge. Pyle v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 156 F. 2d 852, 81 U. S. App. D. C. 209).

Nature of

The criminal nature of perjury is not removed by the fact that the perjurer later in the proceedings states the truth. Meyers v. United States (C. A. D. C. 1948, 171 F. 2d 800, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 101, 181 F. 2d 802, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 320, certiorari denied, 70 S. Ct. 1030, 339 U. S. 983, 94 L. Ed. 923).

Number of Offenses

One making two false statements, one violating this section and the other violating Motor Vehicle Lien Law, § 40–714, commits two offenses, though both statements are under one oath. Shelton v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1948, 165 F. 2d 241).

Perjury Before Congress

Where appellant was convicted of perjury before a Congressional committee, such conviction must be reversed where the committee did not constitute a quorum. All of the elements of the crime charged shall be proved beyond a reasonable doubt. An element of the crime of perjury is the presence of a competent tribunal, and a tribunal that is not competent, is no tribunal. Christoffel v. United States, 1949 (69 S. Ct. 1447, 338 U. S. 89, 93 L. Ed. 1826).

One may be indicted for perjury before Congress under this section. Meyers v. United States (C. A. D. C. 1948, 171 F. 2d 800, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 101, aff'd 181 F. 2d 802, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 320, certiorari denied, 70 S. Ct. 1030, 339 U. S. 983, 94 L. Ed. 923).

Reversal

Where counts charging perjury were merged and it could not be determined upon which false statement in application for certificate of title the jury rested its general verdict, but verdict if upon statement as to liens

The act of prostitution was not an offense indictable at common law, so as to entitle a person accused thereof to a trial by jury under the Constitution of the United States. Bailey v. United States (69 App. D. C. 25, 98 Fed. (2d) 306).

WHITE SLAVE ACT

The transportation of a woman wholly within the District of Columbia with the intent or purpose to induce or entice the woman transported to practice prostitution violates the Mann Act, 18 U. S. C. § 398. U. S. v. Beach, 1945 (65 S. Ct. 602, 324 U. S. 193, 89 L. Ed. 569, opinion conformed to 149 F. 2d 837, reversed 89 L. Ed. 865).

The Mann Act, 18 U. S. C. § 398, penalizing the transportation in the District of Columbia of any woman with the intent or purpose to induce or entice the woman transported to practice prostitution does not conflict with any other legislation applicable to the District. U. S. v. Beach, 1945 (65 S. Ct. 602, 324 U. S. 193, 89 L. Ed. 865, opinion conformed to 149 F. 2d 837).

The court may impose conditions upon any person found guilty under the aforesaid sections 22–2701, 22–2702 and so long as such person shall comply therewith to the satisfaction of the court the imposition or execution of sentence may be suspended for such period as the court may direct; and the court may at or before the expiration of such period remand such sentence or cause it to be executed. Conditions thus imposed by the court may include submission to medical and mental examination, diagnosis and treatment by proper public health and welfare authorities, and such other terms and conditions as the court may deem best for the protection of the community and the punishment, control, and rehabilitation of the defendant. The health officer of the District of Columbia, the Women's Bureau of the Police Department, the Board of Public Welfare, and the probation officers of the court are authorized and directed to perform such duties as may be directed by the court in effectuating compliance with the conditions so imposed upon any defendant. NOTES TO DECISIONS

CROSS EXAMINATION

Appellant's contention that the trial court improperly restricted his cross examination of complaining witnesses is without foundation where the record shows that the court permitted extensive, and in fact, exhaustive cross examination, particularly on matters affecting the witnesses' credibility. Wright v. United States (C. A. D. C. 1950, 183 F. 2d 821).

INDICTMENT

It was proper to charge in first count of indictment that defendants compelled, induced, enticed and procured a certain female to engage in prostitution, and in second count to charge an attempt. Welch v. U. S., 1943 (135 F. 2d 465, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 317, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 1329, 319 U. S. 769, 87 L. Ed. 1718).

EVIDENCE

Evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction for attempting to compel, induce, entice, and procure a certain female to engage in prostitution. Welch v. U. S., 1943 (135 F. 2d 465, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 317, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 1329, 319 U. S. 769, 87 L. Ed. 1718).

VERDICT

Where first count of indictment charged that defendants compelled, induced, enticed and procured a certain female to engage in prostitution, and second count charged an attempt, even if there had been inconsistency between directed verdict on first count and verdict finding defendants guilty on second count, that would constitute no reason for setting aside verdict of jury. Welch v. U. S., 1943 (135 F. 2d 465, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 317, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 1329, 319 U. S. 769, 87 L. Ed. 1718).

Where first count of indictment charged that defendants compelled, induced, enticed and procured a certain female to engage in prostitution, and second count charged an attempt, the fact that court directed a verdict on the first count and that jury convicted defendants on the second count resulted in no inconsistency. Welch v. U. S., 1943 (135 F. 2d 465, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 317, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 1329, 319 U. S. 769, 87 L. Ed. 1718).

§ 22–2706 [6: 180]. Compelling female to live life of prostitution against her will—Penalty.

Any person who, within the District of Columbia, by threats or duress, detains any female against her will, for the purpose of prostitution or sexual intercourse, or any person who shall compel any female, against her will, to reside with him or with any other person for the purposes of prostitution or sexual intercourse, shall be guilty of a felony and, upon conviction, shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than five years and a fine of not more than $1,000. (June 25, 1910, 36 Stat. 833, ch. 404, § 2; Jan. 3, 1941, 54 Stat. 1225, ch. 936, § 2.)

AMENDMENT

The 1941 amendment reworded this section throughout, broadened the scope of the offense, and provided that the offense should constitute a felony.

§ 22–2707 [6: 181]. Procurer—Punishment for receiving money or valuable thing for arranging assignation or debauchery—Penalty.

Any person who, within the District of Columbia, shall receive any money or other valuable thing for or on account of arranging for or causing any female to have sexual intercourse with any other person or to engage in prostitution, debauchery, or any other immoral act, shall be guilty of a felony and, upon conviction, shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than five years and a fine of not more than $1,000. AMENDMENT

The 1941 amendment reworded this section throughout, broadened the scope of the offense, and increased the penalty.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

AMOUNT OF MONEY RECEIVED

Under this section, it is immaterial whether the procurer receives much or little and it is not important whether payment is made all at once in a lump sum or in scattered amounts at different times. Boykin v. U. S., 1942 (130 F. 2d 416, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 147).

BROTHEL KEEPERS

This section does not penalize brothel keeper as such or agents who procure patrons for brothels or for woman elsewhere so long as they do nothing toward bringing the woman there for that purpose and for money or value received. Boykin v. U. S., 1942 (130 F. 2d 416, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 147).

COHABIT, DEFINITION OF

The word "cohabit" as used in this section, making it unlawful for person to receive money or valuable thing for procuring or placing in house of prostitution or elsewhere any female for purpose of causing her illegally to cohabit with any male person or persons, covers promiscuous and casual relations and is not used in strict sense of cohabiting with a single person in manner of husband and wife. Boykin v. U. S., 1942 (130 F. 2d 416, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 147).

CONSTRUCTION

Where there had been contradictory rulings in district court in interpreting this section, neither interpretation could be taken to have settled the law or as showing intent of Congress. Boykin v. U. S., 1942 (130 F. 2d 416, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 147).

Term "arranging" may include within its meaning the act of procuring as a part of the arrangement, but it certainly does not confine itself to only that activity and has much broader significance embracing many more activities than the one of procuring. Byas v. United States (C. A., D. C. 1950, 182 F. 2d 94, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 309).

CONVICTION, GROUNDS FOR

Under this section, the keeping and maintaining of a girl for prohibited purpose cannot be grounds for conviction. Boykin v. U. S., 1942 (130 F. 2d 416, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 147).

CROSS EXAMINATION

Appellant's contention that the trial court improperly restricted his cross examination of complaining witnesses is without foundation where the record shows that the court permitted extensive, and in fact, exhaustive cross examination, particularly on matters affecting the witnesses credibility. Wright v. United States (C. A., D. C. 1950, 183 F. 2d 821).

ELEMENTS NECESSARY

Under this section the placing of woman in house of prostitution or elsewhere for purpose of causing her to cohabit illegally with male person or persons and prohibited intent must coincide but payment for the placing need not do so and it may occur before, at, or after the placing, but whenever it takes place it must be for or on account of that act. Boykin v. U. S., 1942 (130 F. 2d 416, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 147).

EVIDENCE

Evidence of conditions of the defendant's house at the time of her arrest for violating statute, which established presence of the two women referred to in the indictment, was competent and relevant in proof of one element of each offense, i. e., "engagement in prostitution." Smith v. U. S. (C. A. D. C. 1950, 180 F. 2d 775).

INDICTMENT

To sustain conviction under this section, the government must charge and prove an act of procuring a woman for or placing her in a house of prostitution or elsewhere, for the purpose of causing her to cohabit illegally with a male person or persons, and that the defendant received money or other valuable thing for or on account of the procuring or placing. Boykin v. U. S., 1942 (130 F. 2d 416, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 147).

Where appellant was convicted on seven counts of an eight count indictment of receiving money for arranging for one to engage in prostitution, with four counts relating to one female and three to another, the crimes charged in the several counts were of the same character, permitting joinder of the counts. Smith v. U. S. (C. A. D. C. 1950, 180 F. 2d 775).

INSTRUCTIONS

In prosecution for violating this section, instruction informing jury to find defendant guilty if jury believed defendant kept, placed, or maintained girl at premises for prohibited purpose was reversibly erroneous, since it permitted jury to find defendant guilty without regard to placing or the intent with which it was done. Boykin v. U. S., 1942 (130 F. 2d 416, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 147).

In prosecution for pandering, where defendant produced witnesses who testified to his general reputation, and court refused requested instruction on weight to be given to evidence of good character but expressed purpose to instruct on the subject, failure to give instruction on weight to be given to evidence of good character was error. Colbert v. U. S., 1944 (146 F. 2d 10, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 261).

An erroneous instruction may be withdrawn or corrected at any time, at least prior to the time the jury retires to deliberate. Byas v. United States (C. A. D. C. 1950, 182 F. 2d 94, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 309).

Where judge told the jury that the essential elements of the crime would have to be proved by the government beyond a reasonable doubt before verdict of guilty could be found and immediately thereafter in a concise statement he set out the elements, no error was committed. Byas v. United States (C. A. D. C. 1950, 182 F. 2d 94, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 309).

Objection to court's use of the word "arrange" is without merit since it needs no judicial definition. It is a common word and admits of no double entendre which casts an umbrage of legal nicety beyond its ordinary meaning. Byas v. United States (C. A. D. C. 1950, 182 F. 2d 94, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 309).

Offense, Gist of

Under this section, the gist of the offense is the placing of a female in a house of prostitution or elsewhere for purpose of causing her illegally to cohabit with any male person or persons and not the receiving of money. Boykin v. U. S., 1942 (130 F. 2d 416, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 147).

Procuring Patrons

This section does not punish merely procuring patrons for a woman, or sharing her earnings, or keeping or maintaining her even with intent to cause her to cohabit illegally. Boykin v. U. S., 1942 (130 F. 2d 416, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 147).

Review

In prosecution for violating this section, where arresting officer was permitted to testify that defendant and his daughter were registered at hotel as man and wife, whether testimony was properly allowed to remain in evidence for purpose of showing defendant's knowledge of his daughter's activities would not be determined where reversal was required on other grounds. Boykin v. U. S., 1942 (130 F. 2d 416, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 147).

Defendant's contentions that this section outlaws only the act of placing, and that receiving money for or on account of some other act than placing, does not violate this section would be considered on merits notwithstanding claim that the contentions were too late because raised for the first time on appeal, in view of unusual circumstances in which appeal had been taken and perfected. Boykin v. U. S., 1942 (130 F. 2d 416, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 147).

Court will not entertain an appeal based on a complaint that because of inartful exercise of his right to challenge jurors peremptorily, a party has created such prejudice as to deny himself a fair trial. Byas v. United States (C. A. D. C. 1950, 182 F. 2d 94, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 309).

Sentence

In prosecution for violating this section where defendant was convicted under separate counts which, in the light of evidence presented to sustain them, differed only in charging separate acts of receiving money for a single placing and where defendant was sentenced under each conviction, the sentence was invalid since it was a sentence for two crimes when only one had been charged. Boykin v. U. S., 1942 (130 F. 2d 416, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 147).

Sufficiency of Evidence

Evidence clearly supports finding that appellant at least participated in arranging for a female to commit an act of prostitution with a police officer. Byas v. United States (C. A., D. C. 1950, 182 F. 2d 94, 86 U. S. App. D. C. 309).

§ 22–2708 [6: 182]. Punishment for causing wife to live in prostitution.

Any person who by force, fraud, intimidation, or threats, places or leaves, or procures any other person or persons to place or leave, his wife in a house of prostitution, or to lead a life of prostitution, shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction thereof shall be imprisoned not less than one nor more than ten years. (June 25, 1910, 36 Stat. 833, ch. 404, § 4.)

§ 22–2709 [6: 183]. Punishment for detaining inmate in disorderly house for debt there contracted.

Any person or persons who attempt to detain any girl or woman in a disorderly house or house of prostitution because of any debt or debts she has contracted, or is said to have contracted, while living in said house of prostitution or disorderly house shall be guilty of a felony, and on conviction thereof be imprisoned for a term not less than one nor more than five years. (June 25, 1910, 36 Stat. 833, ch. 404, § 5.)

§ 22–2710 [6: 184]. Procurer for house of prostitution—Penalty.

Any person who, within the District of Columbia, shall pay or receive any money or other valuable thing for or on account of the procuring for, or placing in, a house of prostitution, for purposes of sexual intercourse, prostitution, debauchery, or other immoral act, any female, shall be guilty of a felony and, upon conviction, shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than five years and by a fine of not more than $1,000. (June 25, 1910, ch. 436, § 6, as added Jan. 3, 1941, 54 Stat. 1226, ch. 936, § 4.)

§ 22–2711 [6: 185]. Procurer for third persons—Penalty.

Any person who, within the District of Columbia, shall receive any money or other valuable thing for or on account of procuring and placing in the charge or custody of another person for sexual intercourse, prostitution, debauchery, or other immoral purposes any female shall be guilty of a felony and, upon conviction, shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than five years and by a fine of not more than $1,000. (June 25, 1910, ch. 436, § 7, as added Jan. 3, 1941, 54 Stat. 1226, ch. 936, § 4.)

§ 22–2712 [6: 186]. Running home of prostitution—Penalty.

Any person who, within the District of Columbia, knowingly, shall accept, receive, levy, or appropriate any money or other valuable thing, without consideration other than the furnishing of a place for prostitution or the servicing of a place for prostitution, from the proceeds or earnings of any female engaged in prostitution shall be guilty of a felony and, upon conviction, shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than five years and by a fine of not more than $1,000. (June 25, 1910, ch. 404, § 8, as added by Jan. 3, 1941, 54 Stat. 1226, ch. 936, § 4.)

§ 22–2713 [6: 184]. Premises occupied for lewdness, assignation, or prostitution declared nuisance.

Whoever shall erect, establish, continue, maintain, use, own, occupy, or release any building, erection, or place used for the purpose of lewdness, assignation, or prostitution in the District of Columbia is guilty of a nuisance, and the building, erection, or place, or the ground itself in or upon which such lewdness, assignation, or prostitution is conducted, permitted, or carried on, continued, or exists, and the furniture, fixtures, musical instruments, and contents are also declared a nuisance, and shall be enjoined and abated as hereinafter provided. (Feb. 7, 1914, 38 Stat. 280, ch. 16, § 1.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

IN GENERAL

Intent of this act was "to enjoin and abate houses of lewdness, assignation, and prostitution" as therein defined, but to subject owners or lessees to the provisions of the act only when guilty knowledge was brought home to them. Holmes v. United States (50 App. D. C. 147, 269 Fed. 489, 12 A. L. R. 427).

§ 22–2714 [6: 185]. Abatement of nuisance under section 22–2713 by injunction—Temporary injunction—Effect of injunction.

Whenever a nuisance is kept, maintained, or exists as defined in sections 22–2710 to 22–2718 the attorney of the United States for the District of Columbia, or the Attorney-General of the United States, or any citizen of the District of Columbia, may maintain an action in equity in the name of the United States of America, upon the relation of such attorney of the United States for the District of Columbia, the Attorney-General of the United States, or citizen, to perpetually enjoin said nuisance, the person or persons conducting or maintaining the same, and the owner or agent of the building or ground upon which said nuisance exists. In such action the court, or a judge in vacation, shall, upon the presentation of a petition therefor alleging that the nuisance complained of exists, allow a temporary writ of injunction, without bond, if it shall be made to appear to the satisfaction of the court or judge by evidence in the form of affidavits, depositions, oral testimony, or otherwise, as the complainant may elect, unless the court or judge by previous order shall have directed the form and manner in which it shall be presented. Three days' notice, in writing, shall be given the defendant of the hearing of the application, and if then continued at his instance the writ as prayed shall be granted as a matter of course. When an injunction has been granted it shall be binding on the defendant throughout the District of Columbia, and any violation of the provisions of injunction herein provided shall be a contempt as hereinafter provided. (Feb. 7, 1914, 38 Stat. 280, ch. 16, § 2.)

§ 22–2715 [6: 186]. Abatement of nuisance under section 22–2713—Trial—Dismissal of complaint—Prosecution to judgment—Costs.

The action when brought shall be triable at the first term of court, after due and timely service of the notice has been given, and in such action evidence of the general reputation of the place shall be admissible for the purpose of proving the existence of said nuisance. If the complaint is filed by a citizen, it shall not be dismissed, except upon a sworn statement made by the complainant and his attorney, setting forth the reasons why the action should be dismissed, and the dismissal approved by the attorney of the United States for the District of Columbia or the Attorney-General of the United States of America in writing or in open court. If the court is of the opinion that the action ought not to be dismissed, it may direct the attorney of the United States for the District of Columbia to prosecute said action to judgment; and if the action is continued more than one term of court, any citizen of the District of Columbia, or the attorney of the United States for the District of Columbia, may be substituted for the complaining party and prosecute said action to judgment. If the action is brought by a citizen, and the court finds there was no reasonable ground or cause for said action, the costs may be taxed to such citizen. (Feb. 7, 1914, 38 Stat. 281, ch. 16, § 3.)

§ 22–2716 [6: 187]. Trials for violating injunction granted under section 22–2714—Punishment.

In case of the violation of any injunction granted under the provisions of section 22–2714, the court, or, in vacation, a judge thereof, may summarily try and punish the offender. The proceedings shall be commenced by filing with the clerk of the court an information, under oath, setting out the alleged facts constituting such violation, upon which the court or judge shall cause a warrant to issue, under which the defendant shall be arrested. The trial may be had upon affidavits, or either party may at any stage of the proceedings demand the production and oral examination of the witnesses. A party found guilty of contempt, under the provisions of this section, shall be punished by a fine of not less than $200 nor more than $1,000 or by imprisonment in the District jail not less than three nor more than six months or by both fine and imprisonment. (Feb. 7, 1914, 38 Stat. 281, ch. 16, § 4.)

§ 22–2717 [6: 188]. Order of abatement—Sale of property—Entry of closed premises punishable as contempt.

If the existence of the nuisance be established in an action as provided in sections 22–2713 to 22–2721, or in a criminal proceeding, an order of abatement shall be entered as a part of the judgment in the case, which order shall direct the removal from the building or place of all fixtures, furniture, musical instruments, or movable property used in conducting the nuisance, and shall direct the sale thereof in the manner provided for the sale of chattels under execution, and the effectual closing of the building or place against its use for any purpose, and so keeping it closed for a period of one year, unless sooner released. If any person shall break and enter or use a building, erection, or place so directed to be closed he shall be punished as for contempt, as provided in section 22–2716. (Feb. 7, 1914, 38 Stat. 281, ch. 16, § 5.)

§ 22–2718 [6:189]. Disposition of proceeds of sale.

The proceeds of the sale of the personal property, as provided in section 22–2717, shall be applied in the payment of the costs of the action and abatement, and the balance, if any, shall be paid to the defendant. (Feb. 7, 1914, 38 Stat. 281, ch. 16, § 6.)

§ 22–2719 [6:190]. Bond for abatement—Order for delivery of premises—Effect of release.

If the owner appears and pays all costs of the proceeding and files a bond, with sureties to be approved by the clerk, in the full value of the property, to be ascertained by the court or, in vacation, by the collector of taxes of the District of Columbia, conditioned that he will immediately abate said nuisance and prevent the same from being established or kept within a period of one year thereafter, the court, or, in vacation, the judge, may, if satisfied of his good faith, order the premises closed under the order of abatement to be delivered to said owner and said order of abatement canceled so far as the same may relate to said property; and if the proceeding be an action in equity and said bond be given and costs therein paid before judgment and order of abatement, the action shall be thereby abated as to said building only. The release of the property under the provisions of this section shall not release it from judgment, lien, penalty, or liability to which it may be subject by law. (Feb. 7, 1914, 38 Stat. 281, ch. 16, § 7.)

§ 22–2720 [6:191]. Tax for maintaining such nuisance.

Whenever a permanent injunction issues against any person for maintaining a nuisance as herein defined, or against any owner or agent of the building kept or used for the purpose prohibited by sections 22–2713 to 22–2721, there shall be assessed against said building and the ground upon which the same is located and against the person or persons maintaining said nuisance, and the owner or agent of said premises, a tax of $300. The assessment of said tax shall be made by the assessor of the District of Columbia and shall be made within three months from the date of the granting of the permanent injunction. In case the assessor fails or neglects to make said assessment the same shall be made by the chief of police, and a return of said assessment shall be made to the collector of taxes. Said tax shall be a perpetual lien upon all property, both personal and real, used for the purpose of maintaining said nuisance, and the payment of said tax shall not relieve the person or building from any other penalties provided by law. The provisions of the law relating to the collection and distribution of taxes upon personal and real property shall govern in the collection and distribution of the tax herein prescribed in so far as the same are applicable and not in conflict with the provisions of said sections. (Feb. 7, 1914, 38 Stat. 282, ch. 16, § 8.)

§ 22–2721 [6:192]. Granting immunity to witnesses.

The United States district attorney or other attorney representing the prosecution for violation of sections 22–2713 to 22–2721, with the approval of the court, may grant immunity to any witness called to testify in behalf of the prosecution. (Feb. 7, 1914, 38 Stat. 282, ch. 16, § 9.)

§ 22–2722 [6:193]. Keeping bawdy or disorderly houses.

Any person convicted of keeping a bawdy or disorderly house shall be punished by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars or imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both. (July 16, 1912, 37 Stat. 192, ch. 235, § 1.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

APPEAL

On appeal from conviction of operating a disorderly house where defendant contended that hotel register was improperly admitted, being unlawfully seized property because warrant of arrest was void for insufficiency of supporting affidavit. Municipal Court of Appeals ordered warrant of arrest and supporting affidavit made part of record. Darnall v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1943, 33 A. 2d 734).

ARREST

Affidavit for warrant of arrest, which merely recited police officer's legal conclusion that defendant was maintaining a disorderly house, and which was devoid of single recital of fact to support conclusion and referred to a name other than that of defendant, was insufficient to support warrant. Darnall v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1943, 33 A. 2d 734).

COMPARING COMMON LAW

What may not have been an infamous crime at common law, may, by statute, be made such. In determining whether a crime is infamous, we must look to the penalty the law imposes, and though the crime of keeping a disorderly house may not have been an infamous crime at common law, it is within the power of Congress to impose a penalty that will make it such in the District of Columbia Palmer v. Lenovitz (35 App. D. C. 303).

EVIDENCE

Where warrant of arrest for maintaining disorderly house was void, the arrest, which was for a misdemeanor not committed in presence or within view of arresting officers, was unlawful and hotel register seized at time of arrest was unlawfully seized and inadmissible in evidence. Darnall v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1943, 33 A. 2d 734).

In prosecution for maintaining disorderly house, admission in evidence of hotel register which was seized at time of defendant's arrest under void warrant, notwithstanding defendant's subsequent motion to suppress register as evidence, and objection at time of trial to its admission, was reversible error. Darnall v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1943, 33 A. 2d 734).

Evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction for operating a disorderly house. Collins v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 41 A. 2d 515).

INSTRUCTIONS

Instructions given to jury in prosecution for operating a disorderly house were not tainted with prejudicial error. Collins v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 41 A. 2d 515).

PROBATION OFFICER RECOMMENDING SENTENCE

Where accused pleaded guilty to maintaining disorderly house and, on plea for probation, trial judge announced that probation officer had recommended maximum sentence and, on objection to consideration of recommendation, trial judge, without express ruling thereon, sentenced defendant to the near maximum penalty, sentence was set aside. Ishkanian v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 35 A. 2d 176).

A recommendation by a probation officer to trial judge as to sentence to be imposed is not merely unauthorized by §§ 24–101 to 24–105 but is an infringement upon court's judicial function, which officer has no right to exercise and judge no right to permit. Ishkanian v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 35 A. 2d 176).

QUESTIONS FOR COURT

In prosecution for maintaining disorderly house, objection to introduction of hotel register as unlawfully seized evidence because of invalidity of warrant of arrest raised question for judge presiding at trial. Darnall v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1943, 33 A. 2d 734).

WAIVER

In prosecution for maintaining a disorderly house, defendant, by failing to move to quash warrant of arrest before he entered plea of not guilty, did not "waive" right to object to introduction of hotel register, seized at time of arrest, as unlawfully seized evidence. Darnall v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1943, 33 A. 2d 734).

Chapter 28.—RAPE

Sec.
22–2801. Definition and penalty.

§ 22–2801 [6: 32]. Definition and penalty.

Whoever has carnal knowledge of a female forcibly and against her will, or carnally knows and abuses a female child under sixteen years of age, shall be imprisoned for not more than thirty years: Provided, That in any case of rape the jury may add to their verdict, if it be guilty, the words "with the death penalty," in which case the punishment shall be death by electrocution: Provided further, That if the jury fail to agree as to the punishment the verdict of guilty shall be received and the punishment shall be imprisonment as provided in this section. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1322, ch. 854, § 808; Apr. 19, 1920, 41 Stat. 567, ch. 153, § 808; Jan. 30, 1925, 43 Stat. 798, ch. 115, § 1.)

AMENDMENT

The 1920 amendment deleted the words "for not less than five nor" which appeared in the 1901 act following the word "imprisoned;" the 1901 act contained the word "hanging" where the word "electrocution" now appears, the amendment being in conformity with the section of the 1925 act.

CROSS REFERENCE

Possession of firearm, additional penalty, §§ 22–3201, 22–3202.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CONSTITUTIONALITY

This section which empowers the jury to add the words "with the death penalty" to verdict in cases of rape does not violate U. S. Const. Art. 3, § 2, cl. 3 and U. S. Const. Amend. 6, guaranteeing right to "jury trial" on theory that at the time of the adoption of the Constitution common-law juries did not fix penalty. Lindsey v. U. S., 1943 (133 F. 2d 368, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 1).

CONTINUANCE

A general indignation toward those who commit rape is not regarded as "bias or prejudice", and it cannot be assumed in support of a motion for an indefinite continuance, on ground that alleged confession of another man to ten or more similar offenses has inflamed the mind of the community so that a particular defendant cannot receive a fair trial, that all juries impaneled at any given time will not give any defendant a fair trial. Robinson v. U. S., 1942 (128 F. 2d 322, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 29).

In rape prosecution, trial court did not err in denying defendant's motion for an indefinite continuance on ground that alleged confession of another man to ten or more similar offenses had inflamed the mind of the community so that defendant could not receive a fair trial where there was no specific showing of any kind in support of motion. Robinson v. U. S., 1942 (128 F. 2d 322, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 29).

DEATH PENALTY

Where evidence was sufficient to sustain verdict of guilty in prosecution for rape, jury had exclusive power to determine whether death penalty should be imposed. Williams v. U. S., 1942 (131 F. 2d 21, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 299).

DEFENSE, REQUISITES OF

In prosecution for rape and robbery, the defendant did not have the obligation of making out a complete defense. McKenzie v. U. S., 1942 (126 F. 2d 533, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 270).

DISCRETION OF COURT

In rape prosecution, record sustained trial court's determination, on motion for new trial, that evidence did not sustain charges that defendant was not competently represented by trial counsel. Ewing v. U. S., 1942 (135 F. 2d 633, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 14, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 829, 318 U. S. 776, 87 L. Ed. 1145, rehearing denied 63 S. Ct. 991, 318 U. S. 803, 87 L. Ed. 1167).

In rape prosecution, where hearing on motion for new trial had been continued over and over to allow some supposed new lead to be followed out and when, after final continuance had been granted, with court's insistence that hearing be brought to an end, defendant filed affidavits and insisted on cross-examining those who had made counter affidavits, but court took matter under advisement and at next sitting brought hearing to close without taking further evidence, action of court in determining the matter on affidavits was not an abuse of discretion. Ewing v. U. S., 1942 (135 F. 2d 633, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 14, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 829, 318 U. S. 776, 87 L. Ed. 1145, rehearing denied 63 S. Ct. 991, 318 U. S. 803, 87 L. Ed. 1167).

EVIDENCE

Where prosecuting witness is under age of consent her reputation for unchastity is inadmissible. Her reputation for truth and veracity may be attacked, as in the case of any other witness. Sacks v. United States (41 App. D. C 34). See also Kidwell v. United States (38 App. D. C. 566); Monalokos v. United States (41 App. D. C. 19).

Prosecuting witness in cases of rape may testify as to whether or not she made complaint, when and to whom, although the details of the disclosure are not admissible except on cross-examination or to confirm her testimony after it is impeached, or unless a part of the res gestae. Harris v. United States (50 App. D. C. 139. 269 Fed. 481), citing Snowden v. United States (2 App D. C. 89). See also Lyles v. United States (20 App. D. C 559); Roney v. United States (43 App. D. C. 533).

In prosecutions for statutory rape testimony of similar acts prior to the offense charged in the indictment is admissible. Weaver v. United States (55 App. D. C. 26. 299 Fed. 893).

On charge of carnal knowledge, evidence of subsequent marriage of parties is admissible. Weaver v. United States (55 App. D C. 26, 299 Fed. 893).

In prosecution for sex offenses, evidence of prior acts between the same parties is admissible as showing a disposition to commit the act charged, the probabilities being that the emotional predisposition or passion will continue. Bracey v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1944, 142 F. 2d 85, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 1274, 322 U. S. 762, 88 L. Ed. 1589).

In rape prosecution, where defense witness had testified to facts which, if believed, established defendant's innocence, and during cross-examination regarding interview with prosecutrix's mother, as to which defense witness had not testified on direct examination, witness denied that she had stated she believed defendant guilty, that he was facing the electric chair, and that she had to be on his side, but the prosecutrix's mother subsequently testified that the defense witness made such statements, evidence was admissible within the "self-contradiction rule," within the "impeachment rule," and for purpose of affecting credibility of defense witness by showing bias, and was not objectionable as being on "collateral matter." Ewing v. U. S., 1942 (135 F. 2d 633, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 14, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 829, 318 U. S. 776, 87 L. Ed. 1145, rehearing denied 63 S. Ct. 991, 318 U. S. 803, 87 L. Ed. 1167).

In rape prosecution, evidence that defendant was present in apartment visiting with prosecutrix and another shortly before crucial time and spent night either in living room or in room across hall, that force was used against door of prosecutrix's bedroom making a new break in already defective lock with no other evidence to explain the new condition, that complaint was made to friends within twelve hours, to police within 24 hours, and was followed by defendant's arrest and confrontation with prosecutrix and medical evidence that the prosecutrix had recently had intercourse for the first time, was sufficient "corroboration." Ewing v. U. S., 1942 (135 F. 2d 633, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 14, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 928, 318 U. S. 776, 87 L. Ed. 1145, rehearing denied 63 S. Ct. 991, 318 U. S. 803, 87 L. Ed. 1167).

In rape prosecution "corroboration," in the sense that there must be circumstances in proof which tend to support the prosecutrix's story, is required. Ewing v. U. S., 1942 (135 F. 2d 633, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 14, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 829, 318 U. S. 776, 87 L. Ed. 1145, rehearing denied 63 S. Ct. 991, 318 U. S. 803, 87 L. Ed. 1167).

In rape prosecution, testimony of complaining witness and the circumstantial evidence supporting it, which were sufficient to show that the intercourse occurred and took place by force and against her will, in the sense that her resistance was overcome by physical force and threats which put her in fear of her life, sustained jury's implicit finding that the act was without the "consent" of the complaining witness. Ewing v. U. S., 1942 (135 F. 2d 633, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 14, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 829, 318 U. S. 776, 87 L. Ed. 1145, rehearing denied 63 S. Ct. 991, 318 U. S. 803, 87 L. Ed. 1167).

In rape prosecution, "consent" is not shown when the evidence discloses resistance is overcome by threats which put the woman in fear of death or grave bodily harm or by those combined with some degree of physical force. Ewing v. U. S., 1942 (135 F. 2d 633, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 14, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 829, 318 U. S. 776, 87 L. Ed. 1145, rehearing denied 63 S. Ct. 991, 318 U. S. 803, 87 L. Ed. 1167).

In prosecution for murder and rape, evidence regarding whether defendant's oral admissions against interest and his written confession were voluntary was sufficient to justify the submission of the issue of voluntariness to the jury. Catoe v. U. S., 1942 (131 F. 2d 16, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 292).

Evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction for rape. Robinson v. U. S., 1942 (128 F. 2d 322, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 29).

In prosecution for carnally knowing and abusing a 12 year old girl, where defendant elected to defend on issue of conspiracy against himself, and the only evidence which he offered in support of that defense was that which he produced by cross-examination of his 11 year old daughter, who testified that she disliked her father, rebuttal testimony indicating that daughter's dislike was based on father's commission of similar offense against daughter was properly admitted. Bracey v. U. S., 1944 (142 F. 2d 85, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 23, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 1274, 322 U. S. 762, 88 L. Ed. 1589).

Where record presented no reversible error and evidence supported conviction for rape, conviction was affirmed. Clinton v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1945, 151 F. 2d 12).

Indictment

That indictment charging rape contained four counts relating to two acts of intercourse did not prejudice defendant, where defendant made no election, stated that he was ready to go to jury on all four counts, and in no way questioned charge allowing case to go to jury only on two counts charging carnal knowledge of a girl under age of consent because testimony was that complaining witness was under 16. Robinson v. U. S., 1942 (128 F. 2d 322, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 29).

That indictment charging rape was signed by an Assistant United States Attorney rather than by the United States Attorney concerned a "matter of form" which did not prejudice defendant. Robinson v. U. S., 1942 (128 F. 2d 322, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 29).

Where indictments charging rape and robbery were returned by a grand jury which did not have upon it any member of the negro race, the indictments could not be quashed on ground that systematic course of procedure had been adopted for purpose of excluding negroes from grand jury on account of their color, in absence of proof or offer of proof of intentional exclusion of negroes from service on grand jury. McKenzie v. U. S., 1942 (126 F. 2d 533, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 270).

Instructions

In prosecution on two counts for assault with a dangerous weapon and on one count for rape, where court's charge did not discuss nor define offenses included within the indictment and jury were not told what assault with intent to rape was nor how it was distinguished from rape and were not informed that a verdict of not guilty might be returned, there was prejudicial error. Williams v. U. S., 1942 (131 F. 2d 21, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 299).

In prosecution for rape and robbery, where pistol which victim stated assailant used, clothing which he said he had stolen and money which he had taken were not found in possession of defendant, neighbors testified to good character of defendant and to his having a night job at which he worked regularly, and thorough examination by police failed to shake statement of defendant that he had never seen the prosecuting witness before, such circumstances were important enough to be called to the attention of the jury to be weighed together with evidence in support of legal presumption of innocence. McKenzie v. U. S., 1942 (126 F. 2d 533, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 270).

In prosecution for rape and robbery, failure to instruct jury in precise terms that a not guilty verdict was necessary in event of failure by the government to prove each of the elements of the offenses charged beyond a reasonable doubt was error requiring reversal, notwithstanding the court instructed that defendant was presumed to be innocent and that the government was obliged to rebut the presumption by proof of guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. McKenzie v. U. S., 1942 (126 F. 2d 533, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 270).

In prosecution for rape and robbery, where verity of identification of accused by prosecuting witness was point on which case turned, failure to instruct jury in plain words that if circumstances of identification were not convincing, jury should acquit accused was error. McKenzie v. U. S., 1942 (126 F. 2d 533, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 270).

In prosecution for rape and robbery where court referring to conditions obtaining at time of prosecuting witness' identification of accused stated that the jury should take into consideration the attitude of the prosecuting witness upon coming in view of the accused and that they should search their reasoning power regarding what motivated the selection of the accused from among all others, in view of fact that verity of identification was the point on which the case turned, the court should have cautioned that if the motivation was not convincing beyond a reasonable doubt the jury should find the defendant not guilty. McKenzie v. U. S., 1942 (126 F. 2d 533, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 270).

Nothing suggests that the jury did not understand and respect the action and instructions of the court for unless it appears to the contrary, jurors should be presumed to have understood and followed the court's instructions. Hall v. United States (C. A., D. C. 1948, 171 F. 2d 347, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 209).

Mental Capacity

After conviction of rape, a sanity inquisition was denied when it did not occur to either his counsel or to the court that he was mentally irresponsible; and that during his examination and cross-examination, it did not "suggest, in the slightest degree, that defendant was not fully and entirely responsible from a mental standpoint." Jackson v. United States (58 App. D. C. 125, 25 Fed (2d) 549).

Evidence regarding insanity of defendant was insufficient to justify reversal of conviction for rape. Holloway v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1945, 148 F. 2d 665, 80 U. S. App. D. C. 3, certiorari denied 68 S. Ct. 1507, 334 U. S. 852, 92 L. Ed. 1774).

Plea of Guilty

This section authorizing jury to recommend death penalty in a rape case does not deprive court of inherent jurisdiction to accept plea of guilty, but defendant does not have absolute right to plead guilty. U. S. v. Willis (D. C., D. C. 1948, 75 F. Supp. 628).

Plea of guilty of carnal knowledge, avoiding possibility of death sentence, was accepted in exercise of trial court's discretion, upon recommendation of United States Attorney and in view of facts of particular case. U. S. v. Willis (D. C., D. C. 1948, 75 F. Supp. 628).

QUESTIONS FOR JURY

In rape cases and other cases of the nature of a sexual assault, delay in making complaint is a subject for consideration of jury and may seriously affect credibility of complaining witness. Stitely v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 61 A. 2d 491).

RES GESTAE

In prosecution for rape of child about five years old, the statements of the child made to her grandmother on the same day of crime was admissible as part of the res gestae. Snowden v. United States (2 App. D. C. 89).

SUFFICIENCY OF EVIDENCE

Evidence warranted a conviction for rape, and death penalty therefor. Holmes v. United States (C. A. D. C. 1948, 171 F. 2d 1022, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 168).

TRIAL PROCEDURE

"In all cases (of rape) the court must have the verdict of the jury upon which to base its judgment," and there is, therefore, no error in refusing to accept a plea of guilty. Green v. United States (40 App. D. C. 426).

Order of proof and conduct of trial in trial for rape is within court's discretion. Mears v. United States (60 App. D. C. 387, 55 Fed. (2d) 745).

In rape prosecution, action of prosecuting attorney in cross-examining defense witness as to whether defendant suggested to witness that they get some whisky and girls and have a party was not prejudicial error where witness' negative response was later corroborated by defendant. Ewing v. U. S., 1942 (135 F. 2d 633, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 14, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 829, 318 U. S. 776, 87 L. Ed. 1145, rehearing denied 63 S. Ct. 991, 318 U. S. 803, 87 L. Ed. 1167).

In rape prosecution where during cross-examination defense witness, who had testified to facts which, if believed, established defendant's innocence, was asked whether in interview with prosecutrix's mother witness had given affirmative answer to question whether she thought defendant was guilty and prosecutrix's mother later testified that the defense witness stated that she believed defendant guilty, the province of the jury was not invaded. Ewing v. U. S., 1942 (135 F. 2d 633, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 14, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 829, 318 U. S. 776, 87 L. Ed. 1145, rehearing denied 63 S. Ct. 991, 318 U. S. 803, 87 L. Ed. 1167).

That failure of the Government to call all of its witnesses whose names and addresses had been given to defendant took him by surprise could not be urged on appeal from conviction for rape, where defendant did not allege or show that witnesses were not available for him and made no proffer of proof that their testimony would have helped him. Robinson v. U. S., 1942 (128 F. 2d 322, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 299).

In prosecution for rape, and for robbery of cleaning establishment, where court warned defendant's counsel that if he asked question of witness regarding whether defendant had been identified as the man who robbed another cleaning establishment about a week prior to the commission of the offenses involved, he would do so at his peril, refusal to allow the contradiction of witness' answer was proper. McKenzie v. U. S., 1942 (126 F. 2d 533, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 270).

Contention of appellant's counsel that he should have been permitted to argue to the jury the so-called "sociological aspects of the case" is without merit because, for such a crime as rape, there can never be any extenuating circumstances. Holmes v. United States (C. A., D. C. 1948, 171 F. 2d 1022, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 168).

In a prosecution for rape, the remarks of the prosecutor were improper where he asked defendant if he were a "sex fiend" since cross-examination is no place for argument or for vituperation; nor could a former offense be used for any other purpose than to reflect upon the credibility of appellant's testimony. Hall v. United States (C. A. D. C. 1948, 171 F. 2d 347, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 209).

UNDER AGE OF CONSENT

When a child under the age of consent has been defiled, the law conclusively presumes force on the part of her seducer, and the question of consent is immaterial. Yeager v. United States (16 App. D. C. 356).

Carnal knowledge of child under age specified is rape. Sanselo v. United States (44 App. D. C. 508).

Chapter 29.—ROBBERY

Sec.
22–2901. Robbery.
22–2902. Attempt to commit robbery.

§ 22–2901 [6: 34]. Robbery.

ASSISTANCE OF COUNSEL

Where defendants, who allegedly entered plea of guilty at preliminary hearing to charge of robbery, were without counsel until arraignment but when counsel was assigned by court, defendants pleaded not guilty and adhered to the plea throughout trial and on appeal and denied that they had had hearing on robbery charge and claimed that they had pleaded guilty to misdemeanor charges only, in determining whether alleged plea of guilty at preliminary hearing was admissible, court was required to assume that defendants, who had not been asked whether they wanted counsel or informed regarding privilege against self-incrimination, did not know their rights and did not intend to waive them when they allegedly pleaded guilty. Wood v. U. S., 1942 (128 F. 2d 265), 75 U. S. App. D. C. 274, 141 A. L. R. 1318).

CONSTITUTIONALITY

This section is valid. Pope v. Huff, 1944 (141 F. 2d 727, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 18).

DEFENSE, REQUISITES OF

In prosecution for rape and robbery, the defendant did not have the obligation of making out a complete defense. McKenzie v. U. S., 1942 (126 F. 2d 533, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 270).

EVIDENCE

Where defendant, after arrest but prior to arraignment, denied having any connection with robbery but admitted being in company of two other men, charged with same offense, shortly before and shortly after the robbery, admission of evidence of defendant's statement was not error where statement was not claimed to have been coerced. Sykes v. U. S., 1944 (143 F. 2d 140, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 97).

Housebreaking, robbery and burglary are merely aggravated forms of larceny and evidence competent in one case is competent, also, in the others. Edwards v. U. S., 1944 (139 F. 2d 365, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 226, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 523, 321 U. S. 769, 88 L. Ed. 1064).

In prosecution for robbery of a watch, a purse, a key, and $37 in money, admission of a watch, purse, key, and against door of prosecutrix's bedroom making a new break in already defective lock with no other evidence to explain the new condition, that complaint was made to friends within twelve hours, to police within 24 hours, and was followed by defendant's arrest and confrontation with prosecutrix and medical evidence that the prosecutrix had recently had intercourse for the first time, was sufficient "corroboration." Ewing v. U. S., 1942 (135 F. 2d 633, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 14, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 928, 318 U. S. 776, 87 L. Ed. 1145, rehearing denied 63 S. Ct. 991, 318 U. S. 803, 87 L. Ed. 1167).

In rape prosecution "corroboration," in the sense that there must be circumstances in proof which tend to support the prosecutrix's story, is required. Ewing v. U. S., 1942 (135 F. 2d 633, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 14, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 829, 318 U. S. 776, 87 L. Ed. 1145, rehearing denied 63 S. Ct. 991, 318 U. S. 803, 87 L. Ed. 1167).

In rape prosecution, testimony of complaining witness and the circumstantial evidence supporting it, which were sufficient to show that the intercourse occurred and took place by force and against her will, in the sense that her resistance was overcome by physical force and threats which put her in fear of her life, sustained jury's implicit finding that the act was without the "consent" of the complaining witness. Ewing v. U. S., 1942 (135 F. 2d 633, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 14, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 829, 318 U. S. 776, 87 L. Ed. 1145, rehearing denied 63 S. Ct. 991, 318 U. S. 803, 87 L. Ed. 1167).

In rape prosecution, "consent" is not shown when the evidence discloses resistance is overcome by threats which put the woman in fear of death or grave bodily harm or by those combined with some degree of physical force. Ewing v. U. S., 1942 (135 F. 2d 633, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 14, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 829, 318 U. S. 776, 87 L. Ed. 1145, rehearing denied 63 S. Ct. 991, 318 U. S. 803, 87 L. Ed. 1167).

In prosecution for murder and rape, evidence regarding whether defendant's oral admissions against interest and his written confession were voluntary was sufficient to justify the submission of the issue of voluntariness to the jury. Catoe v. U. S., 1942 (131 F. 2d 16, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 292).

Evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction for rape. Robinson v. U. S., 1942 (128 F. 2d 322, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 29).

In prosecution for carnally knowing and abusing a 12 year old girl, where defendant elected to defend on issue of conspiracy against himself, and the only evidence which he offered in support of that defense was that which he produced by cross-examination of his 11 year old daughter, who testified that she disliked her father, rebuttal testimony indicating that daughter's dislike was based on father's commission of similar offense against daughter was properly admitted. Bracey v. U. S., 1944 (142 F. 2d 85, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 23, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 1274, 322 U. S. 762, 88 L. Ed. 1589).

Where record presented no reversible error and evidence supported conviction for rape, conviction was affirmed. Clinton v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1945, 151 F. 2d 12).

Indictment

That indictment charging rape contained four counts relating to two acts of intercourse did not prejudice defendant, where defendant made no election, stated that he was ready to go to jury on all four counts, and in no way questioned charge allowing case to go to jury only on two counts charging carnal knowledge of a girl under age of consent because testimony was that complaining witness was under 16. Robinson v. *U. That indictment charging rape was signed by an Assistant United States Attorney rather than by the United States Attorney concerned a "matter of form" which did not prejudice defendant. Robinson v. U. S., 1942 (128 F. 2d 322, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 29).

Where indictments charging rape and robbery were returned by a grand jury which did not have upon it any member of the negro race, the indictments could not be quashed on ground that systematic course of procedure had been adopted for purpose of excluding negroes from grand jury on account of their color, in absence of proof or offer of proof of intentional exclusion of negroes from service on grand jury. McKenzie v. *U. Instructions

In prosecution on two counts for assault with a dangerous weapon and on one count for rape, where court's charge did not discuss nor define offenses included within the indictment and jury were not told what assault with intent to rape was nor how it was distinguished from rape and were not informed that a verdict of not guilty might be returned, there was prejudicial error. Williams v. U. S., 1942 (131 F. 2d 21, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 299).

In prosecution for rape and robbery, where pistol which victim stated assailant used, clothing which he said he had stolen and money which he had taken were not found in possession of defendant, neighbors testified to good character of defendant and to his having a night job at which he worked regularly, and thorough examination by police failed to shake statement of defendant that he had never seen the prosecuting witness before, such circumstances were important enough to be called to the attention of the jury to be weighed together with evidence in support of legal presumption of innocence. McKenzie v. U. S., 1942 (126 F. 2d 533, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 270).

In prosecution for rape and robbery, failure to instruct jury in precise terms that a not guilty verdict was necessary in event of failure by the government to prove each of the elements of the offenses charged beyond a reasonable doubt was error requiring reversal, notwithstanding the court instructed that defendant was presumed to be innocent and that the government was obliged to rebut the presumption by proof of guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. McKenzie v. U. S., 1942 (126 F. 2d 533, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 270).

In prosecution for rape and robbery, where verity of identification of accused by prosecuting witness was point on which case turned, failure to instruct jury in plain words that if circumstances of identification were not convincing, jury should acquit accused was error. McKenzie v. U. S., 1942 (126 F. 2d 533, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 270).

In prosecution for rape and robbery where court referring to conditions obtaining at time of prosecuting witness' identification of accused stated that the jury should take into consideration the attitude of the prosecuting witness upon coming in view of the accused and that they should search their reasoning power regarding what motivated the selection of the accused from among all others, in view of fact that verity of identification was the point on which the case turned, the court should have cautioned that if the motivation was not convincing beyond a reasonable doubt the jury should find the defendant not guilty. McKenzie v. U. S., 1942 (126 F. 2d 533, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 270).

Nothing suggests that the jury did not understand and respect the action and instructions of the court for unless it appears to the contrary, jurors should be presumed to have understood and followed the court's instructions. Hall v. United States (C. A., D. C. 1948, 171 F. 2d 347, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 209).

Mental Capacity

After conviction of rape, a sanity inquisition was denied when it did not occur to either his counsel or to the court that he was mentally irresponsible; and that during his examination and cross-examination, it did not "suggest, in the slightest degree, that defendant was not fully and entirely responsible from a mental standpoint." Jackson v. United States (58 App. D. C. 125, 25 Fed (2d) 549).

Evidence regarding insanity of defendant was insufficient to justify reversal of conviction for rape. Holloway v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1945, 148 F. 2d 665, 80 U. S. App. D. C. 3, certiorari denied 68 S. Ct. 1507, 334 U. S. 852, 92 L. Ed. 1774).

Plea of Guilty

This section authorizing jury to recommend death penalty in a rape case does not deprive court of inherent jurisdiction to accept plea of guilty, but defendant does not have absolute right to plead guilty. U. S. v. Willis (D. C., D. C. 1948, 75 F. Supp. 628).

Plea of guilty of carnal knowledge, avoiding possibility of death sentence, was accepted in exercise of trial court's discretion, upon recommendation of United States Attorney and in view of facts of particular case. U. S. v. Willis (D. C., D. C. 1948, 75 F. Supp. 628).

QUESTIONS FOR JURY

In rape cases and other cases of the nature of a sexual assault, delay in making complaint is a subject for consideration of jury and may seriously affect credibility of complaining witness. Stitely v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 61 A. 2d 491).

RES GESTAE

In prosecution for rape of child about five years old, the statements of the child made to her grandmother on the same day of crime was admissible as part of the res gestae. Snowden v. United States (2 App. D. C. 89).

SUFFICIENCY OF EVIDENCE

Evidence warranted a conviction for rape, and death penalty therefor. Holmes v. United States (C. A. D. C. 1948, 171 F. 2d 1022, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 168).

TRIAL PROCEDURE

"In all cases (of rape) the court must have the verdict of the jury upon which to base its judgment," and there is, therefore, no error in refusing to accept a plea of guilty. Green v. United States (40 App. D. C. 426).

Order of proof and conduct of trial in trial for rape is within court's discretion. Mears v. United States (60 App. D. C. 387, 55 Fed. (2d) 745).

In rape prosecution, action of prosecuting attorney in cross-examining defense witness as to whether defendant suggested to witness that they get some whisky and girls and have a party was not prejudicial error where witness' negative response was later corroborated by defendant. Ewing v. U. S., 1942 (135 F. 2d 633, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 14, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 829, 318 U. S. 776, 87 L. Ed. 1145, rehearing denied 63 S. Ct. 991, 318 U. S. 803, 87 L. Ed. 1167).

In rape prosecution where during cross-examination defense witness, who had testified to facts which, if believed, established defendant's innocence, was asked whether in interview with prosecutrix's mother witness had given affirmative answer to question whether she thought defendant was guilty and prosecutrix's mother later testified that the defense witness stated that she believed defendant guilty, the province of the jury was not invaded. Ewing v. U. S., 1942 (135 F. 2d 633, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 14, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 829, 318 U. S. 776, 87 L. Ed. 1145, rehearing denied 63 S. Ct. 991, 318 U. S. 803, 87 L. Ed. 1167).

That failure of the Government to call all of its witnesses whose names and addresses had been given to defendant took him by surprise could not be urged on appeal from conviction for rape, where defendant did not allege or show that witnesses were not available for him and made no proffer of proof that their testimony would have helped him. Robinson v. U. S., 1942 (128 F. 2d 322, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 299).

In prosecution for rape, and for robbery of cleaning establishment, where court warned defendant's counsel that if he asked question of witness regarding whether defendant had been identified as the man who robbed another cleaning establishment about a week prior to the commission of the offenses involved, he would do so at his peril, refusal to allow the contradiction of witness' answer was proper. McKenzie v. U. S., 1942 (126 F. 2d 533, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 270).

Contention of appellant's counsel that he should have been permitted to argue to the jury the so-called "sociological aspects of the case" is without merit because, for such a crime as rape, there can never be any extenuating circumstances. Holmes v. United States (C. A., D. C. 1948, 171 F. 2d 1022, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 168).

In a prosecution for rape, the remarks of the prosecutor were improper where he asked defendant if he were a "sex fiend" since cross-examination is no place for argument or for vituperation; nor could a former offense be used for any other purpose than to reflect upon the credibility of appellant's testimony. Hall v. United States (C. A. D. C. 1948, 171 F. 2d 347, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 209).

UNDER AGE OF CONSENT

When a child under the age of consent has been defiled, the law conclusively presumes force on the part of her seducer, and the question of consent is immaterial. Yeager v. United States (16 App. D. C. 356).

Carnal knowledge of child under age specified is rape. Sanselo v. United States (44 App. D. C. 508).

Chapter 29.—ROBBERY

Sec.
22–2901. Robbery.
22–2902. Attempt to commit robbery.

§ 22–2901 [6: 34]. Robbery.

ASSISTANCE OF COUNSEL

Where defendants, who allegedly entered plea of guilty at preliminary hearing to charge of robbery, were without counsel until arraignment but when counsel was assigned by court, defendants pleaded not guilty and adhered to the plea throughout trial and on appeal and denied that they had had hearing on robbery charge and claimed that they had pleaded guilty to misdemeanor charges only, in determining whether alleged plea of guilty at preliminary hearing was admissible, court was required to assume that defendants, who had not been asked whether they wanted counsel or informed regarding privilege against self-incrimination, did not know their rights and did not intend to waive them when they allegedly pleaded guilty. Wood v. U. S., 1942 (128 F. 2d 265), 75 U. S. App. D. C. 274, 141 A. L. R. 1318).

CONSTITUTIONALITY

This section is valid. Pope v. Huff, 1944 (141 F. 2d 727, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 18).

DEFENSE, REQUISITES OF

In prosecution for rape and robbery, the defendant did not have the obligation of making out a complete defense. McKenzie v. U. S., 1942 (126 F. 2d 533, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 270).

EVIDENCE

Where defendant, after arrest but prior to arraignment, denied having any connection with robbery but admitted being in company of two other men, charged with same offense, shortly before and shortly after the robbery, admission of evidence of defendant's statement was not error where statement was not claimed to have been coerced. Sykes v. U. S., 1944 (143 F. 2d 140, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 97).

Housebreaking, robbery and burglary are merely aggravated forms of larceny and evidence competent in one case is competent, also, in the others. Edwards v. U. S., 1944 (139 F. 2d 365, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 226, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 523, 321 U. S. 769, 88 L. Ed. 1064).

In prosecution for robbery of a watch, a purse, a key, and $37 in money, admission of a watch, purse, key, and a $5 bill, without testimony either of prosecuting witness or officer who allegedly took the articles from defendant, constituted reversible error upon ground that identification of articles was insufficient. Smith v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 157 F. 2d 705).

Where testimony connecting defendant with another crime which had no connection with armed robbery for which he was being tried, was elicited by defendant's own counsel on cross-examination, admission of the testimony was no ground for reversal of conviction. Felton v. U. S. (C. A., D. C. 1948, 170 F. 2d 153, certiorari denied 69 S. Ct. 18, 335 U. S. 831, 93 L. Ed. 385).

"Force and Violence"

Intent of this section is to denounce pocket picking and the like, together with common-law robbery, under the single general name of "robbery." It is true that the provision for "sudden and stealthy seizure or snatching" is preceded by the phrase "by force and violence"; but the requirement for force is satisfied within the sense of the statute by an actual physical taking of the property from the person of another even without his knowledge and consent, and though the property be unattached to his person. Turner v. United States (57 App. D. C. 39, 16 Fed. (2d) 535).

Under this section conviction for "robbery" may be had though victim did not have knowledge of the theft at the time, since "stealth" necessarily connotes lack of knowledge on part of victim. Spencer v. U. S., 1940 (116 F. 2d 801, 73 App. D. C. 98).

The force used to remove money from victim's pocket is sufficient "force or violence" within statute defining "robbery" as a taking by "force or violence," whether against resistance or by sudden or stealthy seizure or snatching, or by putting in fear. Spencer v. U. S., 1940 (116 F. 2d 801, 73 App. D. C. 98).

Habeas Corpus

Where petitioners were arrested in Pennsylvania, charged with committing certain crimes in the District of Columbia, habeas corpus proceedings would be proper to raise jurisdictional questions respecting their removal to the District. U. S. v. Reing (D. C. E. D. Pa. 1948, 81 F. Supp. 367).

Immediate Actual Possession

"Immediate actual possession," within statute defining robbery as a taking from the "immediate actual possession" of another, refers to an area within which victim could reasonably be expected to exercise some physical control over his property. Spencer v. U. S., 1940 (116 F. 2d 801, 73 App. D. C. 98).

The word "possession" in robbery statute is not used in strict larcenous sense, but is used in a colloquial sense, meaning nothing more than custody or control. Neufield v. U. S., 1941 (118 F. 2d 375, 73 App. D. C. 174, certiorari denied 62 S. Ct. 580, 315 U. S. 798, 86 L. Ed. 1199).

Indictment

Indictment, containing a single count, charged, in part, the commission of the offense "by force and violence, and against resistance, and by putting in fear, and by sudden and stealthy seizure and snatching." This was a proper and sufficient charge to support the conviction. Tomlinson v. United States (68 App. D. C. 106, 93 Fed. (2d) 652, 114 A. L. R. 1315).

Where indictments charging rape and robbery were returned by a grand jury which did not have upon it any member of the negro race, the indictments could not be quashed on ground that systematic course of procedure had been adopted for purpose of excluding negroes from grand jury on account of their color, in absence of proof or offer of proof of intentional exclusion of negroes from service on grand jury. McKenzie v. U. S., 1942 (126 F. 2d 533, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 270).

Where this section did not itself express all of the elements of the crime of robbery at common law but Congress meant to make robbery a crime and by "robbery" meant robbery in the usual common-law sense of the term except as expanded by this section it was necessary and permissible for indictment to overlap this section in order to charge crime of robbery. Neufield v. U. S., 1941 (118 F. 2d 375, 73 App. D. C. 174, certiorari denied 62 S. Ct. 580, 315 U. S. 798, 86 L. Ed. 1199).

It was proper to charge in robbery indictment that money taken from named individual was property of bank and that money was stolen, notwithstanding fact that robbery statute did not express the elements of common-law robbery that the property shall belong to some one other than the robber, and that it shall be stolen. Neufield v. U. S., 1941 (118 F. 2d 375, 73 App. D. C. 174, certiorari denied 62 S. Ct. 580, 315 U. S. 798, 86 L. Ed. 1199).

Instructions

In prosecution for rape and robbery, where pistol which victim stated assailant used, clothing which she said he had stolen and money which he had taken were not found in possession of defendant, neighbors testified to good character of defendant and to his having a night job at which he worked regularly, and thorough examination by police failed to shake statement of defendant that he had never seen the prosecuting witness before, such circumstances were important enough to be called to the attention of the jury to be weighed together with evidence in support of legal presumption of innocence. McKenzie v. U. S., 1942 (126 F. 2d 533, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 270).

In prosecution for rape and robbery, failure to instruct jury in precise terms that a not guilty verdict was necessary in event of failure by the government to prove each of the elements of the offenses charged beyond a reasonable doubt was error requiring reversal, notwithstanding the court instructed that defendant was presumed to be innocent and that the government was obliged to rebut the presumption by proof of guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. McKenzie v. U. S., 1942 (126 F. 2d 533, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 270).

In prosecution for rape and robbery, where verity of identification of accused by prosecuting witness was point on which case turned, failure to instruct jury in plain words that if circumstances of identification were not convincing, jury should acquit accused was error. McKenzie v. U. S., 1942 (126 F. 2d 533, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 270).

In prosecution for rape and robbery where court referring to conditions obtaining at time of prosecuting witness' identification of accused stated that the jury should take into consideration the attitude of the prosecuting witness upon coming in view of the accused and that they should search their reasoning power regarding what motivated the selection of the accused from among all others, in view of fact that verity of identification was the point on which the case turned, the court should have cautioned that if the motivation was not convincing beyond a reasonable doubt the jury should find the defendant not guilty. McKenzie v. U. S., 1942 (126 F. 2d 533, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 270).

Where defendant's counsel had characterized person reporting alleged robbery as a "busybody," court's charge that it was duty of citizens to report felonies and that if there was a robbery persons reporting it could not be characterized as "busybodies" was proper. Beck v. U. S., 1944 (140 F. 2d 169, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 10).

In prosecution for robbery, where defendants had denied that they were present at robbery, charge that if jury found that defendants were present jury could consider whether denial of presence was due to consciousness of guilt or some other reason was not improper. Beck v. U. S., 1944 (140 F. 2d 169, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 10).

The absence from the trial of an eyewitness to the robbery of which defendant was convicted was not prejudicial, where court instructed the jury in effect that they might infer from the witness' absence that his testimony would not be favorable to the government. Furqueron v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 158 F. 2d 193).

In robbery prosecution, where defendant's testimony was that a robbery occurred and that he participated in it, both before and after, with an interlude of nonparticipation, court's statement to jury that defendant claimed that he had repented and voluntarily withdrawn from robbery was not improper. Vinci v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1947, 159 F. 2d 777).

Purpose

The purpose of Congress in enacting this section was to expand the common-law definition of robbery so that it would comprehend the taking by sudden or stealthy seizure or snatching. Neufield v. U. S., 1941 (118 F. 2d 375, 73 App. D. C. 174, certiorari denied 62 S. Ct. 580, 315 U. S. 798, 86 L. Ed. 1199).

SENTENCE

Application for habeas corpus was premature when it challenged the validity of consecutive sentences as the first sentence of robbery had not expired. Johnson v. Aderhold ((C. C. A. 5), 73 Fed. (2d) 102).

What is maximum sentence for robbery. McDonald v. Johnston ((C. C. A. 9), 86 Fed. (2d) 329).

SUFFICIENCY OF EVIDENCE

Evidence sustained conviction for robbery. Bullock v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 157 F. 2d 702).

In robbery prosecution, where defendant claimed that he acted under compulsion by another after having intended only an extortion, evidence justified conviction. Vinci v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1947, 159 F. 2d 777).

TRIAL PROCEDURE

In prosecution for rape, and for robbery of cleaning establishment, where court warned defendant's counsel that if he asked question of witness regarding whether defendant had been identified as the man who robbed another cleaning establishment about a week prior to the commission of the offenses involved, he would do so at his peril, refusal to allow the contradiction of witness' answer was proper. McKenzie v. U. S., 1942 (126 F. 2d 533, 75 U. S. App. D. C. 270).

§ 22–2902 [6: 35]. Attempt to commit robbery.

Whoever attempts to commit robbery, as defined in section 22–2901, by an overt act, shall be imprisoned for not more than three years or be fined not more than five hundred dollars, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1322, ch. 854, § 811.)

CROSS REFERENCE

NOTES TO DECISIONS

ACQUITTAL ON ONE COUNT, EFFECT

Under this section and § 22–2901, attempted robbery or actual robbery is possible without assault, and acquittal of assault with intent to rob does not require acquittal of attempted robbery. Pope v. Huff, 1944 (141 F. 2d 727, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 18).

INDETERMINATE SENTENCE ACT

Sentence fixing a maximum of twelve years conformed with the act of July 15, 1932, as did the minimum period of three years, being for a minimum period "not exceeding one-fifth of the maximum period fixed by law." McDonald v. Johnston ((C. C. A. 9), 86 Fed. (2d) 329).

INDICTMENT

Under this section robbery includes taking by force or violence, whether against resistance or by sudden or stealthy seizure or snatching, or by putting in fear, and to charge a taking "by force and violence, and by sudden and stealthy seizure, and against resistance, and by putting in fear" did not constitute a misjoinder of actions in a single count. Turner v. United States (57 App. D. C. 39, 16 Fed. (2d) 535).

INFAMOUS CRIME

Robbery is an infamous crime, and must be prosecuted by indictment. United States v. Evans (28 App. D. C. 264).

Chapter 30.—SEDUCTION

Sec.
22–3001. Seduction.
22–3002. Seduction by teacher.

§ 22–3001 [6: 172]. Seduction.

If any person shall seduce and carnally know any female of previous chaste character, between the ages of sixteen and twenty-one years, out of wedlock, such seduction and carnal knowledge shall be deemed a misdemeanor, and the offender, being convicted thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment for a term not exceeding three years, or fined not exceeding two hundred dollars or may be punished by both such fine and imprisonment. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1332, ch. 854, § 873.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CHASTITY

Virginity is the test of chastity Bray v. United States (39 App. D. C. 600)

EVIDENCE

Subsequent misconduct of prosecutrix with others is inadmissible "unless, perhaps, when improper relations with others follow closely upon the commission of the offense by the accused, and are preceded by proof of circumstances tending to show that the prosecutrix had not been previously chaste." Bray v. United States (39 App. D. C. 600).

PROMISE OF MARRIAGE

"The object of the statute is to protect the chaste virgin against betrayal from an honest belief in the betrayer's protestations of love and affection, or an existing promise of marriage, or a present unqualified promise of marriage as an inducement for the commission of the act," but does not cover a promise of marriage contingent upon pregnancy resulting from the intercourse. Hamilton v. United States (41 App. D. C. 359).

SUBSEQUENT MARRIAGE

Subsequent marriage of the parties is no bar to prosecution. Bray v. United States (39 App. D. C. 600).

§ 22–3002 [6: 173]. Seduction by teacher.

Any male person, over twenty-one years of age, who is superintendent, tutor, or teacher in any public or private school, seminary, or other institution, or instructor of any female in any branch of instruction, who has sexual intercourse with any female under twenty-one years of age and not under sixteen years of age, with her consent, while under his instruction during the term of his engagement as superintendent, tutor, or teacher, shall be imprisoned for not less than one year nor more than ten. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1331, ch. 854, § 871; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 535, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The act of 1902 inserted the words "and not under sixteen years of age."

22–3107. Destroying or defacing public records.
22–3108. Cutting down or destroying things growing on the land of another.
22–3109. Destroying boundary trees.
22–3110. Destroying trees or protections thereto on public grounds—Fastening horses thereto.
22–3111. Disorderly conduct in public buildings or grounds—Injury to or destruction of United States property.
22–3112. Destroying or defacing buildings, statues, monuments, offices, dwellings, and structures.

Sec.
22–3113. Destroying or defacing building material for streets.
22–3114. Destroying cemetery railing or tomb.
22–3115. Offenses against property of electric lighting, heating, or power companies.
22–3116. Tapping gas pipes.
22–3117. Tapping or injuring water-pipes—Tampering with water meters.
22–3118. Maliciously making water impure.
22–3119. Placing obstructions on or displacement of railway tracks.
22–3120. Obstructing public road—Removing milestones.
22–3121. Obstructing public highway.
22–3122. Fines under section 22–3121 to be collected in name of United States.

§ 22–3101 [6: 56]. Forcible entry and detainer.

Whoever shall forcibly enter upon any premises, or, having entered without force, shall unlawfully detain the same by force against any person previously in the peaceable possession of the same and claiming right thereto, shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than one year or a fine of not more than one hundred dollars, or both. Any person who, without lawful authority, shall enter, or attempt to enter, a private dwelling or building against the will of the lawful occupant thereof, or being therein, without lawful authority to remain therein, shall refuse to quit the same on the demand of the lawful occupant thereof; or any person who, without lawful authority, shall enter, or attempt to enter, an unoccupied private dwelling or building against the will or consent of the lawful owner thereof, or his duly authorized agent, or being therein, without lawful authority to remain therein, shall refuse to quit the same on the demand of the lawful owner thereof, or his duly-authorized agent, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisonment in the jail for not more than six months, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1324, ch. 854, § 824; Mar. 4, 1935, 49 Stat. 37, ch. 23.)

AMENDMENT

The act of 1935 added the clause relating to unlawful entry of an unoccupied private dwelling. The penalty was the same.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

JURISDICTION OF COURTS

Under section 603 of Title 11, the police court had jurisdiction of information charging that accused unlawfully entered and unlawfully declined to leave dwelling house in District of Columbia. Fletcher v. McMahon, 1941 (121 F. 2d 729, 73 App. D. C. 263, certiorari denied 62 S. Ct. 131, 314 U. S. 662, 86 L. Ed. 531).

JURISDICTION TO SENTENCE

Appellant having been convicted in police court under this section appealed the case and by so doing deprived lower court of jurisdiction, and they had no power to commit appellant to jail. Prioleau v. Superintendent of Wash. Asylum and Jail (55 App. D. C. 99, 2 Fed. (2d) 317).

§ 22–3103 [6: 269]. Grave robbery—Buying or selling dead bodies.

Whoever, without legal authority or without the consent of the nearest surviving relative, shall disturb or remove any dead body from a grave for the purpose of dissecting, or of buying, selling, or in any way trafficking in the same, shall be imprisoned not less than one year nor more than three years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1334, ch. 854, § 891.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Other provision concerning unlawful traffic in dead bodies, § 2–206.

§ 22–3104 [6: 58]. Depredation on fixtures in houses.

Whoever shall wilfully and without color of right enter into any occupied or unoccupied dwelling-house or other building, property of another, and shall cut, break, or tear from its place any gas-pipe, water-pipe, door-bell, or other fixture therein; or whoever shall in such dwelling-house or other building wilfully and without color of right cut, break, or tear down any wall or part of a wall, or door, with intent to cut, break, or tear from its place any pipe or fixture therein, shall be fined not more than two hundred dollars, or be imprisoned not more than two years, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1324, ch. 854, § 825.)

§ 22–3105 [6: 59]. Placing explosives with intent to destroy or injure property.

Whoever places, or causes to be placed, in, upon, under, against, or near to any building, car, vessel, monument, statue, or structure, gunpowder or any explosive substance of any kind whatsoever, with intent to destroy, throw down, or injure the whole or any part thereof, although no damage is done, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or by imprisonment not exceeding ten years. (Mar. 3, 1905, 33 Stat. 1033, ch. 1461, § 825a.)

§ 22–3106 [6: 63]. Stealing or injuring books, manuscripts, publications, works of art.

Any person who shall steal, wrongfully deface, injure, mutilate, tear, or destroy any book, pamphlet, or manuscript, or any portion thereof belonging to the Library of Congress, or to any public library in the District of Columbia, whether the property of the United States or of the District of Columbia or of any individual or corporation in said District, or who shall steal, wrongfully deface, injure, mutilate, tear, or destroy any book, pamphlet, document, manuscript, print, engraving, medal, newspaper, or work of art, the property of the United States, shall be held guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof, shall, when the offense is not otherwise punishable by some statute of the United States, be punished by a fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, and by imprisonment for not less than one month nor more than one year, or both, for every such offense. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1327, ch. 854, § 849; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 535, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The act of 1902 inserted after the words "United States" the words "or of the District of Columbia."

STATUTORY REFERENCE

This section is in U. S. C., title 18, § 102.

§ 22–3107 [6: 87]. Destroying or defacing public records.

Whoever maliciously or with intent to injure or defraud any other person defaces, mutilates, destroys, abstracts, or conceals the whole or any part of any record authorized by law to be made, or pertaining to any court or public office in the District, or any paper duly filed in such court or office, shall be fined not more than three hundred dollars or imprisoned not more than two years or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1327, ch. 854, § 844.)

§ 22–3108 [6: 91]. Cutting down or destroying things growing on the land of another.

Whoever maliciously cuts down or destroys by girdling or otherwise, any standing or growing vine, bush, shrub, sapling, or tree on the land of another, or severs from the land of another any product standing or growing thereon, or any other thing attached thereto, shall, if the value of the thing destroyed or the amount of damage done to any such thing or to the land is fifty dollars or more, be imprisoned for not less than one year nor more than three years, or, if such value or amount is less than that sum, shall be fined not less than five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars, or be imprisoned not more than one year, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1327, ch. 854, § 847; Aug. 12, 1937, 50 Stat. 629, ch. 599.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

This section may partially supersede § 22–3110.

AMENDMENT

The act of 1937 increased the value from $35 to $50.

§ 22–3109 [6: 92]. Destroying boundary trees.

Whoever maliciously cuts down, destroys, or removes any boundary tree, stone, or other mark or monument, or maliciously effaces any inscription thereon, either of his own lands or of the lands of any other person whatsoever, even though such boundary or bounded trees should stand within the person's own land so cutting down and destroying the same, shall be fined not more than one thousand dollars and imprisoned not exceeding one year. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1333, ch. 854, § 880.)

§ 22–3110 [6: 93]. Destroying trees or protections thereto on public grounds—Fastening horses thereto.

It shall not be lawful for any person or persons to girdle, break, wound, destroy, or in any manner injure any of the trees growing or planted and set, or which may hereafter be planted and set on any of the public grounds, open space, or squares or on any private lot, or on any of the streets, or avenues, roads or highways, in the District of Columbia, or any of the boxes, stakes, or any other protection thereof, under a penalty of not exceeding fifty dollars for each and every such offense; and if any person or persons shall tie or in any manner fasten a horse or horses to any of the trees, boxes, or other protection thereof on any streets or avenues, roads, or highways, on any of the public grounds belonging to the United States, or on any of the streets, avenues, or alleys, in the District of Columbia, each and every such offender shall forfeit and pay for each offense a sum not exceeding ten dollars. (July 29, 1892, 27 Stat. 324, ch. 320, § 13.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

This section is superseded in part by § 22–3108.

CROSS REFERENCE

Prosecutions, § 22–109.

§ 22–3111 [6: 94]. Disorderly conduct in public buildings or grounds—Injury to or destruction of United States property.

Any person guilty of disorderly and unlawful conduct in or about the public buildings and public grounds belonging to the United States within the District of Columbia, or who shall wilfully injure the buildings or shrubs, or shall pull down, impair, or otherwise injure any fence, wall, or other inclosure, or shall injure any sink, culvert, pipe, hydrant, cistern, lamp, or bridge, or shall remove any stone, gravel, sand, or other property of the United States, or any other part of the public grounds or lots belonging to the United States in the District of Columbia, shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined not more than fifty dollars. (July 29, 1892, 27 Stat. 325, ch. 320, § 15.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

This section contains the last part of the Act of July 29, 1892, 27 Stat. 325, ch. 320, § 15. The first part of § 15 of said act appears herein as § 4–120.

CROSS REFERENCE

Prosecutions, § 22–109.

STATUTORY REFERENCE

This section is in U. S. C., title 40, § 101. The remainder of the section says: "The provisions of the several laws and regulations within the District of Columbia for the protection of public or private property and to the preservation of peace and order are extended to all public buildings and public grounds belonging to the United States within the District of Columbia."

§ 22–3112 [6: 95]. Destroying or defacing buildings, statues, monuments, offices, dwellings, and structures.

It shall not be lawful for any person or persons to wilfully or wantonly destroy, injure, disfigure, cut, chip, break, deface, or cover or rub with or otherwise place filth or excrement of any kind upon any property, public or private, in the District of Columbia, or any public or private building, statue, monument, office, dwelling or structure of any kind, or which may be in course of erection, or the doors, windows, steps, railing, fencing, balconies, balustrades, stairs, porches, or halls, or the walls or sides, or the walls of any inclosure thereof; or to write, mark, or paint obscene or indecent words or language thereon, or to draw, paint, mark, or write obscene or indecent figures representing obscene or indecent objects; or to write, mark or draw, or paint any other word, sign, or figure thereon, without the consent of the owner or proprietor thereof, or, in case of public property, of the person having charge, custody, or control thereof, under penalty of a fine not to exceed one hundred dollars, or imprisonment not to exceed six months, or both such fine and imprisonment. (July 29, 1892, 27 Stat. 322, ch. 320, § 1; July 8, 1898, 30 Stat. 723, ch. 638; Apr. 21, 1906, 34 Stat. 126, ch. 1647.)

AMENDMENTS

The 1898 act repealed this section.

The 1906 amendment added the words "wilfully or wantonly" and increased the penalty from a fine of $50 to that set out in this section.

CROSS REFERENCE

Prosecution, § 22–109.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

APPLICATION OF SECTION

This section does not apply to the destruction of movable property (see § 22–403). Nation v. District of Columbia (34 App. D. C. 453, 26 L. R. A. (N. S.) 996).

INDICTMENT OR INFORMATION

The value of the injured property need not be alleged or proved in prosecutions under this section. Nation v. District of Columbia (34 App. D. C. 453, 26 L. R. A. (N. S.) 996).

§ 22–3113 [6: 96]. Destroying or defacing building material for streets.

It shall not be lawful for any person or persons to destroy, break, cut, disfigure, deface, burn, or otherwise injure any building materials, or materials intended for the improvement of any street, avenue, alley, foot pavement, roads, highways, or inclosure, whether public or private property, or remove the same (except in pursuance of law or by consent of the owner) from the place where the same may be collected for purposes of building or improvement as aforesaid; or to remove, cut, destroy, or injure any scaffolding, ladder, or other thing used in or about such building or improvement, under a penalty of not more than twenty-five dollars for each and every such offense. (July 29, 1892, 27 Stat. 322, ch. 320, § 2.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Prosecutions, § 22–109.

§ 22–3114 [6: 97]. Destroying cemetery railing or tomb.

If any person shall maliciously cut down, demolish, or otherwise injure any railing, fence, or inclosure around or upon any cemetery, or shall injure or deface any tomb or inscription thereon, he shall be fined not more than one hundred dollars. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1327, ch. 854, § 850.)

§ 22–3115 [6: 72]. Offenses against property of electric lighting, heating, or power companies.

Whoever shall knowingly connect or disconnect any electrical conductor belonging to any company using or engaged in the manufacture and supply of electric current for purposes of light, heat, and power, or either of them, or makes any connection with any such electrical conductor for the purpose of using or wasting the electric current, or who in any wise tampers with any meter used to register current consumed, or who interferes with the operating of any dynamo or other electrical appliance of such company, or tampers with or interferes with the poles, wires, conduits, or other apparatus used by such companies, unless such person or persons shall be duly authorized by or be in the employ of such company, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both. (June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 534, ch. 1329, § 826a.)

§ 22–3116 [6: 73]. Tapping gas pipes.

Any person who, with intent to injure or defraud any gas company in the District of Columbia, shall make or cause to be made any pipe, tube, or other instrument or contrivance, or connect the same, or cause it to be connected with any main service pipe or other pipe for conducting or supplying illuminating gas in such manner as to connect with and be calculated to supply illuminating gas to any burner or orifice by which illuminating gas is consumed, around or without passing through the meter provided for the measuring and registering of the quantity of gas there consumed, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by imprisonment not exceeding six months or by fine not exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars. (June 23, 1874, 18 Stat. 280, ch 480, § 15.)

§ 22–3117 [6: 74]. Tapping or injuring water-pipes—Tampering with water meters.

Any person who, with intent to injure or defraud the District of Columbia, shall make or cause to be made any pipe, tube, or other instrument or contrivance, or connect the same or cause it to be connected with any water main or service pipe or other pipe for conducting or supplying Potomac water, in such manner as to pass or carry the water, or any portion thereof, around or without passing through the meter provided for the measuring and registering of the Potomac water supplied to any premises, or who shall, without permission from the commissioners of the District of Columbia, tamper with or break any water meter or break the seal thereof, or in any manner change the reading of the dial thereof, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by imprisonment not exceeding six months, or by fine not exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars. (Apr. 5, 1892, 27 Stat. 14, ch. 34.)

§ 22–3118 [6: 74a]. Maliciously making water impure.

Every person who maliciously commits any act by reason of which the supply of water, or any part thereof, to the city of Washington, becomes impure, filthy, or unfit for use, shall be fined not less than $500 nor more than $1,000, or imprisoned at hard labor not more than three years nor less than one year. (R. S., § 1806; Feb. 11, 1895, 28 Stat. 650, ch. 79.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

This section was not contained in the 1929 code but appeared in the supplement thereto.

STATUTORY REFERENCE

This section is in U. S. C., title 40, § 58.

§ 22–3119 [6: 90]. Placing obstructions on or displacement of railway tracks.

Whoever maliciously places an obstruction on or near the track of any steam or street railway, or displaces or injures anything appertaining to such track, with intent to endanger the passage of any locomotive or car, shall be imprisoned for not more than ten years. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1327, ch. 854, § 846.)

§ 22–3120 [6: 310]. Obstructing public road—Removing milestones.

If any person shall alter or in any manner obstruct or encroach on a public road, or cut, destroy, deface, or remove any milestones set up on such road, or place any rubbish, dirt, logs, or make any pit or hole therein, such person may be indicted, and, upon conviction thereof before the proper court, shall be fined or imprisoned, in the discretion of the court, according to the nature of the offense. (R. S., D. C., § 268.)

§ 22–3121 [6: 311]. Obstructing public highway.

Any person who, without lawful authority, shall obstruct the free use of any of the public highways, which had been used and recognized as public county roads for twenty-five years prior to May 3, 1862, and which were thereafter duly surveyed, recorded, and declared public highways according to law, shall be subject to a fine for each offense of not less than one hundred nor more than two hundred and fifty dollars and be imprisoned till the fine and the costs of suit and collection of the same are paid. (R. S., D. C., § 269.)

§ 22–3122 [6: 312]. Fines under section 22–3121 to be collected in name of United States.

The fines provided for in section 22–3121 shall be collected in the name of the United States. (R. S., D. C., §§ 1, 2, 96, 270; June 11, 1878, 20 Stat. 102, ch. 180.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

NEGLIGENCE OF MUNICIPAL OFFICERS

District of Columbia is a municipal corporation and is responsible for the negligence of its officers having the care of streets, avenues, and sidewalks, as resulted in personal injuries to individuals. District of Columbia v. Woodbury (136 U. S. 450, 34 L. Ed. 472, 10 Sup. Ct. 990).

Chapter 32.—WEAPONS

Sec.

22–3201. Possession, sale, transfer, and use of dangerous weapons—Definition.
22–3202. Committing crime when armed—Added punishment.
22–3203. Persons convicted of crime forbidden to possess a pistol.
22–3204. Carrying concealed weapons.
22–3205. Exceptions to section 22–3204.
22–3206. Issue of licenses to carry pistol.
22–3207. Selling pistol to minors and others.
22–3208. Transfers of firearms regulated.
22–3209. Dealers of weapons to be licensed.
22–3210. Licenses of dealers of weapons—Records—By whom granted—Conditions thereof.
22–3211. False information forbidden in sale of weapons.
22–3212. Alteration of identifying marks of weapons prohibited.
22–3213. Exceptions.
22–3214. Possession of certain dangerous weapons prohibited—Exceptions.
22–3215. Penalties.
22–3216. Constitutionality.

§ 22–3201 [6: 116a]. Possession, sale, transfer, and use of dangerous weapons—Definition.

"Pistol," as used in this chapter, means any firearm with a barrel less than twelve inches in length.

"Sawed-off shotgun," as used in this chapter, means any shotgun with a barrel less than twenty inches in length.

"Machine gun," as used in this chapter, means any firearm which shoots automatically or semi-automatically more than twelve shots without reloading.

"Person," as used in this chapter, includes individual, firm, association, or corporation.

"Sell" and "purchase" and the various derivatives of such words, as used in this chapter, shall be construed to include letting on hire, giving, lending, borrowing, and otherwise transferring.

"Crime of violence," as used in this chapter, means any of the following crimes, or an attempt to commit any of the same, namely: Murder, manslaughter, rape, mayhem, maliciously disfiguring another, abduction, kidnaping, burglary, housebreaking, larceny, any assault with intent to kill, commit rape, or robbery, assault with a dangerous weapon, or assault with intent to commit any offense punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary. (July 8, 1932, 47 Stat. 650, ch. 465, § 1.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

Section 17 of the act of July 8, 1932, 47 Stat. 654, ch. 465 repealed §§ 855 to 857 of the "Code of Law for the District of Columbia, 1919." This is obviously an error and was meant to repeal §§ 855 to 857 of the Code of 1901. These sections were compiled in the 1929 edition of the Code as title 6, §§ 114 to 116.

CROSS REFERENCE

Other provisions concerning regulations of firearms, § 1–227 and notes.

§ 22–3202 [6: 116b]. Committing crime when armed—Added punishment.

If any person shall commit a crime of violence in the District of Columbia when armed with or having readily available any pistol or other firearm, he may, in addition to the punishment provided for the crime, be punished by imprisonment for a term of not more than five years; upon a second conviction for a crime of violence so committed he may, in addition to the punishment provided for the crime, be punished by imprisonment for a term of not more than ten years; upon a third conviction for a crime of violence so committed he may, in addition to the punishment provided for the crime, be punished by imprisonment for a term of not more than fifteen years; upon a fourth or subsequent conviction for a crime of violence so committed he may, in addition to the punishment provided for the crime, be punished by imprisonment for an additional period of not more than thirty years. (July 8, 1932, 47 Stat. 650, ch. 465, § 2.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

INDICTMENT

The words "said defendants being then and there armed with a certain pistol" were considered as mere surplusage to an indictment for robbery and not to charge a separate offense for the purpose of increasing the punishment. Tomlinson v. United States (68 App. D. C. 106, 93 Fed. (2d) 652, 114 A. L. R. 1315).

§ 22–3203 [6: 116c]. Persons convicted of crime forbidden to possess a pistol.

No person who has been convicted in the District of Columbia or elsewhere of a crime of violence shall own or have in his possession a pistol, within the District of Columbia. (July 8, 1932, 47 Stat. 651, ch. 465, § 3.)

§ 22–3204 [6: 116d]. Carrying concealed weapons.

No person shall within the District of Columbia carry either openly or concealed on or about his person, except in his dwelling house or place of business or on other land possessed by him, a pistol, without a license therefor issued as hereinafter provided, or any deadly or dangerous weapon capable of being so concealed: Provided, That arrests, without a warrant, and searchers and seizures pursuant thereto, may be made for violation of this section, by police officers, as in the case of a felony, upon probable cause that the person arrested is violating this section at the time of the arrest; but no evidence discovered in the course of any arrest, search, or seizure authorized by this proviso shall be admissible in any criminal proceeding against the person arrested unless at the time of such arrest he was carrying a pistol or other dangerous weapon on or about his person. (July 8, 1932, 47 Stat. 651, ch. 465, § 4; Nov. 4, 1943, 57 Stat. 586, ch. 296; Aug. 4, 1947, 61 Stat. 743, ch. 469.)

AMENDMENTS

The act of Nov. 4, 1943, cited to text, amended section by inserting word "either openly or" preceding "concealed on or about", and by adding "capable of being so concealed" following "deadly or dangerous weapon."

Act of Aug. 4, 1947, cited to text, added the proviso.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

"The defendant had a right to carry the revolver, loaded or unloaded, from the place of purchase to his home; and whether he had it on his person at the time of his arrest, for that purpose only, or for some unlawful purpose as well, was a question of fact, which should have been submitted to the jury." Bell v. United States (49 App. D. C. 367, 265 Fed. 1007).

D. C. 1929, title 6, § 114, permitted the carrying of a dangerous or deadly weapon from the place of purchase to the purchaser's dwelling or place of business, especially when person was conducting himself in a quiet, peaceable, and orderly manner. Bolt v. United States (55 App. D. C. 120, 2 Fed. (2d) 922).

BURDEN OF PROOF

The elements of the crime being the carrying of a pistol, without a license, the burden of proceeding does not shift to the defendant once the prima facie case of carrying the weapon has been established but remains with the prosecution. Brown v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 66 A. 2d 491).

CONCEALED ABOUT HIS PERSON

"The words 'concealed about his person,' as used in the statute, were intended to mean and do mean concealed in such proximity to the person as to be convenient of access and within reach." Brown v. United States (58 App. D. C. 311, 30 Fed. (2d) 474).

CONSTRUCTION

The statute being criminal, penal, prohibitive and in derogation of the common law it must be given a strict rather than liberal construction. Brown v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 66 A. 2d 491).

The qualifying phrase "without a license" is not to be treated as an exception to the statute but rather as a descriptive part of the offense, an "adjectival" or descriptive negative defining the corpus delicti. The phrase is incorporated in the definition forming an integral element of the crime. Brown v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 66 A. 2d 491).

EVIDENCE

In prosecution for carrying a pistol without a license, prosecution need not prove that pistol was carried openly or was concealed, in view that it is an offense under this section to carry a pistol without a license irrespective of whether pistol was carried openly or concealed. U. S. v. Waters (D. C., D. C. 1947, 73 F. Supp. 72, 175 F. 2d 340, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 127, appeal dismissed 69 S. Ct. 168, 335 U. S. 869, 93 L. Ed. 413).

Evidence that defendant taxicab driver did not need to move from front seat of his taxicab to obtain his pistol established that he had pistol "about his person" within this section prohibiting a party from carrying about his person a pistol without license. U. S. v. Waters (D. C., D. C. 1947, 73 F. Supp. 72, 175 F. 2d 340, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 127, appeal dismissed 69 S. Ct. 168, 335 U. S. 869, 93 L. Ed. 413).

INDICTMENT

Indictment charging defendant with carrying a pistol but failing to charge, as required by this section, that pistol was carried by defendant without a license failed to charge an offense. U. S. v. Waters (D. C., D. C. 1947, 73 F. Supp. 72, 175 F. 2d 340, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 127, appeal dismissed 69 S. Ct. 168, 335 U. S. 869, 93 L. Ed. 413).

PLACE OF BUSINESS

Provision of this section prohibiting a person from carrying a pistol without a license "except in his dwelling house or place of business or on other land possessed by him" manifests the intent that the "place of business" referred to is land, and would not apply so as to exempt a taxicab driver who carried a pistol without a license while in his taxicab, since the cab would not be the driver's "place of business". U. S. v. Waters (D. C., D. C. 1947, 73 F. Supp. 72, 175 F. 2d 340, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 127, appeal dismissed 69 S. Ct. 168, 335 U. S. 869, 93 L. Ed. 413).

POSSESSION OF FIREARMS

This section clearly establishes that possession of a firearm in one's home is not a crime. Morton v. United States (C. A. D. C. 1950, 183 F. 2d 844).

§ 22–3205 [6: 116e]. Exceptions to section 22–3204.

The provisions of section 22–3204 shall not apply to marshals, sheriffs, prison or jail wardens, or their deputies, policemen or other duly appointed law-enforcement officers, or to members of the Army, Navy, or Marine Corps of the United States or of the National Guard or Organized Reserves when on duty, or to the regularly enrolled members of any organization duly authorized to purchase or receive such weapons from the United States, provided such members are at or are going to or from their places of assembly or target practice, or to officers or employees of the United States duly authorized to carry a concealed pistol, or to any person engaged in the business of manufacturing, repairing, or dealing in firearms, or the agent or representative of any such person having in his possession, using, or carrying a pistol in the usual or ordinary course of such business or to any person while carrying a pistol unloaded and in a secure wrapper from the place of purchase to his home or place of business or to a place of repair or back to his home or place of business or in moving goods from one place of abode or business to another. (July 8, 1932, 47 Stat. 651, ch. 465, § 5.)

§ 22–3206 [6: 116f]. Issue of licenses to carry pistol.

The superintendent of police of the District of Columbia may, upon the application of any person having a bona fide residence or place of business within the District of Columbia or of any person having a bona fide residence or place of business within the United States and a license to carry a pistol concealed upon his person issued by the lawful authorities of any State or subdivision of the United States, issue a license to such person to carry a pistol within the District of Columbia for not more than one year from date of issue, if it appears that the applicant has good reason to fear injury to his person or property or has any other proper reason for carrying a pistol and that he is a suitable person to be so licensed. The license shall be in duplicate, in form to be prescribed by the commissioners of the District of Columbia and shall bear the name, address, description, photograph, and signature of the licensee and the reason given for desiring a license. The original thereof shall be delivered to the licensee, and the duplicate shall be retained by the superintendent of police of the District of Columbia and preserved in his office for six years. (July 8, 1932, 47 Stat. 651, ch. 465, § 6.)

§ 22–3207 [6: 116g]. Selling pistol to minors and others.

No person shall within the District of Columbia sell any pistol to a person who he has reasonable cause to believe is not of sound mind, or is a drug addict, or is a person who has been convicted in the District of Columbia or elsewhere of a crime of violence or, except when the relation of parent and child or guardian and ward exists, is under the age of eighteen years. (July 8, 1932, 47 Stat. 652, ch. 465, § 7.)

§ 22–3208 [6: 116h]. Transfers of firearms regulated.

No seller shall within the District of Columbia deliver a pistol to the purchaser thereof until forty-eight hours shall have elapsed from the time of the application for the purchase thereof, except in the case of sales to marshals, sheriffs, prison or jail wardens or their deputies, policemen, or other duly appointed law-enforcement officers, and, when delivered, said pistol shall be securely wrapped and shall be unloaded. At the time of applying for the purchase of a pistol the purchaser shall sign in duplicate and deliver to the seller a statement containing his full name, address, occupation, color, place of birth, the date and hour of application, the caliber, make, model, and manufacturer's number of the pistol to be purchased and a statement that he has never been convicted in the District of Columbia or elsewhere of a crime of violence. The seller shall, within six hours after such application, sign and attach his address and deliver one copy to such person or persons as the superintendent of police of the District of Columbia may designate, and shall retain the other copy for six years. No machine gun, sawed-off shotgun, or blackjack shall be sold to any person other than the persons designated in section 22–3214 as entitled to possess the same, and then only after permission to make such sale has been obtained from the superintendent of police of the District of Columbia. This section shall not apply to sales at wholesale to licensed dealers. (July 8, 1932, 47 Stat. 652, ch. 465, § 8.)

§ 22–3209 [6: 116i]. Dealers of weapons to be licensed.

No retail dealer shall within the District of Columbia sell or expose for sale or have in his possession with intent to sell, any pistol, machine gun, sawed-off shotgun, or blackjack without being licensed as provided in section 22–3210. No wholesale dealer shall, within the District of Columbia, sell, or have in his possession with intent to sell, to any person other than a licensed dealer, any pistol, machine gun, sawed-off shotgun, or blackjack. (July 8, 1932, 47 Stat. 652, ch. 465, § 9.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

This section may supersede § 47–2340.

§ 22–3210 [6: 116j]. Licenses of dealers of weapons—Records—By whom granted—Conditions thereof.

The commissioners of the District of Columbia may, in their discretion, grant licenses and may prescribe the form thereof, effective for not more than one year from date of issue, permitting the licensee to sell pistols, machine guns, sawed-off shotguns, and blackjacks at retail within the District of Columbia subject to the following conditions in addition to those specified in section 22–3209, for breach of any of which the license shall be subject to forfeiture and the licensee subject to punishment as provided in this chapter.

1. The business shall be carried on only in the building designated in the license.

2. The license or a copy thereof, certified by the issuing authority, shall be displayed on the premises where it can be easily read.

3. No pistol shall be sold (a) if the seller has reasonable cause to believe that the purchaser is not of sound mind or is a drug addict or has been convicted in the District of Columbia or elsewhere of a crime of violence or is under the age of eighteen years, and (b) unless the purchaser is personally known to the seller or shall present clear evidence of his identity. No machine gun, sawed-off shotgun, or blackjack shall be sold to any person other than the persons designated in section 22–3214 as entitled to possess the same, and then only after permission to make such sale has been obtained from the superintendent of police of the District of Columbia.

4. A true record shall be made in a book kept for the purpose, the form of which may be prescribed by the commissioners, of all pistols, machine guns, and sawed-off shotguns in the possession of the licensee, which said record shall contain the date of purchase, the caliber, make, model, and manufacturer's number of the weapon, to which shall be added, when sold, the date of sale.

5. A true record in duplicate shall be made of every pistol, machine gun, sawed-off shotgun, and blackjack sold, said record to be made in a book kept for the purpose, the form of which may be prescribed by the commissioners of the District of Columbia and shall be personally signed by the purchaser and by the person effecting the sale, each in the presence of the other and shall contain the date of sale, the name, address, occupation, color, and place of birth of the purchaser, and, so far as applicable, the caliber, make, model. and manufacturer's number of the weapon, and a statement signed by the purchaser that he has never been convicted in the District of Columbia or elsewhere of a crime of violence. One copy of said record shall, within seven days, be forwarded by mail to the superintendent of police of the District of Columbia and the other copy retained by the seller for six years.

6. No pistol or imitation thereof or placard advertising the sale thereof shall be displayed in any part of said premises where it can readily be seen from the outside. No license to sell at retail shall be granted to anyone except as provided in this section. (July 8, 1932, 47 Stat. 652, ch. 465, § 10.)

§ 22–3211 [6: 116k]. False information forbidden in sale of weapons.

No person shall, in purchasing a pistol or in applying for a license to carry the same, or in purchasing a machine gun, sawed-off shotgun, or blackjack within the District of Columbia, give false information or offer false evidence of his identity. (July 8, 1932, 47 Stat. 653, ch. 465, § 11.)

§ 22–3212 [6: 116*l*]. Alteration of identifying marks of weapons prohibited.

No person shall within the District of Columbia change, alter, remove, or obliterate the name of the maker, model, manufacturer's number, or other mark or identification on any pistol, machine gun, or sawed-off shotgun. Possession of any pistol, machine gun, or sawed-off shotgun upon which any such mark shall have been changed, altered, removed, or obliterated shall be prima facie evidence that the possessor has changed, altered, removed, or obliterated the same within the District of Columbia: Provided, however, That nothing contained in this section shall apply to any officer or agent of any of the departments of the United States or the District of Columbia engaged in experimental work. (July 8, 1932, 47 Stat. 653, ch. 465, § 12.)

§ 22–3213 [6: 116m]. Exceptions.

This chapter shall not apply to toy or antique pistols unsuitable for use as firearms. (July 8, 1932, 47 Stat. 653, ch. 465, § 13.)

§ 22–3214 [6: 116n]. Possession of certain dangerous weapons prohibited—Exceptions.

No person shall within the District of Columbia possess any machine gun, sawed-off shotgun, or any instrument or weapon of the kind commonly known as a black-jack, slung shot, sand club, sandbag, or metal knuckles, nor any instrument, attachment, or appliance for causing the firing of any firearm to be silent or intended to lessen or muffle the noise of the firing of any firearms: Provided, however, That machine guns, or sawed-off shotguns, and blackjacks may be possessed by the members of the Army, Navy, or Marine Corps of the United States, the National Guard, or Organized Reserves when on duty, the Post Office Department or its employees when on duty, marshals, sheriffs, prison or jail wardens, or their deputies, policemen, or other duly-appointed law-enforcement officers, officers or employees of the United States duly authorized to carry such weapons, banking institutions, public carriers who are engaged in the business of transporting mail, money. securities, or other valuables, wholesale dealers and retail dealers licensed under section 22–3210. (July 8, 1932, 47 Stat. 654, ch. 465, § 14.)

§ 22–3215 [6: 116*o*]. Penalties.

Any violation of any provision of this chapter for which no penalty is specifically provided shall be punished by a fine of not more than $1,000 or imprisonment for not more than one year, or both. (July 8, 1932, 47 Stat. 654, ch. 465, § 15.)

§ 22–3216 [6: 116p]. Constitutionality.

If any part of this chapter is for any reason declared void, such invalidity shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this chapter. (July 8, 1932, 47 Stat. 654, ch. 465, § 16.)

Chapter 33.—VAGRANCY

Sec.
22–3301. Repealed.
22–3302. "Vagrants" defined.
22–3303. Prosecutions—Burden of proof to show lawful employment.
22–3304. Penalty—Conditions imposed by court.
22–3305. Prosecutions.
22–3306. Right to strike or picket not abrogated.

§ 22–3301. Repealed. Dec. 17, 1941, 55 Stat. 810, ch. 589, § 5.

Section was based on Act July 29, 1892, 27 Stat. 323, ch. 320, § 8; July 8, 1898, 30 Stat. 723, ch. 638; Mar. 3, 1909, 35 Stat. 711, ch. 250, and is now covered by remainder of this chapter.

§ 22–3302. "Vagrants" defined.

The following classes of persons shall be deemed vagrants in the District of Columbia:

(1) Any person known to be a pickpocket, thief, burglar, confidence operator, or felon, either by his own confession or by his having been convicted in the District of Columbia or elsewhere of any one of such offenses or of any felony, and having no lawful employment and having no lawful means of support realized from a lawful occupation or source, and not giving a good account of himself when found loitering around in any park, highway, public building, or other public place, store, shop, or reservation, or at any public gathering or assembly.

(2) Any person upon whom shall be found any instrument, tool, or other implement for picking locks or pockets or that is usually employed or reasonably may be employed in the commission of any crime who shall fail satisfactorily to account for the possession of the same.

(3) Any person leading an immoral or profligate life who has no lawful employment and who has no lawful means of support realized from a lawful occupation or source.

(4) Any person who keeps, operates, frequents, lives in, or is employed in any house or other establishment of ill fame, or who (whether married or single) engages in or commits acts of fornication or perversion for hire.

(5) Any person who frequents or loafs, loiters, or idles in or around or is the occupant of or is employed in any gambling establishment or establishment where intoxicating liquor is sold without a license.

(6) Any person wandering abroad and lodging in any grocery or provision establishment, vacant house, or other vacant building, outhouse, market place, shed, barn, garage, gasoline station, parking lot, or in the open air, and not giving a good account of himself.

(7) Any person wandering abroad and begging, or who goes about from door to door or places himself in or on any highway, passage, or other public place to beg or receive alms.

(8) Any person who wanders about the streets at late or unusual hours of the night without any visible or lawful business and not giving a good account of himself.

(9) And all persons who by the common law are vagrants, whether embraced in any of the foregoing classifications or not. (Dec. 17, 1941, 55 Stat. 808, ch. 589, § 1.)

REPEALS

Sec. 5 of the act of Dec. 17, 1941, cited to text, repealed § 22–2702 and § 22–3301.

It is also provided: "This act shall not be construed as repealing or amending any other acts of Congress, but shall be taken as supplementary thereto."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

AUTHORITY OF POLICE OFFICER

Police officer who saw defendant loitering around bus terminal and mingling with the crowd and recognized him as a professional pickpocket was authorized, under subsec. (1) of this section, to question defendant, and, upon defendant's failure to give a good account of himself, to place defendant under arrest. Clark v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 34 A. 2d 711).

CONFESSION

In vagrancy prosecution, on conflicting evidence regarding whether statement voluntarily given by defendant immediately after her arrest was intended for health department only, trial judge was justified in admitting the statement as a "confession." Rogers v. District of Columbia (D. C. 1943, 31 A. 2d 649).

This section should not be so construed as to bar from society or intercourse with other human beings persons who have been convicted of crime and have served the sentence imposed. Clark v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 34 A. 2d 711).

In prosecution for vagrancy, where arresting officer, who was sole witness, testified that defendant was loitering at bus terminal and mingling with the crowd and that officer recognized defendant as a professional pickpocket and that defendant, after his arrest, admitted that federal bureau of investigation record showing prior convictions was correct, conviction did not depend solely upon an uncorroborated "confession." Clark v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 34 A. 2d 711).

CONSTRUCTION

This section is in nature of a police regulation to prevent crime, and was enacted for the enforcement of good order and public safety, and must be construed in view of that purpose. Clark v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 34 A. 2d 711).

The purpose of this chapter is to prevent crimes which may likely flow from vagrant's mode of life. District of Columbia v. Hunt (App. D. C. 1947, 163 F. 2d 833, 82 U. S. App. D. C. 159).

CONTINUANCE

In prosecution for vagrancy, the continuance of defendant's trial for three days at request of prosecution was a matter in discretion of trial court which was not unreasonably exercised. Burns v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 34 A. 2d 714).

DEFENSES

The mere irregularity of trying accused on vagrancy charge after he was validly arrested on a warrant charging disorderly conduct was no defense to the vagrancy charge. Davenport v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 61 A. 2d 486).

DEGREE OF PROOF

To convict under this section, it must be shown that defendant was found prowling around one of the public places mentioned in this section, and that he was doing so while having no visible and lawful means of support, and that he was a person known to be pickpocket, thief or burglar. Clark v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 34 A. 2d 711).

In prosecution for vagrancy, defendant has no burden to prove lawful employment or means of support until government has first proved other elements of offense. Clark v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 34 A. 2d 711).

Where vagrancy information charged that each defendant was a person who frequented and was employed in a house of ill fame and who engaged in and who committed acts of fornication for hire, statement of intermediate appellate court that government was required to prove that each individual frequented the house and that each engaged in acts of fornication for hire was erroneous. District of Columbia v. Hunt (App. D. C. 1947, 163 F. 2d 833, 82 U. S. App. D. C. 159).

Appellant's own admission, not only to the officers but at the trial that she was "living" at the premises which were shown to be a house of ill fame, was sufficient to establish her guilt of "frequenting" such an establishment. Wilson v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 65 A. 2d 214).

DOUBLE JEOPARDY

Fact that defendant, who allegedly sold liquor in railroad station without a license, was previously prosecuted for disorderly conduct, indecent exposure, solicitation to prostitution, violation of the A. B. C. Laws, and drinking in public, and was convicted of some of such offenses, did not preclude subsequent prosecution for vagrancy, on ground that such prosecution constituted double jeopardy, though testimony and witnesses employed in prior prosecutions were the same as those used in the vagrancy prosecution. Davenport v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 61 A. 2d 486).

EVIDENCE

In vagrancy prosecution, testimony of arresting officer regarding character of certain women with whom defendant had been seen was admissible. Rogers v. District of Columbia (D. C. 1943, 31 A. 2d 649).

In vagrancy prosecution where defendant's witness testified that defendant had been working for witness, question whether witness carried a number of girls on his pay roll for purpose of showing that they worked for him when in fact they were nothing more than prostitutes constituted proper cross-examination. Rogers v. District of Columbia (D. C. 1943, 31 A. 2d 649).

Evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction on charge of vagrancy. Rogers v. District of Columbia (D. C. 1943, 31 A. 2d 649).

Where defendant was arrested for vagrancy on Sunday, July 4, but criminal division of the Municipal Court was in session Monday notwithstanding that Monday was a legal holiday and defendant was not taken into court until Tuesday, defendant's detention was unlawful and testimony of arresting officer in vagrancy prosecution as to admissions made to him by defendant after arrest was improperly admitted. Burns v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 34 A. 2d 714).

In prosecution for vagrancy, evidence that defendant was moving about after midnight in a crowd on a loading platform at bus terminal, and that defendant was observed mingling with crowds on loading platform at a second bus terminal on two other occasions on same night, established that defendant was "loitering" and failed to give a good account of himself within this section. Burns v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 34 A. 2d 714).

In prosecution for vagrancy, defendant's admission at trial of accuracy of his criminal record produced by prosecution satisfied burden of prosecution of proving by confession or conviction defendant's criminal record. Burns v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 34 A. 2d 714).

In prosecution for vagrancy, in absence of any proof on behalf of defendant of lawful employment or means of support, evidence which was adequate to prove other elements of the offense justified conviction. Clark v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 34 A. 2d 711).

Where defendant was arrested without warrant Friday evening and could have been taken to court for arraignment on Saturday but was not taken into court until Tuesday, the detention was unlawful, and, in prosecution for vagrancy which followed, admission of statements made by defendant to arresting officer was error notwithstanding statements were made at time of arrest and while detention was still lawful. Hayes v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 34 A. 2d 709).

In vagrancy prosecution based on defendant's acts in railroad station, employees at station were properly permitted to testify for the government, over objection that they were biased. Davenport v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 61 A. 2d 486).

Evidence that defendant had offered girls in railroad station money to commit an immoral act, that he had looked into a window of a girls' dormitory, that he had entered women's restroom, and that he sold liquor in railroad station without a license, was sufficient to establish that he led an "immoral or profligate life" within meaning of paragraph (3) of this section. Davenport v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 61 A. 2d 486).

One standing on a platform for the primary purpose of picking a pocket is loitering within the meaning of the statute. Williams v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 65 A. 2d 924).

Statements made by the operator of house of ill fame, in appellant's presence while they were both under arrest, to the effect that appellant was visiting her and that she was operating a house of ill fame, were hearsay, but since such statements were received without objection, the trial judge had a right to consider them along with defendant's silence. Wilson v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 65 A. 2d 214).

Contention that trial court erred in basing conviction for act of fornication for hire, when there had been no direct proof, is without merit under the rule of District of Columbia v. Hunt (82 U. S. App. D. C. 159, 163 F. 2d 833), since government's failure to prove expressly that she engaged in acts of fornication or perversion for hire is not fatal to prosecution so long as proof of the other violation is sufficient to sustain the conviction. Wilson v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 65 A. 2d 214).

Facts produced at the trial and all reasonable inferences therefrom do not support a conviction for vagrancy. Hainsworth v. District of Columbia and Dawson v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1950, 72 A. 2d 776).

Harmless or Prejudicial Error

In prosecution for vagrancy, where elements of offense required by this chapter to be established by prosecution were prima facie proven by record of defendant's convictions, and evidence of loitering and circumstantial incidents of defendant's conduct immediately before arrest and any possible deficiency was supplied by defendant's own testimony, error in admitting testimony of arresting officer as to admissions made to him by defendant after arrest, by reason of defendant's unlawful detention, did not require a reversal. Burns v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 34 A. 2d 714).

Jury Trial

In vagrancy prosecution, the defendant was not entitled to a jury trial. Rogers v. District of Columbia (D. C. 1943, 31 A. 2d 649).

Nature of Vagrancy

"Vagrancy" is a status or condition and this section punishes one for being a certain kind of person, not for doing of an overt act, and crime is personal and individual and cannot be committed jointly or in concert, since in essence it is a personal condition arrived at not instantaneously but by a mode of living. Hunt v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1946, 47 A. 2d 783).

This section denounces and makes punishable being in a state of vagrancy rather than the particular conduct enumerated in this section as evidencing or characterizing such condition. District of Columbia v. Hunt (App. D. C. 1947, 163 F. 2d 833, 82 U. S. App. D. C. 159).

Statute prescribes as an element of the offense of vagrancy (a) defendant's notoriety as a pickpocket, etc., either by his own confession or by earlier conviction, and (b) his not giving a good account of himself when found loitering and apprehended. When these elements have been established, the statute says that defendant shall have the burden of showing that he has lawful employment or lawful means of support realized from a lawful occupation or source. Williams v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 65 A. 2d 924).

Waiver

In vagrancy prosecution, motion of defendant for dismissal, made at conclusion of Government's case, was "waived" when defendant offered testimony in her own behalf. Rogers v. District of Columbia (D. C. 1943, 31 A. 2d 649).

In vagrancy prosecution, motion of defendant for a finding of not guilty at conclusion of government's case, apparently denied by trial court, was not error where the record did not show that such a motion was made; and even if made, it was waived when defendant offered testimony in her own behalf. Wilson v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 65 A. 2d 214).

§ 22–3303. Prosecutions—Burden of proof to show lawful employment.

In all prosecutions under paragraphs 1 or 3 of section 22–3302 the burden of proof shall be upon the defendant to show that he has lawful employment or has lawful means of support realized from a lawful occupation or source. (Dec. 17, 1941, 55 Stat. 809, ch. 589, § 2.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Generally

In vagrancy prosecutions, the burden was on defendant to establish, and not on the Government to disprove, legitimacy of defendant's employment. Rogers v. District of Columbia (D. C. 1943, 31 A. 2d 649).

Constitutionality

Provision of this section placing on defendant the burden of proving lawful employment or lawful means of support realized from a lawful occupation or source, after prosecution has first proved, or offered evidence tending to prove, the other elements of the offense, is constitutional. Rogers v. District of Columbia (D. C. 1943, 31 A. 2d 649).

Provision of this section placing on defendant the burden of proving lawful employment or lawful means of support realized from a lawful occupation or source, after prosecution has first proved, or offered evidence tending to prove, the other elements of the offense, is constitutional. Rogers v. District of Columbia (D. C. 1943, 31 A. 2d 649).

EVIDENCE

In prosecution for vagrancy where government established a prima facie case, defendant's uncontradicted and uncorroborated statement that he had been doing light work on his father-in-law's farm, in absence of testimony as to details of work or compensation or as to when work ceased was insufficient to discharge defendant's burden of proving that he had lawful means of support realized from a lawful occupation or source. Burns v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 34 A. 2d 714).

Where appellant says he was entitled to an acquittal because he offered evidence to show "lawful employment," when taken with the government's testimony, presented a question of fact, and we cannot say the trial judge decided incorrectly. Williams v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 65 A. 2d 924).

GOVERNMENT'S BURDEN

In prosecution against three defendants for vagrancy for frequenting and being employed in a house of ill-fame, government had burden of proving that each defendant frequented the house and that each engaged in acts of fornication for hire. Hunt v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1946, 47 A. 2d 783).

In vagrancy prosecution, wherein evidence was introduced that defendant sold liquor in railroad station without a license, burden was shifted to defendant to establish, and was not on the government to disprove, legitimacy of employment. Davenport v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1948, 61 A. 2d 486).

§ 22–3304. Penalty—Conditions imposed by court.

Any person convicted of vagrancy under the provisions of sections 22–3302 to 22–3306 shall be punished by a fine of not more than $300 or imprisonment for not more than ninety days, or by both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court. The court may impose conditions upon any person found guilty under the aforesaid provisions and so long as such person shall comply therewith to the satisfaction of the court the imposition or execution of sentence may be suspended for such period as the court may direct; and the court may at or before the expiration of such period remand such sentence or cause it to be executed. Conditions thus imposed by the court may include submission to medical and mental examination, diagnosis, and treatment by proper public health and welfare authorities, and such other terms and conditions as the court may deem best for the protection of the community and the punishment, control, and rehabilitation of the defendant. The health officer of the District of Columbia, the Women's Bureau of the Police Department, the Board of Public Welfare, and the probation officers of the court are authorized and directed to perform such duties as may be directed by the court in effectuating compliance with the conditions so imposed upon any defendant. (Dec. 17, 1941, 55 Stat. 809, ch. 589, § 3.)

§ 22–3305. Prosecutions.

All prosecutions under sections 22–3302 to 22–3306 shall be in the police court of the District of Columbia, in the name of the District of Columbia, by the corporation counsel or any of his assistants. (Dec. 16, 1941, 55 Stat. 810, ch. 589, § 4.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CONSOLIDATION OF TRIALS

Where information charged accused with vagrancy in being employed in house of ill fame, and informations charging other two defendants were similar except that period of time over which alleged vagrancy had continued differed in each case, and only common ground between the acts of all defendants was that they took place at designated address and "divers other places in the District of Columbia," and there was no conspiracy or joint commission of crime alleged, granting consolidation of trials against all defendants was error. Hunt v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1946, 47 A. 2d 783).

Where information charged accused with vagrancy in being a person leading an immoral and profligate life and in being employed in house of ill fame, and vagrancy informations against two other defendants charged some similar acts, granting consolidations of trials against all defendants was error. § 22–3401 [6: 313]. "Gift enterprise" defined.

Every person who shall sell or offer for sale any real estate or article of merchandise of any description whatever, or any ticket of admission to any exhibition or performance, or other place of amusement, with a promise, expressed or implied, to give or bestow, or in any manner hold out the promise of gift or bestowal, of any article or thing, for and in consideration of the purchase by any person of any other article or thing, whether the object shall be for individual gain or for the benefit of any institution of whatever character, or for any purpose whatever, shall be regarded as a gift enterprise. (Leg. Assem., Aug. 23, 1871, p. 96, ch. 69, § 21.)

§ 22–3402 [6: 314]. Gift enterprise—Prohibited.

It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to engage in said gift enterprise business in any manner as defined in section 22–3401 of this title or otherwise. (R. S., D. C., § 1176.)

§ 22–3403 [6: 315]. Gift enterprise—Penalty.

Every person who shall in any manner engage in any gift-enterprise business in the District shall, on conviction thereof in the police court, on information filed for and on behalf of the District, pay a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or be imprisoned in the District jail not less than one nor more than six months, or both, in the discretion of the court. (R. S., D. C., § 1177.)

§ 22–3404 [6: 261]. Kosher meat — Sale — Labeling — Signs displayed where kosher and nonkosher meats are sold.

It shall be unlawful for any person—

(a) To sell or offer for sale within the District of Columbia as kosher, any meat which is not kosher;

(b) To label or brand as kosher any meat, or the package containing any meat, sold or offered for sale or prepared within the District of Columbia, which is not kosher; or

(c) To sell or offer for sale within the District of Columbia in the same place of business both kosher and nonkosher meats, (1) without displaying conspicuously in said place of business a sign in block letters at least four inches in height containing the words "kosher and nonkosher meat sold here," and (2) without displaying over such kosher meat the words "kosher meat" and over such nonkosher meat the words "nonkosher meat," in block letters at least four inches in height. (Apr. 15, 1926, 44 Stat. 253, ch. 145, § 1.)

§ 22–3405 [6: 262]. Kosher meat—"Meat"—"Person"—Definition.

As used in sections 22–3404 to 22–3406—

(a) The term "meat" includes raw meat and meat prepared for human consumption, whether alone or in combination with other products;

(b) The term "person" means individual, partnership, corporation, or association. (Apr. 15, 1926, 44 Stat. 253, ch. 145, § 2.)

§ 22–3406 [6: 263]. Kosher meat—Penalties.

Any person who violates any provision of sections 22–3404 to 22–3406 shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not more than one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment for not more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment; but no person shall be convicted of any such violation in respect of any meat which was not kosher at the time he acquired such meat, if he acquired it in good faith as kosher from a person duly authorized in accordance with the orthodox Hebrew ritual to prepare kosher. (Apr. 15, 1926, 44 Stat. 253, ch. 145, § 3.)

§ 22–3407 [6: 307]. Limitation of hours of daily service for laborers and mechanics on public works.

The service and employment of all laborers and mechanics who were on March 3, 1901, or may thereafter be employed by the Government of the United States, by the District of Columbia, or by any contractor or subcontractor upon any of the public works of the United States or of the said District of Columbia, is hereby limited and restricted to eight hours in any one calendar day; and it shall be unlawful for any officer of the United States Government or of the District of Columbia, or any such contractor or subcontractor, whose duty it shall be to employ, direct, or control the service of such laborers or mechanics, to require or permit any such laborer or mechanic to work more than eight hours in any calendar day except in case of extraordinary emergency. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1334, ch. 854, § 892.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CONSTITUTIONALITY

Act March 3, 1901, similar to this act, was held constitutional. Penn Bridge Co. v. United States (29 App. D. C. 452).

EXTRAORDINARY EMERGENCY

"In this statute the term 'extraordinary emergency' imports a sudden and unexpected happening; an unforeseen occurrence or condition calling for immediate action to avert imminent danger to health, or life, or property; an unusual peril, actual and not imaginary, suddenly creating a situation so different from the usual or ordinary course in the prosecution of the public work that the court may and must conclude that Congress contemplated excepting from the operation of this law such an occurrence, so sudden, rare, and unforeseen." Penn Bridge Co. v. United States (29 App. D. C. 452).

Whether the evidence offered tends to prove the existence of such an emergency is a question of law for the court. Penn Bridge Co. v. United States (29 App. D. C. 452).

§ 22–3408 [6: 308]. Penalty for violation of section 22–3407.

Any officer or agent of the Government of the United States or of the District of Columbia, or any contractor or subcontractor, whose duty it shall be to employ, direct, or control any laborer or mechanic employed upon any of the public works of the United States or of the District of Columbia who shall intentionally violate any provision of section 22–3407 for each and every such offense shall be punished by a fine not to exceed one thousand dollars or by imprisonment for not more than six months, or both. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1334, ch. 854, § 893.)

STATUTORY REFERENCE

For similar provisions, see U. S. C., title 40, § 322.

§ 22–3409 [6: 162]. Mislabelling potatoes.

No person, firm, or corporation shall sell, offer for sale, keep, or expose for sale in the District of Columbia potatoes in any package which is not plainly marked or labeled with the name of the United States grade which represents a standard no higher than the actual grade of potatoes contained therein: Provided, however, That the term "unclassified" or "ungraded" may be used. The superintendent of weights, measures, and markets shall administer sections 22–3409 to 22–3412 and the commissioners of the District of Columbia are authorized to establish necessary rules and regulations therefor. (Aug. 12, 1937, 50 Stat. 626, ch. 597, § 1.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Rules and regulations, publication and effect, §§ 4–177, 4–178.

§ 22–3410 [6: 162a]. Mislabelling potatoes — Sign to show grade.

No person, firm, or corporation shall sell, offer for sale, keep or expose for sale in the District of Columbia any potatoes otherwise than in packages as provided in section 22–3409 without having plainly and conspicuously displayed in proximity to said potatoes a printed sign where it may readily be seen and in letters of not less than one-half inch high printed in Gothic type clearly and distinctly stating the United States grade of said potatoes. (Aug. 12, 1937, 50 Stat. 626, ch. 597, § 2.)

§ 22–3411 [6: 162b]. Mislabelling potatoes—Law not applicable to seed potatoes.

The provisions of sections 22–3409 to 22–3412 shall not apply to officially certified seed potatoes which meet the grade or certification requirements as labeled and which are sold exclusively for seed purposes, provided they are sold in original packages and bear the official seal and certification of the department of agriculture of the State or country where the potatoes were grown. (Aug. 12, 1937, 50 Stat. 626, ch. 597, § 3.)

§ 22–3412 [6: 162c]. Mislabelling potatoes—Penalties.

Any person, firm, or corporation which shall violate any provisions of sections 22–3409 to 22–3412 shall be fined not more than $50 for the first offense and not more than $200 for each subsequent offense. (Aug. 12, 1937, 50 Stat. 626, ch. 597, § 4.)

§ 22–3413 [6: 316]. Procuring enlistment of criminals.

It shall be unlawful for any person, with knowledge of the fact, to present or offer to any recruiting agent or officer, or any muster-in officer in the United States military or naval service, either as a volunteer or as a substitute for any person, any person charged with the commission of any criminal offense, and confined or held on bail for the trial of such offense within the District; and it shall in like manner be unlawful for any person, in any way or manner, to abet, aid, or assist in procuring the offer or acceptance of any person so charged or held for trial, or released on bail and awaiting trial, either as a volunteer or as a substitute for any person drafted, or liable to draft, in the military or naval service of the United States, whether the person so drafted, or liable to draft, shall be a resident of the District, or shall reside elsewhere. And any person who shall knowingly offend against any of the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, upon conviction, be punished by a fine of not less than two hundred and fifty dollars and not more than one thousand dollars, and by imprisonment in the District jail for a term not less than six months nor more than one year. (R. S., D. C., § 1179.)

§ 22–3414 [6: 268]. Use of flag for advertising purposes—Mutilation of flag.

Any person who, within the District of Columbia, in any manner, for exhibition or display, shall place or cause to be placed any word, figure, mark, picture, design, drawing or any advertisement of any nature upon any flag, standard, colors or ensign of the United States of America; or shall expose or cause to be exposed to public view any such flag, standard, colors or ensign upon which shall have been printed, painted or otherwise placed, or to which shall be attached, appended, affixed or annexed any word, figure, mark, picture, design or drawing, or any advertisement of any nature; or who, within the District of Columbia, shall manufacture, sell, expose for sale or to public view or give away or have in possession for sale or to be given away or for use for any purpose, any article or substance being an article of merchandise, or a receptacle for merchandise or article or thing for carrying or transporting merchandise, upon which shall have been printed, painted, attached or otherwise placed a representation of any such flag, standard, colors or ensign, to advertise, call attention to, decorate, mark or distinguish the article or substance on which so placed; or who, within the District of Columbia, shall publicly mutilate, deface, defile or defy, trample upon or cast contempt, either by word or act, upon any such flag, standard, colors or ensign, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $100 or by imprisonment for not more than thirty days, or both, in the discretion of the court. The words "flag, standard, colors, or ensign," as used herein, shall include any flag, standard, colors, ensign or any picture or representation of either, or of any part or parts of either, made of any substance or represented on any substance, of any size evidently purporting to be either of said flag, standard, colors or ensign of the United States of America or a picture or a representation of either, upon which shall be shown the colors, the stars and the stripes, in any number of either thereof, or of any part or parts of either, by which the average person seeing the same without deliberation may believe the same to represent the flag, colors, standard or ensign of the United States of America. (Feb. 8, 1917, 39 Stat. 900, ch. 34.)

STATUTORY REFERENCE

This section is in U. S. Code, title 4, § 3.

§ 22–3415. Discrimination by proprietors of theaters against persons wearing uniform of Army, Navy, Coast Guard, or Marine Corps.

No proprietor, manager, or employee of a theater or other public place of entertainment or amusement in the District of Columbia shall make, or cause to be made, any discrimination against any person lawfully wearing the uniform of the Army, Navy, Coast Guard, or Marine Corps of the United States because of that uniform, and any person making, or causing to be made, such discrimination shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine not exceeding $500. (Mar. 1, 1911, 36 Stat. 963, ch. 187; Aug. 24, 1912, 37 Stat. 512, ch. 387, § 1; Jan. 28, 1915, 38 Stat. 800, ch. 20.)

AMENDMENTS

The 1911 act referred to the District of Alaska.

The Territory of Alaska was organized by the 1912 act cited to the text.

The 1915 act created the Coast Guard Service by combining the existing Life-Saving Service and the Revenue-Cutter Service.

§ 22–3416. Sale of unwholesome food prohibited.

No person shall sell, or cause to be sold, or offer for sale any food which is unwholesome or unfit for use. (Dec. 16, 1941, 55 Stat. 807, ch. 587, § 1.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CONSTRUCTION WITH OTHER LAWS

This section prohibiting the sale of unwholesome food in the District of Columbia does not, as does the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, 21 U. S. C. § 331 (a, g), cover manufacture as well as sale, and it does not, as does 21 U. S. C. § 342 (a) (3, 4), cover food which is adulterated without being unwholesome or unfit for use. Rubenstein v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1946, 153 F. 2d 127).

§ 22–3417. "Food" defined.

For the purposes of sections 22–3416 to 22–3422 the term "food" means any article used for consumption by a human being or an animal. (Dec. 16, 1941, 55 Stat. 807, ch. 587, § 2.)

§ 22–3418. Duty of health officer.

It shall be the duty of the health officer of the District of Columbia, and he or his duly appointed agent is hereby authorized, to inspect all food possessed or offered for sale, and condemn, denature, destroy, seize or remove such food as may be unfit for consumption. (Dec. 16, 1941, 55 Stat. 807, ch. 587, § 3.)

§ 22–3419. Commissioners to make rules and regulations.

The Commissioners of the District of Columbia are authorized to make such rules and regulations as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of sections 22–3416 to 22–3422. (Dec. 16, 1941, 55 Stat. 808, ch. 587, § 4.)

§ 22–3420. Prosecutions for violations.

Prosecutions for violations of any of the provisions of sections 22–3416 to 22–3422 or of any regulations promulgated thereunder shall be on information in the police court of the District of Columbia by the corporation counsel of the District of Columbia or any of his assistants. (Dec. 16, 1941, 55 Stat. 808, ch. 587, § 5.)

§ 22–3421. Penalty for violation.

Any person violating any of the provisions of sections 22–3416 to 22–3422 or any of the regulations promulgated thereunder shall, upon conviction, be fined not more than $300 or imprisoned for not more than ninety days. (Dec. 16, 1941, 55 Stat. 808, ch. 587, § 6.)

§ 22–3422. Sections 22–3416 to 22–3422 supplemental to Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act.

Sections 22–3416 to 22–3422 shall in no respect be considered as a repeal of any of the provisions of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, but shall be construed as supplemental thereto. (Dec. 16, 1941, 55 Stat. 808, ch. 587, § 7.)

22–3509. Parole—Discharge.
22–3510. Stay of criminal proceedings.
22–3511. Criminal law unchanged.

§ 22–3501. Indecent acts—Children.

(a) Any person who shall take, or attempt to take any immoral, improper, or indecent liberties with any child of either sex, under the age of sixteen years with the intent of arousing, appealing to, or gratifying the lust or passions or sexual desires, either of such person or of such child, or of both such person and such child, or who shall commit, or attempt to commit, any lewd or lascivious act upon or with the body, or any part or member thereof, of such child, with the intent of arousing, appealing to, or gratifying the lust or passions or sexual desires, either of such person or of such child, or of both such person and such child shall be imprisoned in a penitentiary, not more than ten years.

(b) Any such person who shall, in the District of Columbia, take any such child or shall entice, allure, or persuade any such child, to any place whatever for the purpose either of taking any such immoral, improper, or indecent liberties with such child, with said intent or of committing any such lewd, or lascivious act upon or with the body, or any part or member thereof, of such child with said intent, shall be imprisoned in the penitentiary not more than five years.

(c) Consent by a child to any act or conduct prescribed by subsection (a) or (b) shall not be a defense, nor shall lack of knowledge of the child's age be a defense.

(d) The provisions of this section shall not apply to the offenses covered by section 22–2801. (June 9, 1948, 62 Stat. 347, ch. 428, title I, § 103.)

§ 22–3502. Sodomy.

(a) Every person who shall be convicted of taking into his or her mouth or anus the sexual organ of any other person or animal, or who shall be convicted of placing his or her sexual organ in the mouth or anus of any other person or animal, or who shall be convicted of having carnal copulation in an opening of the body except sexual parts with another person, shall be fined not more than $1,000 or be imprisoned for a period not exceeding ten years. Any person convicted under this section of committing such act with a person under the age of sixteen years shall be fined not more than $1,000 or be imprisoned for a period not exceeding twenty years. And in any indictment for the commission of any of the acts, hereby declared to be offenses, it shall not be necessary to set forth the particular unnatural or perverted sexual practice with the commission of which the defendant may be charged, nor to set forth the particular manner in which said unnatural or perverted sexual practice was committed, but it shall be sufficient if the indictment set forth that the defendant committed a certain unnatural and perverted sexual practice with a person or animal, as the case may be: Provided, That the accused, on motion, shall be entitled to be furnished with a bill of particulars, setting forth the particular acts which constitute the offense charged.

(b) Any penetration, however slight, is sufficient to complete the crime specified in this section. Proof of emission shall not be necessary. (June 9, 1948, 62 Stat. 347, ch. 428, title I, § 104.)

§ 22–3503. Definitions.

For the purposes of this chapter—

(1) The term "sexual psychopath" means a person, not insane, who by a course of repeated misconduct in sexual matters has evidenced such lack of power to control his sexual impulses as to be dangerous to other persons because he is likely to attack or otherwise inflict injury, loss, pain, or other evil on the objects of his desire.

(2) The term "court" means the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia, the criminal branch of the municipal court for the District of Columbia, or the juvenile court of the District of Columbia as the case may be.

(3) The term "patient" means a person with respect to whom there has been filed with the clerk of any court a statement in writing setting forth facts tending to show that such person is a sexual psychopath.

(4) The term "criminal proceeding" means a proceeding in any court against a person for a criminal offense, and includes all stages of such a proceeding from (A) the time the person is indicted, charged by an information, or charged with an offense in the juvenile court of the District of Columbia, to (B) the entry of judgment, or, if the person is granted probation, the completion of the period of probation. (June 9, 1948, 62 Stat. 347, ch. 428, title II, § 201.)

§ 22–3504. Filing of statement.

(a) Whenever it shall appear to the United States attorney for the District of Columbia that any person within the District of Columbia, other than a defendant in a criminal proceeding, is a sexual psychopath, such attorney may file with the clerk of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia a statement in writing setting forth the facts tending to show that such a person is a sexual psychopath.

(b) Whenever it shall appear to the United States attorney for the District of Columbia that any defendant in any criminal proceeding prosecuted by such attorney or any of his assistants is a sexual psychopath, such attorney may file with the clerk of the court in which such proceeding is pending a statement in writing setting forth the facts tending to show that such defendant is a sexual psychopath.

(c) Whenever it shall appear to any court that any defendant in any criminal proceeding pending in such court is a sexual psychopath, the court may, if it deems such procedure advisable, direct the officer prosecuting the defendant to file with the clerk of such court a statement in writing setting forth the facts tending to show that such defendant is a sexual psychopath.

(d) Any statement filed in a criminal proceeding pursuant to subsection (b) or (c) may be filed only (1) before trial, (2) after conviction or plea of guilty but before sentencing, or (3) after conviction or plea of guilty but before the completion of probation.

(e) This section shall not apply to an individual in a criminal proceeding who is charged with rape or assault with intent to rape. (June 9, 1948, 62 Stat. 348, ch. 428, title II, § 202.)

§ 22–3505. Right to counsel.

A patient shall have the right to have the assistance of counsel at every stage of the proceeding under this title. Before the court appoints psychiatrists pursuant to section 22–3506 it shall advise the patient of his right to counsel and shall assign counsel to represent him unless the patient is able to obtain counsel or elects to proceed without counsel. (June 9, 1948, 62 Stat. 348, ch. 428, title II, § 203.)

§ 22–3506. Examination by psychiatrists.

(a) When a statement has been filed with the clerk of any court pursuant to section 22–3504, such court shall appoint two qualified psychiatrists to make a personal examination of the patient. The patient shall be required to answer questions asked by the psychiatrists under penalty of contempt of court. Each psychiatrist shall file a written report of the examination, which shall include a statement of his conclusion as to whether the patient is a sexual psychopath.

(b) The counsel for the patient shall have the right to inspect the reports of the examination of the patient. No such report and no evidence resulting from the personal examination of the patient shall be admissible against him in any judicial proceeding except a proceeding under this title to determine whether the patient is a sexual psychopath. (June 9, 1948, 62 Stat. 348, ch. 428, title II, § 204.)

§ 22–3507. When hearing is required.

If, in their reports filed pursuant to section 22–3506, both psychiatrists state that the patient is a sexual psychopath, or if both state that they are unable to reach any conclusion by reason of the partial or complete refusal of the patient to submit to thorough examination, or if one states that the patient is a sexual psychopath and the other states that he is unable to reach any conclusion by reason of the partial or complete refusal of the patient to submit to thorough examination, then the court shall conduct a hearing in the manner provided in section 22–3508 to determine whether the patient is a sexual psychopath. If, on the basis of the reports filed, the court is not required to conduct such a hearing, the court shall enter an order dismissing the proceeding under this chapter to determine whether the patient is a sexual psychopath. (June 9, 1948, 62 Stat. 349, ch. 428, title II, § 205.)

§ 22–3508. Hearing—Commitment to Saint Elizabeths Hospital.

Upon the evidence introduced at a hearing held for that purpose, the court shall determine whether or not the patient is a sexual psychopath. Such hearing shall be conducted without a jury unless, before such hearing and within fifteen days after the date on which the second report is filed pursuant to section 22–3506, a jury is demanded by the patient or by the officer filing the statement. The rules of evidence applicable in judicial proceedings in the court shall be applicable to hearings pursuant to this section; but, notwithstanding any such rule, evidence of conviction of any number of crimes the commission of which tends to show that the patient is a sexual psychopath and of the punishment inflicted therefor shall be admissible at any such hearing. The patient shall be entitled to an appeal as in other cases. If the patient is determined to be a sexual psychopath, the court shall commit him to Saint Elizabeths Hospital to be confined there until released in accordance with section 22–3509. (June 9, 1948, 62 Stat. 349, ch. 428, title II, § 206.)

§ 22–3509. Parole—Discharge.

Any person committed under this Chapter may be released from confinement when the Superintendent of Saint Elizabeths Hospital finds that he has sufficiently recovered so as to not be dangerous to other persons, provided if the person to be released be one charged with crime or undergoing sentence therefor, the Superintendent of the hospital shall give notice thereof to the judge of the criminal court and deliver him to the court in obedience to proper precept. (June 9, 1948, 62 Stat. 349, ch. 428, title II, § 207.)

§ 22–3510. Stay of criminal proceedings.

Any statement filed in a criminal proceeding pursuant to subsection (b) or (c) of section 22–3504 shall stay such criminal proceeding until whichever of the following first occurs:

(1) The proceeding under this chapter to determine whether the patient is a sexual psychopath is dismissed pursuant to section 22–3507 or withdrawn;

(2) It is determined pursuant to section 22–3508 that the patient is not a sexual psychopath; or

(3) The patient is discharged from Saint Elizabeths Hospital pursuant to section 22–3509. (June 9, 1948, 62 Stat. 349, ch. 428, title II, § 208.)

§ 22–3511. Criminal law unchanged.

Nothing in this chapter shall alter in any respect the tests of mental capacity applied in criminal prosecutions under the laws of the District of Columbia. (June 9, 1948, 62 Stat. 350, ch. 428, title II, § 209.)

§ 23–101 [6: 351]. Conduct of prosecutions—Party plaintiff.

The attorney for the District of Columbia shall be known as the corporation counsel.

Prosecutions for violations of all police or municipal ordinances or regulations and for violations of all penal statutes in the nature of police or municipal regulations, where the maximum punishment is a fine only, or imprisonment not exceeding one year, shall be conducted in the name of the District of Columbia and by the corporation counsel or his assistants. All other criminal prosecutions shall be conducted in the name of the United States and by the attorney of the United States for the District of Columbia or his assistants. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1340, ch. 854, § 932; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 537, ch. 1329.)

Amendment

The 1902 amendment changed "attorney for the United States" to "attorney of the United States," and changed "city solicitor" to "corporation counsel."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Authority of Corporation Counsel

Corporation counsel "has no authority to prosecute offenses where the maximum punishment may be both a fine and imprisonment." District of Columbia v. Simpson (40 App. D. C. 498), citing Nation v. District of Columbia (34 App. D. C. 453).

Indictment by Grand Jury

Indictment was not vitiated by presence of assistant to Attorney-General in grand jury room in oil lease case. United States v. Fall (56 App. D. C. 83, 10 Fed. (2d) 648); United States v. Doheny (56 App. D. C. 86, 10 Fed. (2d) 651).

Proof of Different Offense

A person cannot be convicted of one offense by proof that he committed another. Posey v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 41 A. 2d 300).

Evidence of a separate offense other than one for which accused is on trial is admissible as an exception to the general rule, when the several offenses are so closely connected in time and locality as to be but parts of a single continuing transaction. Posey v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 41 A. 2d 300).

Prosecutions for Refilling Registered Containers

Prosecutions under 1901 Code, § 878c (§ 48–303), should be conducted by the district attorney in the name of the United States. District of Columbia v. Simpson (40 App. D. C. 498).

Prosecution of Bucket-Shops

Prosecutions under D. C. Code of 1901, § 869a (§ 22–1509) et seq. should be in the name of the United States. United States v. Cella (37 App. D. C. 423, cert. den. 223 U. S. 728, 56 L. Ed. 633, 32 Sup. Ct. 526).

Prosecution of Perjury

The making of false statement of lien under oath in application for certificate or duplicate certificate of title for motor vehicle in District of Columbia must be prosecuted by corporation counsel, under Motor Vehicle Lien Law, § 40–714, rather than by the United States Attorney in name of United States under general perjury statute. Shelton v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1948, 165 F. 2d 241).

Prosecution of Second-Degree Murder

Prosecution in District of Columbia for second-degree murder was properly conducted in name of the United States rather than in name of District of Columbia. Morton v. Welch (C. C. A. Va. 1947, 162 F. 2d 840, certiorari denied 68 S. Ct. 44, 332 U. S. 779, 92 L. Ed. 363, 68 S. Ct. 1498, 334 U. S. 848, 92 L. Ed. 1771).

Prosecution of Street Railway Companies

Prosecutions under section 16 of the Act of May 23, 1908 (35 Stat. 246) (see §§ 44–202, 44–203, 44–206, 44–207) should be conducted by the corporation counsel in the name of the District of Columbia. United States v. Capital Trac. C. (38 App. D. C. 469).

Traffic Violations

Under this section Congress intended that all prosecutions for violations of the traffic act, except for violation of the smoke screen provision of § 11, should be at instance of corporation counsel and in name of District of Columbia District of Columbia v. Moyer (68 App. D. C. 98, 93 Fed. (2d) 527).

All traffic violations should be prosecuted by information filed by corporation counsel. Persham v. United States (70 App. D. C. 116, 104 Fed. (2d) 249).

§ 23–102 [6: 352]. Conduct of prosecutions—Certification to Court of Appeals.

If in any case any question shall arise as to whether under section 23–101 the prosecution should be conducted by the corporation counsel or by the attorney of the United States for the District of Columbia, the presiding justice shall forthwith, either of his own motion or upon suggestion of the corporation counsel or the attorney of the United States, certify the case to the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, which court shall hear and determine the question in a summary way. In every such case the defendant or defendants shall have the right to be heard in the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia. The decision of such court shall be final. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1341, ch. 854, § 933; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 537, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The 1902 amendment substituted the words "corporation counsel" for the words "city solicitor."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CERTIFICATION BY JUDGE

Defendant cannot compel certification to court of appeals. "We think the language used means that whenever the judge or either of the officials named shall entertain a doubt as to who should conduct the prosecution, the question shall be certified to this court, and not otherwise. * * * If it is not so certified it becomes part of his regular defense." Mullowny v. Mowatt (43 App. D. C. 49)

§ 23–103 [6: 353]. Conduct of prosecutions—Jurisdiction as between District and police courts.

Except as otherwise provided in sections 11–901 to 11–939, when the punishment of an offense may be imprisonment for more than one year the prosecution shall be in the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia; when the maximum punishment is a fine only or imprisonment for one year or less the prosecution may be in the police court. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1341, ch. 854, § 934; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 537, ch. 1329.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

The words "Except as otherwise provided in §§ 11–901 to 11–919" at the beginning of this section were inserted by the compilers.

AMENDMENT

This section was amended by the 1902 act by inserting after the word "is" the words "a fine only or."

§ 23–104 [6: 354]. Abandonment of prosecution—Enlargement of time for taking action.

If any person charged with a criminal offense shall have been committed or held to bail to await the action of the grand jury, and within nine months thereafter the grand jury shall not have taken action on the case, either by ignoring the charge or by returning an indictment into the proper court, the prosecution of such charge shall be deemed to have been abandoned and the accused shall be set free or his bail discharged, as the case may be: Provided, however, That the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia holding a special term as a criminal court, or, in vacation, any justice of said court, upon good cause shown in writing, and, when practicable, upon due notice to the accused, may from time to time enlarge the time for the taking action in such case by the grand jury. NOTES TO DECISIONS

INDICTMENT AFTER 9-MONTH PERIOD

By this section prosecution of the offense is not finally barred so that accused may not be held to answer upon an indictment found after the 9-month period within which the grand jury may act has elapsed. The general statute of limitations has not been repealed or modified. United States v. Cadarr (197 U. S. 475, 49 L. Ed. 842, 25 Sup. Ct. 487, revg. 24 App. D. C. 143, followed in Arnstein v. United States (54 App. D. C. 199, 296 Fed. 946).

RELEASE OF PRISONERS

This is not a statute of limitations. "The result of the failure to prosecute has reference solely to the right in the pending prosecution to be freed, if imprisoned, or released from bail, if under bond." United States v. Cadarr (197 U. S. 475, 49 L. Ed. 842, 25 Sup. Ct. 487), revg. (24 App. D. C. 143).

§ 23–105 [6: 355]. Appeals by United States and District of Columbia.

In all criminal prosecutions the United States or the District of Columbia, as the case may be, shall have the same right of appeal that is given to the defendant, including the right to a bill of exceptions: Provided, That if on such appeal it shall be found that there was error in the rulings of the court during a trial, a verdict in favor of the defendant shall not be set aside. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1341, ch. 854, § 935.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

APPEAL BY UNITED STATES

United States may appeal cases and it need not be taken directly to the Supreme Court. United States v. Burroughs (62 App. D. C. 163, 65 Fed. (2d) 796).

APPEAL TO CIRCUIT COURT

Where the trial court's decision is one arresting a judgment of conviction in a criminal case, it is not appealable unless such decision is for insufficiency of the indictment and based upon the invalidity or construction of the statutes, in which event, the appeal is taken directly to the Supreme Court. Accordingly, the Government should have appealed this case to the Supreme Court and we must certify the case to that court. United States v. Waters (C. A. D. C. 1948, 175 F. 2d 340, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 127).

ARREST OF JUDGMENT OF CONVICTION

Where the trial court's decision was one arresting a judgment of conviction in a criminal case, it is not appealable unless such decision was for insufficiency of the indictment and based upon the invalidity or construction of the statutes, in which event, the appeal is taken directly to the Supreme Court. Accordingly, the Government should have appealed this case to the Supreme Court and the case must be certified to that court. United States v. Waters (C. A., D. C. 1948, 175 F. 2d 340, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 127).

JURISDICTION OF COURT OF APPEALS

The appellate jurisdiction of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia in criminal cases is not affected by the act of 1907. United States v. Burroughs (289 U. S. 159, 77 L. Ed. 1096, 53 Sup. Ct. 574).

ORDER QUASHING INDICTMENT

Government may appeal from order quashing indictment and discharging defendant without day. Cadarr

v. United States (24 App. D. C. 143, revd. on other grounds 197 U. S. 475, 49 L. Ed. 842, 25 Sup. Ct. 487).

ORDER QUASHING WARRANT OF ARREST

Under § 11–772 providing that any party aggrieved by any final order or judgment of the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia may appeal to the Municipal Court of Appeals, such court has jurisdiction of government's appeal from an order of the municipal court for such district quashing a warrant of arrest in a disorderly house case, in view of this section entitling the government to appeal in criminal prosecutions. U. S. v. Basiliko (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 35 A. 2d 185).

An order quashing a warrant of arrest in a disorderly house case was appealable. U. S. v. Basiliko (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 35 A. 2d 185).

ORDER SUSTAINING DEMURRER

Government may appeal from order sustaining demurrer to indictment for violation of 1901 code, § 869a et seq. (§ 22–1509). United States v. Cella (37 App. D. C. 423, cert. den. 233 U. S. 728, 56 L. Ed. 633, 32 Sup. Ct. 526), citing United States v. Cadarr (24 App. D. C. 143, revd. 197 U. S. 475, 49 L. Ed. 842, 25 Sup. Ct. 487; Evans v. United States (30 App. D. C. 58, cert. quashed 213 U. S. 297, 53 L. Ed. 803, 29 Sup. Ct. 507).

VERDICTS OF NOT GUILTY

This section does not authorize an appeal by the government from a verdict of not guilty in a criminal case, because only the determination of a moot question is involved, which is not a judicial function and cannot be required by Congress of a federal court. United States v. Evans (30 App. D. C. 58, cert. quashed 213 U. S. 297, 53 L. Ed. 803, 29 Sup. Ct. 507), citing United States v. Ainsworth (3 App. D. C. 483), and distinguishing District of Columbia v. Lynham (16 App. D. C. 85); District of Columbia v. Garrison (25 App. D. C. 563); District of Columbia v. Gant (28 App. D. C. 186).

Court of appeals has no power to review, by writ of error, a judgment of not guilty rendered by the police court. District of Columbia v. Burns (32 App. D. C. 203).

This section provided that in criminal prosecutions the United States or the District should have the same right of appeal as the defendant had, including a bill of exceptions, but provided that if there was error in the rulings of the court during the trial, a verdict for defendant should not be set aside. District of Columbia v. Kendall (57 App. D. C. 271, 20 Fed. (2d) 287).

§ 23–106 [6: 356]. Bail—Deposit—Forfeiture.

Whenever a person charged with crime is held to bail the court shall have power to allow a deposit with the clerk of such court of money in the amount of the bail instead of requiring a bond or recognizance, and in case of default to declare such deposit forfeited to the United States or the District of Columbia as the case may be. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1341, ch. 854, § 938.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Other provisions concerning bail, § 11–606 and notes.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

APPEAL FROM CONVICTION FOR CONTEMPT

Pending an appeal from an order refusing to discharge defendant on habeas corpus from conviction for contempt, defendant is entitled to bail. In re Moss (23 App. D. C. 474).

§ 23–107 [6: 366]. Peremptory challenges.

In all trials for capital offenses the accused and the United States shall each be entitled to twenty peremptory challenges. In trials for offenses punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary the accused and the United States shall each be entitled to ten peremptory challenges. In all other cases, civil as well as criminal, in which the plaintiff is the United States or the District of Columbia, each party shall be entitled to three peremptory challenges; and if there are several defendants, they shall be treated as one person in the allowance of such challenges. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1338, ch. 854, § 918; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 536, ch. 1329.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

This section is affected by § 11–1421 insofar as alternate jurors are concerned.

AMENDMENT

The 1902 amendment added the words "or the District of Columbia."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CASES CONSOLIDATED FOR TRIAL

When cases are consolidated for trial under U. S. R. S. § 1024, defendant is entitled, in cases of felony, to 10 peremptory challenges only. Miller v. United States (38 App. D C. 361)

To same effect as original annotation, see Nestlerode v. U. S., 1941 (122 F. 2d 56, 74 App. D. C. 276).

CONSTITUTIONAL LAW

There is nothing in the Constitution which requires the Congress to grant peremptory challenges to defendants in criminal cases, and regulations are left to common law or enactments of Congress. United States v. Wood (299 U. S. 123, 81 L. Ed. 78, 57 Sup. Ct. 177).

While accused has a constitutional right to a speedy trial by an inpartial jury, it does not follow that the rejection of qualified persons for insufficient cause would deprive appellant of that right. It is significant in this respect that although appellant was entitled to ten peremptory challenges he had not used any of them. Shettel v. United States (72 App. D. C. 250, 113 Fed. (2d) 34).

EXCLUSION OF NEGROES

Fact that 19 members of jury panel selected in prosecution of three Negroes jointly indicted on charge of murder in perpetration of robbery were members of Negro race indicated that Negroes had not been systematically excluded from panel in violation of Fifth Amendment, and defendants could not complain that thereafter Government peremptorily challenged every Negro juror who had been called to sit in the panel. Hall v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1948, 168 F. 2d 161, certiorari denied 68 S. Ct. 1508, 334 U. S. 853, 92 L. Ed. 1775, rehearing denied 69 S. Ct. 9, 335 U. S. 839, 93 L. Ed. 391).

JOINT DEFENDANTS

Five defendants jointly indicted for conspiracy are entitled to only 10 peremptory challenges to be shared between them. Lorenz v. United States (24 App. D. C. 337, cert. den. 196 U. S. 640, 49 L. Ed. 631, 25 Sup. Ct. 796).

PURPOSE

"Peremptory challenges" are exercised by party in rejection, and not in selection of jurors, and is not aimed at disqualification but is exercised upon qualified jurors as a matter of favor to challenger. Hall v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1948, 168 F. 2d 161, certiorari denied 68 S. Ct. 1508, 334 U. S. 853, 92 L. Ed. 1775, rehearing denied 69 S. Ct. 9, 335 U. S. 839, 93 L. Ed. 391).

RIGHT TO NEW PANEL

Defendant charged with adultery is entitled to a new jury panel when it appears that 12 members of the current panel acted as jurors in another case involving the keeping of a disorderly house, in which case it was shown that the defendant frequented that house for immoral purposes. Kleindienst v. United States (48 App. D. C. 190).

A failure to exhaust the peremptory challenges and to examine the jurors on the voir dire is no waiver of defendant's right to a new panel when such right exists. Kleindienst v. United States (48 App. D. C. 190).

§ 23–108 [6: 367]. Cause of challenge not available to set aside verdict—Exception.

No verdict shall be set aside for any cause which might be alleged as ground for challenge of a juror before the jury are sworn, except when the objection to the juror is that he had a bias against the defendant such as would have disqualified him, and such disqualification was not known to or suspected by the defendant or his counsel before the juror was sworn. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1338, ch. 854, § 919.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

NEW TRIAL DENIED

This section "gives no new right to the defendant, and adds nothing to the discretionary powers which the courts have always exercised in such cases. If not declaratory merely of a long-existing rule of practice, it would seem rather a limitation, than otherwise, of the ordinary discretionary power of the courts to grant new trials." Paolucci v. United States (30 App. D. C. 217, cert. den 208 U. S. 617, 52 L. Ed. 646, 28 Sup. Ct. 568).

A challenge to the jury panel because it contains names of women, made for first time on motion for new trial, will not be reviewed. Nelson v. United States (60 App. D. C. 323, 53 Fed. (2d) 935).

§ 23–109 [6: 368]. Witnesses for defense—Fees.

In any criminal trial the justice trying the case may allow such number of witnesses on behalf of the defendant as may appear to be necessary, the fees of such witnesses to be paid in the same manner as the fees of the witnesses for the government: Provided, That the defendant makes application under oath before the trial, or, in cases of manifest necessity, during the trial, setting forth that he is not possessed of sufficient means and is actually unable to pay the fees of such witnesses, and setting forth also the names of such witnesses and what he expects to prove by them, in order that the court may be advised whether or not the testimony be material to the issue. § 23–110 [6: 369]. Discharging joint defendant during trial in order to be witness—Bar to another prosecution.

When two or more persons are jointly indicted the court may, before a defendant has gone into his defense, direct any such defendant to be discharged, that he may be a witness for the United States. An accused party may also, when there is not sufficient evidence to put him upon his defense, be discharged by the court, or, if not discharged by the court, shall be entitled to the immediate verdict of the jury for the purpose of giving evidence for the other parties accused with him; and such order of discharge in either case, equally with the verdict of acquittal, shall be a bar to another prosecution for the same offense. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1339, ch. 854, § 921.)

§ 23–111 [6: 370]. Depositions.

If a material witness for the defendant resides beyond the District of Columbia, or is sick or infirm, or about to leave the District, the defendant may apply in writing to the court for a commission to examine such witness upon interrogatories thereto annexed when the deposition is to be taken beyond the District of Columbia, and orally in other cases, and the court may grant the same and pass an order stating for what length of time notice shall be given to the district attorney before said witness shall be examined. At or before the time fixed in said notice, when the examination is upon written interrogatories, the district attorney may file cross-interrogatories; but if he fail to do so the clerk shall file the following:

First. Are all your statements in the foregoing answers made from your own personal knowledge? And if not, show what is stated upon information and give its source.

Second. State everything you know in addition to what is stated in your above answers concerning this case favorable to either the United States or the defendant.

For good cause shown the court may order in any case that the examination be conducted orally. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1339, ch. 854, § 922; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 537, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

The 1902 act amends act of 1901 by substituting in the first sentence the words "beyond the District of Columbia" for the words "more than a hundred miles from the city of Washington."

The commission shall issue from the clerk's office, the examination of the witnesses shall be made and certified, and the return thereof made in the same manner as in civil cases, and unimportant irregularities or errors in the proceedings under said commission shall not cause the deposition to be excluded where no substantial prejudice can be wrought to the government by such irregularities or errors. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1339, ch. 854, § 923.)

§ 23–113 [6: 372]. Sentence—Postponement for appeal.

If a new trial be not granted nor the judgment arrested the court may pronounce sentence upon the party convicted; but the execution of such sentence shall be postponed for a sufficient time to enable the defendant to prosecute an appeal, on the application of the defendant, if he shall give notice of his intention to appeal from the judgment to the court of appeals. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1339, ch. 854, § 924.)

§ 23–114 [6: 373]. Time of execution of sentence of death.

In case of a sentence of death, the time fixed for the execution of the sentence shall not be considered an essential part of the sentence, and if it be not executed at the time therein appointed, by reason of the pendency of an appeal or for other cause, the court may appoint another day for carrying the same into execution. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1340, ch. 854, § 926.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CONSTRUCTION

Section 23–703 must be read in connection with § 23–114 and with their legislative history. When this is done, it is clear that § 23–703 is intended not for the benefit of defendants upon whom death sentences are to be imposed but as an aid to the prison authorities charged with execution of such sentences. Wheeler v. Reid (C. A., D. C. 1948, 175 F. 2d 829, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 180).

Chapter 2.—INDICTMENTS

Sec.
23–201. Offenses that may be joined.
23–202. Description of money—Sufficiency of proof.
23–203. Indictment for intent to defraud—Sufficiency—Proof.
23–204. Indictment for perjury—Sufficiency.
23–205. Indictment for subornation of perjury—Sufficiency.

§ 23–201 [6: 361]. Offenses that may be joined.

An indictment for larceny may contain a count for obtaining the same property by false pretenses, a count for embezzlement thereof, and a count for receiving or concealing the same property, knowing it to be stolen or embezzled, or any of such counts, and the jury may convict of any of such offenses, and may find any or all of the persons indicted guilty of any of said offenses. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1338, ch. 854, § 915.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

FALSE PRETENSES AND EMBEZZLEMENT

A general verdict of guilty on an indictment containing counts for false pretenses and embezzlement is inconsistent, and the rule "to the effect that in a criminal case a general judgment * * * of guilty on each count, cannot be reversed on error if any count is good and is sufficient to support the judgment does not apply." Davis v. United States (37 App. D. C. 126). See also Fulton v. United States (45 App. D. C. 27) and cases there cited.

LARCENY AND EMBEZZLEMENT

It is not error to refuse to require the government to elect between larceny and embezzlement counts where the same evidence is relied on to support both counts. Means v. United States (62 App. D. C. 118, 65 Fed. (2d) 206).

§ 23–202 [6: 362]. Description of money—Sufficiency of proof.

In every indictment, except for forgery, in which it is necessary to make an averment as to any money or bank bill or notes, United States Treasury notes, postal and fractional currency, or other bills, bonds, or notes, issued by lawful authority and intended to pass and circulate as money, it shall be sufficient to describe such money, bills, notes, currency, or bonds simply as money, without specifying any particular coin, note, bill, or bond; and such allegation shall be sustained by proof that the accused has stolen or embezzled any amount of coin, or any such note, bill, currency, or bond, although the particular amount or species of such coin, note, bill, currency, or bond be not proved. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1338, ch. 854, § 916.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

PURPOSE

The purpose of this section was to relieve the Government from the necessity of detailed particularization in either allegations or proof of money taken. Neufield v. U. S., 1941 (118 F. 2d 375, 73 App. D. C. 174, certiorari denied 62 S. Ct. 580, 315 U. S. 798, 86 L. Ed. 1199).

§ 23–203 [6: 363]. Indictment for intent to defraud—Sufficiency—Proof.

In an indictment in which it is necessary to allege an intent to defraud, it shall be sufficient to allege that the party accused did the act complained of with intent to defraud, without alleging an intent to defraud any particular person or body corporate; and on the trial of such an indictment it shall not be necessary to prove an intent to defraud any particular person, but it shall be sufficient to prove a general intent to defraud. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1338, ch. 854, § 917.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

FORGERY

Forgery of checks held to be done with intent to defraud. Easterday v. United States (53 App. D. C. 387, 292 Fed. 664).

§ 23–204 [6: 364]. Indictment for perjury—Sufficiency.

In every information or indictment to be prosecuted against any person for wilful and corrupt perjury, it shall be sufficient to set forth the substance of the offence charged upon the defendant, and by what court, or before whom the oath was taken (averring such court, or person or persons, to have a competent authority to administer the same) together with the proper averment or averments to falsify the matter or matters wherein the perjury or perjuries is or are assigned; without setting forth the bill, answer, information, indictment, declaration, or any part of any record or proceeding either in law or equity, other than as aforesaid; and without setting forth the commission or authority of the court, or person or persons before whom the perjury was committed; any law, usage or custom to the contrary notwithstanding. (23 Geo. II, ch. 11, § 1; Kilty's Rept. p. 252; Alex. Brit. Stat. 766.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

This section sets forth a British statute continued in force by virtue of the act of March 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1189, ch. 854, § 1. It was obviously impossible to modernize the language of this statute.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

SUFFICIENCY

Perjury indictment setting out in each count a statement allegedly made by defendant in course of testimony before congressional subcommittee, alleging that such statement was false and setting forth what the true facts were and alleging generally that testimony sought to be elicited from defendant was material to the inquiry, was sufficient as against motion to dismiss. U. S. v. Meyers (D. C., D. C. 1948, 75 F. Supp. 486, affirmed 171 F. 2d 800, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 101, certiorari denied 69 S. Ct. 607, 336 U. S. 912, 93 L. Ed. 1076).

Under Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, 7c, 18 U. S. C., a general allegation of materiality is sufficient in an indictment for perjury or subornation of perjury without setting forth in detail how and why the particular question addressed to the witness was material. U. S.

v. Meyers (D. C., D. C. 1948, 75 F. Supp. 486, affirmed 171 F. 2d 800, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 101, certiorari denied 69 S. Ct. 607, 336 U. S. 912, 93 L. Ed. 1076).

§ 23–205 [6: 365]. Indictment for subornation of perjury—Sufficiency.

In every information or indictment for subornation of perjury, or for corrupt bargaining or contracting with others to commit wilful and corrupt perjury, it shall be sufficient to set forth the substance of the offence charged upon the defendant, without setting forth the bill, answer, information, indictment, declaration, or any part of any record or proceeding either in law or equity, and without setting forth the commission or authority of the court, or person or persons before whom the perjury was committed, or was agreed or promised to be committed; any law, usage or custom to the contrary notwithstanding. (23 Geo. II, ch. 11, § 2; Kilty's Report 252; Alex. Brit. Stat. 766; Comp. Stat. D. C., p. 472, § 145.)

Chapter 3.—SEARCH WARRANTS

Sec.
23–301. Issuance upon complaint under oath—Contents—Warrant—Affidavit—Form.
23–302. Disposition of property seized.
23–303. Commitment of defendant—Retention of things seized.
23–304. Return or destruction of property seized.
23–305. Separability provisions.

§ 23–301 [6: 357]. Issuance upon complaint under oath—Contents—Warrant—Affidavit—Form.

Upon complaint, under oath, before the police court, or a United States commissioner, setting forth that the affiant believes and has good cause to believe that there are concealed in any house or place articles stolen, taken by robbers, embezzled, or obtained by false pretenses, forged or counterfeited coins, stamps, labels, bank bills, or other instruments, or dies, plates, stamps, or brands for making the same, books or printed papers, drawings, engravings, photographs, or pictures of an indecent or obscene character, or instruments for immoral use, or any gaming table, device, or apparatus kept for the purpose of unlawful gaming, or any lottery tickets or lottery policies, or any book, paper, memorandum, or device for or used in recording any bet or deposit of money or thing or consideration of value received for any share, ticket, certificate, writing, bill, slip, or token in any pool or lottery or as a wager on or in connection with any race, game, contest, election, or other gambling transaction or device of an unlawful nature as defined in sections 22–1501, 22–1503, 22–1504, 22–1505, 22–1507, 22–1508, particularly describing the house or place to be searched, the things to be seized, substantially alleging the offense in relation thereto, and describing the person to be seized, the said court or United States commissioner may issue a warrant either to the marshal or any officer of the Metropolitan Police commanding him to search such house or place for the property or other things, and, if found, to bring the same, together with the person to be seized, before the police court or United States commissioner issuing said warrant, as the case may be.

The said warrant shall have annexed to it, or inserted therein, a copy of the affidavit upon which it is issued, and may be substantially in the form following:

"Whereas there has been filed before ———— an affidavit, of which the following is a copy (here insert). These are therefore to command you to enter (here describe the place) and there diligently search for the said articles, goods, or chattels in the said affidavit described, and that you bring the same, or any part thereof, found on said search and also the body of ———— before the police court, or United States commissioner, as the case may be, to be dealt with and disposed of according to law." (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1337, ch. 854, § 911; Apr. 5, 1938, 52 Stat. 199, ch. 72, § 3.)

AMENDMENT

The 1938 amendment omitted provisions for bringing complaints before justices of the peace and inserted provisions relative to United States commissioners, and also included those additional items for search following "lottery policies."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

DESCRIPTION OF PREMISES

Search warrant which described premises as "The Humidor" is sufficient to search entire four-story building. Irwin v. United States (67 App. D. C. 41, 89 Fed. (2d) 678).

ESPIONAGE ACT

There is nothing in the Espionage Act which makes it inapplicable in the District of Columbia and search warrant may be issued where property is used as means of committing felony. Nuckols v. United States (69 App. D. C. 120, 99 Fed. (2d) 353).

Search warrant conforms in every respect to the requirements of the Espionage Act and does not infringe the rights of appellant under the Fourth Amendment. Hysler v. United States ((C. C. A. 5), 86 Fed. (2d) 918).

EVIDENCE AS ADMISSIBLE

Where search bears a reasonable relation to the arrest, evidence secured during the search is admissible. Collins v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 41 A. 2d 515).

In prosecution under indictment for housebreaking and grand larceny, admission of stolen article allegedly obtained by illegal search of defendant's room was not error in view of testimony that defendant agreed to the search and even pointed out stolen articles. Alderman v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1948, 165 F. 2d 622).

HOTELS

A hotel is a public place and search thereof is not so rigidly restricted as search of a private home. Collins v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 41 A. 2d 515).

ILLEGAL SEARCH, LEGALIZATION

Under rule that officers should not be encouraged to proceed in an irregular manner on chance that all will end well, an illegal search cannot be legalized by what it brings to light. Darnall v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1943, 33 A. 2d 734).

PROBABLE CAUSE

"Probable cause" exists for a search warrant if affiant has reasonable grounds at the time of his affidavit and the issuance of the warrant for the belief that the law was being violated on the premises to be searched, and if the apparent facts set out in the affidavit are such that a reasonably discreet and prudent man would be led to believe there was a commission of the offense charged Herson v. United States (65 App. D. C. 86, 80 Fed. (2d) 529)

Probable cause to justify a search must be determined by existence of facts known to officer before, not after, the search. Darnall v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1943, 33 A. 2d 734).

SEARCH AS REASONABLE

In testing the reasonableness of a search at time of arrest, all circumstances must be considered. Collins v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 41 A. 2d 515).

Where police department had made a long, careful, and thorough investigation which indicated that hotel was being used for disorderly purposes and that misdemeanors were being committed therein continually, those in charge of the arrest were justified in organizing a raiding squad sufficiently large to make all necessary and proper arrests, and officers were properly permitted to testify as to what they saw while making search even though a search warrant had not been obtained. Collins v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 41 A. 2d 515).

SEARCH, WHEN VALID

A search may be made only under a valid search warrant or as an incident to a lawful arrest. Collins v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 41 A. 2d 515).

Even in connection with a valid arrest, a search is unlawful if it is merely exploratory and general and made solely to find evidence of defendant's guilt. Collins v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 41 A. 2d 515).

§ 23–302 [6: 358]. Disposition of property seized.

When the warrant is executed by the seizure of the property or things described therein, the said property or things shall be delivered to the marshal, and shall be safely kept to be used as evidence. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1338, ch. 854, § 912.)

CROSS REFERENCE

§ 23–303 [6: 359]. Commitment of defendant—Retention of things seized.

If upon the examination the court is satisfied that the offense charged with reference to the things seized has been committed, the party accused shall be committed for trial or held to bail, and said things shall remain in the custody of the marshal until the accused is tried or the right of the claimant to said things is otherwise ascertained. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1338, ch. 854, § 913.)

CROSS REFERENCE

See note to § 23–302.

§ 23–304 [6: 360]. Return or destruction of property seized.

If the accused be discharged, the property or other things seized shall be returned to the person in whose possession they were found. If he be convicted, the property stolen, embezzled, or obtained by false pretenses shall be returned to its owner, and the other articles before described shall be destroyed, under direction of the court.

If the property seized be articles, games, devices, or contrivances maintained, kept set up, or used in violation of sections 22–1501 to 22–1508, they may be ordered destroyed, under direction of court, irrespective of any trial or the outcome thereof. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1338, ch. 854, § 914; Apr. 5, 1938, 52 Stat. 199, ch. 72, § 4.)

Chapter 4.—FUGITIVES FROM JUSTICE

Sec.
23–401. Extradition.
23–402. When associate justice may act.
23–403. Detention of fugitives from justice—Warrants for apprehension.
23–404. Bail—When allowed.
23–405. Commitment when bond not given—Forfeiture of bond.
23–406. Discharge of prisoner if not demanded by return day—Future commitment.
23–407. Major and superintendent of police to give notice of apprehension.
23–408. Period of detention.
23–409. Voluntary return—Bond for appearance in demanding state.
23–410. Removal proceedings and returns to foreign countries not repealed.

§ 23–401 [6: 377]. Extradition.

In all cases where the laws of the United States provide that fugitives from justice shall be delivered up, the Chief Justice of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia shall cause to be apprehended and delivered up such fugitive from justice who shall be found within the District, in the same manner and under the same regulations as the executive authorities of the several States are required to do by the provisions of sections 5278 and 5279, title 66, of the Revised Statutes of the United States, "Extradition" (U. S. C., title 18, §§ 662, 663), and all executive and judicial officers are required to obey the lawful precepts or other process issued for that purpose, and to aid and assist in such delivery. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1340, ch. 854, § 930.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

ARREST IN DIFFERENT STATE

Defendant indicted in State of Pennsylvania for obtaining money under false pretenses, arrested in District of Columbia upon warrant issued under this section on requisition of Governor of Pennsylvania, was remanded to custody of the agent of the State of Pennsylvania. Barrett v. Bigger (57 App. D. C. 81, 17 Fed. (2d) 669).

BURDEN OF PROOF

If the extradition papers make out a prima facie case, the burden of proving absence from the State is on petitioner. Levy v. Splain (50 App. D. C. 31, 267 Fed. 333). See also Ellison v. Splain (49 App. D. C. 99, 261 Fed. 247).

DETENTION OF ACCUSED PERSON

"An accused person may be held a reasonable time to await the preparation and transmission of extradition papers from the demanding State." Stallings v. Splain (49 App. D. C. 38, 258 Fed. 510).

DUTIES OF CHIEF JUSTICE

This section expressly confers upon the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court (District Court of the United States) of the District authority to act in requisition proceedings. Hill v. Dorsey (57 App. D. C. 305, 22 Fed. (2d) 1003).

Chief Justice acts in extradition matters in an executive capacity. Reed v. Colpoys (69 App. D. C. 163, 99 Fed. (2d) 396).

To same effect as second paragraph of original annotation, see Lee Won Sing v. Cottone, 1941 (123 F. 2d 169, 74 App. D. C. 374).

EVIDENCE OF GUILT

To justify commitment for extradition there must be evidence to prove guilt of the accused. Foster v. Goldsoll (48 App. D. C. 505, cert. den. 250 U. S. 647, 63 L. Ed. 1188, 39 Sup. Ct. 495).

FINDING OF TRIAL JUDGE

If evidence is conflicting as to presence of defendant in demanding state, the finding of the trial judge will not be disturbed on appeal. Jackson v. Snyder (54 App. D. C. 23, 293 Fed. 842).

FUGITIVE FROM JUSTICE

If petitioner offers proof showing with precision that he left the demanding state before the commission of the alleged crime "it would then devolve upon the person detaining him 'to show that he was a fugitive from justice by producing evidence that he was in the state at the time charged in the indictment, or to prove that said date had been erroneously charged and could be carried back to the necessary time.'" Levy v. Splain (50 App. D. C. 31, 267 Fed. 333), citing Hayes v. Palmer (21 App. D. C. 450).

"To be a fugitive from justice, in the sense of the act of Congress regulating the subject under consideration, it is not necessary that the party charged should have left the state in which the crime is alleged to have been committed, after an indictment found, or for the purpose of avoiding a prosecution anticipated or begun, but simply that, having within a State committed that which by its laws constitutes a crime, when he is sought to be subjected to its criminal process to answer for his offense he has left its jurisdiction and is found within the territory of another." DePoilly v. Palmer (28 App. D. C. 324), quoting with approval from Roberts v. Reilly (116 U. S. 80, 29 L. Ed. 544, 6 Sup. Ct. 291), and citing Hayes v. Palmer (21 App. D. C. 450).

HABEAS CORPUS

On habeas corpus, where there is no claim that the extradition papers are not regular on their face, there is but one question open for investigation, namely, whether petitioner was in demanding state at the time the crime charged was committed. Levy v. Splain (50 App. D. C. 31, 267 Fed. 333); Watts v. Splain (51 App. D. C. 129, 277 Fed. 335).

When indictment charged conspiracy on a certain day without a continuando, the accused in extradition proceeding should be discharged on habeas corpus when he proved he was not in the state when the offense was charged to have been committed. Levy v. Splain (50 App. D. C. 31, 267 Fed. 333).

INDICTMENT

"It is only in cases when it is apparent that the indictment does not charge an offense at all, that another court will pass on it." Wheeler v. Palmer (42 App. D. C. 395).

Indictment need only show that accused was substantially charged with a crime under the law of the demanding state. The legal sufficiency of the indictment as a pleading must be tested in the courts of the demanding state. Webster v. Splain (45 App. D. C. 567), distinguishing Hard v. Splain (45 App. D. C. 1). See also Wheeler v. Palmer (42 App. D. C. 395), citing Lamar v. Splain (42 App. D. C. 300). See also Farr v. Palmer (24 App. D. C. 234); DePoilly v. Palmer (28 App. D. C. 324); Goodale v. Splain (42 App. D. C. 235).

Formal defects in indictment will not prevent removal of petitioners to another district for trial but "if indictment were a mere information, or upon inspection, set forth no crime against United States, or a wholly different crime from that alleged as the basis for proceedings, or if such crime be charged to have been committed in another district from that to which the extradition is sought, the commissioner could not properly consider it as ground for removal." Whitaker v. Hitt (52 App. D. C. 149, 285 Fed. 797, 27 A. L. R. 951).

SHERIFF'S APPLICATION

It is immaterial when sheriff used the wrong gender of prisoner in application to the governor for a requisition on the authorities of the District of Columbia. John v. Splain (50 App. D. C. 201, 269 Fed. 717).

§ 23–402 [6: 378]. When associate justice may act.

Any associate justice of said court shall have like power, in case of the illness, absence, or other disability of the chief justice, or when any such application shall be certified to him by the chief justice. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1340, ch. 854, § 931.)

§ 23–403 [6: 379]. Detention of fugitives from justice—Warrants for apprehension.

Whenever any person shall be found within the District of Columbia charged with any offense committed in any state, territory, or other possession of the United States, and liable by the Constitution and laws of the United States to be delivered over upon the demand of the governor of such state, territory, or possession, any judge of the police court of the District of Columbia, may, upon complaint on oath or affirmation of any credible witness, setting forth the offense, that such person is a fugitive from justice, and such other matters as are necessary to bring the case within the provisions of law, issue a warrant to bring the person so charged before the police court, to answer such complaint. (Apr. 21, 1928, 45 Stat. 440, ch. 398, § 1.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

DETENTION PENDING REQUISITION

Where state circuit court granted writ of habeas corpus discharging petitioner, who had been ordered recommitted for violation of conditional pardon, on ground that state statute was unconstitutional and after state court of last resort had reversed the decision petitioner was arrested in District of Columbia on a fugitive warrant, detention of petitioner pending receipt of requisition from Governor of the state was authorized. Herzog v. Colpoys, 1944 (143 F. 2d 137, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 81).

§ 23–404 [6: 380]. Bail—When allowed.

If, upon the examination of the person charged, it shall appear to the judge of the police court that there is reasonable cause to believe that the complaint is true, and that such person may be lawfully demanded of the Chief Justice of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia, he shall, if not charged with murder in the first degree, be required to give bond or other obligation, with sufficient sureties, in a reasonable sum, to appear before said judge of the police court at a future date, allowing thirty days to obtain a requisition from the governor of the state, territory, or possession of the United States from which said person is a fugitive, he to abide the order of such judge of the police court in the premises. STATUTORY REFERENCE

This section is in U. S. C., Title 18, § 671.

§ 23–406 [6: 382]. Discharge of prisoner if not demanded by return day—Future commitment.

If the person so giving bond or other obligation, or committed, shall appear before the judge of the police court upon the day ordered, he shall be discharged, unless he shall be demanded by some person authorized by the warrant of the governor to receive him, or unless the judge of the police court shall see cause to commit him for a further time, or to require him to give bond or other obligation for his appearance at some other day, and if, when ordered, he shall not give bond or other obligation he shall be committed and detained as before: Provided, That whether the person so charged shall give bond or other obligation, be committed or discharged, his delivery to any person authorized by the warrant of the governor shall be a discharge of his bond or obligation, if any. Chapter 5.—UNIFORM ACT ON FRESH PURSUIT

Sec.

23–501. Arrests in District of Columbia by officers of other States.
23–502. Hearing—Commitment—Discharge.
23–503. Construction of act.
23–504. "Fresh pursuit" defined.

§ 23–501 [6: 481]. Arrests in District of Columbia by officers of other States.

Any member of a duly organized State, county, or municipal peace unit of any State of the United States who enters the District of Columbia in fresh pursuit and continues within the said District in such fresh pursuit of a person in order to arrest him on the ground that he is believed to have committed a felony in such State shall have the same authority to arrest and hold such person in custody as has any member of any duly organized peace unit of the said District to arrest and hold in custody a person on the ground that he is believed to have committed a felony in the said District. (July 26. 1939, 53 Stat. 1124, ch. 375, § 1.)

§ 23–502 [6: 482]. Hearing—Commitment—Discharge.

If an arrest is made in the District of Columbia by an officer of another State in accordance with the provisions of section 23–501, he shall without unnecessary delay take the person arrested before a judge of the police court of the District of Columbia, or a United States commissioner for the District of Columbia, who shall conduct a hearing for the purpose of determining the lawfulness of the arrest. If the judge of the police court of the District of Columbia or the United States commissioner before whom the hearing is conducted determines that the arrest was lawful, he shall commit the person arrested to await for a reasonable time the issuance of an extradition warrant by the Chief Justice of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia. If the judge of the police court or the United States commissioner for the District of Columbia, before whom the hearing is held, determines that the arrest was unlawful he shall discharge the person arrested. (July 26, 1939, 53 Stat. 1124, ch. 375, § 2.)

§ 23–503 [6: 483]. Construction of act.

Section 23–501 shall not be construed so as to make unlawful any arrest in this District which would be otherwise lawful. (July 26, 1939, 53 Stat. 1124, ch. 375, § 3.)

§ 23–504 [6: 484]. "Fresh pursuit" defined.

The term "fresh pursuit" used in this chapter shall include fresh pursuit as defined by the common law, also the pursuit of a person who has committed a felony or one whom the pursuing officer has reasonable grounds to believe has committed a felony. It shall also include the pursuit of a person whom the pursuing officer has reasonable grounds to believe has committed a felony, although no felony has actually been committed, if there is reasonable ground for believing that a felony has been committed. "Fresh pursuit" as used herein shall not necessarily imply an instant pursuit, but pursuit without unreasonable delay. (July 26, 1939, 53 Stat. 1124, ch. 375, § 4.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

Section 5 of the act of July 26, 1939, cited to the text of §§ 23–501 to 23–504 provided:

"If any part of this Act is for any reason declared void. it is declared to be the intent of this Act that such invalidity shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this Act."

Section 6 of the act of July 26, 1939, provided that the act may be cited as the Uniform Act on Fresh Pursuit.

23–609 Giving advance information of proposed raid prohibited.
23–610. Designation of official to take bail or collateral when court is not in session.
23–611. Penalties.
23–612. Enforcement.

§ 23–601 [6: 387]. Definitions.

The words "bonding business" as used in this chapter mean the business of becoming surety for compensation upon bonds in criminal cases in the District of Columbia, and the word "bondsman" means any person or corporation engaged either as principal or as agent, clerk, or representative of another in such business. (Mar. 3, 1933, 47 Stat. 1482, ch. 206, § 1.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Other provisions concerning bail, §§ 11–602, 11–606.

§ 23–602 [6: 388]. Business impressed with public interest.

The business of becoming surety for compensation upon bonds in criminal cases in the District of Columbia is impressed with a public interest. (Mar. 3, 1933, 47 Stat. 1483, ch. 206, § 2.)

§ 23–603 [6: 389]. Procuring business through official or attorney for a consideration—Prohibited.

It shall be unlawful for any person engaged, either as principal or as the clerk, agent, or representative of a corporation, or another person in the business of becoming surety upon bonds for compensation in the District of Columbia, either directly or indirectly, to give, donate, lend, contribute, or to promise to give, donate, loan, or contribute any money, property, entertainment, or other thing of value whatsoever to any attorney at law, police officer, deputy United States marshal, jailer, probation officer, clerk, or other attaché of a criminal court, or public official of any character, for procuring or assisting in procuring any person to employ said bondsman to execute as surety any bond for compensation in any criminal case in the District of Columbia; and it shall be unlawful for any attorney at law, police officer, deputy United States marshal, jailer, probation officer, clerk, bailiff, or other attaché of a criminal court, or public official of any character, to accept or receive from any such person engaged in the bonding business any money, property, entertainment, or other thing of value whatsoever for procuring or assisting in procuring any person to employ any bondsman to execute as surety any bond for compensation in any criminal case in the District of Columbia. (Mar. 3, 1933, 47 Stat. 1483, ch. 206, § 3.)

§ 23–604 [6: 390]. Attorneys procuring employment through official or bondsman for a consideration—Prohibited.

It shall be unlawful for any attorney at law, either directly or indirectly, to give, loan, donate, contribute, or to promise to give, loan, donate, or contribute any money, property, entertainment, or other thing of value whatsoever to, or to split or divide any fee or commission with, any bondsman, the agent, clerk, or representative of any bondsman, police officer, deputy United States marshal, probation officer, assistant probation officer, bailiff, clerk, or other attaché of any criminal court for causing or procuring or assisting in causing or procuring any person to employ such attorney to represent him in any criminal case in the District of Columbia. (Mar. 3, 1933, 47 Stat. 1483, ch. 206, § 4.)

§ 23–605 [6: 391]. Receiving other than regular fee for bonding prohibited—Bondsman prohibited from endeavoring to secure dismissal or settlement.

It shall be lawful to charge for executing any bond in a criminal case in the District of Columbia, and it shall be unlawful for any person or corporation engaged in the bonding business, either as principal, or clerk, agent, or representative of another, either directly or indirectly, to charge, accept, or receive any sum of money, or other thing of value, other than the regular fee for bonding, from any person for whom he has executed bond, for any other service whatever performed in connection with any indictment, information, or charge upon which said person is bailed or held in the District of Columbia. It also shall be unlawful for any person or corporation engaged either as principal or as agent, clerk, or representative of another in the bonding business, to settle, or attempt to settle, or to procure or attempt to procure the dismissal of any indictment, information, or charge against any person in custody or held upon bond in the District of Columbia, with any court, or with the prosecuting attorney in any court in the District of Columbia. (Mar. 3, 1933, 47 Stat. 1483, ch. 206, § 5.)

§ 23–606 [6: 392]. Posting names of authorized bondsmen—List to be furnished prisoners—Prisoners may communicate with bondsman—Record to be kept by police.

A typewritten or printed list alphabetically arranged of all persons engaged under the authority of any of the courts of criminal jurisdiction in the District of Columbia in the business of becoming surety upon bonds for compensation in criminal cases shall be posted in a conspicuous place in each police precinct, jail, prisoner's dock, house of detention, and every other place in the District of Columbia in which persons in custody of the law are detained, and one or more copies thereof kept on hand; and when any person who is detained in custody in any such place of detention shall request any person in charge thereof to furnish him the name of a bondsman, or to put him in communication with a bondsman, said list shall be furnished to the person so requesting, and it shall be the duty of the person in charge of said place of detention within a reasonable time to put the person so detained in communication with the bondsman so selected, and the person in charge of said place of detention shall contemporaneously with said transaction make in the blotter or book of record kept in any such place of detention, a record showing the name of the person requesting the bondsman, the offense with which the said person is charged, the time at which the request was made, the bondsman requested, and the person by whom the said bondsman was called, and preserve the same as a permanent record in the book or blotter in which entered. (Mar. 3, 1933, 47 Stat. 1483, ch. 206, § 6.)

§ 23–607 [6: 393]. Bondsman prohibited from entering place of detention unless requested by prisoner—Record of visit to be kept.

It shall be unlawful for any bondsman, agent, clerk, or representative of any bondsman to enter a police precinct, jail, prisoner's dock, house of detention, or other place where persons in the custody of the law are detained in the District of Columbia for the purpose of obtaining employment as a bondsman, without having been previously called by a person so detained, or by some relative or other authorized person acting for or on behalf of the person so detained, and whenever any person engaged in the bonding business as principal, or as clerk, agent, or representative of another, shall enter a police precinct, jail, prisoner's dock, house of detention, or other place where persons in the custody of the law are detained in the District of Columbia, he shall forthwith give to the person in charge thereof his mission there, the name of the person calling him, and requesting him to come to such place, and the same shall be recorded by the person in charge of the said place of detention and preserved as a public record, and the failure to give such information, or the failure of the person in charge of said place of detention to make and preserve such a record, shall constitute a violation of this chapter. (Mar. 3, 1933, 47 Stat. 1484, ch. 206, § 7.)

§ 23–608 [6: 394]. Qualifications of bondsmen—Rules to be prescribed by courts—List of agents to be furnished—Renewal of authority to act.

It shall be the duty of the police court, juvenile court, and the criminal divisions of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia, each, to provide, under reasonable rules and regulations, the qualifications of persons and corporations applying for authority to engage in the bonding business in criminal cases in the District of Columbia, and the terms and conditions upon which such business shall be carried on, and no person or corporation shall, either as principal, or as agent, clerk, or representative of another, engage in the bonding business in any such court until he shall by order of the court be authorized to do so. Such courts, in making such rules and regulations, and in granting authority to persons to engage in the bonding business, shall take into consideration both the financial responsibility and the moral qualities of the person so applying, and no person shall be permitted to engage, either as principal or agent, in the business of becoming surety upon bonds for compensation in criminal cases, who has ever been convicted of any offense involving moral turpitude, or who is not known to be a person of good moral character. It shall be the duty of each of said courts to require every person qualifying to engage in the bonding business as principal to file with said court a list showing the name, age, and residence of each person employed by said bondsman as agent, clerk, or representative in the bonding business, and require an affidavit from each of said persons stating that said person will abide by the terms and provisions of this chapter. Each of said courts shall require the authority of each of said persons to be renewed from time to time at such periods as the court may by rule provide, and before said authority shall be renewed the court shall require from each of said persons an affidavit that since his previous qualification to engage in the bonding business he has abided by the provisions of this chapter, and any person swearing falsely in any of said affidavits shall be guilty of perjury. (Mar. 3, 1933, 47 Stat. 1484, ch. 206, § 8.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

REVOCATION OF LICENSE

When an authorization to engage in the bonding business has been approved by the district court and is outstanding, it can be revoked, prior to the expiration of the term, only upon a proceeding which contains the elements of due process of law, i. e., a hearing and revelation of all matter upon which a decision is to be based. In Re Carter (C. A. D. C. 1949, 177 F. 2d 75, 85 U. S. App. D. C. 229, certiorari denied, 70 S. Ct. 250, 338 U. S. 900, 94 L. Ed. 198).

§ 23–609 [6: 395]. Giving advance information of proposed raid prohibited.

It shall be unlawful for any police officer or other public official, in advance of any raid by police or other peace officers or public officials or the execution of any search warrant or warrant of arrest, to give or furnish, either directly or indirectly, any information concerning such proposed raid or arrest to any person engaged in any manner in the bonding business, or to any attorney at law: Provided, however, That it shall not be unlawful for any police or other peace officer, in conducting any raid or in executing any search warrant or warrant of arrest, to communicate to any attorney at law or person engaged in the bonding business, any fact necessary to enable such officer to obtain from such attorney at law or person engaged in the bonding business information necessary to enable such officer to carry out said raid or execute such process. (Mar. 3, 1933, 47 Stat. 1485, ch. 206, § 9.)

§ 23–610 [6: 396]. Designation of official to take bail or collateral when court is not in session.

The judges of the police court of the District of Columbia shall have the authority to appoint some official of the Metropolitan police force of the District of Columbia to act as a clerk of the police court with authority to take bail or collateral from persons charged with offenses triable in the police court in criminal cases in the District of Columbia at all times when the police court is not open and its clerks accessible. The official so appointed shall have the same authority at said times with reference to taking bonds or collateral as the clerk of the police court had on March 3, 1933; shall receive no compensation for said services other than his regular salary; shall be subject to the orders and rules of the police court in discharge of his said duties, and may be removed as such clerk at any time by the judges of the police court. The District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia and the Juvenile Court of the District of Columbia each shall have power by order to authorize the official, appointed by the police court, to take bond of persons arrested upon writs and processes from those courts in criminal cases between four o'clock postmeridian and nine o'clock antemeridian and upon Sundays and holidays, and each of such courts shall have power at any time by order to revoke such authority granted by it. (Mar. 3, 1933, 47 Stat. 1485, ch. 206, § 10.)

§ 23–611 [6: 397]. Penalties.

Any person violating any provision of this chapter other than in the commission of perjury shall be punished by a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $100, or by imprisonment of not less than ten or more than sixty days in jail, or both, where no other penalty is provided by this chapter; and if the person so convicted be a police officer or other public official, he shall upon recommendation of the trial judge also be forthwith dismissed from office; if a bondsman, or the agent, clerk, or representative of a bondsman, he shall be disqualified from thereafter engaging in any manner in the bonding business for such a period of time as the trial judge shall order; and, if an attorney at law, shall be subject to suspension or disbarment as attorney at law. (Mar. 3, 1933, 47 Stat. 1485, ch. 206, § 11.)

§ 23–612 [6: 398]. Enforcement.

It shall be the duty of the police court, juvenile court, and of the criminal divisions of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia to see that this chapter is enforced, and upon the impaneling of each grand jury in the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia it shall be the duty of the judge impaneling said jury to give it in charge to the jury to investigate the manner in which this chapter is enforced and all violations thereof. (Mar. 3, 1933, 47 Stat. 1485, ch. 206, § 12.)

Chapter 7.—DEATH PENALTY

Sec.

23–701. Capital punishment—How inflicted.
23–702. Commissioners to provide death chamber, appoint executioner and assistants, and fix fees.
23–703. Sentences to be in writing and certified copy furnished superintendent of District jail.
23–704. Who may be present at executions—Fact of execution to be certified to clerk of court.
23–705. Who may not be present at executions.
23–706. Place of execution.

§ 23–701 [6: 418]. Capital punishment—How inflicted.

The mode of capital punishment shall be by the process commonly known as electrocution. The punishment of death shall be inflicted by causing to pass through the body of the convict a current of electricity of sufficient intensity to cause death, and the application of such current shall be continued until such convict is dead. (Jan. 30, 1925, 43 Stat. 798, ch. 115, § 1.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

AUTHORITY TO EXECUTE CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

Regardless of the legislation under which the appeal was brought, Congress had unmistakably invested the respondent, the superintendent of the jail, with authority within the District to carry into effect the death sentence in capital cases. Price v. Moyer (53 App. D. C. 63, 288 Fed. 269).

§ 23–702 [6: 419]. Commissioners to provide death chamber, appoint executioner and assistants, and fix fees.

The commissioners of the District of Columbia are authorized and required to provide a death chamber and necessary apparatus for inflicting the death penalty by electrocution, to designate an executioner and necessary assistants, not exceeding three in number, and to fix the fees thereof for services. (Jan. 30, 1925, 43 Stat. 799, ch. 115, § 2.)

CROSS REFERENCE

See § 23–706, as to place of execution.

§ 23–703 [6: 420]. Sentences to be in writing and certified copy furnished superintendent of District jail.

Upon the conviction of any person in the District of Columbia of a crime the punishment of which is death, it shall be the duty of the presiding judge to sentence such convicted person to death according to the terms of sections 23–701 to 23–704, and to make such sentence in writing, which shall be filed with the papers in the case against such convicted person, and a certified copy thereof shall be transmitted, by the clerk of the court in which such sentence is pronounced, to the superintendent of the District jail, not less than ten days prior to the time fixed in the sentence of the court for the execution of the same. (Jan. 30, 1925, 43 Stat. 799, ch. 115, § 3.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CONSTRUCTION

Section 23–703 must be read in connection with § 23–114 and with their legislative history. When this is done, it is clear that § 23–703 is intended not for the benefit of defendants upon whom death sentences are to be imposed, but as an aid to the prison authorities charged with execution of such sentences. Wheeler v. Reid (C. A., D. C. 1948, 175 F. 2d 829, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 180).

§ 23–704 [6: 421]. Who may be present at executions—Fact of execution to be certified to clerk of court.

At the execution of the death penalty as herein prescribed there shall be present the following persons, and no more, to wit:

The executioner and his assistant; the physician of the prison and one other physician if the condemned person so desires; the condemned person's counsel and relatives, not exceeding three, if they so desire; the prison chaplain and such other ministers of the Gospel, not exceeding two, as may attend by desire of the condemned; the superintendent of the prison, or, in the event of his disability, a deputy designated by him; and not fewer than three nor more than five respectable citizens whom the superintendent of the prison shall designate, and, if necessary to insure their attendance, shall subpœna to be present. The fact of execution shall be certified by the prison physician and the executioner to the clerk of the court in which sentence was pronounced, which certificate shall be filed by the clerk with the papers in the case. (Jan. 30, 1925, 43 Stat. 799, ch. 115, § 4.)

§ 23–705 [6: 422]. Who may not be present at executions.

No person whatever under the age of twenty-one years, shall be allowed to witness any such execution. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1379, ch. 854, § 1203.)

§ 23–706 [6: 423]. Place of execution.

Persons adjudged to suffer death shall be executed within the walls of the jail of the District, or within the yard or inclosure thereof, and not elsewhere. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1379, ch. 854, § 1200.)

TITLE 24.—PRISONERS AND THEIR TREATMENT

Chap.		Sec.
1.	Probation	24–101
2.	Indeterminate sentences and paroles	24–201
3.	Insane criminals	24–301
4.	Prisons and prisoners	24–401
5.	Rehabilitation of alcoholics	24–501

Chapter 1.—PROBATION

Sec.

24–101. Probation system—Probation officers—Appointment.

24–102. When probation may be granted—Statement to probationer—Rules and regulations.

24–103. Investigations and reports by probation officers.

24–104. Discharge from or continuance of probation—Modification or revocation of order.

24–105. Quarters for probation officers—Payment of expenses.

§ 24–101 [6: 424]. Probation system—Probation officers—Appointment.

The District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia in general term may appoint one probation officer, and as many volunteer assistant probation officers, male or female, as occasion may require; and the police court of the District of Columbia may appoint one chief probation officer, and two assistant probation officers, one of which assistant probation officers shall serve for one year only, and one stenographer and typist, who shall serve for one year only, and as many volunteer assistant probation officers, male or female, as occasion may require.

All such probation officers and assistants shall be appointed for a term of two years, with the exception of one assistant probation officer and one stenographer and typist, who shall be appointed for one year only, and may be removed by the respective courts appointing them. All such volunteer probation officers shall serve without compensation, and shall have such powers and perform such duties as may be assigned to them by said courts. (June 25, 1910, 36 Stat. 864, ch. 433, § 1; Mar. 4, 1919, 40 Stat. 1324, ch. 122; Mar. 4, 1923, 42 Stat. 1488, ch. 265.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

See note to § 19–401.

AMENDMENT

The 1910 act and the 1919 amendment provided for specific salaries for each position created. The 1923 act is the Classification Act of 1923 (U. S. C., title 5, § 673). The 1919 amendment raised the number of assistant probation officers from one to two, of which one shall serve for one year only, and provided for "one stenographer and typist who shall serve for one year only."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

FEDERAL PROBATION LAW

The Federal Probation Law, 18 U. S. C. § 724, does not apply to the District of Columbia. Cooper v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1946, 48 A. 2d 771).

SENTENCE SUSPENDED INDEFINITELY

When Federal District Court exceeded its power and ordered that sentence be suspended indefinitely during good behavior, mandamus was the proper remedy. Ex. parte United States (242 U. S. 27, 61 L. Ed. 129, 37 Sup. Ct. 72).

SUSPENSION OF SENTENCE

Where defendant was convicted for violation of a traffic regulation, and execution of sentence was suspended, such suspension must be vacated because such power is derived from the Federal Probation Act. Though under the District of Columbia Probation Act, the court is authorized to suspend execution, clearly the suspension in this case was not and did not purport to be exercised under the authority of the probation law and was beyond the power of the court. Ziegler v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1950, 71 A. 2d 618).

§ 24–102 [6: 425]. When probation may be granted—Statement to probationer—Rules and regulations.

The District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia shall have power in any case, except those involving treason, homicide, rape, arson, kidnaping, or a second conviction of a felony, after conviction or after a plea of guilty of a felony or misdemeanor and after the imposition of a sentence thereon but before commitment, and the said police court shall have like power, after a conviction or a plea of guilty in any case of misdemeanor, to place the defendant upon probation, provided that it shall appear to the satisfaction of the court that the ends of justice and the best interests of the public as well as of the defendant would be subserved thereby, and may suspend the imposition or execution of the sentence, as the case may be, for such time and upon such terms as it may deem best and place the defendant in charge of a probation officer. The probationer shall be provided by the clerk of the court with a written statement of the terms and conditions of his probation at the time when he is placed thereon. He shall observe the rules prescribed for his conduct by the court and report to the probation officer as directed. No person shall be put on probation except with his or her consent. (June 25, 1910, 36 Stat. 864, ch. 433, § 2.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

POWER OF MUNICIPAL COURT

The Municipal Court of the District of Columbia may in its discretion order restitution or reparation as a condition of probation. Basile v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 38 A. 2d 620).

REDUCTION OF SENTENCE

Where order of probation was void because entered after defendant had been committed, release of defendant under the probation order was premature and it was duty of court to cause him to be recommitted, and the void probation order did not amount to an unconditional reduction of sentence. Peden v. Fleming (App. D. C. 1946, 153 F. 2d 800).

The effect of a probation order is not to reduce sentence to time already served, but, while on probation, prisoner continues to be, in a sense, in custodia legis and the sentence is, through grace of this section, merely in a state of suspended animation, if probation has been properly granted. Peden v. Fleming (App. D. C. 1946, 153 F. 2d 800).

RESTITUTION AS CONDITION

Conditioning probation on restitution, to be made by paying compensation award, and revoking probation for failure to pay the award, was not improper as imprisoning probationer for debt. Basile v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 38 A. 2d 620).

Failure of Congress to specifically authorize restitution as a condition of probation in District of Columbia, though specific authority was given under 18 U. S. C. § 724 et seq., did not negative power of District of Columbia court to impose such a condition. Basile v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 38 A. 2d 620).

Where defendant was convicted of failure to provide compensation insurance policy and placed on probation, conditioning the probation on his making restitution to compensation claimant by paying the total award of compensation was proper. Basile v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 38 A. 2d 620).

TIME FOR PROBATION

Under this section, probation may be granted after appeal to and affirmance by appellate court but before service of sentence has begun. Gaston v. U. S., 1944 (143 F. 2d 10, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 37, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 1286, 322 U. S. 764, 88 L. Ed. 1591).

Under this section providing that probation may be granted after imposition of sentence but before commitment, Municipal Court of District of Columbia did not have power to enter a probation order after defendant had been committed. Peden v. Fleming (App. D. C. 1946, 153 F. 2d 800).

§ 24–103 [6: 426]. Investigations and reports by probation officers.

The probation officers shall carefully investigate all cases referred to them by the court, and make recommendations to the court to enable it to decide whether the defendant ought to be placed under probation, and shall report to the court, from time to time as may be required by it, touching all cases in their care, to the end that the court may be at all times fully informed of the circumstances and conduct of probationers. (June 25, 1910, 36 Stat. 864, ch. 433, § 3.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

RECOMMENDING SENTENCE

Where accused pleaded guilty to maintaining disorderly house and, on plea for probation, trial judge announced, that probation officer had recommended maximum sentence and, on objection to consideration of recommendation, trial judge, without express ruling thereon, sentenced defendant to the near maximum penalty, sentence was not set aside. Ishkanian v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 35 A. 2d 176).

A recommendation by a probation officer to trial judge as to sentence to be imposed is not merely unauthorized by this chapter but is an infringement upon court's judicial function, which officer has no right to exercise and judge no right to permit. Ishkanian v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 35 A. 2d 176).

§ 24–104 [6: 427]. Discharge from or continuance of probation—Modification or revocation of order.

Upon the expiration of the term fixed for such probation, the probation officer shall report that fact to the court, with a statement of the conduct of the probationer while on probation, and the court may thereupon discharge the probationer from further supervision, or may extend the probation, as shall seem advisable. At any time during the probationary term the court may modify the terms and conditions of the order of probation, or may terminate such probation, when in the opinion of the court the ends of justice shall require, and when the probation is so terminated the court shall enter an order discharging the probationer from serving the imposed penalty; or the court may revoke the order of probation and cause the rearrest of the probationer and impose a sentence and require him to serve the sentence or pay the fine originally imposed, or both, as the case may be, and the time of probation shall not be taken into account to diminish the time for which he was originally sentenced. (June 25, 1910, 36 Stat. 865, ch. 433, § 4.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

EXTENSION OF PROBATION

The extension of the probation every six months after the return unexecuted of an attachment for violation of terms of probation kept the probation alive and did not violate this section, which does not limit the number or length of extensions of probation. Cooper v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1946, 48 A. 2d 771).

PROBABLE CAUSE

A probationer who had been arrested on another charge was properly arrested by probation officer for violation of terms of probation when she appeared in another court to answer the new charge, since only the execution of the sentence had been suspended and the requirement as to probable cause for the commission of an offense did not apply to her. Cooper v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1946, 48 A. 2d 771).

REVOCATION

The court had jurisdiction to reconsider defendant's probation and revoke it if the public interest seemed to justify such action. Cooper v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1946, 48 A. 2d 771).

That the judge who had originally sentenced defendant was no longer in office did not prevent another judge of the same court from revoking the defendant's probation. Cooper v. U. S. (D. C. Mun. App. 1946, 48 A. 2d 771).

§ 24–105 [6: 428]. Quarters for probation officers—Payment of expenses.

The chief probation officer of each court shall be entitled, for himself and his assistants, to a room in the building occupied by that court, and all necessary stationery and supplies for the transaction of the business of his office, and all the probation officers except volunteer officers shall be entitled to their necessary expenses in performing the duties of their office, under the direction of the court, the amount of the expense for such stationery, supplies, and expenses to be fixed and allowed by the court upon proper vouchers submitted to it by the probation officers, and accounts duly verified by their oath. (June 25, 1910, 36 Stat. 865, ch. 433, § 5; Mar. 4, 1919, 40 Stat. 1325, ch. 122; Mar. 4, 1923, 42 Stat. 1488, ch. 265.)

AMENDMENT

The 1910 act contained an additional clause which read, "and for the purpose of this act there is hereby appropriated the sum of five thousand dollars, one-half to be paid out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated and the other half out of the revenues of the District of Columbia." The 1919 amendment raised this amount stated in said clause to $8,000. The 1923 act is the Classification Act of 1923 (U. S. C., title 5, § 673).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CONSTITUTIONALITY

This act does not violate the Fifth Amendment, and is not invalid as a delegation of judicial power to the executive branch of the Government. Sims v. Rives, (66 App. D. C. 24, 84 Fed. (2d) 871, cert. den. 298 U. S. 682, 80 L. Ed. 1402, 56 Sup. Ct. 960); Tomlin v. United States (66 App. D. C. 32, 84 Fed. (2d) 879).

PAROLE BOARD

Authority of the new board and the system of parole which it was to supervise were confined to the penal institutions in the District of Columbia, and only persons therein confined were to be affected. Aderhold v. Lee ((C. C. A. 5), 68 Fed. (2d) 824).

Board pronouncing final judgment was vested by statute with full jurisdiction to determine the question at issue; at which the prisoner was accorded a fair hearing, to which he made no objection; and in which his only complaint is that he was not brought before the board upon a proper warrant. Jarman v. United States ((C. C. A. 4), 92 Fed. (2d) 309).

PURPOSE

Title 18 U. S. C. §§ 710, 715–716b and this chapter regarding powers of federal board of parole and District of Columbia Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole indicate congressional intent to provide a uniform administration of federal and district laws with respect to the control of released prisoners. Gould v. Green, 1944, 141 F. 2d 533 (78 U. S. App. D. C. 363).

REMOVAL OF PRISONER FROM DISTRICT

Prisoner sentenced after creation of special parole board for the District could, after federal board was given equal authority over those in District, be removed to penitentiary outside of the District. MacAboy v. Klecka ((D. C.-Md.), 22 Fed. Supp. 960).

SENTENCE

Sentence imposed under this act for violation of Liquor Taxing Act of 1934, held valid. Sims v. Rives (66 App. D. C. 24, 84 Fed. (2d) 871, cert. den. 298 U. S. 682, 80 L. Ed. 1402, 56 Sup. Ct. 960).

§ 24–201a. Board of Parole—Rules and regulations.

A Board of Parole for the penal and correctional institutions of the District of Columbia is hereby created to consist of three members appointed by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, one of whom shall serve on a full-time basis and be designated by the Commissioners as Parole Executive. The other two members shall serve without compensation, one of whom shall be elected Chairman of the said Board. The Board of Parole shall select its own Chairman and shall have power to establish rules and regulations for its procedure. (July 17, 1947, 61 Stat. 378, ch. 263, § 1.)

§ 24–201b. Transfer of powers of Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole—Duties of parole executive—Cooperation with Board.

Upon appointment of the members of the Board of Parole, the powers of the Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole created by section 24–201, not specifically repealed, shall be transferred to and vested in the Board of Parole. The officers and employees of the Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole, except the members thereof, together with all official records, furniture and supplies, and all unexpended balances of any appropriations, shall be transferred to the Board of Parole. It shall be the duty of the parole executive to prepare for the consideration of the Board of Parole all applications of prisoners for parole in such form and at such times and together with such information and records as the Board of Parole may require, to perform such administrative duties as the Board may prescribe, and to supervise prisoners on parole in accordance with the terms and conditions prescribed by the Board. The Department of Corrections, and all other agencies and officials of the District shall cooperate with the Board and shall furnish the Board with such information, files, and records as it may deem necessary in the performance of its duties: Provided, That confidential information and records shall not be required to be produced. (July 17, 1947, 61 Stat. 378, ch. 263, § 2.)

§ 24–201c. Applications for reduction of minimum sentence—Jurisdiction of court.

When by reason of his training and response to the rehabilitation program of the Department of Corrections it appears to the Board that there is a reasonable probability that a prisoner will live and remain at liberty without violating the law, and that his immediate release is not incompatible with the welfare of society, but he has not served his minimum sentence, the Board in its discretion may apply to the court imposing sentence for a reduction of his minimum sentence. The court shall have jurisdiction to act upon the application at any time prior to the expiration of the minimum sentence and no hearing shall be required. (July 17, 1947, 61 Stat. 379, ch. 263, § 4.)

§ 24–202. Repealed. July 17, 1947, 61 Stat. 379, ch. 263, § 7.

Section, based on Act July 15, 1932, 47 Stat. 697, ch. 492, § 2, as amended June 6, 1940, 54 Stat. 242, ch. 254, § 1, related to employees of former board.

§ 24–203 [6: 453]. Imposition of indeterminate sentences authorized—Life and death sentences.

In imposing sentence on a person convicted in the District of Columbia of a felony, the justice or judge of the court imposing such sentence shall sentence the person for a maximum period not exceeding the maximum fixed by law, and for a minimum period not exceeding one-third of the maximum sentence imposed, and any person so convicted and sentenced may be released on parole as herein provided at any time after having served the minimum sentence. Where the maximum sentence imposed is life imprisonment, a minimum sentence shall be imposed which shall not exceed fifteen years' imprisonment. Nothing in sections 24–201 to 24–210 shall abrogate the power of the justice or judge to sentence the convicted prisoner to the death penalty as now [June 6, 1940] or hereafter may be provided by law. (July 15, 1932, 47 Stat. 697, ch. 492, § 3; June 6, 1940, 54 Stat. 264, ch. 254, § 2.)

COMPILER'S NOTES

Section 2 (b) of the act of 1940 provided that such act should not affect the penalty, sentence, or forfeiture for felonies committed prior thereto.

FELONIES COMMITTED PRIOR TO JUNE 6, 1940

Section 9 of the act of June 6, 1940, 54 Stat. —, ch. 254, provides as follows: "(a) Where a justice or a judge of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia has imposed or shall impose a life sentence on a prisoner convicted of a felony committed before this amendatory act takes effect such prisoner shall be eligible to parole under the provisions of said act approved July 15, 1932, as amended, after having served fifteen years of his life sentence.

"(b) Where a justice or judge of the District Court of the United States has imposed or shall impose a sentence for a definite term of imprisonment on a prisoner convicted of a felony committed before this amendatory act takes effect, such prisoner shall be eligible to parole under the provisions of said act approved July 15, 1932, as amended, after having served one-third of the sentence imposed."

AMENDMENT

Prior to the 1940 amendment the minimum period was "not exceeding one-fifth of the maximum period fixed by law." The act of 1940 also reworded and changed the order of the second and third sentences, the principal change being that previous to the amendment a person given a life sentence was eligible to parole "after having served fifteen years of his life's sentence."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

APPLICATION OF STATUTE

This act is applicable to persons convicted in the District of Columbia of offenses defined in the general laws of the United States. Sims v. Rives (66 App. D. C. 24, 84 Fed. (2d) 871, cert. den. 298 U. S. 682, 80 L. Ed. 1402, 56 Sup. Ct. 960).

CONSTITUTIONALITY

The Indeterminate Sentence Act applies to convictions in the District for offenses defined in the general laws of the United States, and thus applied is constitutionally valid. Farnsworth v. Zerbst ((C. C. A. 5), 98 Fed. (2d) 541).

CONTEMPT

This section is inapplicable to a criminal contempt conviction not only because it ought not and is not intended to apply, but also because it cannot be made applicable in view of fact that trial judge has nonarbitrary discretion in matter of sentence. Warring v. Huff, 1941 (122 F. 2d 641, 74 App. D. C. 302, certiorari denied, 1942, 62 S. Ct. 183, 314 U. S. 678, 86 L. Ed. 543).

CRIME COMMITTED BEFORE PASSAGE OF ACT

Indeterminate Sentence Act held not applicable where crime of grand larceny was committed before passage of that act. De Benque v. United States (66 App. D. C. 36, 85 Fed. (2d) 202, 106 A. L. R. 839, cert. den. 298 U. S. 681, 80 L. Ed. 1402, 56 Sup. Ct. 960, reh. den. 299 U. S. 620, 81 L. Ed. 457, 57 Sup. Ct. 6).

Where defendants were found guilty in 1939 of having committed robbery in District of Columbia on June 10, 1932, sentence to prison of 3 to 15 years was not void on theory that it should be for not less than 6 months nor more than 15 years. U. S. v. Neufield (D. C., D. C. 1945, 62 F. Supp. 600).

Claim of defendants that much had come to light after their conviction which would show that defendants were innocent could not be considered in passing on motion to set aside sentences as void because sentences allegedly did not comply with law in effect when offenses were committed. U. S. v. Neufield (D. C., D. C. 1945, 62 F. Supp. 600).

MEANING OF INDETERMINATE SENTENCE

An indeterminate sentence is one for the maximum period imposed by the court, subject to termination by the Parole Board at any time after service of the minimum period. Story v. Rives (68 App. D. C. 325, 97 Fed. (2d) 182).

To same effect as original annotation, see U. S. v. Neufield (D. C., D. C. 1945, 62 F. Supp. 600).

SECOND-DEGREE MURDER

Indeterminate Sentence Act is inapplicable to second-degree murder and the existing statute providing a penalty of imprisonment for life or for not less than 20 years remains in effect. Anderson v. Rives (66 App. D. C. 174, 85 Fed. (2d) 673).

SENTENCES

Where the first sentences imposed under Indeterminate Sentence law were void, since the said statute was by its own terms inapplicable, the passing of the term did not deprive the court of power to resentence. De Benque v. United States (66 App. D. C. 36, 85 Fed. (2d) 202), 106 A. L. R. 839.

This provision brings the described sentences, although not indeterminate ones, within the new scheme by treating one-fifth thereof as the equivalent of the minimum in an indeterminate sentence and may include prisoners sentenced before the date of the act if imprisoned in the institutions under the jurisdiction of the board, but it does not extend the board's jurisdiction to prisoners in other institutions nor require their return to the District although convicted there before the act was passed. Aderhold v. Lee ((C. C. A. 5), 68 Fed. (2d) 824).

As maximum sentence on each count was 3 years, and as it did not exceed the maximum of 10 years fixed by law, and when minimum sentence on each of four counts was 2 years, the sentence therefore did not exceed one-fifth of the maximum period fixed by law of 10 years and was not in violation of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole law. United States ex rel. Bracey v. Hill ((C. C. A. 3), 77 Fed. (2d) 970); Bracey v. Zerbst ((C. C. A. 10), 93 Fed. (2d) 8).

Sentence fixing a maximum of 12 years conformed with the act, as did the minimum period of 3 years, being for a minimum period not exceeding one-fifth of the maximum period fixed by law. McDonald v. Johnston ((C. C. A. 9), 86 Fed. (2d) 329).

A sentence is legal so far as it is within provisions of law and jurisdiction of court, and is void only as to excess when such excess is separable and may be dealt with without disturbing valid portion of sentence. U. S. v. Neufield (D. C., D. C. 1945, 62 F. Supp. 600).

§ 24–204 [6: 454]. Parole authorized—Conditions—Custody—Reports.

Whenever it shall appear to the Board of Parole that there is a reasonable probability that a prisoner will live and remain at liberty without violating the law, that his release is not incompatible with the welfare of society, and that he has served the minimum sentence imposed or the prescribed portion of his sentence, as the case may be, the Board may authorize his release on parole upon such terms and conditions as the Board shall from time to time prescribe. While on parole, a prisoner shall remain in the legal custody and under the control of the Attorney General of the United States or his authorized representative until the expiration of the maximum of the term or terms specified in his sentence without regard to good time allowance. (July 15, 1932, 47 Stat. 697, ch. 492, § 4; June 6, 1940, 54 Stat. 242, ch. 254, § 3; July 17, 1947, 61 Stat. 378, ch. 263, § 3.)

AMENDMENT

The act of 1940 inserted the words "or to such other place as the board may indicate," after the words "return to his home;" substituted the Attorney General or his representative in place of superintendent of the institution as the party to have control of the paroled prisoner; substituted "without regard to the good-time allowance" for "less such good-time allowance as is, or may hereafter be, provided by law," and substituted the proviso clause for "which limits, however, may be thereafter changed in the discretion of the board."

AMENDMENTS

Act July 17, 1947, cited to text, amended section generally.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

DISCRETION OF BOARD

A prisoner may be released from imprisonment before he has served the maximum period of his sentence, less lawful good-time allowance, only in the discretion of the Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole. De Benque v. United States (66 App. D. C. 36, 85 Fed. (2d) 202), 106 A. L. R. 839.

The District of Columbia Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole has authority to impose conditions or to exercise supervision over prisoners convicted in the District of Columbia and thereafter released because of good conduct allowance. In re Reed (App. D. C. 1946, 158 F. 2d 323, 81 U. S. App. D. C. 310).

PRISONERS CONFINED OUTSIDE DISTRICT

Same privileges of parole are accorded to prisoners sentenced in the District of Columbia and committed to penal institutions outside of the District as to those sentenced and confined within the District. Bracey v. Hill, ((D. C.-Pa.), 11 Fed. Supp. 148).

§ 24–205 [6: 455]. Violation of parole—Warrant—Arrest—Return to confinement.

If said Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole, or any member thereof, shall have reliable information that a prisoner has violated his parole, said board, or any member thereof, at any time within the term or terms of the prisoner's sentence, may issue a warrant to any officer hereinafter authorized to execute the same for the retaking of such prisoner. Any officer of the District of Columbia penal institutions, any officer of the Metropolitan Police Department of the District of Columbia, or any federal officer authorized to serve criminal process within the United States to whom such warrant shall be delivered is authorized and required to execute such warrant by taking such prisoner and returning or removing him to the penal institution of the District of Columbia from which he was paroled or to such penal or correctional institution as may be designated by the Attorney General of the United States. (July 15, 1932, 47 Stat. 698, ch. 492, § 5; June 6, 1940, 54 Stat. —, ch. 254, § 4.)

AMENDMENT

Prior to the 1940 amendment the second sentence of this section provided for the execution of the warrant by any officer of the penal institution from which the prisoner was paroled or by any Federal officer authorized to serve criminal process and provided for such execution by "taking such prisoner and returning him to said penal institution."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CRIME COMMITTED WHILE ON PAROLE

Petition for writ of habeas corpus, on the ground that petitioner's confinement after expiration of his sentence was illegal, was denied where petitioner had committed a crime while on parole, and the judge imposing the second sentence had no power to make it and the unexpired portion of the first sentence run concurrently. Hammerer v. Huff (71 App. D. C. 246, 110 Fed. (2d) 113).

JAIL SENTENCE WHILE ON PROBATION

When probationer was actually serving a jail sentence while on probation with respect to another sentence, even in jail, he was subject to the conditions of the probation and by its terms he was to refrain from violation of law. Burns v. United States (287 U. S. 216, 77 L. Ed. 266, 53 Sup. Ct. 154).

PARTIES INTERESTED

Defendant who had not been paroled or retaken on warrant was not in a position to challenge the validity of this section under the Fourth Amendment. Sims v. Rives (66 App. D. C. 24, 84 Fed. (2d) 871, cert. den. 298 U. S. 682, 80 L. Ed. 1402, 56 Sup. Ct. 960).

§ 24–206 [6: 456]. Revocation of parole after retaking—Hearing—New parole.

When a prisoner has been retaken upon a warrant issued by the Board of Parole, he shall be given an opportunity to appear before the Board, a member thereof, or an examiner designated by the Board. At such hearing he may be represented by counsel. The Board may then, or at any time in its discretion, terminate the parole or modify the terms and conditions thereof. If the order of parole shall be revoked, the prisoner, unless subsequently reparoled, shall serve the remainder of the sentence originally imposed less any commutation for good conduct which may be earned by him after his return to custody. For the purpose of computing commutation for good conduct, the remainder of the sentence originally imposed shall be considered as a new sentence. The time a prisoner was on parole shall not be taken into account to diminish the time for which he was sentenced.

In the event a prisoner is confined in, or as a parolee is returned to a penal or correctional institution other than a penal or correctional institution of the District of Columbia, the Board of Parole created by section 723a, Title 18, U. S. Code, shall have and exercise the same power and authority as the Board of Parole of the District of Columbia had the prisoner been confined in or returned to a penal or correctional institution of the District of Columbia. (July 15, 1932, 47 Stat. 698, ch. 492, § 6; June 6, 1940, 54 Stat. 242, ch. 254, § 5; July 17, 1947, 61 Stat. 379, ch. 263, § 5).

De Benque v. United States (66 App. D. C. 36, 85 Fed. (2d) 202, 106 A. L. R. 839); Hammerer v. Huff (71 App. D. C. 246, 110 Fed. (2d) 113).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

AMENDMENTS

The amendment of July 17, 1947 to this section so as to permit parole violator upon recommitment to earn commutation for good conduct was remedial and was to be construed liberally. Jones v. Clemmer (App. D. C. 1947, 163 F. 2d 852).

APPEARANCE AND HEARING

The provision of this section that a paroled prisoner arrested for violation of parole should be given an opportunity to appear before board meant an effective appearance, including presence of counsel, if desired by prisoner, and receipt of testimony if he has testimony to present. Fleming v. Tate (App. D. C. 1946, 156 F. 2d 848).

Participation by counsel in proceedings against parole violator need be no greater than necessary to insure that board is accurately informed from parolee's standpoint before it acts, and permitted presentation of testimony by parolee is governed by same rule. Fleming v. Tate (App. D. C. 1946, 156 F. 2d 848).

This section providing that a prisoner shall be given an opportunity to "appear" before the Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole of District of Columbia contemplates an effective appearance and not the mere physical presence of prisoner, and implies that he must be given a "hearing" wherein he is entitled to be represented by retained counsel, present evidence, and adduce witnesses. In re Tate (D. C., D. C. 1946, 63 F. Supp. 961).

Under this section providing that a prisoner returned to an institution for alleged violation of his parole shall be given an opportunity to appear before the Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole of District of Columbia, a summary and informal hearing is sufficient. In re Tate (D. C., D. C. 1946, 63 F. Supp. 961).

ASSIGNMENT OF COUNSEL

Under this section providing that a prisoner returned to an institution for alleged violation of his parole shall be given an opportunity to appear before the Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole of District of Columbia, right of counsel is statutory and not constitutional, and prisoner would not be entitled to have counsel assigned to represent him. In re Tate (D. C., D. C. 1946, 63 F. Supp. 961).

COMMUTATION OF SENTENCE

Any right to commutation which defendant may have earned for good conduct at any time prior to recommitment was conditional and was forfeited by violation of parole. Jones v. Clemmer (App. D. C. 1947, 163 F. 2d 852).

The amendment of July 17, 1947 to this section permitting parole violator to earn commutation for good conduct applied to service of remainder of sentences after recommitment, although sentences were originally imposed prior to such amendment. Jones v. Clemmer (App. D. C. 1947, 163 F. 2d 852).

DISCRETION OF BOARD

Under this section, parolee should be permitted to present any pertinent matter, and, although board's discretion in continuing or revoking parole is uncontrolled, it cannot act in disregard of facts or refuse to hear argument. Fleming v. Tate (App. D. C. 1946, 156 F. 2d 848).

The granting or revocation of a parole is within discretion of Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole of the District of Columbia. In re Tate (D. C., D. C. 1946, 63 F. Supp. 961).

HABEAS CORPUS

A parole violator, who was returned to prison without permitting counsel who had previously represented prisoner to appear in his behalf or permitting his employer to testify, was entitled to release in habeas corpus proceeding. Fleming v. Tate (App. D. C. 1946, 156 F. 2d 848).

On writ of habeas corpus, District Court had no jurisdiction to review on merits a revocation of a parole by the Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole of District of Columbia, and only issue was whether petitioner had been deprived of his legal rights by manner in which revocation hearing was conducted. In re Tate (D. C., D. C. 1946, 63 F. Supp. 961).

Where, at hearing before Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole of District of Columbia to revoke a parole, parolee's counsel was not permitted to appear, parolee's employer was not permitted to testify, and parole was revoked, parolee's right under this section to appear before the board was violated and parolee would be discharged on habeas corpus without prejudice to subsequent proceedings for revocation of his parole in conformity with this section. In re Tate (D. C., D. C. 1946, 63 F. Supp. 961).

REVOCATION OF PAROLE

Failure of Board of Parole to give immediate hearing and revoke parole when paroled prisoner was returned to reformatory pursuant to sentences for crimes committed while on parole did not permit parole to continue running in satisfaction of original sentences after prisoner's reentry of reformatory. Washington v. Clemmer (C. A., D. C. 1948, 169 F. 2d 300).

RULES OF EVIDENCE

Although parole violator is entitled to present testimony at hearing before board, it is not required that receipt of testimony be governed by strict rules of evidence. Fleming v. Tate (App. D. C. 1946, 156 F. 2d 848).

SENTENCE UPON REIMPRISONMENT

The provision of this former section that unexpired term of imprisonment of any paroled prisoner shall begin to run from date he is returned to institution does not require that original sentence shall run from date of his imprisonment for new and separate offense, but refers only to reimprisonment on original sentence under order of parole board. Washington v. Clemmer (C. A., D. C. 1948. 169 F. 2d 300).

VIOLATION OF CONDITIONS

District of Columbia Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole had power to impose conditions upon release of prisoner who had served full time of sentence with deductions for good conduct and in event of violation of conditions to recommit him to serve out balance of his term. Gould v. Green, 1944, 141 F. 2d 533 (78 U. S. App. D. C. 363).

§ 24–207 [6: 457]. Repeal provision.

All acts or parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of sections 24–201 to 24–208 are hereby repealed: Provided, however, That for any felony committed before July 15, 1932, the penalty, sentence, or forfeiture provided by law for such felony at the time such felony was committed shall remain in full force and effect and shall be imposed, notwithstanding sections 24–201 to 24–208. (July 15, 1932, 47 Stat. 698, ch. 492, § 7.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

PRISONERS CONFINED OUTSIDE DISTRICT

Parole board under Indeterminate Sentence Act had no jurisdiction over prisoners convicted of murder in the District of Columbia, but confined in the United States penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga. Aderhold v. Lee ((C. C. A. 5), 68 Fed. (2d) 824, revg. 5 Fed. Supp. 950, cert. den. 292 U. S. 633, 647, 78 L. Ed. 1486, 1498, 54 Sup. Ct. 718, 861).

REPEAL

This section was intended to repeal those provisions of existing acts requiring the imposition of a definite, as distinguished from an indeterminate, sentence. Anderson v. Rives (66 App. D. C. 174, 85 Fed. (2d) 673).

§ 24–208 [6: 458]. Powers of prior board transferred—Application of law to prisoners sentenced before parole law became effective.

The power of the Board of Parole shall extend to all prisoners whose sentences exceed one hundred and eighty days regardless of the nature of the offense: Provided, That in the case of a prisoner convicted of an offense other than a felony, including violations of municipal regulations and ordinances and Acts of Congress in the nature of municipal regulations and ordinances, the prisoner may not be paroled until he has served one-third of the sentence imposed, and in the case of two or more sentences for other than a felony, no parole may be granted until after the prisoner has served one-third of the aggregate sentences imposed. (July 15, 1932, 47 Stat. 698, ch. 492, § 9; June 6, 1940, 54 Stat. 242, ch. 254, § 7 (a); July 17, 1947, 61 Stat. 379, ch. 263, § 6.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

Subsection (b) of section 7 of the 1940 amendment provided as follows: "In the case of a prisoner convicted of misdemeanors committed prior to the effective date of this amendatory act [June 6, 1940], when the aggregate sentence imposed is in excess of one year, and in the case of a prisoner convicted of felony committed prior to the effective date of said act approved July 15, 1932, said Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole may parole said prisoner under the provisions of said act approved July 15, 1932, as amended, after said prisoner has served one-fifth of the sentence imposed."

POWERS OF BOARD

Under this section creating District of Columbia Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole and providing for transfer of powers from federal board of parole to district board upon appointment of members of district board, the district board receives such powers over prisoners confined in penal institutions of district as existed in federal board of parole on date of appointment of members of district board, and not merely powers which existed in federal board of parole at time this chapter became effective. Gould v. Green, 1944 (141 F. 2d 533, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 363).

Under this section creating District of Columbia Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole and providing for transfer of powers from federal board of parole over prisoners confined in penal institutions in District of Columbia to district board upon appointment of members of district board, authority of district board was not limited to prisoners thereafter convicted. Gould v. Green, 1944 (141 F. 2d 533, 78 U. S. App. D. C. 363).

§ 24–209 [6: 459]. Federal Parole Board—Authority over United States prisoners convicted in the District of Columbia and elsewhere.

The Board of Parole created by section 723a of Title 18, U. S. Code, shall have and exercise the same power and authority over prisoners convicted in the District of Columbia of crimes against the United States and now or hereafter confined in any United States penitentiary or prison (other than the penal institutions of the District of Columbia) as is vested in the Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole over prisoners confined in the penal institutions of the District of Columbia. (July 15, 1932, ch. 492, § 10, as added, June 5, 1934, 48 Stat. 880, ch. 391.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

The 1934 act purported to amend the 1932 act, cited to the text of the other sections of this chapter, by adding this section.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

IN GENERAL

There is no doubt that Congress intended the act to be applicable to persons convicted in the District of Columbia of crimes against the general laws of the United States. Sims v. Rives (66 App. D. C. 24, 84 Fed. (2d) 871).

This section gives to the United States Board of Parole the same power and authority over prisoners convicted in the District of Columbia of crimes against the United States as is vested in the Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole. Story v. Rives (68 App. D. C. 325, 97 Fed. (2d) 182).

The term "prisoners confined in", as used in this section transferring power over prisoners confined in penal institutions of District of Columbia from United States Board of Parole to the District Board of Penal Institutions, is used to designate group of persons by institutions rather than to delimit powers of District board to such persons only while they are in confinement. Ex parte Gould (D. C., D. C. 1943, 51 F. Supp. 354).

The power of United States Board of Parole to impose conditions on release on account of deductions for good conduct of United States prisoners passed from United States Board of Parole to District Board of Penal Institutions by this chapter with respect to United States prisoners in penal institutions of the District of Columbia. Ex parte Gould (D. C., D. C. 1943, 51 Supp. 354).

PRISONER CONFINED OUTSIDE DISTRICT

This act is not inconsistent with the authority of the Attorney General to transfer prisoners from the District of Columbia. Bracey v. Hill ((D. C.-Pa.), 11 Fed. Supp. 148).

The same privileges of parole are accorded prisoners sentenced in the District of Columbia and committed to penal institutions outside of the District as to those sentenced and confined within the District. Bracey v. Hill ((D. C.-Pa.), 11 Fed. Supp. 148).

This section removes the question whether a defendant, who was sentenced in the District of Columbia, could be committed to a penal institution outside of the District because of the deprivation of parole. Bracey v. Hill ((D. C.-Pa.), 11 Fed. Supp. 148).

One sentenced for violation of the laws of the District of Columbia, convicted and confined in District, could be confined outside the District, and such confinement does not violate any constitutional rights. MacAboy v. Klecka ((D. C.-Md.), 22 Fed. Supp. 960).

The United States Board of Parole and not the District Board of Penal Institutions, has jurisdiction over prisoners convicted in District of Columbia and transferred to some Federal institution other than penal institutions of the District. Ex parte Gould (D. C., D. C. 1943, 51 F. Supp. 354).

RELEASE OF PRISONERS NOT ON PAROLE

Neither this section nor §§ 24–201 to 24–208 have any bearing upon the release of prisoners other than on parole, and neither restricts in any way the power of the United States Board to supervise prisoners so released from institutions other than in the District under the provisions of section 4 of the act of June 29, 1932 (U. S. C., title 18, § 716b). Story v. Rives (68 App. D. C. 325, 97 Fed. (2d) 182).

RELEASE OF PRISONERS ON PAROLE

This act constituted an extension of power in the United States Board over District of Columbia prisoners in that it permitted the board to release such prisoners on parole from non-District institutions after serving only one-fifth of their maximum terms. Story v. Rives (68 App. D. C. 325, 97 Fed. (2d) 182).

UNITED STATES PRISONER

Prisoner sentenced for violation of the laws of the District of Columbia is a "United States prisoner" within the meaning of U. S. C., title 18, § 716b. MacAboy v. Klecka ((D. C.-Md.), 22 Fed. Supp. 960).

Chapter 3.—INSANE CRIMINALS

Sec.

24–301. Commitment of insane criminals to the Gallinger Municipal Hospital—Certification to the Federal Security Administrator — Confinement—Expense—Right to appeal.
24–302. Commitment of persons becoming insane while serving sentence.
24–303. Restoration to sanity.

§ 24–301 [6: 374]. Commitment of insane criminals to the Gallinger Municipal Hospital—Certification to the Federal Security Administrator—Confinement—Expense—Right to appeal.

When any person tried upon an indictment or information for an offense or tried in the juvenile court of the District of Columbia for an offense, is acquitted on the sole ground that he was insane at the time of its commission, that fact shall be set forth by the jury in their verdict; and whenever a person is indicted or is charged by an information for an offense, or is charged in the juvenile court of the District of Columbia with an offense, and before trial or after a verdict of guilty, it shall appear to the court, from prima facie evidence submitted to the court or from the evidence adduced at the trial, that the accused is then of unsound mind, the court may order the accused committed to the Gallinger Municipal Hospital for a period not exceeding thirty days, which period may be extended by the court for good cause shown, for examination and observation by the psychiatric staff of said hospital. If, after examination and observation, the said psychiatric staff shall report that in their opinion the accused is insane, the court may cause a jury to be impaneled from the jurors then in attendance on the court or, if the regular jurors have been discharged, may cause a sufficient number of jurors to be drawn to inquire into the sanity of the accused, and said inquiry shall be conducted in the presence and under the direction of the court. If the jury shall find the accused to be then insane, or if an accused person shall be acquitted by the jury solely on the ground of insanity, the court may certify the fact to the Federal Security Administrator, who may order such person to be confined in the hospital for the insane, and said person and his estate shall be charged with the expense of his support in the said hospital. The person whose sanity is in question shall be entitled to his bill of exceptions and an appeal as in other cases. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1340, ch. 854, § 927; Apr. 14, 1906, 34 Stat. 113, ch. 1624; July 2, 1945, 59 Stat. 311, ch. 217.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

APPEAL FROM COMMITMENT TO ST. ELIZABETHS

Appeal from commitment to St. Elizabeths Hospital under this section held moot in view of the fact that petitioner had been determined by a jury to be of sound mind and had been released from the hospital. Savage v. White (56 App. D. C. 365, 14 Fed. (2d) 352).

CONSTITUTIONALITY

"There can be no reasonable objection to the validity of the provision of this section. It makes ample provision for the inquiry which is conducted with due regard to the protection of the defendant." Wagner v. White (38 App. D. C. 554).

This section has been held constitutional and valid in a case where defendant had been convicted, but not sentenced. Ormsby v. United States ((C. C. A. 6), 273 Fed. 977).

DISCRETION OF COURT

"Whether a prima facie case has been made by the petitioner requiring submission of the issue (of insanity) to a jury is a question submitted to the sound discretion of the trial judge." Gonzales v. United States (40 App. D. C. 450).

Refusal of trial court to submit to a jury the question of defendant's mental responsibility was not an abuse of its discretion, where there had never been any suggestion that he should be restrained of his liberty because of insanity, and where at his trial it did not appear and was not suggested that he was not fully and entirely responsible from a mental standpoint. Jackson v. United States (58 App. D. C. 125, 25 Fed. (2d) 549).

To same effect as first paragraph of original annotation, see Neely v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1945, 150 F. 2d 977).

EVIDENCE AS SUFFICIENT

Evidence concerning events of defendant's youth, none of them more recent than 15 years prior to time of hearing on petition for sanity inquisition after conviction of murder, and indicating that defendant as a youth had been reckless, imprudent, and brutal, was of no value to establish insanity. Neely v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1945, 150 F. 2d 977).

Opinion evidence by lay witness that a defendant convicted of murder was insane, was valueless to establish prima facie that defendant was insane so as to authorize granting of a petition for sanity inquisition. Neely v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1945, 150 F. 2d 977).

Denial of motion of one of the two defendants jointly indicted on charge of killing another in perpetrating robbery for a mental examination was not error, where moving defendant did not make prima facie showing of mental incapacity. Wheeler v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1948, 165 F. 2d 225, certiorari denied 68 S. Ct. 448, 339 U. S. 829, 92 L. Ed. 1155, see also 175 F. 2d 829, 84 U. S. App. D. C. 180).

PURPOSE

The purpose of this section providing that whenever prima facie evidence is submitted that accused is insane, the court may cause a jury to be impaneled to inquire into the sanity of accused, is to prevent the infliction of punishment upon a person so lacking in mental capacity as to be unable to understand the nature and purpose of the punishment. Neely v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1945, 150 F. 2d 977).

RELEASE AFTER COMMITMENT

Insane person, found not guilty of homicide by reason of insanity, and committed to asylum, must prove sanity and that he is no longer a menace, to obtain release. Barry v. White (62 App. D. C. 69, 64 Fed. (2d) 707).

REPORT OF COMMISSION

Where the examination of accused as to his insanity was made by the Commission of Health at accused's request, and in support of his attempt to make a prima facie showing so as to authorize granting of petition for sanity inquisition after conviction of murder, the court was not required to disregard the Commission's report on theory that to permit its consideration would have the effect of a waiver of privilege upon part of accused. Neely v. U. S. (App. D. C. 1945, 150 F. 2d 977).

SUSPENSION OF PROCEEDINGS

The sole effect of section 301 et seq. of this title governing procedure in case of insanity of person charged with crime is to suspend the criminal proceedings during the period of insanity but jurisdiction of court continues and when sanity is restored, the case may proceed as if the interregnum had not occurred. Haislip v. U. S., 1942 (129 F. 2d 53, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 91).

VERDICT, EFFECT OF

Where accused was found to be of unsound mind and was committed to hospital, the verdict of insanity spoke as of the date thereof and was a legal determination that accused was not then mentally qualified to stand trial but when he was restored to sanity, certificate of hospital superintendent to that effect removed the previous bar. Haislip v. U. S., 1942 (129 F. 2d 53, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 91).

§ 24–302 [6: 375]. Commitment of persons becoming insane while serving sentence.

Any person becoming insane while undergoing a sentence of any court of the District of Columbia for crime may, in like manner, be committed to said hospital for the insane, by order of the Secretary of the Interior, to receive the same treatment as other patients during the continuance of his disorder. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1340, ch. 854, § 928.)

§ 24–303 [6: 376]. Restoration to sanity.

When any person confined in the hospital for the insane, charged with crime and subject to be tried therefor or undergoing sentence therefor, shall be restored to sanity the superintendent of the hospital shall give notice thereof to the justice holding the criminal court and deliver him to the court according to its proper precept. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1340, ch. 854, § 929.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CERTIFICATION OF SANITY

Where accused charged with incest was found by jury to be of unsound mind and was committed to hospital, upon discharge of accused from hospital as cured and in absence of anything showing invalidity of certificate of hospital superintendent, court was required to proceed with trial on the suspended criminal indictment and no further proceedings on the question of sanity was necessary. Haislip v. U. S., 1942 (129 F. 2d 53, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 91).

Where accused was found to be of unsound mind and was committed to hospital, the verdict of insanity spoke as of the date thereof and was a legal determination that accused was not then mentally qualified to stand trial but when he was restored to sanity, certificate of hospital superintendent to that effect removed the previous bar. Haislip v. U. S., 1942 (129 F. 2d 53, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 91).

CONSTRUCTION WITH OTHER LAWS

Where accused was charged with incest, found to be of unsound mind and committed to hospital and thereafter hospital superintendent certified that accused was not insane, in determining whether trial court had duty to ascertain judicially if superintendent's certificate correctly fixed accused's mental condition, section 320 of Title 24 relating to method of inquisition in case of persons believed to be of unsound mind was inapplicable. Haislip v. U. S., 1942 (129 F. 2d 53, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 91).

HABEAS CORPUS

"But we find in this section nothing that precludes the right of the prisoner to have a judicial inquiry made into the fact of restoration to sanity," and he may apply for a habeas corpus in the event that the superintendent refuses to certify to his restoration to sanity. Wagner v. White (38 App. D. C. 554).

In habeas corpus proceeding by petitioner, who had been committed as an insane person pursuant to verdict, in murder prosecution, of not guilty by reason of insanity, evidence sustained determination that petitioner had not been restored to mental health and justified discharge of writ. Orencia v. Overholser (App. D. C. 1947, 163 F. 2d 763).

JURISDICTION

The sole effect of section 301 et seq. of the title governing procedure in case of insanity of person charged with crime is to suspend the criminal proceedings during the period of insanity but jurisdiction of court continues and when sanity is restored, the case may proceed as if the interregnum had not occurred. Haislip v. U. S., 1942 (129 F. 2d 53, 76 U. S. App. D. C. 91).

PRISONER CONVICTED BUT NOT SENTENCED

This section has been construed to include one convicted of crime but not yet sentenced. Ormsby v. United States ((C. C. A. 6), 273 Fed. 977).

24–445. Contracts of Board of Public Welfare not invalidated—Appropriations available.
24–446. Cost of care and custody of persons confined in institutions managed by Department.
24–447. Advances to Director, Department of Corrections.

§ 24–401 [6: 401]. Place of imprisonment—Cumulative sentences—Jurisdiction of prosecutions.

When any person shall be sentenced to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months the court may direct that such imprisonment shall be either in the workhouse or in the jail. When any person is sentenced for a term longer than six months and not longer than one year such imprisonment shall be in the jail, and where the sentence is imprisonment for more than one year it shall be in the penitentiary. Cumulative sentences aggregating more than one year shall be deemed one sentence for the purposes of the foregoing provision. When the punishment of an offense may be imprisonment for more than one year the prosecution shall be in the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia. When the maximum punishment is a fine only or imprisonment for one year or less the prosecution may be in the police court. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1341, ch. 854, § 934.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

ATTORNEY GENERAL, AUTHORITY

Attorney General of the United States has authority to designate an institution outside of the District of Columbia for service of sentence of a person convicted in the District of Columbia. Stoneburg v. Hiatt (D. C. Pa. 1942, 47 F. Supp. 596).

CUMULATIVE SENTENCES

Under this section cumulative sentences aggregating more than one year must be deemed one sentence for the purpose of determining the place of imprisonment. Kelleher v. United States (59 App. D. C. 107, 35 Fed. (2d) 877).

The purpose of the cumulative sentence provision was merely the adoption of a policy that District of Columbia prisoners sentenced for more than a year should serve time in a penitentiary rather than in the District jail, at least when the sentence was imposed by the district court. Brosius v. Botkin (72 App. D. C. 279, 114 Fed. (2d) 22).

Sentences for two separate offenses, each for a term from six months to a year, were properly served in a reformatory in Virginia. Brosius v. Botkin (72 App. D. C. 279, 114 Fed. (2d) 22).

Sentences imposed by Municipal Court of the District of Columbia can be cumulated with sentences imposed in District Court of the District of Columbia, and all served in a United States penitentiary. Stoneburg v. Hiatt (D. C. Pa. 1942, 47 F. Supp. 596).

DIRECTION CONTRARY TO STATUTE

A direction by Municipal Court of District of Columbia that sentences imposed should be served in a jail type institution, if not in accordance with statutes applicable to the particular situation, would have no effect. Stoneburg v. Hiatt (D. C. Pa. 1942, 47 F. Supp. 596).

FEDERAL CRIMES

Intention of Congress was that the trial judge should be invested with the power to designate the type of penal institution in which persons convicted of Federal crimes should be confined. Andreas v. Clark ((C. C. A. 9), 71 Fed. (2d) 908).

HARD LABOR

When defendant had been tried upon an information in the juvenile court of the District and sentenced to imprisonment at hard labor for six months, the statute authorizing such punishment was unconstitutional, and juvenile court was without jurisdiction to try capital or other infamous crimes. United States v. Moreland (258 U. S. 433, 66 L. Ed. 700, 42 Sup. Ct. 368, 24 A. L. R. 992).

Police court will not sentence to imprisonment in any institution where hard labor is lawfully required of the prisoners therein because such a sentence would place the offense itself within the category of infamous crimes and thereby oust the court of its jurisdiction. Cleveland v. Mattingly (52 App. D. C. 374, 287 Fed. 948).

IMPRISONMENT IN DEFAULT OF FINE

"The provision relating to cumulative sentences 'has no reference to a sentence to pay a pecuniary fine, followed by imprisonment in default of payment, but relates only to cases in which the punishment is to be imprisonment.'" Hartranft v. Mullowny (43 App. D. C. 44, writ of error dism. 247 U. S. 295, 62 L. Ed. 1123, 38 Sup. Ct. 518).

PROBATION

District Court had no power to release defendant on probation after he had entered upon the execution of his sentence when he was committed to jail to await transportation to the final place of imprisonment. Moss v. United States ((C. C. A. 4), 72 Fed. (2d) 30).

SENTENCE BEFORE REPEAL OF EIGHTEENTH AMENDMENT

When person was committed to jail before Eighteenth Amendment and Prohibition Act were repealed, he was not entitled to discharge by habeas corpus on theory that each day in prison was a new and distinct offense. Rives v. O'Hearne (64 App. D. C. 48, 73 Fed. (2d) 984).

SUCCESSIVE IMPRISONMENTS

Sentences are not cumulative "merely because two imprisonments are made successive in point of time, if it happen that the prisoner convicted upon two separate informations receives two separate definite sentences for the two separate offenses." Harris v. Lang (27 App. D. C. 84). See also Harris v. Nixon (27 App. D. C. 94).

TERM EXCEEDING ONE YEAR

"Section 934 (this section) provides generally that where the sentence on any conviction is for a term exceeding one year the imprisonment shall be in the penitentiary, and applies to section 810 (§ 22–2901) as directly as if it had been incorporated therein." United States v. Evans (28 App. D. C. 264).

§ 24–402 [6: 402]. Sentence of prisoners to jail, reformatory, or penitentiary for more than one year—Jurisdiction of Commissioners over prisoners in reformatory—Transfer of prisoners from penitentiary to reformatory.

Whenever any person has been convicted of crime in any court in the District of Columbia and sentenced to imprisonment for more than one year by the court, the imprisonment during the term for which he may have been sentenced or during the residue of said term may be in some suitable jail or penitentiary or in the reformatory of the District of Columbia; and it shall be sufficient for the court to sentence the defendant to imprisonment in the penitentiary without specifying the particular prison or the reformatory of the District of Columbia and the imprisonment shall be in such penitentiary, jail, or the reformatory of the District of Columbia as the Attorney-General shall from time to time designate: Provided, That the commissioners of the District of Columbia are vested with jurisdiction over such male and female prisoners as may be designated by the Attorney-General for confinement in the reformatory of the District of Columbia from the time they are delivered into their custody or into the custody of their authorized superintendent, deputy, or deputies, and until such prisoners are released or discharged under due process of law: And provided further, That the residue of the term of imprisonment of any person who has prior to July 1, 1916, been convicted of crime in any court in the District of Columbia and sentenced to imprisonment for more than one year by the court may be in the reformatory of the District of Columbia instead of the penitentiary where such persons may be confined on July 1, 1916, and the Attorney-General, when so requested by the commissioners of the District of Columbia, is authorized to, and he shall, deliver into the custody of the superintendent of said reformatory or his deputy or deputies any such person confined in any penitentiary in pursuance of any judgment of conviction in and sentence by any court in the District of Columbia, and the commissioners of the District of Columbia are vested with jurisdiction over such prisoners from the time they are delivered into the custody of said superintendent or his duly authorized deputy or deputies, including the time when they are in transit between such penitentiary and the reformatory of the District of Columbia, and during the period they are in such reformatory or until they are released or discharged under due process of law. The Attorney-General shall pay the cost of the maintenance of said prisoners so transferred, said payment to be from appropriations for support of convicts, District of Columbia, in like manner as payments are made for the support of District convicts in federal penitentiaries. Nothing herein contained shall be construed as applying to the National Training School for Boys or the National Training School for Girls. (Sept. 1, 1916, 39 Stat. 711, ch. 433.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

This section is a proviso clause in the appropriations act of September 1, 1916. The following words were also contained therein, "The provisions of this paragraph shall take effect on and after July first, nineteen hundred and sixteen."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

CONSTITUTIONAL LAW

Act giving Attorney General power to designate places of confinement for Federal prisoners does not violate Fifth Amendment. Stewart v. Johnston ((C. C. A. 9), 97 Fed. (2d) 548).

FEDERAL INSTITUTIONS

This section impliedly recognizes the fact that District of Columbia prisoners may be incarcerated in Federal institutions. Story v. Rives (68 App. D. C. 325, 97 Fed. (2d) 182).

Prisoner released on parole by Federal parole board as a matter of discretion but Congress adopted a new procedure of conditional release because it realized that society would be better served if prisoners were subjected to the same supervision as parolees. Story v. Rives (68 App. D. C. 325, 97 Fed. (2d) 182).

PENAL OR CORRECTIONAL INSTITUTIONS

A sentence to serve a term in a penal institution could not be served in a correctional institution, except under authority given to the Attorney General to transfer prisoners. Wilson v. Aderhold ((C. C. A. 5), 84 Fed. (2d) 806).

PLACE OF CONFINEMENT

The Attorney General of the United States had the authority to designate an institution located outside of the District of Columbia and beyond the control of local penal officials for service of sentence by one who was convicted in the District of Columbia of a violation of section 1504 of Title 24, since the offense punished thereby was an "offense against the United States" within meaning of this section. Beard v. Bennett, 1941 (114 F. 2d 578, 72 App. D. C. 269).

PLACE OF IMPRISONMENT

Attorney General was duly authorized to designate the prison where a defendant was sentenced in the courts of the District of Columbia to imprisonment exceeding one year, and his designation was in proper form. (Decided under D. C. 1901, § 925). Myers v. Morgan ((C. C. A. 8), 224 Fed. 413).

Attorney General, under the broad powers conferred upon him, had authority to cause appellee to be placed and held in the Atlanta penitentiary under any general sentence of imprisonment for more than a year, the court could have imposed. Aderhold v. Edwards ((C. C. A. 5), 71 Fed. (2d) 297).

TRANSFER OF PRISONERS

Transfer of inmates of Atlanta penitentiary who are eligible to parole, to an institution in District of Columbia, can not be required by the courts. Aderhold v. Lee ((C. C. A. 5) 68 Fed. (2d) 824, cert. den. 292 U. S. 633, 78 L. Ed. 1486, 54 Sup. Ct. 718).

Attorney General has authority to change the place of confinement from a Federal penitentiary to a local jail, when it is proper to do so, in the exercise of his discretion, and it is not necessary that a prisoner be remanded to the trial court merely for the purpose of having the designation of the jail changed. Cox v. McConnell ((C. C. A. 5), 80 Fed. (2d) 258).

In imposing sentences, courts are restricted to specifying the type of institution in which the prisoner is to be confined and he is committed to the custody of the Attorney General, who designates the place of confinement, and the Attorney General may transfer any prisoner from one institution to another for any reason sufficient to himself. Zerbst v. Kidwell ((C. C. A. 5), 92 Fed. (2d) 756).

Section 753f of U. S. C., title 18, if it is in any respect inconsistent with this section (§ 24–402), is so only to the extent that it broadens the Attorney General's authority so that he may designate a place of confinement other than one of the District of Columbia. Beard v. Bennett (72 App. D. C. 269, 114 Fed. (2d) 578).

§ 24–403 [6: 403]. Transfer of prisoners from jail to workhouse.

The District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia, the Attorney-General, and the superintendent of the Washington Asylum and Jail, when so requested by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, shall deliver into the custody of the superintendent or the authorized deputy or deputies of said superintendent of the workhouse, male and female prisoners sentenced to confinement in said jail for offenses against the common law or against statutes or ordinances relating to the District of Columbia, and, in the discretion of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia and the Attorney-General, male and female prisoners serving sentence in said jail for offenses against the United States, for such work or services as may be necessary, in the discretion of the commissioners of said District, in connection with the construction, maintenance, and operation of said workhouse, or the prosecution of any other public work at said institution or in the District of Columbia: Provided, That, on the direction of said commissioners, male and female prisoners confined in any existing workhouse existing on March 2, 1911, or in the Washington Asylum and Jail of the District of Columbia shall be delivered into the custody of said superintendent or the authorized deputy or deputies of said superintendent aforesaid, to perform similar work or services to those hereinbefore required of male and female prisoners serving sentences in the District of Columbia Jail: Provided further, That the Commissioners of the District of Columbia are hereby vested with jurisdiction over such male and female prisoners from the time they are so delivered into the custody of said superintendent or the duly authorized deputy or deputies of said superintendent, including the time when such prisoners are in transit between the District of Columbia and the site acquired for such workhouse, and during the period such prisoners are on such site or in the District of Columbia until they are released or discharged under due process of law. (Mar. 2, 1911, 36 Stat. 1002, ch. 192.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

EFFECT OF STATUTORY PROVISION

Provision of the statute authorizing transfer to the workhouse by direction of the commissioners was attached by law to the sentence, and had the same effect as if the court, under statutory authority, had expressed in the sentence that the convict might be transferred to the workhouse under order of the commissioners. Whittaker v. Brannan ((C. C. A. 4), 252 Fed. 556).

HABEAS CORPUS

District Court had jurisdiction to issue habeas corpus writ, for petitioner was committed by a court of the District to a jail of the District under the control of an official of the District who in turn was personally within the District and within the jurisdiction of the court. Sanders v. Allen (69 App. D. C. 307, 100 Fed. (2d) 717).

§ 24–404 [6: 404]. Commutation of fine.

In all cases in the District of Columbia where a defendant is sent to jail or to the workhouse in default of the payment of a fine he shall be released upon the payment of the balance of the fine due by him after crediting thereon as paid an amount equal to the proportion the time thus served by him in the jail or workhouse bears to the whole time he was to serve under the sentence. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1341, ch. 854, § 936.)

§ 24–405 [6: 405]. Deduction for good conduct—Discharge.

All persons sentenced to and imprisoned in the jail or in the workhouse of the District of Columbia, and confined there for a term of one month or longer who conduct themselves so that no charge of misconduct shall be sustained against them shall have a deduction upon a sentence of not more than one year of five days for each month; upon a sentence of more than one year and less than three years, six days for each month; upon a sentence of not less than three years and less than five years, seven days for each month; upon a sentence of not less than five years and less than ten years, eight days for each month; and upon a sentence of ten years or more, ten days for each month, and shall be entitled to their discharge so much the earlier upon the certificate of the superintendent of the Washington Asylum and Jail for those confined in the jail, and upon the certificate of the superintendent of the workhouse for those confined in the workhouse, of their good conduct during their imprisonment. When a prisoner has two or more sentences the aggregate of his several sentences shall be the basis upon which his deduction shall be estimated. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1341, ch. 854, § 937; Mar. 2, 1911, 36 Stat. 1003, ch. 192; June 6, 1940, 54 Stat. —, ch. 254, § 10.)

AMENDMENTS

The 1911 act combined as one institution, known as the Washington Asylum and Jail, the jail of the District of Columbia and the Washington Asylum, and created the position of Superintendent of the Washington Asylum and Jail and vested in him the powers theretofore vested in and exercised by the warden of the former jail and the superintendent of the former Washington Asylum.

Prior to the 1940 amendment this section provided only for a deduction of five days each month; provided that the Superintendent of the Washington Asylum and Jail should furnish the certificate for those confined in the workhouse; provided for the approval of the judge making the commitment; and required the judge to make a notation of such discharge on his docket. The 1940 amendment also added the last sentence.

GOOD CONDUCT ALLOWANCE

An allowance on a sentence for good conduct is a privilege and not a vested right. It may be denied as to all cumulative sentences for an infraction of the rules occurring during the service of any of the sentences. Aderhold v. Hudson ((C. C. A. 5), 84 Fed. (2d) 559).

§ 24–411 [6: 411]. Washington Asylum and Jail—Superintendent and all other employees—Appointment—Discharge—Supervision of Board of Public Welfare.

The superintendents and all other employees engaged on March 16, 1926 in the operation of the institutions enumerated in section 24–409 shall after March 16, 1926 be subject to the supervision of the Board. Each superintendent shall have the management and control of the institution to which he is appointed and shall be subordinate to the director of public welfare. The superintendent and all other employees of each of the institutions enumerated in section 24–409 shall be appointed by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia upon nomination by the Board and shall be subject to discharge by the Commissioners upon recommendation of the Board. (Mar. 16, 1926, 44 Stat. 209, ch. 58, § 7.)

COMPILER'S NOTES

This section as compiled in the 1929 code, was a consolidation of the acts of March 2, 1911, 36 Stat. 1003, ch. 192 and March 16, 1926, 44 Stat. 209, ch. 58, § 6, without using the language of either act.

The act of March 16, 1926, by § 15, repealed all acts or parts of acts inconsistent therewith. This would repeal inconsistent provisions of the act of Mar. 2, 1911, but this act in 36 Stat. 1003 contained the following provision which is probably still in force, "Said superintendent shall give bond to the District of Columbia for faithful performance of the duties of his office, as are now (March 2, 1911) or may hereafter be prescribed, in the penal sum of five thousand dollars, with surety or sureties to be approved by the commissioners."

The 1911 act also contains the following provision: "All the duties, discretion and powers now vested in and exercised by the warden of the jail of said District and the Superintendent of the present Washington Asylum are hereby transferred and vested in the superintendent herein provided for."

CROSS REFERENCE

See note to § 24–409.

§ 24–412 [6: 412]. Employment of prisoners.

Persons sentenced to imprisonment in the jail may be employed at such labor and under such regulations as may be prescribed by the Board of Public Welfare and the proceeds thereof applied to defray the expenses of the trial and conviction of any such person. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1379, ch. 854, § 1192; Mar. 16, 1926, 44 Stat. 209, ch. 58, § 6.)

AMENDMENT

The 1926 act provides that the Board of Public Welfare shall have complete and exclusive control and management of the Washington Asylum and Jail, and provides further, in § 15 thereof, for the repeal of all acts or parts of acts inconsistent therewith. In accordance therewith, the words "Supreme Court of the District," as contained in the 1901 act, are deleted and the words "Board of Public Welfare" inserted in lieu thereof.

§ 24–413 [6: 413]. Commitment by marshal.

Nothing in sections 24–412, 24–415 shall be construed to impair or interfere with the authority of the marshal of the District to commit persons to the jail or to produce them in open court or before any judicial officer when thereto required. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1379, ch. 854, § 1193.)

§ 24–414 [6: 414]. Delivery of prisoners to marshal.

It shall be the duty of the superintendent of the Washington Asylum and Jail to receive such prisoners and to deliver them to the marshal or his duly authorized deputy, on the written request of either, for the purpose of taking them before any court or judicial officer, as provided in section 12–413. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1379, ch. 854, § 1194; Mar. 2, 1911, 36 Stat. 1003, ch. 192.)

AMENDMENT

The word of the 1901 act, "warden," has been deleted and the words "superintendent of the Washington Asylum and Jail" inserted in lieu thereof by the 1911 act.

CROSS REFERENCE

See compiler's note to § 24–411.

§ 24–415 [6: 415]. Superintendent of Washington Asylum and Jail accountable for safe-keeping of prisoners.

The superintendent of the Washington Asylum and Jail shall be accountable for the safe-keeping of all prisoners legally committed thereto. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1379, ch. 854, § 1191; Mar. 2, 1911, 36 Stat. 1003, ch. 192; Mar. 16, 1926, 44 Stat. 209, ch. 58, § 6.)

AMENDMENTS

The 1901 act provided "The warden shall have exclusive supervision and control of the jail of the District and shall be accountable for the safe-keeping of all prisoners legally committed thereto, and shall have all the power and discharge all the duties legally exercised and discharged over said jail and prisoners prior to the twenty-ninth day of February, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, by the marshal of the District."

The first part of this 1901 section has been repealed by § 15 of the 1926 act, which act vested complete and exclusive management of the Washington Asylum and Jail in the Board of Public Welfare (see § 24–409). The duties provided have been transferred to the Superintendent of the Washington Asylum and Jail by the 1911 act (see compiler's note to § 24–411).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

APPOINTMENT

Defendant is superintendent by virtue of an appointment from the Commissioners of the District, and under his direction and control are the jail building itself and all other buildings used in connection with it, including the hospital building, where the plaintiff was received. All the subordinates of the superintendent receive their appointments from the Commissioners themselves, and are not subject to discharge by the superintendent. Zinkhan v. District of Columbia (50 App. D. C. 312, 271 Fed. 542).

BOND

Office of warden was abolished and a new office created, viz the office of Superintendent of the Washington Asylum and Jail, under appointment by the Commissioners of the District, and such officer's bond was required to be given to the District. Touching this bond there is no statutory provision that allows action thereon to be brought by a third party. District of Columbia v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (50 App. D. C. 309, 271 Fed. 383).

§ 24–416 [6: 416]. Annual report by Superintendent of Washington Asylum and Jail.

The superintendent of the Washington Asylum and Jail shall annually, in the month of November, make a detailed report to the Attorney-General. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1379, ch. 854, § 1197; Mar. 2, 1911, 36 Stat. 1003, ch. 192.)

§ 24–417 [6: 417]. Superintendent required to execute judgments in capital cases—Failure of Congress to make specific appropriation not abolition of position or repeal of authority.

The Superintendent of the Washington Asylum and Jail appointed by the commissioners of the District of Columbia is hereby directed, authorized, and required to execute the judgments of the law prior to March 4, 1923, pronounced and thereafter to be pronounced in the District of Columbia by the courts thereof in all capital cases, and the power prior to March 4, 1923, given to and now vested in such commissioners to appoint such superintendent and all appointments to the position of such superintendent made by such commissioners are hereby ratified and confirmed; and any failure on the part of Congress, either prior to or after March 4, 1923, to make a specific appropriation for the salary or compensation of such superintendent shall not be construed either as an abolition of such position of Superintendent of the Washington Asylum and Jail or as a repeal of the power and authority of such commissioners to appoint such superintendent. § 24–418 [6: 429]. Sale of products of workhouse and reformatory.

The commissioners are authorized, under such regulations as they may prescribe, to sell the surplus products of the workhouse and the reformatory. All moneys derived from such sales shall be paid into the treasury of the United States to the credit of the United States and to the credit of the District of Columbia, in the same proportions as the appropriations for such institutions are paid from the treasury of the United States and the revenues of the District of Columbia. All moneys received at the reformatory as income thereof from the sale of brooms to the various branches of the government of the District of Columbia shall remain available for the purchase of material for the manufacture of additional brooms to be similarly disposed of. (June 5, 1920, 41 Stat. 869, ch. 234; Feb. 28, 1923, 42 Stat. 1357, ch. 148.)

The superintendents and all other employees now engaged on March 16, 1926, in the operation of the institutions enumerated in section 24–409 shall thereafter be subject to the supervision of the Board. Each superintendent shall have the management and control of the institution to which he is appointed and shall be subordinate to the director of public welfare. The superintendent and all other employees of each of the institutions enumerated in section 24–409 shall be appointed by the commissioners of the District of Columbia upon nomination by the board and shall be subject to discharge by the commissioners upon recommendation of the board. (Mar. 16, 1926, 44 Stat. 209, ch. 58, § 7.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

This section as compiled in the 1929 code, was a consolidation of the acts of June 25, 1910 (36 Stat. 786, ch. 385), and of March 16, 1926 (44 Stat. 209, ch. 58, §§ 6 and 7), without using the language of either act.

The act of March 16, 1926, by § 15, repealed all acts and parts of acts inconsistent therewith. This would repeal inconsistent provisions of the act of June 25, 1910, but this act in 36 Stat. 786 contained a sentence authorizing the Commissioners to "require bond from such superintendent for the faithful performance of his duties."

There shall be allowed and paid by the Attorney-General for the subsistence of prisoners in the custody of any marshal of the United States and the Superintendent of the Washington Asylum and Jail in the District of Columbia such sum as it reasonably and actually costs to subsist them. And it shall be the duty of the Attorney-General to prescribe such regulations for the government of the marshals and the Superintendent of the Washington Asylum and Jail in the District of Columbia in relation to their duties under this chapter as will enable him to determine the actual and reasonable expenses incurred. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1380, ch. 854, § 1204; Mar. 2, 1911, 36 Stat. 1003, ch. 192; Mar. 16, 1926, 44 Stat. 209, ch. 58, §§ 6 and 7.)

AMENDMENTS

The 1911 act merged the asylum and jail into one institution, the Washington Asylum and Jail.

The 1926 act provided for the appointment of the superintendent thereof (see § 24–411).

§ 24–422 [6: 433]. Maintenance of jail—Support of prisoners—Apportionment between United States and District of Columbia—Estimates to be submitted.

All expenses incurred for maintenance of the jail of the District of Columbia and for support of prisoners therein shall be paid out of the revenues of the District of Columbia, and estimates for such expenses shall each year be submitted in the annual estimates for the expenses of the government of the District of Columbia. (Aug. 18, 1894, 28 Stat. 417, ch. 301; June 29, 1922, 42 Stat. 668, ch. 249.)

COMPILER'S NOTE

The act of June 29, 1922, 42 Stat. 668, ch. 249, the basis for various sections of the code which provide for 60% payment by the District of certain expenses, was repealed by the act of May 16, 1938 (52 Stat. 375, ch. 223, § 8), adding title X to the act of August 17, 1937 (50 Stat. 673, ch. 690). This repealing act does not provide any substitute provision, and consequently the aforesaid sections are left without foundation in the statutes. The 1922 act, p. 671, contains a provision repealing all prior inconsistent acts, and, therefore, the prior acts which were the bases for these various sections no longer apply. The division of expenses between the District and the United States, if any, is apparently controlled by specific statutes or appropriation acts. If there is no division it would seem that the District would pay all expenses, if any, over and above the lump-sum appropriation as apportioned to the various agencies.

§ 24–423 [6: 434]. Cost of care of District of Columbia convicts charged against District—United States reimbursed—Miscellaneous receipts.

The United States shall be reimbursed, as heretofore, for the maintenance of District of Columbia inmates, and all sums paid by such District for such maintenance for the service of the fiscal year 1927 and subsequent fiscal years shall be covered into the treasury as "Miscellaneous receipts." (Apr. 29, 1926, 44 Stat. 347, ch. 195, title II.)

STATUTORY REFERENCE

This section is U. S. C., title 18, § 704a.

§ 24–424 [6: 435]. Cost of care of District of Columbia convicts charged against District—Accounts.

The cost of the care and custody of District of Columbia convicts in any federal penitentiary shall be charged against the District of Columbia in quarterly accounts to be rendered by the disbursing officer of said penitentiary; and the amount to be charged against the District of Columbia shall be ascertained by multiplying the average daily number of District of Columbia convicts confined in the penitentiary during the quarter by the per capita cost for all prisoners in such penitentiary for the same quarter but excluding expenses of construction or extraordinary repair of buildings. (Mar. 3, 1915, 38 Stat. 869, ch. 75, § 1.)

§ 24–425. Place of imprisonment—Designation by Attorney General—Transfer.

All prisoners convicted in the District of Columbia for any offense, including violations of municipal regulations and ordinances and Acts of Congress in the nature of municipal regulations and ordinances, shall be committed, for their terms of imprisonment, and to such types of institutions as the court may direct, to the custody of the Attorney General of the United States or his authorized representative, who shall designate the places of confinements where the sentences of all such persons shall be served. The Attorney General may designate any available, suitable, and appropriate institutions, whether maintained by the District of Columbia Government, the federal government, or otherwise, or whether within or without the District of Columbia. The Attorney General is also authorized to order the transfer of any such person from one institution to another if, in his judgment, it shall be for the well-being of the prisoner or relieve overcrowding or unhealthful conditions in the institution where such prisoner is confined, or for other reasons. (July 15, 1932, ch. 492, § 11, as added June 6, 1940, 54 Stat. 244, ch. 254, § 8.)

SUBCHAPTER II.—DEPARTMENT OF CORRECTIONS

§ 24–441. Department of Corrections created—Director.

There is created in and for the District of Columbia a Department of Corrections to be in charge of a

Director who shall be appointed by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia. (June 27, 1946, 60 Stat. 320, ch. 507, § 1.)

§ 24–442. Powers of Department over institutions—Rules and regulations.

Said Department of Corrections under the general direction and supervision of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia shall have charge of the management and regulation of the Workhouse at Occoquan in the State of Virginia, the Reformatory at Lorton in the State of Virginia, and the Washington Asylum and Jail, and be responsible for the safekeeping, care, protection, instruction, and discipline of all persons committed to such institutions. The Department of Corrections with the approval of the Commissioners shall have power to promulgate rules and regulations for the government of such institutions and to establish and conduct industries farms, and other activities, to classify the inmates, and to provide for their proper treatment, care, rehabilitation, and reformation. (June 27, 1946, 60 Stat. 320, ch. 507, § 2.)

§ 24–443. Board of Public Welfare powers transferred to Department—Officers and employees.

With respect to the said institutions, the Commissioners of the District of Columbia shall succeed to all the powers and authority, and to all the duties and obligations vested in or imposed by law upon the Board of Public Welfare of the District of Columbia. Where powers are vested in or duties are imposed by existing law upon the Director of Public Welfare of the District of Columbia with respect to said institutions, such powers and duties are transferred to and shall be exercised by the Director of the Department of Corrections. The officers and employees and all plant and equipment, official records, furniture, and supplies of the said institutions are hereby transferred to the Department of Corrections. (June 27, 1946, 60 Stat. 321, ch. 507, § 3.)

§ 24–444. Rules and regulations of Board of Public Welfare in effect.

All rules and regulations promulgated by the Board of Public Welfare with respect to said institutions shall continue in force and effect until amended or repealed by the Department of Corrections with the approval of the Commissioners. (June 27, 1946, 60 Stat. 321, ch. 507, § 4.)

§ 24–445. Contracts of Board of Public Welfare not invalidated—Appropriations available.

No contract for services or supplies made by the Board pursuant to authority granted to it by law shall be invalidated by this enactment and the unexpended balances of all appropriations heretofore or hereafter made for the Board with respect to said institutions shall become available for use by the Department of Corrections under the direction of the Commissioners. (June 27, 1946, 60 Stat. 321, ch. 507, § 5.)

§ 24–446. Cost of care and custody of persons confined in institutions managed by Department.

The cost of the care and custody of persons confined in the said institutions charged with or convicted of offenses under any law of the United States not applicable exclusively to the District of Columbia shall be charged against the department or agency of the United States primarily responsible for the care and custody of such persons in quarterly accounts to be rendered by the Disbursing Officer of the District of Columbia. The amount to be charged for such care and custody shall be ascertained by multiplying the average daily number of such persons so confined during the quarter by the per capita cost for the same quarter for all prisoners in the institution where confined, excluding expenses of construction or extraordinary repair of buildings. The sum so derived shall be credited to the current appropriation for the maintenance and operation of such institutions. (June 27, 1946, 60 Stat. 321, ch. 507, § 6.)

§ 24–447. Advances to Director, Department of Corrections.

Provided, That the disbursing officer of the District of Columbia is authorized to advance to the Director, Department of Corrections, upon requisitions previously approved by the Auditor of the District of Columbia and upon such security as the Commissioners may require of said Director, sums of money not exceeding $750 at one time, to be used only for expenses in returning escaped prisoners, conditional releasees, and parolees. (July 18, 1950, 64 Stat. 347, ch. 467, § 1).

Chapter 5.—REHABILITATION OF ALCOHOLICS.

Sec.

24–501. Purpose.
24–502. "Chronic alcoholic" defined.
24–503. Alcoholic clinic.
24–504. Suspension of criminal proceedings—Hearing—Commitment to clinic.
24–505. Classification and diagnostic center.
24–506. Director's recommendation to committing judge—Court order—Designation of director as representative of Attorney General.
24–507. Discharge at expiration of term—Second hearing on director's recommendation—Recommitment.
24–508. Supervision of probation officer or other agency.
24–509. Certification of adequate facilities.
24–510. Voluntary submission for treatment—Admission—Payment of costs—Rules and regulations—Rights as citizen retained.
24–511. Contract for treatment by appropriate agency.
24–512. Director of clinic—Personnel.
24–513. Director's recommendations—Publication of data.
24–514. Advisory committee.

§ 24–501. Purpose.

The purpose of this chapter is to establish a program for the rehabilitation of alcoholics, promote temperance, and provide for the medical, psychiatric, and other scientific treatment of chronic alcoholics; to minimize the deleterious effects of excessive drinking on those who pass through the courts of the District of Columbia; to reduce the financial burden imposed upon the people of the District of Columbia by the abusive use of alcoholic beverages, as is reflected in mounting accident rates, decreased personal efficiency, growing absenteeism, and a general increase in the amount and seriousness of crime in the District of Columbia, and to substitute for jail sentences for drunkenness medical and other scientific methods of treatment which will benefit the individual involved and more fully protect the public. In order to accomplish this purpose and alleviate the problem of chronic alcoholism, the courts of the District of Columbia are hereby authorized to take judicial notice of the fact that a chronic alcoholic is a sick person and in need of proper medical, institutional, advisory, and rehabilitative treatment, and the court is authorized to direct that he receive appropriate medical, psychiatric, or other treatment as provided under the terms of this chapter. (Aug. 4, 1947, 61 Stat. 744, ch. 472, § 1.)

§ 24–502. "Chronic alcoholic" defined.

The term "chronic alcoholic" means any person who chronically and habitually uses alcoholic beverages to the extent that he has lost the power of self-control with respect to the use of such beverages, or while under the influence of alcohol endangers the public morals, health, safety, or welfare. (Aug. 4, 1947, 61 Stat. 744, ch. 472, § 2.)

§ 24–503. Alcoholic clinic.

(a) The Commissioners of the District of Columbia are hereby authorized and directed to establish and equip a clinic in connection either with some existing hospital or with some correctional institution or other facility for the diagnosis, classification, hospitalization, confinement, treatment, and study of persons who are found to be chronic alcoholics, as defined herein, by the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia.

(b) The Commissioners of the District of Columbia are also directed to utilize the alcoholic clinic services for the treatment of the chronic alcoholic as authorized by this chapter and for the purpose of preparing and administering a program for the rehabilitation of alcoholics and the promotion of temperance through teaching and training of professional personnel and use through community organization. (Aug. 4, 1947, 61 Stat. 744, ch. 472, § 3.)

§ 24–504. Suspension of criminal proceedings—Hearing—Commitment to clinic.

In any criminal case, brought to trial before the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia, in which the evidence indicates that the defendant is a chronic alcoholic within the meaning of section 24–502, the judge may suspend the proceedings in the case and order that a hearing be held, upon sufficient notice, to determine whether the defendant is a chronic alcoholic. The hearing shall be conducted by the judge without a jury, unless the defendant requests a jury. The defendant shall be entitled to representation at the hearing by an attorney of his own choice, and if the defendant does not select an attorney, the court shall appoint an attorney to represent the defendant. If, after the hearing, the judge, or the jury, as the case may be, determines that the defendant is a chronic alcoholic, the court may order that he be committed to the clinic for diagnosis, classification, and treatment as his condition may require, provided the term of commitment shall not exceed ninety days. (Aug. 4, 1947, 61 Stat. 745, ch. 472, § 4.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

DISCRETION OF COURT

The statute which provides that the court may order the defendant committed to a clinic clearly indicates that such commitment is generally a matter of discretion of the court. Peeples v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1950, 75 A. 2d 845).

§ 24–505. Classification and diagnostic center.

The director of the clinic shall provide a classification and diagnostic center. Every person committed to the clinic shall first be sent to this classification and diagnostic center for observation, examination, and classification. The classification center shall make a complete study of each person committed, including mental and physical condition, personal traits, pertinent circumstances of school and family life, and any delinquency, criminal experience, or other factors contributing to his addiction to alcohol. (Aug. 4, 1947, 61 Stat. 745, ch. 472, § 5.)

§ 24–506. Director's recommendation to committing judge—Court order—Designation of director as representative of Attorney General.

(a) The director may then recommend to the committing judge that the person committed (1) be permitted to remain at liberty conditionally and under supervision, or (2) be placed in an appropriate agency, hospital, institution in the District of Columbia for treatment as a chronic alcoholic, or (3) be returned to the court from which he was committed for trial upon the original offense charged or for such action as the court may deem proper. The court may thereupon, in its discretion, issue such orders as it deems necessary and proper in the case.

(b) The Attorney General of the United States may, in order to carry out the purposes of this act, designate the director of the clinic as his authorized representative under section 24–425. (Aug. 4, 1947, 61 Stat. 745, ch. 472, § 6.)

§ 24–507. Discharge at expiration of term—Second hearing on director's recommendation—Recommitment.

At the expiration of the term of commitment the chronic alcoholic must be discharged, unless the director of the clinic recommends to the court prior to the expiration of the term of commitment that he is in need of additional treatment in an appropriate hospital or institution, in which event the court will conduct a second hearing, in the same manner and upon the same conditions as provided in section 24–504 for the first hearing, as to his condition, and may order the chronic alcoholic recommitted for an additional period of ninety days or less as his condition requires. (Aug. 4, 1947, 61 Stat. 745, ch. 472, § 7.)

§ 24–508. Supervision of probation officer or other agency.

A chronic alcoholic committed to the clinic and who is permitted to remain at liberty or conditionally released shall be under the supervision of the probation office of the court in which he was committed, or the clinic, or such other agency, public or private, as the court may determine. (Aug. 4, 1947, 61 Stat. 745, ch. 472, § 8.)

§ 24–509. Certification of adequate facilities.

No chronic alcoholic shall be committed to a clinic, agency, hospital, or institution under the terms of this chapter until the District Commissioners shall certify to the municipal court for the District of Columbia the extent to which proper and adequate treatment facilities and personnel have been provided to carry out the purposes of this chapter. (Aug. 4, 1947, 61 Stat. 745, ch. 472, § 9.)

§ 24–510. Voluntary submission for treatment—Admission—Payment of costs—Rules and regulations—Rights as citizen retained.

(a) Any resident of the District of Columbia who is a chronic alcoholic within the meaning of this chapter may voluntarily submit himself for admission, examination, and treatment in the clinic. If he is found to be a chronic alcoholic, the applicant may be admitted to the clinic for such period of time as is estimated by the director as necessary to effect a cure. He may be given such treatment, guidance, and help as the director deems appropriate except that he may not be committed to a correctional institution. Any such chronic alcoholic voluntarily applying may be required to pay the cost of his subsistence, care, and treatment. All such money shall be covered into the credit of the appropriation from which the expenditure was made. The Commissioners may establish or approve such rules and regulations as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section.

(b) Any resident of the District of Columbia who voluntarily submits himself for admission and treatment in the clinic shall not forfeit or abridge thereby any of his rights as a citizen of the United States, nor shall the fact that he has submitted himself for admission and treatment or that he has been given help or has submitted himself to any study, treatment, or guidance be used against him in any proceeding in any court. The record of any application under this section by any individual for admission and treatment in the clinic and the record of any study of, or treatment, guidance, or help furnished to, any individual admitted in the clinic under this section shall be confidential, and not be divulged except on order of the court. No order may be made under section 24–506 with respect to any such individual except as provided under the rules and regulations of the Commissioners in effect at the time such individual voluntarily submitted himself for admission and treatment in the clinic. (Aug. 4, 1947, 61 Stat. 746, ch. 472, § 10.)

§ 24–511. Contract for treatment by appropriate agency.

The Commissioners of the District of Columbia may contract with any appropriate agency not under its control, which has proper and adequate treatment facilities and personnel to carry out the purposes of this chapter, for the custody, care, subsistence, treatment, and training of persons committed to the alcoholic clinic herein authorized. (Aug. 4, 1947, 61 Stat. 746, ch. 472, § 11.)

§ 24–512. Director of clinic—Personnel.

The Commissioners of the District of Columbia are authorized and directed to appoint a director of the clinic, who shall be a qualified physician with such training in psychiatry as they may prescribe, the necessary medical officers, psychiatrists, probation officers, social-case workers, and other personnel needed to carry out the purposes of this chapter. (Aug. 4, 1947, 61 Stat. 746, ch. 472, § 12.)

§ 24–513. Director's recommendations—Publication of data.

The director of the clinic shall from time to time submit to the Commissioners such recommendations as will further the rehabilitation of chronic alcoholics, prevent the excessive and abusive use of alcoholic beverages, promote temperance, and he shall also gather and publish as complete and accurate data as is possible relating to the physiological, psychological, economic, and social effects of the abusive use of alcoholic beverages and shall prepare and publish materials, data, and information to be used in a program of public education in the District of Columbia directed toward the prevention and use of alcoholic beverages excessively and abusively. (Aug. 4, 1947, 61 Stat. 746, ch. 472, § 13.)

§ 24–514. Advisory committee.

The Commissioners shall appoint a committee, to be composed of six outstanding residents of the District of Columbia, to advise and consult with the Commissioners and to assist them in carrying out the provisions of this chapter. The members of the committee shall serve without compensation and shall serve for a period of one year and until their successors are appointed. (Aug. 4, 1947, 61 Stat. 747, ch. 472, § 15.)
